KILLING YOURSELF

STOP

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My problem is staying awake. I am 30 and desperate. I've heard about narcolepsy, but the three doctors I've been to implied there's no such disorder. Would you ask for consultation? — Mrs. K.

Comment: I know the old saw about "doctors disagreeing" — but when three agree that there is no such syndrome as narcolepsy, then it's time for other opinions.

Often, a borderline, low thyroid function is blamed for sleepiness. However, if thyroid medication doesn't help after a trial of a few months, then it's time to consider the possibility of narcolepsy.

This condition is often overlooked, but can be helped dramatically with the use of Ritalin, etc. I have observed many cases in my own practice who had been labeled "sleepyheads" or "lazy good for-nothings." How grateful they were to become wakeful again. True narcolepsy is of unknown origin. But it affects 0.2 to 0.3 per cent of the population. Narcolepsy comes from the Greek word "narke" meaning stupor and from "lepsis" meaning seizure.

Sometimes it is a familial trait. The afflicted person is often a danger to himself and others because he may fall asleep while at the wheel of a car. Sleep often comes unbidden while playing cards, sitting in company or while eating.

The condition may begin during adolescence or become established in the 20's or 30's. It appears more often in males, in a ratio of about two to one. This irresistible desire to fall asleep may overcome the narcoleptic as often as 10 to 15 times a day. There is a continual battle to stay awake.

This invincible need for sleep in the narcoleptic patient may come at any time. In some cases it has occurred during the act of sexual intercourse (especially after orgasm). The scientific term "orgasmolepsy" means sleep or loss of consciousness brought on by orgasm. • • •

For Mrs. Y.: My answer is yes. I do believe that a woman in her menopause should be allowed to take hormones to control excessive sweats and nervousness.

However, there is one but I'd like to add: provided your doctor finds no actual physical reason why you can't take hormones. On the other hand, if your doctor refuses to prescribe them only because he says "it is a natural time of your life" or "I just don't believe in giving hormones for the change of life" — then you have the right to ask for consultation to get the opinion of another gynecologist.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Sometimes the medicine my doctor prescribed for my migraine headaches works wonders. At other times, if I take it after the headache has already set in, it's as worthless as taking a sugar pill. How do you account for it? — Mrs. F.

Comment: Many patients who suffer from migraine get warning symptoms that an attack is on the way. This is the ideal time to take the medicine. The earlier you take it the more effective it will be. As in your own experience, it isn't uncommon to find that taking the medicine after the attack has begun is an ineffectual way to treat migraine.

• • •

For Mr. O.: The man (or woman) who coughs and says, "Some day I'd better give up smoking, before it raises the devil with my lungs" should add, "with my heart and arteries, too."

• • •

For Mrs. P.: You have been hearing "scare-talk." I see no reason why a healthy person cannot drink a glass or two of ice water daily.

Specialists Check Apollo Before Crucial Countdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Crews of specialists painstakingly inspected the Saturn V rocket and Apollo 11 spacecraft today with only hours remaining before the start of the countdown for the moon-landing mission launch.

Engineers and technicians prowled the 36-storey-tall complex both inside and out, searching for possible flaws that could delay or ruin the $350,000,000 flight.

The lengthy countdown is to start at 8 p.m. EDT Thursday, aiming for a liftoff next Wednesday at 9:32 a.m.

The three astronauts who will make the momentous journey, Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins, planned seven-plus hours today in the command ship trainer, practising the critical launching phase and what they would do in various emergency situations.

Walter Kapryan, deputy director of launch operations, said: "We are moving ahead toward launch with confidence based on experience—but not with overconfidence."

Inside the enormous tanks of the rocket, crews work in a maze of pumps, valves, fuel lines, wiring and electronic devices. They move carefully on special walkways and access platforms. Conspicuous red tags identify flight equipment which must be removed before blastoff.

Security and quality control inspection is tight, said Robert Abbott, who heads the Saturn V quality assurance section.

"A man must have the right badges and the right reasons to get in any of the three stages," he said.

HIT THE HOUR

The first true mechanical clocks, made in the 13th century, often lacked hands and faces and merely struck the hour.

A newspaper boy learns to keep good records

Young man taking a business course!

During the school day this boy takes courses in English, arithmetic, the social sciences. And he does well at them. On his newspaper route, he takes another course—a business course, in which he applies in a practical way the things he learns in the classroom—he also learns something more.

He learns the basics of business, which will stand him in good stead throughout his life. As a newspaperboy, he operates his own retail business, with the counsel of our circulation people who make a career of working with boys. He buys his newspapers from us, and he sells them to you. In managing his business, he delivers, collects; keeps records, learns to deal with people. Little wonder so many business leaders of today will tell you the most valuable experience they had as a boy was managing a newspaper route. It's one good why a boy can round out his education. Delayed Trials Unjust

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What do you suppose a man ought to get for breaking a grocery store window and running off with five boxes of cookies? Thirty days? Sixty days? Maybe 90 days?

In Detroit this week, a 27-year-old man went on trial on charges of stealing five boxes of cookies. He had been waiting in jail one year since his arrest, in lieu of $500 bond.

No matter what the sentence — even if he is freed — he has already spent a full year of his life in confinement for stealing five boxes of cookies. Justice is already too late for him.

Local officials, when the case was brought to their attention, blamed the delay on over-crowded dockets and understaffed courtrooms. But those were not the real causes the real cause was the man's poverty. An affluent thief would not have spent a day in detention.

Quite apart from the rank injustice that runs through our whole class system of jurisprudence — and that makes the poor, contemptuous of our slogans like "law and order" — there is the practical matter of these "over - crowded dockets." What are they overcrowded with? Moving traffic violations, automobile accident cases, personal injury suits, and other such civil matters.

Gov. Rockefeller of New York not long ago proposed that most cases involving moving traffic violations be removed from the Criminal Courts to the State Department of Motor Vehicles. "By relieving the Criminal Courts of most traffic cases," he said, "the city courts would be able to provide prompter handling of serious criminal matters in a more judicious atmosphere."

Our courts are clogged with merchants suing the judicial system as "collection agencies" for bad credit risks, with landlords seeking to evict tenants; with motorists suing insurance companies; and with thousands of trivial torts that postpone criminal cases for months and even years. And, in the old legal saying, "justice delayed is justice denied."

We desperately need special courts, or quasi-courts, or commissions, to process this enormous backlog of civil cases so that our judges can promptly and fairly hear serious criminal cases, so that no man is kept in detention longer than is humanely necessary so that no victim of loss or injury must wait years and years to collect a pittance.

It is these inequities, these delays, these disproportions of recompense and retribution, that make the law a mockery and destroy the common people's faith in the integrity of our legal system.

Debate on Limiting Debates Is Proving House's Windiest

OTTAWA (CP) — The debate on how to limit debate in the Commons is turning into the windiest of the session.

It began last September and went on until December when a partial new set of rules was agreed upon.

The controversial issue of time allocation was handed to a committee which produced a report June 20. Debate on it began Tuesday.

The opposition, which says the recommendations in the report could limit debate on a bill to two days, Tuesday proposed that the whole issue be sent back to committee, presumably to come up again in the fall.

The motion by Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River), the Conservative House Leader, drew NDP and Creditiste support.

However, the government, apparently hoping to talk the opposition into accepting some formula, gave no sign of acceptance of this idea.

"In July, the members games should be played at country fairs, not in the House of Commons," R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) growled.

The government in the spring estimated that the House could rise for summer recess June 27 but some MPs predict the rules debate could last another two weeks.

As the Commons argued about the rules, the Senate gave second reading to the official languages bill. The upper house meets again today.

Meanwhile, the Commons will continue the locked rules business with no sign of retreat on either side.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said his party is prepared to debate the subject all summer.

An unusual feature of Tuesday's session was the lack of a question period, the daily airing of the cabinet by the opposition.

The reason was that the House never gets past the first order of business—consideration of the procedure committee's report. A question period will be held today because under House rules the report is not again the first item of business.

Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald began Tuesday with a surprise withdrawal of a government motion containing rule changes similar to those proposed in the procedure committee's report.

The government had introduced this motion to allow amendments without being forced to send the matter back to committee. A committee report cannot be amended in the Commons.

The opposition said the government motion made a mockery of the committee system.

Mr. Macdonald's withdrawal came after a morning session in which Liberal members of the committee, under Chairman Gordon Blair (Grenville-Carleton) were reported to have criticized the way the matter has been handled.

Mr. Blair asked Commons concurrence in the committee report, touching off the debate proper.

The committee report proposes three new rules on time allocation.

They are: 75A, which would provide for all-party agreement on debate limits 75B, which would allow limits to be set by government with the help of parties and 75C, which would allow the government alone to limit debate.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said 75C is vicious. Other MPs recalled the 1956 pipeline debate, in which closure was used to get a Trans-Canada Pipe Line bill through the Commons.

Liberal MPs replied that 75C undoubtedly would be used sparingly and argued that other parliamentary systems, notably that in Britain, have and use tough time-allocation rules.

Mr. Blair said the proposed rules would allow a minimum of 10 days' debate on any measure but opposition MPs shouted: "That's just not true."

Mr. Blair then said it would be a minimum of 10 days of "elapsed time."

The rule would allow at least one day of debate at the second reading stage but the report and third-reading stages could be combined, meaning a bill could conceivably get passage in two days.

Mr. Blair said second reading would take at least three days with three more days in committee and four for the report and third-reading stages.

He did not make it clear how he arrived at these figures.

A closure rule currently in the Commons rulebook is considered too unwieldly to use. It must be applied clause by clause and might actually extend the time taken to pass measures such as the omnibus bill on the Criminal Code, which had 120 clauses.

Government MPs are using the omnibus bill as an example of where a time-allocation procedure is necessary.

Fourteen Creditiste MPs kept the debate on the report and third-reading stage going for 20 days this spring. Yves Forest (L—Missisquoi) said, in arguing for a rule that "would be fair to the majority."

Customs Closing Assailed

OTTAWA (CP) — Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) denounced Tuesday night in the Commons what he called a gross example of administrative incompetence in the closing of the customs office at Ingersoll, Ont.

Mr. Nesbitt said in an adjournment debate that removal of the customs appraiser posed "the greatest possible inconvenience" for industries in Ingersoll.

These industries all require materials from the United States for processing he said, unloaded at Woodstock and trucked into Ingersoll.

The behavior of a customs official who went to Ingersoll in connection with protests about the closing was high-handed and disgusting, Mr. Nesbitt charged.

Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Coté said he is surprised by Mr. Nesbitt's "serious accusations" and would make inquiries.

He also said he will have his officials look into the possibility of compensation for industries disrupted by the customs closure.

Senators Endorse Languages Measure

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate gave second reading to the government's official languages bill Tuesday after senators from both sides of the upper chamber spoke generally in favor of the measure.

After an 2¼-hour debate the bill was given second reading and sent to committee for detailed study. The bill won final Commons approval Monday.

The bill would make French and English official languages of the federal administration and set bilingual districts across Canada where federal services would be available in both languages.

Senator Paul Martin, government Senate leader, during the debate called the measure "one of the most important enactments in our Canadian history."

Speaking alternately in French and English, as did some other senators, Senator Martin said the bill does not modify the Canadian constitution.

It did not impose bilingualism on Canadians or affect the rights and privileges of other ethnic groups. It was just, reasonable and necessary legislation.

"In passing this act, we are not overlooking the vital contribution made to our national life by those Canadians who are not of either French or English descent," Senator Martin said. They could continue to develop under the same conditions as before.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For July 10

Your birthday today: Now begins a year of balancing more intuitive understanding of yourself with growing concern of your social life. The adjustments you must make are many and subtle; their results surprising and important. Today's natives are frequently skilled in music, interested in promoting music.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Put in a determined effort to succeed today. Partners intuitive faculties are working overtime; this is very helpful so be straightforward with them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): New ventures are not favored today, but you can achieve excellent results by studying and analysing all active projects.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): What you enter into today can only be gotten out of with much bother and later than you'd like; it's better not to involve yourself.

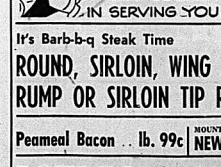
CANCER (June 21 — July 22): There is a crossword running in your emotional life. Some relationships are just not the same after this, even where no incident of conflict happens.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Let your views be heard — use every contact that offers career advancement. Emotional confrontations are apt to be memorable, never to be repeated (so make the most of them).

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today is a generally placid and pleasant, one for you, with possible surprise visits in early afternoon. Somebody talks a great deal rougher than reality but calms down, if handled correctly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today's path is a fairly easy one — use the opportunity for planning, study, self-improvement. In the evening give a thought to how you are going to bring your ideas into reality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Ask for what you need, if you are sure of what it is. Reflection on your situation and your progress brings good results today.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Bring your most business-like approach and a cheerful smile to your work along with your usual levelheadedness. Put in steady effort — or if progress is hindered, make the needed changes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Today: something of everything, most of it enjoyable. Business contacts are more pleasant than usual, if you will let them warm up. Romantic interests improve as the day wears on.

AUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Pursue your creative urges today. Children have certain expectations: do not disappoint them. Aside from this, you are your own taskmaster now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It's likely to be an unexpected morning full of surprises on the job. Stand clear and watch the performance, but don't talk about it — there's much more to come.

RESEARCH PAYS

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — When two rattlesnakes bit 15-year-old Dana Robinson on both legs, her 15-year-old hiking companion quickly applied tourniquets and ran to tell her father. Doctors in Antelope Valley Hospital said James Jenkins saved the girl's life. "I've spent a great deal of time researching how to treat snakebites," James said after the incident.

Pesticide Poison Said Evident

EDMONTON (CP) — The public must be informed of dangers facing wildlife from pesticides, delegates to the annual federal-provincial wildlife conference were told Tuesday.

J. A. Keith, head of the Canadian Wildlife Service pesticide division, said birds and animals are being seriously poisoned and use of pesticides such as DDT must end.

"Even well-regulated spraying of pesticides will still result in contamination," said Mr. Keith.

Dr. S. B. Smith, director of the fish and wildlife division of the Alberta government, said the biologist and not the government must bear the responsibility for the possible effects of pesticide poisoning.

"We biologists have in the past made the classic mistake of refusing to tell politicians anything," Dr. Smith said.

"The fault lies with professional people for not making public statements."

Delegates were told earlier by Christopher de Last, executive director of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, that the scene is being set for more effective audiences for their recommendations.

Mr. de Last said plans for meetings on resource conservation, including one set for 1973 on multiple use of resource areas, would give professionals the opportunity to inform government of conservation steps that are necessary.

One such conservation plan, the federal wildlife land easement and acquisition program, has been severely curtailed.

Reporting on the program, which protects migratory birds' nesting areas by renting or purchasing wetland areas used by waterfowl, N. G. Perret, program administrator, said cutbacks had been necessary.

New money policy within the federal government had made the previous plans for a $50,000,000 expenditure in 10 years impossible, he said.

Instead, the program would now spend only $1,250,000 in the 10-year period.

The program itself has not been proved effective, Mr. Perret said, but would still continue on a limited scale.

Judge Flays Cabinet For Changing Sentence

OTTAWA (CP) — It is an abdication of duty for the federal cabinet to commute death sentences when this is what the law requires, Judge J. A. Archambault said Monday.

"It seems more and more that the authorities find it most difficult to impose proper punishment when the laws of the land say one thing and our great white fathers in Parliament Hill decide otherwise," the judge said in court.

He offered the comments while remanding for sentence a local man convicted of obstructing a police officer.

"Recently we noticed where a corporal of the RCMP was murdered," the judge said in a reference to the slaying of the corporal by Leonard Otto Borg in 1967 in Grande Prairie, Alta.

"The law is quite specific that when a police officer is murdered his (the killer's) execution will stand. Yet they commuted his sentence to life imprisonment, which means that in 10 years this man will be out.

"To me this is an abdication of one's duty."

Borg was convicted April 10, 1968, of the shooting of Cpl. Donald Harvey of the RCMP.

He was sentenced to be hanged a year ago. After an appeal was dismissed, his execution was set for July 23 this year. Last Friday the government announced that his sentence had been commuted.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The president of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police has called on service clubs to protest the commutation of Leonard O. Borg's death sentence.

Chief Chris Einfeld of East Kildonan, Man., told the St. John's Northwest Rotary Club Tuesday that "service clubs should voice their objection to the government for not letting justice take its course."

Chief Einfeld has been in St. John's since Monday attending the annual convention of the Maritime Association of Police Chiefs.

Union Contract Ends, Inco Plants Are Idle

Workers Refuse To Stay on Job

TORONTO (CP) — More than 17,200 members of the United Steelworkers of America today began a work stoppage at the two main Ontario plants of the giant International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

As bargaining for a new three-year contract and higher wages continued in a Toronto hotel, picket lines were set up at the Inco plants at Sudbury and Port Colborne. A total of 15,500 workers are employed by Inco in Sudbury and 1,700 at Port Colborne.

The company is the world's largest supplier of nickel.

The Steelworkers Union said earlier in a statement the men could not report for work because there is no contract. The old contract expired at midnight Wednesday night.

"No contract, no work," said the statement, released by Homer Seguin, president of Sudbury Local 6500 and James Bairead, head of Port Colborne Local 6500.

Later, Mr. Seguin said in an interview the union did not regard the stoppage as a strike "but as a forced lockout because the company has not moved towards a settlement."

The company still is negotiating and could not make its final offer public until the union calls an official strike, Shane MacKay, vice-president of Inco, said earlier in an interview. He is not a member of the negotiating team.

Both sides admitted they were "wide apart" and prospects for an early settlement appeared uncertain.

A protracted strike at Inco, producer of about 40 per cent of the world's nickel, could cripple steel production in Canada, Japan, the United States and Western Europe.

Nickel is used as a hardener in a variety of steel alloys and finds its way into stainless steel products, car bumpers, jet engines and construction steel."

Inco exported 96 per cent of the 480,000,000 pounds of nickel it produced in 1968 and about 50 per cent of it went to the U.S. In 1968 the company had net earnings of $143,745,002.

A company spokesman said the Inco negotiating team had improved upon an earlier package offer of 87 cents an hour over three years, but the union is reported to be asking for a package increase of more than $1.50.

Latest a spokesman said the company's last offer before the stoppage called for a package worth 95 cents an hour in a three-year contract. Included in the package was 71¢ cents in wage increases.

He said the offer compares favorably with other settlements being made in Canada and amounts to an increase of more than 22 per cent over the three years.

Oust 'Foreign Elements' Urges Quebec Minister

MALBAIE, Que. (CP) — If Quebec is to be master of its own house, it must shake off the "foreign elements" who bring "discord, disorder and revolution," Paul Allard, Quebec minister of natural resources, said Wednesday.

Speaking at the opening of the Malbaie regional industrial exposition, Mr. Allard said, "we must keep up our pride in Quebec and reject those who speak disparagingly of our native land and particularly the grave-diggers of our liberty."

"Are we or are we not masters in our house?" he said, borrowing the Opposition Liberals' 1962 election slogan.

"If we are, let's prove it by sending away all the foreign elements who come to sow discord, disorder and revolution."

Malbaie is 175 miles northeast of Quebec City on the Gaspe Peninsula.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Tenants' Association, formed last week in Kingston, is planning an Oct. 4 march on the Ontario legislature to confront the provincial government with demands for rent controls.

MONTREAL (CP) — A school teacher was sentenced to two days in jail Wednesday after telling a municipal court judge she had deliberately stolen articles in a north-end department store because she wanted to describe to her pupils what it meant to be in jail.

Easier Inspection Asked

LONDON (CP) — The International Red Cross may hold the key to the crucial question of whether agreement can be reached between Nigeria and Biafra to resume large-scale mercy flights to aid the sick and dying of Biafra.

Marcel Naville, Red Cross president, heads a five-man Geneva mission to Lagos, the Nigerian capital, where he today will attempt to persuade Nigerian leader Gen. Yakubu Gowon to moderate his previous insistence that all relief flights be inspected on Nigerian territory to ensure that no arms are aboard.

Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, Biafran leader, has rejected this demand, saying Nigeria is bent on genocide and already has attempted to exterminate Biafrans by sending poisoned food.

Smythe, Ballard Facing Charges of Tax Evasion

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, directors of Maple Leaf Gardens, Ltd., were charged Wednesday with income tax evasion and making false or deceptive statements on income tax returns.

RCMP said Smythe and Ballard both accepted summonses this morning at RCMP headquarters. Both men are due to appear in court July 17.

Informations under the Income Tax Act involving $278,520 for Smythe and $134,685 for Ballard were sworn Wednesday by federal investigators.

The informations allege that between April, 1965, and April, 1968, Smythe and Ballard used money appropriated from Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, on constructing and improving their residences and for personal and family expenses.

Penalties under the Income Tax Act depend on whether the Crown proceeds summarily or through indictment.

A summary proceeding involves a trial in provincial court. Upon conviction there is a minimum fine of $25 and a maximum of $10,000 on each count, plus double the tax that should be paid and possibly imprisonment for up to three years.

If the Crown decides to proceed by indictment, which would be before a higher court, imprisonment, in addition to the other penalties, could be as high as five years and not less than two months.

Smythe and Ballard were fired June 26 as president and executive vice-president, respectively, of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. during a four-hour meeting of the board of directors. They remained as directors and Smythe continued as a governor of the NHL and Ballard as an alternate.

Last October, the RCMP seized financial records at the Gardens. A few hours after

Cairo Reports Raid, Israel Unaware of It

By REUTERS

An Israeli Army spokesman today denied reports that Egyptian infantry crossed the Suez canal this morning to attack Israeli fortifications in the Ismailia region.

The spokesman said no truce of such an attack had been found in the area, nor in any other area along the length of the canal.

A military spokesman in Cairo earlier claimed two Egyptian infantry platoons supported by army engineers slipped across the canal today and blasted five Israeli installations north of Ismailia.

The attack was carried out without any preliminary artillery fire and took the Israelis by surprise, the Egyptian spokesman said.

The Egyptian troops laid explosive charges in five gun emplacements and in engineering installations and bunkers and destroyed all of them, he added.

Dream Dress

Boyhood Dream Is Coming True for Astronaut

HOUSTON (AP) — As a boy, Neil Armstrong had a dream. He wanted to land on the moon. In a few days he and Edwin Aldrin are to do just that.

"For me to fulfil the dream is a stroke of incredibly good fortune," Armstrong says. "I suppose the chance of doing what thousands of people through history have wanted to do, the chance of this chain of events taking place in this section of history is beyond the ability of the oddsmakers to calculate."

At a time of concentrated involvement in Apollo 11, Armstrong nevertheless is looking ahead to the next giant step. In his desire to fly, to continue questing eternal mysteries, he wants to rocket again into space.

"With the first lunar landing, I don't agree that we've reached the peak," he said in an interview. "I think it is just a beginning. I really suspect that the flights of the next decade will be even more interesting, more engulfing than the the ones of the past.

"The objective of our flight is to take men to the moon, make a landing and return safely to earth," he said. "It will demonstrate to mankind that we can do that kind of a job. How well we'll use what we learn in future, only history will tell.

Apollo Is Leaking

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A leak developed in pressurization system of the Apollo 11 rocket today and a crew rushed in to find it, raising the possibility of a delay in tonight's scheduled start of the final countdown for the moon landing mission.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the leak was in the helium gas system used to pressurize fuel tanks in the first stage of the 36-storey Saturn V rocket.

Based on the experience of the last decade, I believe we will use that knowledge."

"Even now," he said, "our future direction is beginning to emerge. People are looking at things that can be practical in space. I don't know what the decision of the nation will be, but I can envision space stations, space shuttles, lunar shuttles, advance lunar exploration and planetary exploration."

Why this overwhelming desire to fly?

"I don't think I fly just for the sake of flying." Armstrong replied. "It's a way of performing a service and it's a tool.

"Why does a carpenter like to saw? Oh, maybe he doesn't, but he's fortunate if he does. He doesn't really consider his job as sawing. He considers his job as building.

"I like to consider our job as building—building a transportation system, building the state of man's knowledge, building man's inclination to learn more. That airplane and that spacecraft are my saw."

'Castaways' on Moon Will Tattle Its Secrets

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Tattletale castaways will be marooned on the moon when the Apollo 11 astronauts leave.

Both are experiments designed to tell whether the moon is "alive" and, how much it wobbles, precisely how far it is away from earth, how it is wandering—and both are expected to add immeasurably to man's knowledge of his own earth.

One castaway is a seismometer, a precision instrument to detect whether the moon has earthquakes, and thus probably a hot centre. The other is a special reflector for laser beams to be aimed at it from earth stations, providing a fantastically accurate "ruler" to measure distances and motions.

Besides setting up these instruments some 10 days hence, astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Waldrin will bring home priceless specimens of rocks, and a flag-shaped piece of aluminum which, during their stay, will have captured particles from the solar winds blowing upon the moon and earth and space.

Important Food Processing Area

President Predicts Belleville Boom

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Belleville area could become an important food-processing industrial region, predicts F. L. Patterson.

The forecast comes on high authority.

As president of Brooke Bond Canada Limited he heads one of the country's major food-industry units.

Yesterday, Mr. Patterson was in Belleville to ceremonially launch Brooke Bond's latest venture — a new 100-job plant, manufacturing spice, dry food and meat extract.

Joining community representatives for the occasion was a busload of Montreal businessmen, down to view construction on the site in the city's northend industrial park.

It was before this group that Mr. Patterson made his prediction, after scanning the potential of the Belleville area during a dinner speech at the Sun Valley motel.

"You have one of the finest industrial locations in Canada," said Mr. Patterson.

The Quinte city is close enough to major metropolitan markets in Ontario and Quebec. Yet, it still has growing room; there's a good labor relations record and a progressive industrial promotion spirit in local government.

"I don't think it would be too daring at this time to predict that this area will some day become the nucleus of an important food-processing industry," said Mr. Patterson.

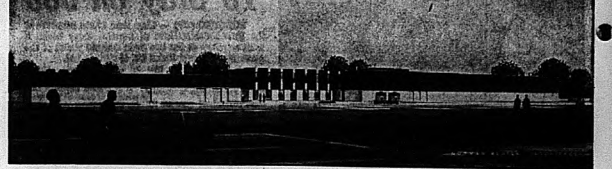
"Brooke Bond would not have chosen this community unless we thought it had a promising future and that we would prosper here together."

Brooke Bond, he said, began seeking an Ontario community, for a new enterprise in early 1968 — the year it purchased the famed Belleville-area Black Diamond Cheese operation.

"We focused on Belleville for reasons which other firms planning to expand cannot help but notice as well," said Mr. Patterson.

He mentioned other new industries settling in the area — among them, Campbell's Soup and the "unique plan" combining a Four Seasons resort hotel and a Bell Telephone training centre.

"With all these plus factors there's no reason whatsoever why the Belleville-Trenton area won't soon rival the Niagara-Hamilton-Toronto conglomeration as this country's leading industrial complex," predicted Mr. Patterson. "There's still lots of breathing space left around here."



The Brooke Bond Belleville plant, first announced April 17, is scheduled for operation by January, 1970.

It is now under construction by Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd., under a "total-concept" plan. This involves the contractor in all building aspects — design, contracting, plant layout and engineering, interior finishing and landscaping.

Foundation for Food

Brooke Bond president F. L. Patterson adds ceremonial touch to firm foundation for company's new Belleville food processing plant. Company and community officials and business men visited the site in the northend industrial park for occasion, formally marking the construction start of an industry expected to employ 100.

Development Official Dislikes 'Low-rental' Term

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "We are all led around by the nose of our subconscious, and the term 'low rental' housing carries a certain stigma with it," said Robert Charlesbois, assistant to the general manager of MacDonald Homes, the Bell's Corners Construction Company soon to break ground in Picton for 30 housing units.

The homes will be built on parcels of land on Maple Avenue and Darnell Street with the exception of one unit to be erected on Owen Street.

Mr. Charlesbois expressed the opinion that the words 'low rental' implied housing designed for second class citizens.

And the construction company's representative, "I don't like the words 'low rental' applied to these housing units."

"In essence, they are subsidized homes that enable the man making a modest living to fit into his community," he remarked.

These men," finished Mr. Charlesbois, "are needed in the community."

He emphasized that rental costs are based on the individual's income.

Mr. Charlesbois felt that most of the workers in Prince Edward County are suitable wage and, therefore, will not rent the hous... great deal more cheaply than other living accommodations in Picton.

The O.H.C. mobile information centre, a 73 foot tractor-trailer was parked in Picton's market square yesterday.

A staff member with the mobile centre commented that a number of Picton's senior citizen had come to the trailer for information on senior citizen housing.

"It's different here than in Belleville," observed the O.H.C. representative.

In Belleville many visitors to the information centre were people eager to live in the "low rental" units, according to the O.H.C. worker.

His observation in Picton was that many came to the trailer seemingly to "size up" the sort of homes coming into the community.

Town council some time ago approved the construction of 16 senior citizens housing units to be built on Lake Street. Funds have been approved for this project by both levels of government and a tender for the housing units was awarded to the Headway Corporation, Toronto.

Construction will begin when the Headway Corporation arrives Pi cton and receives a building permit from the town.

Belleville and District Obituaries and Funerals

JOSEPH GENORE

TWEED — Following an illness that extended over the past two months, Joseph Genore, of RR3, Tweed, died in the Belleville General Hospital at the age of 72 years, on Saturday. Mr. Genore was born in Hungerford Township, and his parents were the late Albert Genore and Mary Dourneyea.

The deceased had never married.

The deceased was a member of St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church at Stoco.

The body rested at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, until Tuesday thence to St. Edmund's Church, Stoco, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Dean. C. E. Baker. In the Sanctuary were: Rev. T. E. Briceland of Kingston and Rev. Peter H. Murphy of Flinton.

The bearers were: Mac Rush Feliz Fobert, Oliver Forsythe, Harold Varty, Clarence Provost and Wallace Provost.

Interment was in St. Edmund's Cemetery, Stoco.

CHARLES WHITNEY SLINGERLAND

In ill health for three months Charles Whitney Slingerland, Roslin, died in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday evening in his 65th year.

Mr. Slingerland was born in Lincoln County, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Slingerland and had resided in Roslin for 34 years. He was a self-employed garage mechanic and ran a shop in Roslin for many years.

He was a member of St. Paul's Anglican church in Roslin and at the time of his death was a warden of the church. Fraternally he was a Past Master of Tweed Lodge AF and AM No. 239, a member of Tweed Order of the Eastern Star No. 148 and a member of Thomasburg Lodge IOOF No. 293.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ethel Harris, and four daughters, Mrs. John (Reta) Palmer, Mrs. Hazel Arnie Rockman and Miss Ethel Slingerland, all of Roslin and Mrs. Lewis (Frances) Kellar, Milford.

Also surviving are three brothers, Russell Slingerland, Niagara Falls; Richard, St. Catharines, Charles M. of St. David's and five sisters, Mrs. Iola (Hazel) Hunt, Chippewa, Mrs. David (Rhoda) Greer, St. Catharines, Mrs. Earl (Laura) Manning, St. David's, Mrs. Catharine Quinn, St. Catharines and Mrs. Joseph (Jane) Macluk.

Mr. Slingerland is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, Roslin, where his funeral will be held on Friday, July 11 at 2 p.m. in the Funeral Home. Reverend W. A. Bush officiating.

Interment Frankford Cemetery.

Freak Shot Injures Girl

A 14-year-old Stirling girl is recovering today from a freak gunshot accident with a fortunate ending.

Sandra Lachappelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lachappelle, is recovering in Belleville General Hospital from severe injuries to the mouth where she was hit by a .22-calibre bullet.

Police say the bullet luckily fragmented when it struck the girl's teeth.

Sandra was babysitting at the neighboring home of Mr. and Mrs. William Blakeley when the accident occurred.

Police say she was making a bed and pushed it against the wall, jarring a single-shot rifle off a nearby rack.

The gun struck some object as it dropped, discharging five feet from the girl.

Police said "unknown to everybody" the gun was loaded.

Bellevillians Support Parks System

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Although city council has cut back park and recreation appropriations in an austerity move, public-spirited Bellevillians are continuing to support the parks system.

The Bishop family of Belleville this year shared the cost with the Board of parks management for development of Bishop Parkette on West Moira St. at the upper bridge.

Now, Frank S. Panter wants to aid in the renovation of Panter Park along the Moira River on Coleman St., named after his father, former Mayor W. H. Panter.

At its meeting yesterday the board received a cheque for $500 from Mr. Panter to be used for improvements to the park, either now, or at some future date.

Receipt of the cheque prompted drawing up of plans for long-term renovation of the park, Lloyd Syer, park board director presented his plans to the board and estimated total cost of development at $13,000.

He said the park would eventually extend to the bridge now being built over the Moira River at the foot of Dundas St., and would give an opportunity to create a scenic southern entrance to the city.

The plan he drew up includes a memorial astrolabe dedicated to Mayor Panter. It would be centred in a flagstone walk. A stone retaining wall along the river, topped by an open - work steel fence to permit viewing of the river, or saincorporated in the plan.

The stone work would be the most expensive part of the development, he told the board. Each 12 - foot panel of wall would cost about $500. He suggested about 100 feet be constructed in the first phase, although the park will presently extend for 800 feet along the river. The 30 - foot flagstone path at the base of the astrolabe would cost $3,000.

Improvement of Panter Park is not pencilled into immediate board plans, but the members decided to make a start on development with the $500 donation, rather than commit future boards with recommendations on renovations.

Mr. Syer made a final report on the cost of Bishop Parkette. The total cost was $2,630, $289 over the orginial estimate. The Bishop family paid half the cost.

See Anything?

Summer has definitely arrived as members of the younger set take advantage of the weather and enjoy a lazy day's fishing from the Lower Bridge. The fish had successfully eluded their bait all morning.

Ben Bleecker Auditorium Subject at Parks Meeting

Ben Bleecker Auditorium at Belleville Fairgrounds played a major share in the deliberations of the parks management board and area-recreation committee at their last meeting.

The building, constructed at a cost of $100,000 last year, and used at the annual fair, will be officially dedicated during this year's fair week to the memory of the late Ben Bleecker, a long-time fair board member and former chairman.

In the meantime, recreation-arena committee member, Mrs. Joan Guthrie has investigated installation of kitchen facilities and a quotation of $4,500 has been received for provision of proper ventilation in the building.

Mrs. Guthrie recommended installation of a food preparation room instead of a kitchen in the building. She said modern catering tends towards use of firms that cook all foods on their premises and require only a room at the banquet site to ready the prepared food for the table. She was instructed to investigate further, and attempt to find a firm willing to cater permanently on this basis to banquets in the building.

The matter of proper ventilation in the building is urgent, recreation director Lorne Williams told the committee. He will look into the installation by a Toronto firm of ventilating fans in the roof of the building.

The track and field team at Centennial school will use the building for training two or three afternoons a week during January, February and March.

The school gym is in use during these periods by other school teams. The committee decided, in line with the increased co-operation between schools and the city in use of facilities, to approve the track team request.

Board Wants $200

An easement across park property for a sewer will cost a local developer $200 if the Belleville Board of Parks management has its way.

At a Wednesday meeting the board decided to ask Charles W. Lambert of L and M. Investments for the sum in return for allowing him to put a sewer through a 106 foot length of parkland in West Park Village subdivision.

"I'm not objecting to allowing the sewer to go through," said board chairman Ald. Richard Ellis. "But I think he should pay for it."

Ald. Ellis told the board the developer was puting up 134 houses in the second phase of the development of West Park Village, and at that rate could afford to pay the board for the use of its land for necessary storm water drainage.

At the suggestion of Ald. Paul Russell, fee for the use of the land was set at "about $2 a foot," amounting to $200 in round figures.

Arena Committee Looks to Winter

While most Quinte residents still look forward to summer holidays and sunny weather recreation, the Belleville arena committee has its mind on winter sports and ice surfaces.

At the arena-recreation committee's meeting Wednesday, director Lorne Williams submitted the schedule for next winter's ice program.

The final summer event will take place in the arena Sept. 6. The ice machine will be turned on Sept. 15, and if the weather co-operates, the ice surface should be ready for use Sept. 22. The winter season will end April 11.

If the committee had recommended extension of the 29 week program, an additional $5,000 to $6,000 would have had to be spent for a condenser to chill hay water before it entered the refrigeration unit.

Robb Burrowes, arena manager, told the committee an estimated sum of about $2,000 would have to be spent on repairs to the ice machine.

The repairs are essential if the machine is to go into operation in September, he told the committee. The city was requested to get additional quotations on the cost of repairs before contracting to have the work done.

Two Men Face Break-in Charges

Two Toronto men have been charged by Trenton Police in connection with the break-in at the Redwood Motel early Wednesday morning.

Ronald James Dean, 26, of 695 Dovercourt Road, Toronto and 20-year-old Michael Gordon Kalogaris of 689 St. Clair West in Toronto have both been charged with break, entry and theft.

The amount of money taken has been set between $75-$100.

Entry to the motel's main office was gained through a window, according to police. Intruders ransacked the office and obtained money from the petty cash box and desk drawer. An attempt to open the large safe was made but it proved to be too much of a chore for the burglars.

Detective S. Vickers of the Trenton Police Force stated he arrived on the scene around 7.30 in the morning after being called by the motel.

After making an investigation of the office, two residents at the motel were questioned and later charged. Both Dean and Kalogaris are lodged in the Belleville County Jail awaiting a hearing on Tuesday.

Coroner Calls Drowning Inquest

The Cannifton Road dam on the Moira River remained inoperative today in the wake of Tuesday's drowning of an 11-year-old Trenton boy.

Stop logs — removed to lower water levels immediately after the incident — have not been replaced.

Francis Johnson, of Rexdale, drowned when he was trapped between loosening logs and the river bed.

A Moira River Conservation Authority spokesman indicated the aftermath of the tragedy still was being sorted out by various officers.

Any decision to re-install the logs will await discussions among the conservation authority, the city parks board — which owns greenbelt property on the river's east bank — Coroner Dr. John Stock and police chief Douglas Crosbie.

The Robertsons, a man and wife balancing act with the Beatty Circus, display their talents in the Brighton Arena. The balancing act was one of the 23 belonging to the circus which was in Brighton for one day yesterday.

Beatty Circus Plays Brighton

The show must go on. This was the idea on the minds of the Famous Beatty Circus troupe as only 150 people attended the afternoon performance during their one day in Brighton yesterday.

"We have to take the good with the bad," said Jack Morris, general manager of the circus. The afternoon show had a meagre crowd while the evening performance saw 400 people turn out.

Despite the poor crowd 23 acts including clowns, acrobats, and various kinds of animals of all shapes and sizes, ran through their routines as though the arena was filled.

Bongo, the gorilla, ran through the crowd chasing children and causing a little concern among the audience until they realized that it was a man in a gorilla suit.

The circus will be in Picton tonight and from there they will be moving on in their coast to coast tour of the country.

The Brighton performances were sponsored by the Oddfellows lodge of Picton, No. 362.

Strange Decision

Murder of a policeman or prison guard is still grounds for imposition of the death penalty in Canada, yet a man sentenced to die for killing a Mountie has had his sentence commuted. The public, not to mention the man himself, are wondering why.

It is disturbing when crimes of violence are on the increase and additional strain is being placed on law enforcement that such a decision should be made.

In Canada's larger centres in particular crimes against the person seem to be more prevalent. Certainly this has been the trend since Parliament ended the death penalty except, as already pointed out, for the murder of policemen or prison guards.

Now the authorities seem to be taking a lenient view even of that. It is a decision Canada may come to regret. Meanwhile, in the United States the law and order President Nixon (not to mention all the other candidates in the election six months ago) promised to restore is as elusive as ever.

In Ann Arbor, Michigan, another young woman has been murdered. Margaret Phillips, a 25-year-old sociology student, was shot. Her alleged killer is a convicted rapist she was trying to help rehabilitate. Miss Phillips is the seventh young woman murdered in the Ann Arbor area in the past two years.

Promises alone will not end what amounts almost to a reign of terror in the United States, a society ridden with mental defectives with easy access to the weapons the Government is either unwilling or unable to place under strict control.

Canada mercifully is not greatly menaced in this fashion, but as we have pointed out violence in one form or another is on the increase. It is something both the police and public at large must guard against.

Wheat for Peru

One of Canada's most serious domestic problems is unsold wheat. The country's granaries are bulging and sales have dropped.

Any break in the wheat glut then is to be welcomed, even though it may be only a drop in the ocean. The recent sale of 7,500,000 bushels worth some $14,000,000 to Peru is a case in point.

The sale was the first major sale of wheat to Latin America in recent years and it is all the more encouraging that it resulted from the visit of Canadian cabinet ministers to Latin America last November.

The fact is, Canada is more at home talking business than involving itself in the heady affairs of international politics. Selling wheat to Peru is proved no easier than establishing diplomatic relations with Communist China. The one concluded the deal for Canada was Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, a suave and energetic Quebecer whose opposite number from Peru was Finance Minister Gen. Francisco Morales y Bermudez.

Since politics in Latin America are so inextricably mixed up with the military, the presence of the general, in uniform, was not all that extraordinary. Trade minister Pepin for his part gives the impression he might one day make a good ambassador for Canada in some overseas capital.

Peru has been in the news of late as one of three Latin countries on New York Governor Rockefeller's itinerary which he was unable to visit because of internal unrest. Relations between Peru and the United States in fact have been strained for some time.

Canada could be a moderating influence here; by pursuing trade and maintaining good relations with Peru we might also help restore a measure of amity between Lima and Washington, a condition essential to a healthy economic and political climate in Latin America at large.

The Peruvian ambassador to Canada, Cesar de la Fuente, in a recent article in Weekend Magazine noted that Peru "has become the leading nation in fisheries in the world." This comes as something of a surprise in view of the achievements of countries like Japan and Russia in this sphere. Be that as it may, we have the ambassador's word that fishing certainly has made strides there. Peru, he notes, is also among the leading exporters of silver and copper as well as iron, lead, zinc and oil.

All in all the country is one Canada would do well to cultivate in terms of economic and cultural links. By doing so we play our part in making a stable presence felt in a region subject to many conflicting and unsettling influences.

'Wolfe's Own' Regt. Welcome—But Please, No Flag-Waving!

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Something funny — if it wasn't all a bit sad — happened on the way to the Confederation Day celebration here in the National Capital.

It sent Armed Forces Headquarters into such a blue funk and flap as hasn't happened since Paul Hellyer "unified" the services.

It was the report from Quebec City that from Camp Valcartier, the Armed Forces base near the provincial capital, an official letter was being sent to the British Army's Loyal Regiment, asking that it cancel a scheduled summer visit there.

Reason behind it, explained the Quebec City reports, was that 210 years ago, the Loyal Regiment, known to history as "Wolfe's Own," had helped storm the heights to the Plains of Abraham, defeat Montcalm and wrest Canada from French possession.

Old wounds still rankled, memories were long, so please don't get the whole thing, an official Canadian Forces spokesman in Quebec City was quoted as requesting, in a letter, to the British Loyals.

Incredible?

Not really, Not these days.

In from London came incredulous cables of enquiry to Canadian representatives of British's national newspapers on Fleet Street, and who knows, perhaps to CFHQ itself.

It had to be something like that to cause the flap out of which headquarters took the long holiday Confederation Day weekend to shakily emerge.

To Brigadier General Louis Bourgeois, Chief of Armed Forces public relations, fell the tacky task of trying to tell it the way Headquarters thought Canadians might buy it.

It was the old soft-sell of the compromise, a save-face between Ottawa and Quebec City.

The British Loyals, actually the North Lancashires, come to Canada at the end of this month for some summer training at Camp Petawawa in Eastern Ontario.

Their commanding officer is an old staff college buddy of the officer commanding Quebec City's Camp Valcartier, Brigadier General Roy Reid.

On instructions from his own OC, still in London, Major B. G. Phepsey, the North Lancashire's liaison officer and a one - man advance party already posted to Petawawa, wrote General Reid, saying his old pal thought it would be nice if he could send the regimental band to Quebec City for a spot of concert playing on the Boardwalk and perhaps for a bit of tootling for the Changing of the Guard at the Citadel.

The Quebec City newspapers got wind of it, and up went the balloon. Onto the news wires went the reports, described later by CFHQ here as "false," that the North Lancashire was being SOS'd for goodness sake forget it, and the flap was well and truly on.

It took the Confederation Day weekend for CFHQ to shake off the panic with the explanation from General Bourgeois that General Reid now (after days of delay) was writing his old buddy-buddy, the CO of the North Lancashires, that the band would be "indeed welcome" in Quebec City — but the rubber-necking tourists, but not as musicians specializing in those great, old, slow-beat British marches.

Far to have "Wolfe's Own" play for the Changing of the Guard by Quebec's own "Van Doos" at the Capital. Montcalm's old fortress of defeat back in 1759, might be a bit much.

So come and have fun, but please, no flag-waving, essentially was the message that General Reid conveyed to Major Phepsey and the British Loyals, with the prayerful hope that this diplomatic flipped on was least likely to offend everyone's sensibilities.

It was all in the name, explained General Bourgeois so smoothly in his soft-sell voice, of not doing anything that might excite the separatist bomb-squads.

But was it not Prime Minister Trudeau himself just the other day who warned that a hard line had better be taken pretty soon "with those guys who want to throw bombs!"

Apparently, National Defence Headquarters was not listening.

Condominium and Senior Citizen Housing

(Ontario Government)

Development proposals have been invited by Ontario Housing Corporation for 507 condominium housing units to be built in Bramalea, near Toronto. In addition, family and senior citizen housing projects for Kitchener, Paris, Timmins, Ottawa, Sarnia, Toronto and Scarborough have received the green light from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The Bramalea condominiums are first of 4,602 units planned for the area. By the end of 1970, OHC hopes to have 1,037 condominiums on its Bramalea land south of Highway 7. Down payments are kept as low as possible by OHC's policy of limiting the cost of housing that may be built on its land. Present ceilings are $15,000 for a three-bedroom unit, $18,000 for a four-bedroom and $17,000 for a five-bedroom unit.

The family and senior citizen projects total 1,037 units. Largest and costliest project is a 24-storey, 450-unit, family housing development in the High Park area of Toronto, valued at $7,508,200.

The Scarborough project will contain 337 family units in a 15-storey, high-rise and a two-storey walk-up apartment building.

In Kitchener, OHC will proceed with three projects. A 30-unit family project, a 45-unit senior citizen development, and another family project of 25 units.

Ottawa receives a 15-unit townhouse project plus another 44 townhouse units.

The Sarnia project consists of 32 townhouse units for families, while Paris receives a six-unit family development.

The Timmins project will contain 33 townhouse units for families.

OHC finances its projects by borrowing 90 per cent of the cost from the federal government at 6 per cent from the province. Both federal and provincial loans are repaid with interest.

Parents and Children

By I.W.T., in
The Bancroft Times

A certain group of Hippies publish a weekly paper called "George Straight." I have never read it but one day I had the following item from it read to me. It was from the column, "Advice to Young People". "If your parents find fault with you and object to your way of life, leave home. Anyway you know more than they do."

That thoroughly disgusted me although during almost forty years of teaching I had dealt with parents who were good, bad and indifferent and there were times when I would have sympathized with pupils had they felt like taking the above advice. However it was my experience that the great majority of parents were anxious for their children's welfare and were desirous of doing what was best for them but I think that I never met a father or mother who did not consider himself or herself a good parent but some of the things they said or did amazed me.

There was one mother who came to see me because her son had received a poor mark on his report card. I showed her some of his work and she exclaimed, "Oh, I know he's dumb! He takes after his father. Neither he nor any other member of his family ever knew B from a bull's foot."

A visiting lecturer recently said sex is an ingredient in the rebellion of youth. It is well to emphasize, however, that the rebellion isn't against sex! And the association of youth and sex certainly isn't a modern phenomenon.

That has prevailed through all the centuries. It passeth all adult understanding why the present generation should be a bit more frank about it than some preceding generations.

But, if we read history aright, the ancient Romans, Greeks and Egyptians, and youth of the days of the French Revolution and the Russian Revolution, were nothing loath to openly acknowledge sex.

Tribal Schisms Feared

Death of Tom Mboya Could Spark Civil War in Kenya

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The fires of tribal Africa have seemed to Kenya where the slender fibres of unity have been destroyed by the death of a single person, raising a question whether Kenya is to suffer the same fate as Nigeria.

Tom Mboya was a high-powered politician with a cultivated but somewhat arrogant approach that brought him many enemies as well as friends. He combined open political ambition with skilful, Western-type organizational ability and as economics planning minister was undoubtedly one of the key men to ensure Western confidence in Kenya's future.

His personal hunger for the presidency and the need to shunt aside other contenders may provide as much a clue to his assassination as his subdued membership in the minority Luo tribe which feels that the majority Kikuyu may have been responsible for the killing.

Mboya's death has led to an emotional reaction, highlighted by Luo rioting and bloodshed and even the stoning of the vehicle carrying Kenya's greatest leader of all, the aging President Jomo Kenyatta.

Kenyatta, symbol of African nationalism for the last four decades, is about 78 and there has been urgent need to consider the prospects of a new leader who could keep Kenya united and still attract support within the Commonwealth and from the major powers.

Whether Mboya would eventually have made Kenyatta's successor has been a matter of debate and challenge. There has been talk that Mboya would not have been accepted despite his national popularity and his obvious appeal for him in the Western world. But there is no doubt that Mboya would have been a keen fight and might have succeeded despite resentment within the governing Kikuyu government group.

The split between the Luo and the Kikuyu and the upheaval caused by tribal rioting may eventually be brought under control but they will leave their political scars.

It is also possible that these scars will fail to heal. Nigeria's unending war is essentially tribal, with each group convinced it is being exploited by a more powerful tribe. It may take all of Kenyatta's strong strength to convince his countrymen not to go the way of Nigeria.

Sick Animals Treated Well

By JUDY SCHRIEDER, Staff Reporter

When human beings suffer from various maladies, they turn to a doctor to cure their ailments.

Many sick animals are brought to the attention of veterinarians by their owners, but what kind of "treatment" do men's best friends undergo when they're a little "under the weather?"

To begin with, animals are given the same "loving care" that people are afforded in similar situations, to a certain degree, of course.

When the "patient" is admitted to the hospital, he is registered and an attendant fles an information card listing all pertinent data regarding the animal's condition.

The animal is examined in the treatment room and is then placed in one of the "wards," made up of individual cubicles.

Each patient is treated as an individual case, with cases ranging from dislocated joints and broken bones to brain damage.

Exercise pens are adjacent to the wards so that the ward nurses and veterinarian aides may take the animals out of the pens daily. Animals not undergoing serious surgery are exercised outside in the open air.

As in any general hospital, patients are not allowed to eat the night before surgery. When the morning of surgery dawns, patients are taken to the operating room, a completely germ-free room, equipped with all the facilities normally found in any hospital.

All instruments are autoclaved so that sterile conditions are achieved throughout the operation.

X-rays developed at the hospital, are taken to determine any internal ailments the animals might have.

Following the patient's release from the hospital, his owner is asked to bring him in for additional check-ups.

Along with all the cases that require medical attention, veterinarians also look after "boarders," animals left in the doctor's charge while the owners are away.

According to one university student, employed by a local veterinarian, there has definitely been an increase in the number of people bringing their pets to the doctor for treatment.

"Education within and outside the profession" has made people more aware of the need to take good care of their pets.

Predicament

Cats and trucks will drive me nuts seems to be what "Princess," a four-month-old mongrel is thinking. Two weeks ago she was hit by a truck, at Windsor, Ont., and had a back leg broken in three places. Then she broke two front legs jumping off a chesterfield to chase a cat. These broken bones are being cared for by Christine Boughner, 18-month-owner, and her mother. (CP Wirephoto)

Rabies Strikes the North

Hastings County's northern townships have become a hot spot for rabies.

The disease has struck increasingly at both domestic and wild animals since the beginning of the year.

The increase has been noted in the Bancroft-Maynooth-McArthur's Mills area of the county ,reports Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, federal veterinarian for the Quinte counties of Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland.

Such hot spots — areas with a notable upswing in reported incidents may vary from year to year throughout the district, says the veterinarian.

The rabies pattern in Ontario is currently running "relatively high," he adds.

Earlier this week, Hastings and Prince Edward health officer Dr. C. R. Lenk reported a Bancroft woman under treatment after being bitten by a rabid dog.

Foxes — among the fastest wildlife travellers — still predominate as carriers.

January - to - June statistics for Hastings County show 22 foxes confirmed as rabid. The disease also struck two cows ,two sheep, two dogs, a skunk and a wolf.

Dogs Foil Robbery Try

Two large dogs were credited with frightening away would-be burglars at the office of the PX Furniture store, RR 2, Trenton.

Owner Jack Tennier indicated that nothing was taken. "We always make a night deposit, so there was no money on the premise."

The two dogs kept on the grounds to patrol at night were wild with noise.

"This is the first night that we failed to put them in the store; it was so hot we left them outside," added Mr. Tennier.

Rates Altered

Changes made in regulations governing barbers involve entrance requirements for those wishing to enter the trade.

Labor minister, Dalton Bales, announced the changes affecting the schools which teach young barbers.

One of the most important of these will permit persons with grade 9 education to enter training while under the old rules a candidate had to have grade 10 or its equivalent.

Along with the grade 9 education, the apprentice must go through the formal training at a school and then must have one year of practical experience before he receives his certificate of qualification.

Sydney Moss, a local barber, said, "This will open the field to more, younger people and give them a chance to learn a trade." Mr. Moss also felt the one year of experience was a good time to learn the different aspects of the profession in practical work in a shop.

Announced changes also include the hairdressing trade and grade 9 is the new requirement here also. Pay rates here have been altered so the apprentice now getd a raise of 10 per cent to 50 per cent of the journeyman rate in the initial apprentice period.

This will rise to 90 per cent in the third period of apprenticeship.

The new increases should help to attract more trainees who have been discouraged in the past.

Standards and quality of the people who graduate from these schools will remain the same despite the new changes because all must pass examinations before they are given their certificate to practise their trade.

Police Investigate Accidents

TRENTON — Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated four accidents Wednesday evening.

A late model car was a complete write-off and two people were injured and admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital after their car left the road. The accident took place on County road 30.

Injured were Cathy McKee of 79 Dundas St., Trenton and Larry Seely, RR1, Trenton. Mr. Seely is being treated for whip lash and concussion while Miss McKee received cuts to her mouth, losing a number of teeth.

The remaining three accidents, all single car mishaps, resulted in no personal injuries for the people involved.

Store Sold After Four Generations

The name will continue but the family connection has passed on.

The tobacco store known as the Ed Thomas Tobacco Store has been sold by the fourth generation of the family. Don Thomas to Peter Fortis, who recently operated a grocery outlet on Bridge Street West.

The store was first operated by Don's great grandfather 135 years ago, then his grandfather William Norman Thomas, then his father, the late Ed Thomas and finally by himself. It is the oldest business on Front Street.

In the early days of his great grandfather the Indians from the Reserve came up the Bay of Quinte to the store to trade furs for groceries, the grocery store being run by his wife. In those days a pasture field was located where the Victoria and Grey Trust building now stands and Mr. Thomas kept a cow and pastured it in the field. He would bring the cow across the road at night and tether it in the back yard. One night the cow got loose, came into the store and was calmly eating the cabbage and other vegetables in the window, when Mr. Thomas came down to open up.

The late Ed Thomas was a sports figure of no mean stature, when he operated the store from 1908 till his death in 1957. The store was the meeting place of fans, especially hockey and baseball and many an argument took place within its walls. Mr. Thomas sponsored junior and intermediate hockey in this city for many years and in 1936-37 produced the intermediate "B" champions of the O.H.A. His teams enjoyed the favoritism of district fans and they were tough to beat in any league.

Don Thomas, the last owner of the store joined his father in 1934 and in 1940 went overseas for five years with the Battery and on returning again joined his father in the business. He was an athlete in his own right, played baseball, both junior and intermediate, and went on to become one of the good umpires in the district.

In 1956, the year of the big flood, the water ran feet deep through Front Street and it was necessary to keep the store open 24 hours a day.

During his business term Mr. Thomas found time to give to the civic life of the city and served for six years as alderman and was chairman of the public works committee of council when the landfill scheme was introduced, the result of which was the fine Zwick's Island Park that now exists.

Pardon Is Sought

Senator Would Have Riel Declared a Patriot

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Senator J. Harper Prowse of Edmonton said yesterday in an interview he will introduce a private bill in the Senate this fall to provide pardons for Louis Riel, Poundmaker and Big Bear.

He said the government is already studying the matter.

Senator Prowse's bill would also declare Riel, Poundmaker, Big Bear, Gabriel Dumont and Crowfoot to be Canadian patriots.

Riel was convicted of treason and hanged after the 1885 Northwest rebellion. Poundmaker and Big Bear were sentenced to three years for treason but were released before their sentences were completed. Dumont was Riel's chief lieutenant and Crowfoot an ally of the other two Indian chiefs.

Senator Prowse said the convictions of Poundmaker and Big Bear have always been a symbol to the Indian of the white man's unfairness.

He said he hopes Senator James Gladstone, an Indian, will co-sponsor his bill.

He said the idea for the bill originates with Alderman David C. Ward of Edmonton.

Cable TV Firm Wary of Bell

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Officials of a London television cable company Wednesday told board of control they want to lay and control their own cables because they fear Bell Canada may threaten their operation.

"We feel part of their plan is to gain control of our business," said E. R. Jarmain, executive vice-president of London TV Cable Ltd.

"We are very disturbed by the attitude Bell seems to be taking."

Mr. Jarmain said Bell seems afraid that TV cable systems offer future competition to its own operations.

His company hopes soon to being "cablecasting"—presenting local programs to its cable subscribers—and wants to be sure Bell won't block the operation, he said.

"The key is control of our facilities."

The company pays a fee and monthly rental to Bell for the cables, distributing its signal to subscribers, and Bell retains ownership of the trunk cables.

London TV Cable seeks permission from Bell and the city's public utilities commission to lay its own cables and retain control of them. Bell could still cut off service in existing installations because the easement agreement would apply only to new areas, but public-relations considerations would prevent this action, Mr. Jarmain said.

Board of control gave approval in principle to such an easement partnership agreement and asked the city solicitor to study the matter.

Tour Ads In Error, He Admits

NEW YORK (CP) — A New York travel director organizing an Arctic tour this summer has admitted he "made a mistake" about some of the Canadian attractions in his advertising brochures.

Steven Sensi, director of travel for the Admiral Byrd Polar Centre in Yonkers, said he made some errors in jotting down information he received via telephone to Canadian officials.

"We are going through with our project and if they (Canadian officials) have any serious objections they should contact us direct," he said in an interview.

One of the items in the material which drew the ire of northern development department officials in Ottawa concerned a church at Igloolik on Melville Island.

The brochures stated the church was built by Norsemen more than 1,000 years ago. A spokesman for the department said the structure was built by the Eskimos only 20 years ago.

Charge Made MP Slapped Unilingual TV Technician

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal member of Parliament Wednesday slapped a free-lance TV sound technician outside the Commons chamber, the Canadian Contemporary News System reported.

In a news broadcast on CFRA Radio, reporter Arthur Lewis of the CCNS said the incident involved Viateur Ethier, member for Glengarry-Prescott, and Jim Primrose, a free-lance operator attached to the CBC-TV parliamentary crew.

The report said Mr. Ethier was leaving the Commons chamber when he spoke to Mr. Primrose in French. Mr. Primrose replied that he was sorry but he didn't speak French.

The radio report said Mr. Ethier persisted and spoke again in French and Mr. Primrose again replied he was not French speaking.

Mr. Ethier then remarked that Canada was a bilingual country to which Mr. Primrose replied: "Is it?" The slapping incident followed.

CBC officials did not comment.

THROWS IN A CAR

LIMA, Peru (AP) —Noting that families paying for new homes often haven't enough money left over for an automobile, contractor Danilo Castillo launched a plan under which buyers can get one of his houses and a car on a single 20-year mortgage.

Nautical Habit of Dumping Slop Now Illegal

OTTAWA (CP) — The old nautical practice of dumping the slop over the side became illegal in Canadian waters Wednesday as a series of amendments to the Canada Shipping Act was whipped through Parliament.

The amendments scrap an archaic section of the act and bring other parts well up to date. One new provision, for instance, will allow regulation of air-cushion vessels on navigable waters.

Concern with pollution is reflected in an amendment to prevent pollution not only by oil, but also chemicals, garbage, sewage or other substances dumped from ships.

Another amendment will allow the transport department to dispose of wrecks where they are likely to pollute the water, endanger waterfowl or fish, or damage a coastline.

Tom Barnett, (NDP—Comox Alberni) opened the way for passage in the Commons without debate by withdrawing an amendment he had proposed. It would have required the ship owner or the person at fault to pay the costs of disposing of wrecks.

The shipping act changes meet the comment in a report by the royal commission on pilotage that pilotage authority bylaws made under the present act may be invalid.

The revised act specifies that licences issued to pilots under the act are issued through bylaws that have the force and effect of bylaws confirmed by cabinet order.

Stiffer penalties for overloading ships are set out. The maximum fine is doubled to $1,000 and overloading provisions extended.

Regulatory powers are provided not only for hovercraft but for cargo handling to ensure safety of those doing the work.

All ships in Canadian waters are to be required to meet Canadian radio standards.

Inspection is extended to steamships of more than nine tons gross. The limit has been 15.

Meanwhile, a long section of the act dealing with the sailor's business dealings ashore is repealed.

No longer is a seaman untouchable for debts of more than $1 once he has signed for a voyage.

Also repealed is the $50 fine for anyone who refuses to help the first mate in getting a member of the crew out of "any tavern, inn, ale-house, beer-house, seaman's boarding house or other house or place of entertainment, house of ill-fame, shop or other place wherein liquor or refreshments are sold or reputed to be sold, whether legally or illegally."

Furthermore, it is no longer an offence to solicit on the docks, to hold the wiper's clothes for debt, or to go aboard ship to abscond with them as an inducement to get him to use your tavern, inn, house of ill-fame and so on—at least not under the shipping act.

Students Accused Of Strike-breaking

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The American Federation of Grain Millers has joined the Canadian Union of Public Employees in protesting alleged strike-breaking by students at Allanson Manufacturing Corp. Ltd. in Toronto.

Bill Reader of London, Canadian vice-president of the millers' union, Wednesday sent a telegram to Ontario Premier John Robarts in which he said his union will try to negotiate strict limits on the future hiring of summer student help at the Company of Canada Ltd. London plants if students are used as strikebreakers.

The two firms employ about 200 students each summer, he said. The millers' union is bargaining agent at both plants.

Tuesday, CUPE executive secretary Bruce Martin of London sent Premier Robarts a letter deploring the use of student help at the strike-bound Toronto plant and threatened to remove CUPE support from the Ontario government to help students find summer jobs.

The 60 students employed at Allanson have crossed a picket line set up by fellow students and the United Steelworkers of America, who have been on strike for 13 weeks in an effort to win a first contract.

John Fitzpatrick, international Steelworkers representative, said earlier the students were promised $1.70 an hour and were getting only $1.40. Highest rate before the strike was $2.45 an hour, he said.

Royal Assent Given To Languages Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Hubert Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting as deputy to Gov.-Gen. Michener, gave royal assent in the Senate Wednesday to the government's official languages bill.

A clause in the bill stipulates it is to come into force 60 days after royal assent. That day is Sunday, Sept. 7.

Royal assent followed Senate approval of the bill earlier in the day.

The measure, passed by the Commons Monday, makes French and English the official languages of the federal administration and requires federal government departments and agencies as well as Crown corporations to provide services in both languages in selected areas that will be called bilingual districts.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) said he supports the legislation because it will help provide service to French and English minorities in Canada.

He suggested that as soon as it is understood that certain services are being extended in Canada to French and English minorities, it would give cyber industry language tapes a good case for requesting similar services.

Three Provinces Building Leaders

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia are leading Canada's building boom, says the Toronto Real Estate Board, and by the end of the year will account for more than 70 per cent of all building in 1969.

The board, in a release issued Wednesday, estimated that the total of building permits issued in Canada should total about $4,500,000,000 by the end of the year, compared with $4,068,000,000 last year. Of this total, Ontario is expected to have about $2,200,000,000, Alberta about $475,000,000, and B.C. about $600,000,000.

Quebec could have issued permits worth about $650,000,000, but building in that province is declining, said a board spokesman, and the total could easily be much less.

During April, the last month for which complete figures are available, there were $464,400,000 in building permits issued in Canada.

Smythe, Ballard Face Tax Charges

Smythe and Ballard were fired, the revenue department announced it was turning the case over to the justice department.

A statement by the Gardens board said Smythe and Ballard were relieved of their responsibilities "due to a difference of opinion on administrative matters."

The two, who hold 40 per cent of the Gardens stock between them, refused to resign when asked and a tie vote on the issue was broken by John Bassett, chairman of the board. He holds 20 per cent of the stock.

George Mara, 47, director of the company, was named president of the Gardens.

The information against Smythe alleges that between April, 1965 and March, 1968, he evaded income taxes of $278,920 made up as follows:

— The sum of $35,576 appropriated by him from monies payable to Maple Leaf Gardens in respect to the Marlboro Hockey Club.

— A total of $208,108 appropriated by him from Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., in respect to the costs of construction and improving his residence.

— The sum of $35,178 appropriated from the Gardens for personal and family expenses.

— The other four counts allege that Smythe made "false or deceptive" statements in his tax returns for the years 1964, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

In 1964, the Crown alleges, Smythe made a false statement by saying he had incurred a loss of $43,146 when he did not report income of $4,910.

In 1965, Smythe reported his income as $9,906, the Crown alleges, but did not report income of $10,165.

In 1966, the information said, his return was falsified again when he reported an income of $34,239. The Crown claims he should have reported another $221,115.

The 1967 return listed income of $38,323, which the Crown said should have shown another $42,728.

In Ballard's case, the information alleges he evaded taxes on $134,685 income received by him from the Gardens. The Crown charges that Ballard appropriated $74,295 from the Gardens in respect to the cost of constructing and improving his residence.

It says he also appropriated $24,713 from the Gardens for personal and family expenses and $35,575 from monies payable to the Gardens in respect to the Marlboro Hockey Club.

The Marlboros are in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

For the 1964 tax year, the Crown alleges that Ballard made a false statement by saying his income was $64,626, but did not report other income of $4,481.

In 1965, it alleges his reported income was $89,356 when it actually was $13,717 higher. In 1966, it says, Ballard reported $261,743 in income but did not include another $41,686.

For the 1967 tax year, the information says Ballard reported $68,113, but did not show a further $74,798.

Smythe became president of the Gardens in 1961 after the present owners bought out his father's stock for $2,000,000.

ANAF News

Doug Nickle of Belleville and Gordon Stafford of Toronto, arrived back in Belleville last weekend, tired but happy and very proud. It is now learned that the American Legion had invited boys from a dozen countries. At the last meeting of the youthful rally at the Maryland Boys State, the chairman called upon the Canadian youths to stand and take a bow as they had been judged the best representatives for their country of all the guests that were invited and were given a rousing standing round of applause. Belleville and Unit 209 say "Well done, my lads," for they sure have been a great credit to all Canadians.

The ANAF Tartan Room was again the scene of enjoyment and relaxation as a big crowd of members and guests gathered to listen to the entertainment and dance on the newly refinished dance floor, among the best in Belleville now. Music was supplied by Cam Walsh and his electric organ and Alex Adams on the saxophone, while Cde. Bill Salter, that popular singer, sang his songs to a receptive group.

EATS EVIDENCE

CHICAGO (AP) — Charges of attempting to obtain barbiturates by using a forged prescription blank have been dropped against a teen-ager after a judge ruled police had no evidence—the youth had eaten the blank. Police said that while the youth was being processed at the police station, he grabbed the prescription blank, put it in his mouth, and swallowed it. The judge said that without the blank, the police had no clue.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN EDWARD CRAIGHEAD

Craighead – Benedict

The marriage of Dorothy June Benedict, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Benedict, Belleville RR 5, to John Edward Craighead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Craighead, Stirling RR 4 was solemnized at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. W. H/V. Walker on Wednesday, June 18 at 8 p.m.

For the ceremony, the bride chose a gown of white lace over peau de sole featuring a mandarin collar. She wore a headdress of white net and lace and carried a white Bible crested with red roses.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Jack Laundry, a sister, who was wearing a turquoise chiffon over taffeta gown complemented with a corsage of pink carnations.

Don Claire Craighead attended his brother.

A reception was held at the home of the bride where her hostter received the guests wearing a beige two-piece dress with mauve orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a royal blue silk dress with white orchid corsage.

Leaving on the wedding trip to the Eastern provinces, the bride donned a blue suit with navy and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Craighead will reside at Stirling RR 4.

Community Honors Family on Departure

Recently friends and neighbors gathered at the Minto Community hall to honor Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith and family prior to their departure for Cape Breton Island.

Rev. W. Cox acted as chairman for the program, which consisted of piano solos by Larry Forestell and Ricky Clements and readings by Mrs. James Johnston, Mrs. Frank McGee and Mrs. Bill Heath.

Mrs. Art Martin sang, accompanying herself on the guitar. Mr. nad Mrs. Ken Lang played several piano and violin selections. The audience joined in singing many of the old time favorites.

Rev. Cox commented on the part the Smiths played in the community and the church, then invited them to take seats of honor.

Mrs. Ralph Clements read the address and neighbors presented the Smith family with several gifts.

The couple expressed their thanks to all who helped in organizing the party and invited any who were planning a trip to the East Coast to visit them on their farm. Lunch was then served and a social hour enjoyed.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE BATEMAN

Bateman – Haskell

Eastminster United Church was the scene of the July 5 wedding when Blanche Agnes Haskell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Haskell of Belleville, became the bride of George Johnson Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bateman, of Belleville. Officiating was Rev. A. McDowell. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Mr. H. Hoyle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length silhouette gown of faille. The romantic neckline, short sleeves and train were bordered with imported Swiss lace, with the lace and faille interwoven from neckline to hem. Her train was gathered at the neckline, and attached by a bow. Her veil was a four-tier illusion, caught to a pearl stemmed flowered headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis horseshoe.

Maid of honor, Marilyn Haskell, sister of the bride, wore a floor-length Edwardian styled gown in delicate mauve guisseppe lace over taffeta featuring an empire waistline accented by satin ribbon and a bow at the back, with a sweetheart neckline. She-garried a nosegay of yellow 'mums intertwined with mauve ribbon.

Bridesmaids, Miss Suzanne McIntyre, of Innerkip, cousin of the bride and Mrs. Linda Hayward, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom were gowned the same as the maid of honor, and carried the same flowers.

The flower girl was Miss Patricia Hayward, niece of the bridegroom, who wore an empire styled dress of mauve guisseppe lace over white taffeta and carried baskets of yellow 'mums entertwined with mauve ribbons. The ringbearer was Master Jeffrey Hayward, nephew of the bridegroom.

Best man for the ceremony was Ronald Bateman, of Barrie, the brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Carl Hayward, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Dale Haskell, brother of the bride, of Belleville.

For the wedding reception, held at Sun Luck Gardens, the mother of the bride chose a dress and coat ensemble of multi-colored Italian lace in pink. Her accessories were white, complemented by a corsage of pink and white carnations. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a light blue dress with a bodice of nylon lace and a skirt of imported georgette with a blue hat and white accessories. A corsage of white and coral carnations completed her ensemble.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride donned a sleeveless dress of brilliant coral crimpoline, accented by a border of lace at the hem, with white accessories and a corsage of white and yellow 'mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Kingston.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT DAVID SHENSEL

Shensel – Long

Sacred Heart Church, Batawa, was the scene of the wedding on Saturday, July 5 at 11 a.m. when Lynda Theresa Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Long of Trenton became the bride of Robert David Shensel, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Shensel, also of Trenton. Rev. W. Dunphy officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by organist Mrs. L. Baker who also accompanied the soloist R. MacInnes.

For her wedding, the bride chose a Chantilly lace and crystal peau dress with the bodice featuring scooped neckline and long lilly-point sleeves and enhanced at back with a cathedral length train. A headdress of orange blossoms was caught to a four tiered silk illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink tea roses.

Susan Long attended her sister as maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Dolores Wooton and Lawrie Vandertogt. Flower girl was Kimmie Vandertogt.

All attendants were gowned alike in pure silk chiffon featuring A-line skirts and Swiss lace bodices with short sleeves. A wide panel of chiffon extended from a satin bow at back. Their headdresses were matching petals with silk illusion veiling. Each carried a nosegay of Shasta daisies.

The groomsman was Marinus Vandertogt and ushers were Steve Shensel and Peter Shensel, brothers o fthe bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Batawa Recreation Centre where the bride's mother wore a yellow Swiss lace dress with matching coat and accessories and a corsage of mauve baby carnations and yellow tea roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a light green dress with beaded top, matching accessories and a corsage of baby carnations and roses.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a black and white check A-line dress with matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and tea roses.

They will reside in Trenton.

TOO YOUNG

BHATINDA, India (AP) — The young couple was solemnly wed and everything was fine until the girl's uncle reported the matter to police, and a court dissolved the marriage and fined the couple's parents 14 each. Indian law says males must be at least 18 and females 16 to marry. He was 13 and she was 11.

New Century Group Plans Commemoration

The most recent meeting of the Marmora New Century Women's Organization held at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Granville Medcalfe-Johnson, followed a pot luck luncheon.

A full discussion took place on the planning for the program for July 20th, when the Historic Sites Board will unveil a plaque to commemorate the first Marmora Iron Works. The program for that occasion will be under the auspices of the New Century Women's Organization.

A tentative list for invitations has been submitted by Reeve William Shannon, and the secretary-treasurer will also write letters to Mr. Lee Grills, M.P., Mr. Clarke Rollins, M.P.P., Dr. J. Russell Scott, Mayor of Belleville, Warden Donald Rodgers of Hastings County, and Mr. John Wilkes, Reeve of Marmora and Lake Townships, asking them to speak on the occasion.

In other business, it was reported that 37 people attended the most pleasant bus trip to Pioneer Village sponsored by the Organization.

The chairman gave a report of the new bulletin board which has served a useful purpose for some weeks, and it was suggested that safety slogans could be used on the board when there were no news announcements. Mrs. Stewart Hardy will be responsible for providing the safety slogans.

A motion was passed that the remaining centennial cook books be sold this summer for 50c a copy, and it was also suggested that the different organizations might donate some of the books that had been used for exhibit, in parcels to the missions.

All organizations were again asked to see that their histories have been written for the archives in the Library.

It was announced that the Horticultural Society is planning a flower show for mid-August. The Society will be having a display of flowers at the Fall Fair, as well as the arts and crafts display.

A motion was passed that Rev. David Saunders be asked to head a committee with Jack Golden and Tom Brady, to look into the possibility of having a snapshot contest for the fair.

The next meeting of the New Century Organization will be held at the end of August.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

Miss Linda Kleinsteuber, John St. recently received word from Toronto that she has successfully passed piano examination with honors.

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. George Bateman (nee Blanche Haskell) was honored at several showers. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of the bride's mother with her sister Marilyn, as hostess and Mrs. Bob Barnes, sister of the bridegroom as co-hostess. Mrs. C. Hayward, sister of the bridegroom held a miscellaneous shower at her home. A pantry shower was held by fellow employees of International Hdwe. Co. of Canada Ltd.

Bride-elect Honored At Trousseau Tea

WHITE'S DISTRICT — A trousseau tea was held recently at the home of Mrs. Gordon Ackerman to honor her daughter Peggy.

Guests were received by the bride-elect, her mother and Mrs. W. Donald McNevin of Belleville. Her sister, Miss Patti Ackerman was in charge of the guest book.

Miss Marilas Adams of Lindsay, Miss Beth Wardle of Toronto, Miss Joanne McNevin and Mrs. Caroline McNevin of Belleville showed the trousseau, the gifts and helped to serve.

The tea table was covered with a pink damask cloth with pink and white candles with a centrepiece of pink carnations, white 'mums and baby's breath tinted pink. Lunch was served on the patio with small guest tables, each centred with a rose bowl containing a single rose.

Pouring tea during the afternoon were the bride-to-be's grandmother, Mrs. W. Bell of Belleville, her aunt, Mrs. R. Pearson of Georgetown, her aunt Mrs. Angus Duffy of Belleville, Mrs. Ray Harris of Brampton and Mrs. Lloyd Doran of Belleville.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lucas, of Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jo Anne Louise, to Mr. Dakon Charles Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lambert, of Belleville. The wedding will take place at the home of the bridegroom, R. R. 1, Belleville, on August 23 at 11.30 a.m.

* * *

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Derek Riordan, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Susanne Margaret, to Mr. Terrence Douglas Jones, son of Mrs. P. L. Jones, Kingston and the late Mr. F. L. Jones. Marriage will take place in St. Thomas Anglican Church, on Friday, August 15, at 7 p.m.

Ann Landers

Girlfriend 'Experiments' On Teen-ager's Hair

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 16-year-old son turned up at the breakfast table with his hair tinted red. My husband almost hit him. I am in a state of shock. It seems Larry let his girl friend "experiment" on him. When we told Larry we were horrified he said the color of a person's hair shouldn't make that much difference.

Larry's hair used to be a golden blond and now he looks as if he is wearing a wig. The girl also tried to dye his eyebrows and one eyebrow is redder than the other. He looks like a freak. We didn't say much when he let his hair grow longer on the sides (it's really shorter than most of his friends) but this latest move is too much. What shall we do? — BUFFALO PARENTS.

* * *

DEAR BUFF: It's his hair and his problem. Larry will get plenty of needling from his friends. You won't have to do anything. Time and patience are your best allies.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Four months ago my wife's parents moved to this city — five blocks from us and across the street from another daughter. They are not old people, Ann. They are in their early 50's, yet they have developed no interests and no friends, only us. My wife's sister got smart after the folks had been in town only six weeks. She insisted that her husband request a transfer. They moved out of the state and now we have them all the time. By "all the time" I mean five nights a week — and it's murder.

My wife is as fed up as I am. I am writing at her request. Can you help us? — OVER-VISITED.

* * *

DEAR OVER: Sorry, I can't help you. I'm here. But your wife is there. She can help herself — and I hope she will. Here's how. She should introduce her parents to people their own age. For openers, I suggest a small party to which she can invite the parents of your friends. If this doesn't work, you and your wife should make plans and announce in advance that you are busy with previous commitments.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a M.D. who reads you often. Today I was dismayed to find you recommending cleaning fluid to remove gum from the body.

Unfortunately, carbon tetrachloride is still used in cleaning solutions. Absorption of this substance through the skin or by inhalation can cause serious liver and kidney damage. I hate to think that thousands of mothers who read your column will be scrubbing their kids with cleaning fluid. I hope you will issue an appropriate warning. — W.N., M.D. (Riverside)

* * *

DEAR DR.: My medical consultants say it would take a lot of scrubbing with cleaning fluid to damage the liver and kidneys. But why take a chance? So — all you mommies out there whose kids are stuck to the chairs, tricycles and piano benches - - - use olive oil or pure vegetable oil. Wrigley's and Leaf brand agree it is the safest gum remover.

Successful Living

Transair Provides Chance to Visit Eskimos

By DORIS CLARK

When I went West this spring, I took a Transair plane from Winnipeg to Brandon and from Brandon to Regina. This cozy domestic, type airline has a fleet of 15 multi-engine aircraft and it's a great help for short hops in Canada's interior.

The scheduled routes now extend from Regina and Saskatoon, through to the Lakehead, concentrated in Manitoba; and from Winnipeg through to the central areas of the Arctic. The newest route, just opened, takes in Winnipeg, Kenora, Dryden, and the Lakehead.

Any girl who wants to see the Arctic and get some exciting new knowledge about Canada and Eskimos and travel emergencies should think about a job with Transair.

Because the company is small, a good deal of responsibility is concentrated in the girl who serves as hostess on the plane — which makes the job exciting.

Sid Smith, Director of Community Relations, says, "We are often entrusted with Eskimo children when we bring them south to hospitals. We have much to learn from the Eskimos. Actually, they look down on us, and often show complete bewilderment at what they consider the senselessness of our rush-rush civilization."

Want to learn more? Then write to Mr. Sid Smith, Transair Winnipeg International Airport, Winnipeg 21, Manitoba. Or go to see him.

Dear Doris: Are you acquainted with the Recovery Inc. meetings for emotionally disturbed people and those who have had nervous breakdowns? It's a wonderful thing that has happened to me. I have attended only two meetings and believe it or not, I am a changed person.

Eleven years ago, I came out of a mental institution, after spending 18 months there. Only wish I had had something like that to turn to then. I would not have been such a frustrated, narrow-minded person, or so resentful. As it is, I have raised six children all by myself for 16 years, as my husband chose drink and other women to the responsibility of helping to raise our family.

I have God and many kind people to thank that I have accomplished what I did all these years. So if anyone writes in about being emotionally disturbed, please endorse the Recovery method, and also the book about it. — Glad To Be Alive

Dear Glad: Yes, I know. I went to a meeting some time ago and wrote a story about it. People who are really upset learn some techniques for settling nerves, controlling feelings, finding peace of mind.

And the techniques work. At meetings the members share what they are doing; one person's success sparks somebody else's will to try again. My heartfelt cheer is has gone out to dozens of people. Branches are now going strong in several of the larger Canadian centres.

Confidential to A God-Fearing Man: No man with an obsession against religion is able to really jar a person with serene faith. Try to substitute pity for the resentment you have against your unfortunate brother-in-law.

Fill your days with the happy companionship of people who think the way you do, and spend as little time as possible with him. Don't let your own good religious background let you down. Stand firm, and who knows? You might even win him over. I'm sure he can't be happy the way he is.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Good Hamburg Recipe Which Serves 20

By MARY MOORE

Will Dave Will give us his secret hamburg recipe? Dave will.

You see, Jim Will, as his son, is a member of my H-C group, and told us at a meeting of the executive that his Dad made fabulous hamburgs "with onion soup mix and stuff." We were planning a non-verbal blind walk followed by a cook-out supper.

After a telephone roundup we had a count of 17 which included two fathers and me. Our 15 - year - old president, Doug and the telephone committee of one, Jane, offered to take the list of groceries we needed and shop for them. It included ground chuck beef, wieners, buns, relishes, canned fruit juices, watermelons, doughnuts and marshmallows. That evening Jim and Diane came to my kitchen to mix DAVE WILL'S HAMBURGS

5-lbs. ground chuck beef
4 envelopes (1 pkge.) onion soup mix
1 envelope Sloppy Joe mix
1 envelope onion gravy mix
5 large eggs
1¼ cups breadcrumbs
2½ cups water

Mix all ingredients together in large clean dishpan by hand and make 36 to 40 meat cakes.

Pile these in layers separated by heavy wax paper or foil, in large stainless steel or Teflon pan about 9 x 13" (or use cookie sheets). Cover and chill until it is time to drive to cookout site. These are a little bit messy (which is the secret of their success) so you must have a long-handled frying pan at hand, and a little oil in which to fry them.

Doug and Scott did the cooking. The fathers and I merely hovered.

If you want the laugh of a lifetime take your teen-agers on a non-verbal blind hike. Don't you know what it is? It grew out of a sensitivity-training program. Trust is the keystone. A pair of people take off — one blindfolded. The seeing one takes his arm and through woods and over guides over hill and dale and creeks — neither one ever speaking. After 15 minutes, they switch roles and the blindfold changes to the other member of the team and they return to home base by another route and report their sensitivity experiences. Our kids had lots: one walked in the creek, another ran into a tree; another put her hand in the parks board garbage can; another had two scraped knees. We had band aids. One boy and girl pair were gone for an hour. Sometimes I wonder about my sanity.

COW BRAND BAKING SODA

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Anne: "I hate to go on vacations with my family. All Dad and my brothers want to do is go on camping trips. Mother doesn't care what she does — but I think it's boring."

Father: "Let's have a family conference and decide on a vacation plan that will be fun for all of us. How does a trip to a lake where we can water-ski sound? Or perhaps I can get get tickets to some of the new plays."

Teen-agers should have a voice in planning a family vacation trip. This is one case where each person's desires should be considered and the majority should not always rule.

'Newcomer,' Topic at Meet

The afternoon UCW meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Cecil Boyle. Mrs. Cyril Shaw, leader opened the meeting with seven members, two visitors present.

Mrs. Shaw was in charge of the worship service. She chose a service pertaining to Dominion Day. The call to worship was a Scripture reading after which a hymn was sung.

An invitation from Hazard's UCW for a tea and white sale July 9. Reports were given on the recent meeting with Zion UCW where they had a guest speaker and slides on the West Coast, Alaska and the Yukon. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Harley Blackburn had charge of the program, topic, "Community and the Newcomer" (urgent and needs), the language and acception.

A discussion followed concerning what the community can do for the newcomer. Mrs. Blackburn closed with a poem.

The meeting closed in the usual manner, and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and assistant.

Effect, Not Cause

High Interest Rates Result of Rising Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons committee inquiry into the causes and effects of high interest rates adjourned Wednesday until late August.

By that time, the success or failure of government efforts to control inflation may be more evident.

Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada and the finance committee's first witness, said Wednesday that high interest rates are a manifestation rather than the cause of rising prices and costs.

The man who presides over the government agency which sets the tone of credit and money-supply conditions, Mr. Rasminsky repeatedly told the committee during his four days before it that he sees a glimmer of light on the horizon.

People are not now as ready as they were a few weeks or months ago to commit themselves to new spending on the basis of funds borrowed at current high rates of interest.

The Bank of Canada now charges the chartered banks and other money-market dealers 7½ per cent a year on the rare — and always short-term — drawings they make from the central bank. The chartered banks now charge their more credit worthy customers 8¼ per cent.

All other interest rates range higher than that: Close to 10 per cent on government-guaranteed mortgages; nearly 20 per cent on department store "easy-payment" plans; and 24 per cent or more on capital goods leasing plans for heavy industry.

Mr. Rasminsky defended high interest as the only way the banks can ration the funds they have available for lending. He said it is impractical and unworkable for the government or the Bank of Canada to set artificially-low interest rates.

In its fight against excessive borrowing and spending, the central bank has forced the chartered banks to rein in their liquid reserves, the money they have available to lend. They now must hold more secondary reserves—cash in addition to the basic minimum required by law—and Mr. Rasminsky said this requirement can be raised again.

The root cause of inflation, Mr. Rasminsky said, is that people — including businessmen —are demanding more from the economy in higher wages, goods and services and prices than the country is capable of meeting. The productive capacity of the country is nearing its peak, particularly in the highly-industrial areas of Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

The only way to dampen this demand, in Mr. Rasminsky's classical view of economics, is to make it so costly to borrow that people will reduce their demands and allow some slack to be created in the economy. This means letting some unemployment of men and machinery develop, so that wage and industrial expansion pressures will moderate.

He described it as an unfortunate fact that the less-developed parts of the country—the Atlantic provinces and eastern Quebec—have to be affected as well as the prosperous parts of Canada. He told the committee he has asked the banks to give preference to these under-developed areas in their lending but the same high interest rates will have to prevail there.

Preference also is to be given to small businessmen, who are not as capable of generating their own expansion funds as big business, and to Canadian borrowers as opposed to foreign demand.

But Mr. Rasminsky said the Bank of Canada does not have the power, nor does it wish, to force a roll-back of interest rates across the country or in any particular area. Setting artificially-low rates simply drives demand elsewhere.

Gaston Clermont (L—Gatineau), the man who is chairman of the Commons committee on finance, trade and economic affairs, has set a July 22 deadline for receiving notice from organizations wanting to present briefs to the committee in its inquiry.

Your Dollars
Plan Wardrobe

By KEN WEERES

Purchasing clothes for the family wardrobe requires careful planning and shopping.

How important is it to be well dressed? The old saying, "You can tell a man by his clothing" is still true today. Not only does a well dressed person impress people but also he has more poise and confidence. Don't you find that when you are well dressed you are more sure of yourself; you are more comfortable around people?

How much of the family budget should be spent on clothes? The average Canadian family spends about nine percent on its wardrobe. This, it must be remembered, is average. Certainly a family of three school children, where both the husband and wife work in an office, will require a larger than average budget.

The best way to begin to develop a good wardrobe is to check your present clothing. Most families have a large amount of clothing which is not being used because it doesn't fit, needs repairs or is out of style. Any clothes that can be altered or repaired should be put to one side. Determine what work is required to make them wearable again. If you can do the work yourself, so much the better.

Any clothes that simply cannot be worn again should be removed. Give them to a charity or to someone who can use them.

After you have checked through your present wardrobe, determine your future needs. Don't look ahead for the next month but rather for the next year. List for every month exactly what you will need. Long range planning is essential for it helps you to plan your purchases and to take advantage of sales.

Should your requirements exceed your monthly budget, try to cut down on certain clothes for special occasions and so on, until last. And always look to clothes which will go with your present wardrobe. More important, buy with an eye to mix and match outfits so one article can be worn for different occasions.

In buying clothes you are interested in workmanship, type of fabric, color, and price. It may be difficult to become an expert in clothing and fabrics, but everyone should attempt to gain some knowledge in this area. Always read the label; if you don't know what something means ask sales clerk for clarification. For more information go to the public library to read on the quality of the fabrics available.

You will generally save money by buying clothes that are of good quality. Not only do they wear longer, but they look better, need fewer repairs and are easier to clean and press. You won't save money by buying shoddy merchandise that will last only a few months. Look to merchandise that will last a year or more.

Savings of one-third to one-half can often be obtained by buying at sales. Summer clothing is usually featured in July or August sales and winter clothing in January or February sales. By planning your clothing needs on a yearly basis you can take advantage of these sales. And don't worry if clothes are slightly soiled at these sales. The cost of cleaning may save you dollars.

The most neglected, but most important area where savings can be made, is in the care of clothing. Brushing clothes before hanging, avoiding overcrowding in the closet, cleaning as soon as soiled and immediate attention to repairs adds to the life of clothing. And finally it may be to your advantage to buy wash and wear clothing to cut down on expensive cleaning bills.

Common sense, careful shopping and good care will make the dollars you spend on clothing go further.

2nd Thurlow

2ND THURLOW — Mrs. Manda Foster of Oregon, Mich., formerly known as Manda Bold rick, who was a former resident of Thurlow and community some years ago, and Mrs. John Boldrick, Cedar St., Belleville, were recent guests of Mrs. Douglas Atkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atkins spent the weekend at their cottage at Coe Hill.

Miss Kay Whalen R.N., Toronto, spent the weekend with her brothers, Messrs. Gerald and Andrew Whalen.

Graduation classes were held on Friday afternoon at the Douglas R. Atkins, with a large attendance of parents and friends present. The principal, Neil Smith, and teachers Mrs. Mumby, Miss Blakely, Mrs. Doxtator and Mr. Tweedy presented their pupils with certificates, awards for high standing in their classes and badges for best attendance and sports. Mrs. Douglas Atkins presented the Memorial Award to David Dent, for the high standing in grade 8.

Mrs. Harry Thomson visited with Miss Ethel Smith in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Peoples and family spent the long week-end at their cottage at Bancroft.

Gene Stratton is a patient in the Belleville Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Leeming Sr. has returned home after spending a couple months visiting friends and relatives in England.

Growing Edginess Evident in House in Debate-limit Study

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition kept up its attack on the government's debate-limiting motion in the Commons Wednesday, as signs continued to point to a protracted struggle over the contentious proposal.

While matters did not reach the stage where books and papers were being hurled, as happened in the British House of Commons Tuesday night, there were indications of a growing edginess that could evolve into something less restrained as summer deepens.

A possible portent was the cut which NDP Leader T. C. Douglas made at Privy Council President Donald Macdonald, government leader in the House, after Mr. Macdonald had interrupted a speech the NDP chief was making.

"He couldn't care less about parliamentary tradition," said Mr. Douglas. "He sits where he does because he happened to back the right man at a political convention and because he is an obedient and supine batchet man."

The motion under consideration would give the government power to limit Commons debate on public bills where a majority of the four parties in the House have failed to reach agreement on a time-allotment formula.

Debate on Milk Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — Speeker Lucien Lamoureux rejected Wednesday a Creditiste appeal for a special Commons debate on milk production.

Mr. Lamoureux, who represents Stormont-Dundas, a riding with a number of dairy farmers, told Andre Fortin (Creditiste-Lothinière) the situation is a continuous one rather than a sudden emergency.

The proposed rule is similar in many respects to one which the government advanced last December, but then withdrew under fierce opposition fire.

In his speech Mr. Douglas maintained that by ramming the proposed rule 75C through the House, "the government is doing violence to Parliament and is weakening the democratic process."

If dissent cannot be expressed in Parliament, it will take to the streets, he said. "If democracy is to survive it must survive in this place of all places."

James Jerome (L—Sudbury) said the proposed rule is part of an over-all program to modernize the procedures of the House.

Mr. Jerome was critical of the amount of time the House spent debating the government's omnibus bill to amend the Criminal Code last spring, especially that portion of the bill dealing with liberalizing the law on abortion.

Richardson Explains

OTTAWA (CP) — Supply Minister James Richardson told the Commons Wednesday the government did not hold back adjudication reports, critical of the post office, which were made public July 4.

Mr. Richardson said Wednesday the reports were received by the staff relations board June 16 and were made public July 4. He said the 13 working days between those dates were spent in printing, proof-reading, reprinting and distributing the reports.

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) asked how the government can program its legislation "when nobody knows what its legislative program is."

What kind of programming was it when the government put an item on the Commons order paper?

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) suggested that "the triumvirate that runs the country" — Mr. Trudeau, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand—favors a presidential system for Canada. If the government wants a presidential system for Canada, if the govdoes it not say so and allow Parliament to debate the change?

Toronto Man Will Test Astronauts' Blood

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto scientist will test blood samples from each of the three American astronauts following Apollo 11's return to earth from the moon July 24.

Dr. David Turner, 45, a biochemist at the Hospital for Sick Children and a consultant to the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will conduct tests for three weeks.

Since the flight of Gemini 8, Dr. Turner has been examining blood samples of astronauts in the Toronto hospital. This time, however, he will go to Houston to conduct his study.

It was research by Dr. Turner that revealed a lack of Vitamin E caused spacemen to suffer a loss of 20 or 30 per cent of their red blood cells during a flight and led to fatigue.

Horrors Beyond Control of Mankind

Britain Moves to Ban Germ Warfare

GENEVA (AP) — Britain presented today a draft treaty to ban the manufacture and use of bacteriological weapons.

Minister of State Fred Mulley put the proposal before the 19-nation disarmament conference. It came a few days after the adoption by the United Nations of an experts' report warning that the use of biological and chemical weapons in any future war would open the door to horrors beyond the control of mankind.

Secretary-General U Thant has urged all UN member nations "to reach agreement to halt the development, production and stockpiling of all chemical, bacteriological agents for purposes of war and to achieve their effective elimination from the arsenal of weapons."

The key articles in the British draft are:

Article I

Each of the parties to the convention undertakes never in any circumstances, by making use of hostile purposes of microbial or other biological agents causing death or disease by infection or infestation in man, other animals, or crops, to engage in biological methods of warfare.

Article II

Each of the parties to the convention undertakes

A not to produce or otherwise acquire, or assist in or permit the production or acquisition of:

1 microbial or other biological agents of types and in quantities that have no independent peaceful justification for prophylactic or other purposes,

2 ancillary equipment or vectors the purpose of which is to facilitate the use of such agents for hostile purposes.

B Not to conduct, assist or permit research aimed at production of the kind prohibited in sub-paragraph A of this article, and

C to destroy, or divert to peaceful purposes, within three months after the convention comes into force for that party, any stocks in its possession of such agents or ancillary equipment or vectors as have been produced or otherwise acquired for hostile purposes.

Italy Faces Task of Finding Cabinet

ROME (AP) — President Giuseppe Saragat launched into intensive consultations today, aimed at finding a new premier and cabinet to form Italy's 30th post-war government.

Saragat began calling in leading Italian political figures to his Quirinale Palace this morning, five days after Premier Mariano Rumor resigned at the head of a six-month-old centre-left government. Rumor is staying on as caretaker premier.

Saragat's initial round of consultations came after marathon manoeuvring behind the scenes by Premier Rumor's Christian Democrats, Italy's largest party.

The Christian Democrats, which have been in power continuously since the war with the aid of either right or left wing alliances, picked a moderate Flaminio Piccoli, to steer the party through the crisis.

Piccoli, who enjoys the confidence of Premier Rumor, pledged his efforts to form another centre-left government, despite the split in the Italian Socialist party, one of the partners in the government alliance.

"The only constructive way out of the crisis is the centre-left," Piccoli told cheering members of the Executive Council.

The Socialist party was still smarting under the blow of a schism last weekend. The party divided into right and left wings Friday, mainly over the issue of relations with the Communists. Three right-wing ministers withdrew form the cabinet.

Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni quit as president of the party and refused to return. In a letter to the Italian Socialist party today, he said "it is impossible for me to have served as president of the unification, and also serve as president of the division."

Priests Not Given Audience

CHUR, Switzerland (AP) — European Roman Catholic bishops refused to bear liberal-minded priests at their symposium, but five of them met the priests in informal sessions that lasted up to midnight Wednesday night.

The doctrine of celibacy was a major topic at the more than three-hour discussion.

The priests told the bishops from France, Italy, Holland, Belgium and West Germany that they should be free to decide whether to take a vow of chastity. They noted that many of the disciples of Jesus were married.

Archbishop Jean Guyot of Toulouse, France, told the priests he considered celibacy a problem of faith. He said abandoning it would mean "emasculating" the spirit of the Gospel and asserted the church would be weaker if celibacy, with its "charismatic" aspects, disappeared.

Reports circulated that Leon Cardinal Suenens, widely regarded as the leader among reformers in the higher clergy, suggested the informal meetings after the bishops formally banned priests from their symposium.

Ahearne Draws Harsh Words from Hollander

CRANS-SUR-SIERRE, Switzerland (CP) — F. H. Schweers, president of the Dutch Ice Hockey Federation, said today that Bunny Ahearne of London has made a serious mistake and underestimated the power of Hockey Canada.

Schweers said this could "be the downfall" of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

"For years, Mr. Ahearne has controlled the members of the IIHF Congress because as their president he gives them concessions. He has defeated these people, suppressed them and then appeased them with compromises.

"But these people could not understand what was happening and they thought of him as their savior. Now he has tried to do the same thing with Hockey Canada.

"But I have watched these Canadian men and they are the exception. Their chairman is an influential businessman. A man who knows international affairs is on their board of directors."

He was referring to Earl Hay, chairman of Hockey Canada and Douglas Fisher, a government-appointed member of the board.

"These men have not been fooled so easily. Mr. Ahearne talked against their proposal for an open hockey tournament and the congress believed him and defeated it.

"Then Mr. Ahearne proposed that Canada be allowed nine professional players for their national team and the delegates believed him again and voted for that compromise.

"But these Canadians have seen through this. They do not have to be here for any reason except their hope of helping to promote hockey. I know they have not accepted the compromise."

Schweers said he agreed with the decision of Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, to cancel tours of Canadian club teams to Sweden and Finland next winter because those countries did not back the Canadian proposal.

"But that is only the first step as I see it," said Schweers.

"Now they will shut off Mr. Ahearne. If they pull out of his world competition, as I know they must after their commitments for 1971, it will mean an end of the IIHF.

"A world championship will mean nothing without Canada. I realize this because I am European. After all, the strongest European countries will be forced to turn professional.

Charles Doing Southpaws Proud In British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (CP-AP) — Bob Charles of New Zealand led the field into the second round of the British open golf championship today, making every left-hander who swings a club feel 10 feet tall.

"I must admit I do feel at home here," says the southpaw golfer. His record 66 Wednesday for this extended 6,848-yard course, gave the field of 130 another target to shoot at, and, while he was only two strokes in front, the rest of the pack knew:

—Charles won the British Open here in 1963 in a playoff against Phil Rodgers of the United States.

—Some sun and fairly light wind has reproduced Lytham's par-71 links in nearly the exact conditions Charles found to his liking six years ago.

—The left-hander, winner of $50,000 so far this year on the U.S. circuit, is playing at his peak.

Many of the competitors are suffering an assortment of ailments—hay fever, backache, infected gums, sprained elbows, allergies of food or insecticides and nervous yips about crowd control.

Two shots behind Charles at 68 were Englishman Tony Jacklin and countryman Hedley Muscroft.

Bracketted at 69 were Miller Barber of U.S., France's Jean Garaialde and Hugh Jackson of Northern Ireland.

U.S. Open champion Orville Moody was at one-under-par 70 with fellow Americans Billy Casper and Davis Love, Guy Wolstenholme of Australia, and 39-year-old Bernard Gallagher of Scotland.

The sharp scoring on the revamped links, 220 yards longer than when Charles whipped it six years ago, lent strength to the belief that the winner of the 109-year-old championship may be required to best par by as much as eight or nine strokes—277 or 276.

Defending champion Gary Player of South Africa, at 74, and Jack Nicklaus, with a 73, were well off the pace.

The field is reduced to low 70 and ties tonight. After the 54-hole stage Friday, it is cut again to low 45 and ties for Saturday's final.

ROUGH STUFF — Billy Casper vouches for the calibre of British Isles' rough as he plays an approach shot during the British Open championship this week in Lytham, St. Annes, England.

Betty Ingram Finishes 13th To Mrs. Streit

TORONTO — (CP—Staff) — The Bay of Quinte Country Club's Betty Ingram may have been just another also - ran to Marlene Stewart Streit as the Ontario women's amateur golf championship wound up Wednesday, but she did it in fine fashion.

The 10 - time Quinte Club women's titlist carded a final round of 85 to go with her previous 79 and 85 for a respectable 249 total — good for undisputed 13th place and best effort by an eastern Ontario entry.

Mrs. Ingram's total — as everyone else's — was well shy of Mrs. Streit's 223 — but it left her in front of such stiff competition as national junior girls' champ Linda Devine (235) and Kingston prize and joy "Cookie" Cartwright (260).

The Bay of Quinte Club's Anne Acton finished at 279, while Ena Corke totalled 284 and Betty Walmsley 305 for the three - round championship.

Meanwhile Wednesday's final round turned out to be a formality when Marlene Stewart Streit coasted to her sixth title.

The defending champion from Toronto virtually clinched the title during the first round of the 54-hole tournament with a two-under-par 72 to gain a six-stroke lead on Gayle Hitchens Borthwick of Mississauga.

Mrs. Streit fired a 76 on the last round to win the championship with a one-over-par 223, five strokes better than Mrs. Borthwick, former Canadian champion. Mrs. Streit shot 75 in the second round.

Mrs. Borthwick, playing on her home course, the Credit Valley Golf and Country Club in nearby Mississauga, just managed to place second when she scored birdies on the final two holes.

Pam Miller of Oshawa, two-time Ontario champion, had an 80 in the first round but fired a 76 Tuesday and had Wednesday's best score, 73, to finish one stroke behind Mrs. Borthwick.

Sue Higgs of London, a former Canadian champion, finished fourth, far behind the leaders, with 239. She had an 81 Wednesday and her best round was 78.

Anne Hewitt of Barrie was fifth with 243 and Pat McClellan of Toronto sixth with 244.

Broker Takes Leads

BRAMPTON (CP) — Stu Hamilton of Brampton hasn't played much golf this year, mostly because he got married June 28.

But Wednesday the 34-year-old real estate broker shot a 68 to tie for the first round lead in the 47th Ontario amateur golf championship.

The co-leader, Tom Krakenberg, of Cobourg, says he hasn't played much either. In fact the little-known 34-year-old owner of an automobile bodyshop, was shy when he talked about his four under par.

Veteran Vic Weslock, 51, of Mississauga, shot 69, to keep up with the youngsters over the 6,720-yard par-72 Brampton golf club course.

Weslock an engineering salesman, won his first Ontario amateur in 1944, the year before Hamilton was born.

Lone face familiar to the Belleville area was Bay of Quinte club member Roger Ling, playing out of Oshawa, who shot a 35-40—75.

Following Weslock were Jim Burford of Toronto with a 70 and six others tied at 71—Ken Trowbridge of Bolton, David Allewell of Owen Sound, Wayne McDonald of Hornby, Jim Neale of Burlington and John Ellison and Herb Carnegie, both of Toronto.

At even par were defending champion Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Paul Williams of Burlington and Paul Gilbert of Toronto.

It took from 7:30 a.m., the time the second round begins today, to 7:30 p.m. for the 24 golfers to finish.

After today's round the field will be cut to the low 60 and ties.

AL Relies On Homer

NEW YORK (AP) — The American League hopes the home run will snap the National League's six-game win streak in the July 22 baseball all-star game at Washington.

Sluggers Reggie Jackson and Frank Howard give the AL plenty of power.

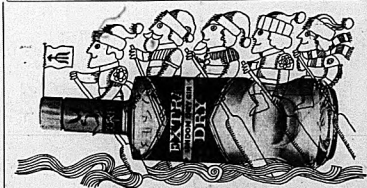
The big surprise in the lineup, announced Wednesday by commissioner Bowie Kuhn, was the absence of Baltimore Orioles' Brooks Robinson, the third base starter five years in a row who gave way to Sal Bando of Oakland Athletics.

Baltimore, breezing along in the Eastern Division lead, had outfielder Frank Robinson and first baseman Boog Powell in the list of eight starters.

Oakland, running second to Minnesota Twins in the Western Division, also had two players picked, Bando at third and Jackson in the outfield.

Rico Petrocelli, Boston Red Sox' shortstop, led the balloting of players, managers and coaches with 286 votes. The next best was Jackson's 209. Players were not permitted to vote for their own team-mates.

Howard, the Washington slugger who is fighting with Jackson for the home run title, was be of three repeaters from the 1968 starting lineup.



The others were catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit Tigers and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, the current batting leader.

Members of the National League's starting lineup will be announced Friday.

South Hastings Loop Keeps Rural Flavor

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Times have changed greatly, but the South Hastings Baseball League still has much of the rural flavor which has characterized the league since its birth in 1931.

Today five teams — Shannonville, Latta, Read, Plane's Concrete of Canniffton and the Tyendinaga Reserve — play a 24-game schedule, whereas back in 1934 — the earliest date for which league records are currently available — five clubs representing Quinte area boroughs — Latta, Canniffton, Foxboro, Shannonville and Melrose — played a 18-game schedule.

Back in the early days each team donated two dollars to help defray league expenses and the league's balance at the completion of the 1935 schedule was a mere 35 cents.

In 1969 each club posts a $15 performance bond and each player pays his club a fee of two dollars which is in turn submitted to the league by the individual teams. Today the league has a bank balance of $206.

Membership in the league and the length of the schedule have varied somewhat through the years. Canniffton, Foxboro, Latta and Melrose were the league's charter members in 1931 and Shannonville entered the league in 1935.

The maximum number of teams was seven at start of the 1951 season. But that year Corbyville and Point Anne dropped out of the league and somewhere along the line a second Canniffton team enjoyed the league's teepee.

Marysville, Roslin, Stirling and a Belleville Junior club also competed in the league at various times during its 4-year existence and the schedule varied from the 12 - games played in 1939 to the present 24 - game format.

An interesting facet of the league's financial history is the itemization of the expenses for the year 1945. Schedules were printed for $2.70, ball rental and phone bills totalled $2.10 and postage 32 cents — for a grand total of $5.12!

In the early days each club nominated two umpires — who of course donated their services — and was responsible for having one of the pair at each league game. The visiting team's umpire handled the home plate chores and the home team's umpire worked the bases.

Today the league hires two umpires for each game at a cost of $5 each, plus travelling expenses. The umpires travel together and receive two dollars for games in Read or the Reserve — the most distant centres from Belleville which is the prime source of the league's officiating staff. The umpires receive one dollar for games in each of the other three centres — Canniffton, Latta and Shannonville.

Travelling presents few obstacles today, but that wasn't always the case. Marlbank was refused entry into the league in May of 1936 because of the distance factor and Stirling dropped out of the league after the 1937 season partially because of the vast amount of travelling.

The league's history can also be traced through ardent supporters such as 81-year-old Jack Stewart who works at Reid's Bay and lives at R.R. No. 3 Belleville.

Stewart was a pitcher and catcher for Foxboro in 1931 — the league's first year of operation and even today he seldom misses a league game.

"Things have changed," Stewart said. "The calibre of play in the old days was surprisingly good and everyone took the game more seriously. Coaching was stressed and only one or two youngsters broke in with a club each year and they were often relegated to utility roles."

"There were no imports and league was composed entirely of local players. There were no payments of any sort and all the equipment came as a result of donations. We passed the hat at every game and crowds of 400 or 500 were not uncommon."

"Crowds today range from 100-150 on week nights to over 200 on weekends," secretary-treasurer Art Buller said.

Frank Pringle of Belleville was one of the original organizers and also the first president of the league. The South Hastings Baseball League is supposed to be the longest continuously-operated baseball league in Ontario, Pringle said.

"It all started with players around the countryside playing for the village nearest them and it's still pretty much like that I guess," said Mr. Pringle who was active in league affairs from 1931 to 1946.

HISTORY LESSON — Jack Stewart (left), a pitcher and catcher for the original Canniffton team in the South Hastings Baseball League's premiere season in 1931, and Art Buller (right), the secretary-treasurer of the South Hastings loop today, examine the notebook which tells the story of the league

Plane's Win But Fail to Gain Ground As Shannonville Continues Hot Pace

Members of the second place Plane's Concrete club must be wondering today what they have to do to gain ground on league-leading Shannonville.

Plane's hammered fourth place Latta 9-2 Wednesday night for tenth win in 16 South Hastings Baseball League outings this season, but failed to gain ground when Shannonville scored its 13th win in 17 games by edging Read 3-2.

Plane's bunched together five hits, a walk and a fielder's choice and took advantage of a pair of Latta errors to parade eight runs across the plate in the sixth inning and break open their game with Latta.

Bernie Coughlin went the nine inning distance for the winners and limited Latta to six hits. He issued three free passes and fanned five men.

Starter Terry McTaggart and reliever Bob Smith, who came on in the sixth inning, yielded nine hits and a walk while throwing third strikes past five men.

Eric Emerson and Bob Moon stroked a pair of singles each for Plane's and Ted Abrams contributed a key two-run sixth inning double to the winners attack.

Doug Green and Damon Richardson contributed two base hits each to Latta's attack and Wayne Kemp banged out a two-bagger for the losers.

Shannonville tallied single runs in the first, third and eighth innings to build up a 3-0 lead as lefthander Dave Lewis hurled two-hit scoreless ball for seven innings.

Read almost pulled the game out of the fire in the bottom of the eighth and last inning, but Lewis managed to slip out of a bases loaded one-out jam by allowing just two runs to score.

Bill Barberstock slammed a double and single for Shannonville, Bud Hill a double and Larry Marshall, Clint Green and Dave Lewis singles. Larry Coffee's double accounted for Read's fourth hit.

Squirt Tourney Makes Only One Concession

The first rule of this tournament states ". . . any team having a ten-run lead after five innings will be declared the winner."

It doesn't sound big league because it deals with very little softball players — squirts, to be exact.

The concession is about the only one made to the eight teams of 10 and 11-year-olds participating in Saturday's Squirt Tournament being staged by the Belleville Minor Softball Association.

Belleville's representatives — the Associated Canadian Travellers — will tangle with West Hill in the tourney's opening game at 8:30 Saturday morning at the Alemite Field.

Game B has Etobicoke and Unionville meeting at Queen Victoria School at 9:30; Game C — North Bendale vs. Port Perry at the Alemite at 10 a.m., and Game D — North York and Richmond Hill at Queen Victoria at 11.

The four-game second round in the elimination tourney begins with the winners of games A and B meeting at the Alemite in an 11.30 game.

The ninth and 10th games of the day will be the "B", or consolation championship at 4 p.m. and the "A" grand championship match at 6. Both title games will be played at the Alemite.

15 Miles Is Quite A Jaunt -- Especially on Water Skis

PICTON — Fifteen miles is quite a jaunt — especially on water skis — but two dozen area water ski enthusiasts are expected to enter the fifth annual 15-mile water ski race Sunday in the Bay of Quinte off Green's Point near the Long Reach.

The race, which is sponsored by the Picton Outboard Club, will be held on a five-mile circular course with the competitors circling the course three times.

Quinte Lodge, which is situated six miles east of Picton, will be the headquarters for Sunday's show which will also include a kite flying and stunt skiing exhibition by members of the Prince Edward Ski and Sail Club.

Sixteen competitors entered last year's race and Picton Outboard Club vice-president Gerald Barber said "We expect at least two dozen entrants this year and the competition is open to all sizes of boats. We'll class the boats according to speed to make the competition fair to everyone."

"Spectators will be able to view the goings-on from the shoreline and I think they'll enjoy the kite flying and stunt skiing exhibition which is an added attraction this year," Barber added.

First place in Sunday's race is worth $15 and merchandise prizes will be awarded to the second and third place finishers.

The entry deadline is 10.30 a.m. Sunday morning at Quinte Lodge. Minors must have written authorization from their parents in order to compete in the 15-mile race.

Further information is available by phoning 962-5346 from 8 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. or 476-5064 or 393-2048 after 6 p.m.

Late Goof Kills Eskies

EDMONTON (CP) — A late fumble by quarterback Corey Colehour killed a last-ditch effort by Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday night and enabled Hamilton Tiger-Cats to snatch a 22-21 victory in Canadian Football League exhibition action.

The Eskimos, after trailing through most of the game, rebounded to take a 21-19 lead early in the final session only to have Hamilton veteran Tommy Joe Coffey kick his fourth field goal of the game for the winning Ticat points.

Edmonton was within scoring distance with about a minute remaining in the game and second and goal to go when Colehour's costly fumble to victory from their grasp.

Ed Buchanan, on an 85-yard pass play from Joe Zuger just 32 seconds into the game had the long Hamilton touchdown. Coffey kicked two more points and the last two Ticat points came off a safety touch.

Al Irwin, Colehour and Karl Schneider scored the Edmonton touchdowns while Joe Petrone added 2 converts and a single.

Nixon Jinx Ends As Senators Blank Cleveland

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"It's about time," manager Ted Williams said Wednesday after his Washington Senators finally won an American League baseball game with U.S. President Richard Nixon watching.

The Senators blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0 to end a three-game losing streak.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

The Senators took a 1-0 first inning lead on Mike Epstein's double. The president arrived in the second inning with daughter Tricia and son-in-law David Eisenhower. They came in time to see the Senators widen their lead to 3-0 on singles by Del Unser and Frank Howard.

Joe Coleman pitched a four-hitter, including 11 strikeouts. He gave the president the ball he used to gain the final out, but Mr. Nixon wouldn't accept it until Coleman autographed it.

Elsewhere in the AL Wednesday, Baltimore Orioles edged New York Yankees 5-4 in 10 innings, Detroit Tigers ripped Boston Red Sox 6-5, Seattle Pilots trounced California Angels 8-0, but lost the second game of their doubleheader 5-0, Chicago White Sox tripped Oakland Athletics 5-3 and Kansas City Royals beat Minnesota Twins 4-3.

Pete Ward hit a three-run, pinch-hit home run in the eighth inning that powered the White Sox past Oakland and prevented the Athletics from gaining on Minnesota, the Western Division leaders.

Lou Piniella drove home the tying run with a fielder's choice single and the winner with a grounder in the seventh as Kansas City scored the Twins' five-game winning streak and kept them 3½ games ahead of Oakland.

The Twins built a 3-0 lead with single runs in the first three innings, including Harmon Killebrew's 24th homer. But Joe Foy's two-run homer started the Royals back in the fifth and Piniella singled to score Mike Fiore, who had doubled.

Mets Stubbornly Challenge Cubs For League Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Righthander Tom Seaver pitched brilliantly Wednesday as New York Mets bounced Chicago Cubs 4-0 and continued to challenge for the lead in the National League's Eastern Division.

The Mets, once a perennial last-place finisher, climbed to within three games of the Cubs, division leaders.

Seaver, 24, came within two outs of a perfect game. He retired 25 Cubs in succession before Jimmy Qualls singled.

Seaver boosted his 1969 record to 14-3 as a crowd of 59,083 watched the hometown Mets take their second win in a row from Chicago.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh Pirates won twice, 4-3 in 10 innings and 3-2, over Montreal Expos, San Francisco Giants shelled Houston Astros 10-3, Los Angeles Dodgers clipped Atlanta Braves 3-1, Cincinnati Reds whipped San Diego Padres 4-3 and Philadelphia Phillies split a doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals, winning 7-1 in the first game and losing 5-3.

Seaver drove in a run with a second-inning single as the Mets jumped on Ken Holtzman, knocking out the Cubs' starter and taking a 3-0 lead in the first two innings.

Randy Hundley batted Seaver's first pitch in the ninth inning and the pitcher threw him out for the 25th consecutive out. Then Qualls rapped the next pitch for the hit. Seaver retired the next two hitters to end the game.

He termed the one-hitter "a disappointment."

Pittsburgh swept the Expos winning the first game on Richie Hebner's leadoff triple in the 10th inning and a one-out single by Jose Martinez.

An eight-inning pinch-hit double by Willie Stargell won the second game for the Pirates.

Matty Alou, who had six hits in the doubleheader, scored the seventh inning of the second game with a single and came around to score Pittsburgh's tying run on a sacrifice, a wild pitch and an error. Then Fred Patek beat out an infield single with two out in the eighth and Stargell doubled him home.

Woody Fryman pitched a seven-hitter and Johnny Briggs tagged a two-run first-inning homer for the Phillies in the first game of their doubleheader against the Cardinals.

Home runs by Jose Torre, Vada Pinson and Lou Brock earned the split for the Cardinals, with Brock's two-run shot in the ninth erasing a 3-2 Phillies' lead.

The Giants, held to one hit for seven innings by Denny Lemaster, exploded for four runs in the seventh and then got a bases-loaded homer by Bob Burda and a solo shot, by Dick Metz in the eighth to beat Houston.

Claim Fourth Place

Cementmen Utilize Timely Hits

POINT ANNE — Timely is a good description of the seven hits Point Agne Cementmen collected en route to a 8-1 win over Black Diamond Cheesemen in Point Anne Wednesday night.

Point Anne's hits were fashioned in such a way that in two of the three innings the Cementmen collected hits they also scored their runs.

Catcher Claude Carr's base knock and Tom MacDonald's two-bagger produced a pair of second - inning runs, and Stu Muirhead's triple sandwiched in between singles by Larry Fraser, pitcher Ted Wales and shortstop Rick Rosebush accounted for the Cementmen's third three runs in the fifth frame.

Wednesday night's win boosted the Cementmen to the .500 mark — they have now won seven and lost seven — and gave them sole possession of fourth place in the seven-team Commercial Softball League. Point Anne has a two - point lead and a game in hand over fifth - place Corby's Distillery.

Righthander Ted Wales went the full seven innings for the Cementmen and scattered four hits while fanning three and walking one. Wales, who got the Cementmen's other hit, a third inning single, was in trouble only once. That was in the third inning when he got out of a one - out base loaded jam by striking out Bill Goodfellow and getting Jack Francis to fly to left.

Don Holoway went the distance and took the loss for the Cheesemen who are tied for sixth place with Belvedere Hotel. He gave up seven hits, struck out a dozen and issued five free passes.

Leadoff man Dwight Rathwell with a pair of safeties and Gene and Jack Francis with singles accounted for the Cheesemen's hits.

Posties Trounce Carbide

A 14-hit barrage enabled the Post Office to trounce Union Carbide 13-1 Wednesday night and slip past the Carbide crew into third place in the Departmental Softball League.

Paul Williams scattered nine hits for the winners who evened their record at six wins and six losses. Williams gave up only a fourth inning run. He walked a pair and didn't strike out a man.

Gary Little went the full seven innings and took the loss for the Carbide club. He surrendered 14 hits, issued five free passes and didn't strike out anyone.

John Bohan carried the big bat for the Posties. He slammed a homer, double and single. Ron Marriott had a homer and single for the winners. Charlie Peters a pair of doubles and Gord Campbell two safeties.

Gary Hughes stroked a double and single for Union Carbide. Paul Nollies had a pair of singles and Weiner Brown a two-bagger.

Quinte Area Girls Face Stiff Competition

Margaret O'Brien has proved herself to be tops in the Quinte area, and this weekend she gets a chance to see how she compares with other junior golfers across the province.

The lady of Quinte Golf and Country Club junior girls' title list in 1968 and the Kingston District junior champion in 1968 and 1969, tops a list of three Quinte area golfers who will be in the Ontario Junior Girls Championship Saturday and Sunday on the Board of Trade Golf and Country Club course at Woodbridge.

Miss O'Brien tees off at 10.15 a.m. Saturday. Following her soon Thompson of the Trenton Country Club, who will be competing in her second Ontario Junior Championship.

Kathy McDermott, a third year golfer at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, will tee off at 9.52 a.m. in the nine-hole novice competition.

Botly Wins Tourney Again

Lionel Botly captured the Victoria and Grey Trust trophy Wednesday for the second time in the fourth annual Multiple Listing Service Real Estate golf tournament.

Runners - up in the low net scores included Les Lemon, Ted Saunders, Jim Hepburn, Phil Bennett and Jack Diamond.

First with the lowest gross score was Doug Grant followed by Vic Kessler, Jim Wilson, Earl Fawcett, Bill Oliver and Joy Bowerman. The consolation prize was won by Grace Longheed.

Parsons Defeat United

Belleville Parsons used a pair of first half goals by Mike Kelly and Kevin Kirby to grab a 2-0 halftime lead over Belleville United in a rugged close checking Bay of Quinte Soccer League game Wednesday night and they survived a brief second half lull to register a 4-3 win over United.

United's Bob Kitcher drove a loose ball into the net early in the second half to narrow the score to 2-1; but Parsons snapped out of their lethargy and Ken Richardson made it 3-1 at the 28th minute of the second half when he scored on a deflection off a United defender.

Bob Rutherford tallied Parsons final goal late in the game on a penalty kick.

Computer Used to Unscramble Pigeon Race Results Overseas

LONDON (CP) — When you're organizing a race with several thousand feathered entrants, you need a computer to sort out who won.

The Royal National Homing Union has been forced to lease an electronic brain at Bradford University in Yorkshire to help unscramble the results of races with starting points in Europe as Britain's enthusiastic pigeon racers get more ambitious.

Currently there are more than 250,000 owners in Britain —30,000 more than in 1955 — who breed, train and race something like 8,000,000 pigeons from the British Isles and abroad.

British birds, descendants of the carrier pigeons which raced across the country before the invention of the telegraph and radio, have earned a high reputation, carrying off many of the most coveted prizes in international events.

With the hatching season now at its peak, breeders from around the world are snapping up the offspring of champions produced here and buying established winners at rocketing prices.

Recently a Japanese buyer paid £1,250 ($2,250) for a Cumberland bird named Wing Commander and a British breeder paid £725 for one of a pair of 14-week-old chicks out of two veterans with good pedigrees.

Still in some respects a backyard sport, pigeon racing is being forced to adopt more-sophisticated methods of operation to keep abreast of modern trends.

Racers can rarely afford the time or money to take their birds to release points hundreds of miles away. In the past they relied on railway freight service, but economy cuts have shut down many routes and owners have been clubbing together to find other means.

Associations in the north of England, where the sport has its strongest adherents, are buying air-conditioned long-distance trucks worth £4,000 to transport their precious birds to race starting points.

Fleets of these trucks cover the highways throughout the racing season, transporting hundreds of thousands of birds to release centres in Britain, France and Belgium. Each truck has an expert pigeon handler to feed and consort them.

Ron Busset, 49, a breeder and a member of the Royal National Homing Union who has raced birds since he was eight, recently took 250 prize birds to show in Poland. the Cubs.

Among other chores he had to feed them on 15 different diets lovingly devised by their aficionados owners to keep them in perfect form.

Each racing bird has a rubber registration ring on one leg which is sealed in a tamper-proof time clock at the owner's loft after a race to record exactly the time taken to complete a course which can be anywhere up to 750 miles.

More than 25,000,000 rings have been issued by the homing union in recent years.

Humane Societies Up in Arms Over Death of Space Monkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Humane and animal welfare societies were up in arms Wednesday over the death of astronomk Bonny as space officials contended the pigtailed primate did not die in vain.

"We have had close to 1,000 letters and some nasty telephone calls," said Don Zylstra, a public affairs officer of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He added that "we are astonished that there seems to be more concern for the animal than for our astronauts."

The Humane Society, the Animal Welfare Institute and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals joined in decrying as an act of inhumanity the monkey's death after nine days of a projected 30-day, earth-orbiting mission.

"It is an inhuman thing—and we abhor it," said Mrs. Cameron McNeil, president of the Washington Humane Soiety.

"The human being is self willed. The monkey had no say in the mission."

The 14-pound monkey, pawn in a $92,000,000 bioastellite mission to determine the effects of prolonged weightlessness in space, died Tuesday in Honolulu after a parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean.

Motorcyclists' Chief Given Hero's Burial

QUEBEC (CP) — Andre Lachance, 34-year-old longshoreman and motorcycle gang leader, was buried Wednesday in the fashion of a folk hero.

The event attracted more than 3,000 people, many of whom, outside of the members of the club he led, had never heard of Lachance until he was killed in a traffic accident Saturday.

The turnout in the lower town was bigger than for the funeral of the late premier Daniel Johnson at the Basilica in the Upper Town late last year.

The service for Lachance, known as "President Pat" of the local Hell's Hounds club, was held at the Roman Catholic Church in the Poor People's Parish of St. Sauveur.

Outside the church people climbed atop roofs of nearby buildings. Mothers and fathers held small children above their shoulders.

Among the sights was a huge wreath in the form of a swastika, placed on a flower car by a member of the club.

The funeral was one of the biggest of the city's six motorcycle clubs with about 40 members.

Hippie women painted like easter eggs competed for attention with beer-drinking bike riders whose greasy blue denim costumes were decorated with the usual array of swastikas, iron crosses and medals.

Thirteen Men Selected For Manitoba's Cabinet

WINNIPEG (CP) — Thirteen men begin preparation today for their first crack at the decision-making government.

The 13 were named Wednesday to the cabinet of the first New Democratic Party government in Canadian history. Five of them are freshmen MLA's.

Previously the third ranking party in Manitoba behind the Conservatives and Liberals, the NDP jumped into the driver's seat in the June 25 Manitoba election.

Ed Schreyer's cabinet, which takes over when the Conservative administration of Premier Walter Weir resigns Tuesday, is the youngest in Manitoba's history with an average age of 43.

Phillip Petterson, a Unitarian minister appointed without portfolio, is the oldest at 66. Mr. Schreyer, who will be industry and resources minister as well as premier, is the youngest at 32.

At a news conference Mr. Schreyer said the cabinet will begin briefings with Conservative counterparts and deputy ministers immediately in preparation for the takeover and a session of the legislature beginning Aug. 7 or 8.

The premier-designate said Manitobans could look for a reshuffling of portfolios after the government had gained some experience. He would eventually give up the industry and commerce post.

The only surprise appointment was that of transport minister—Joe Borowski, 35, jailed twice for refusing to collect sales tax at his Thompson gift shop.

The important posts went to party critics of government departments in previous legislatures and five newcomers. Three MLAs in the last legislature were passed over.

The appointments:

Finance Minister—Saul Cherniack, 52, a lawyer and financial critic since first elected in 1962.

Labor Minister—A. R. (Russ) Paulley, 59, former leader who retired just before the election

Attorney-General — A. H. Al Mackling, 41, lawyer and newcomer who took St. James away from a Conservative.

Health and Social Services—Sidney Green, 29, lawyer who battled Mr. Schreyer for the party leadership at the convention June 7.

Agriculture — Samuel Uskiw, 35, former provincial party president.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs—Rene Toupin, 33, new member for Springfield.

Mines and Natural Resources —Leonard Evans, 36, newcomer in Brandon East.

Tourism and Recreation—Peter Burtniak, 43, new member for Dauphin.

Youth and Education—Saul Miller, 52.

Municipal Affairs and Government Servies—Howard Pawley, 34, newcomer in Selkirk.

Without Portfolio—Philip Petterson, 66, responsible for cultural affairs and administration of the provincial Centennial Act.

Holiday Pay Is Issue

First Train in 3 Weeks Carries Food to Towns

SEPT-ILES, Que (CP) — A supply train left Wednesday night with food for about 10,000 residents of three towns in northeastern Quebec and Labrador. It was the train's first trip in two weeks.

The last train to Schefferville, Que., after passing through two Labrador centres, was on June 27, before a contract dispute ended all railway traffic.

The dispute arose over statutory holiday pay between the International Association of Machinists and the Quebec North hore and Labrador Railway.

The union said the company agreed to pay workers for Dominion Day July 1 and St. Jean Baptiste Day June 24, but the company said the men were boioring picket lines of striking iron ore workers.

he machinists, however, agied this week to load the trai after food supplies were reported to be extremely low in Schefferville, 325 miles north of hern and Labrador's Wabush and labrador City.

No agreement has yet been reachd on the movement of fuel, ith gasoline and oil supplies said to be dwindling sharply.

There are no roads leading to the three mining communities.

Negotiations to settle the iron ore workers', strike reopened Tuesday with an offer by Iron Ore Co. of Canada of an increase of 75 cents an hour in a three-year contract. Pre-strike wage was $3.12.

About 1,600 iron ore worker's and 1,000 railway employees are involved in the dispute.

A key issue in the new talks is a company proposal to eliminate a bonus scheme started in 1966 as compensation for a reduction in the work week to 48 hours from 50. The bonus would be replaced by two lump-sum payments of $579 this year and next.

The union requested a seniority bonus for men on the job for at least five years.

Mrs. Wat of Wellington is visiting at the home of her niece Miss Tena Watt.

Mrs. Das McMaster, Ivanhoe was a recent guest of Mrs. D. Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Hopkins and boys are moving back to the village

Melrose Personals

MELROSE — A group of students and their teachers from Quinte Secondary School spent two days of last week visiting historic sites near Belleville. In Tyendinaga township they stopped at Melrose Township Hall, visited an old vacant house known as the Jordan home, and the site of the Melrose Cheese Factory which was destroyed by fire a number of years ago.

Mr. Wm. McLaren, who has spent his lifetime of ninety years in the Melrose community, was able to join the group and tell them of interesting events connected with the buildings.

Miss Judy McLaren and her mother were hostesses, in their home, recently for a miscellaneous shower for the bride-to-be, Miss Janice Macfarlane.

Mrs. Pirstie and boys, Martin and Jeffrey, from Hawaii, have been visiting the former's sister, Mrs. W. English.

Mrs. Jack English, who is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Clare, of Edinburgh, Scotland, lately visited Mr. and Mrs. George Cole and family, at Aylmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Stevasson at Oshawa.

Mrs. Sam Elliott of Tweed is visiting her friend, Mrs. Kirk, and former neighbors of the community.

Mrs. Dorothy Melburn was hostess in her home for a demonstration party with Mrs. Louise Scott of Napanee as instructor.

Know Their Trade

SEATTLE (AP) — Five ex-convicts in Seattle are doing a job they should understand well. They are assistant parole officers, working through a pilot training program known as New Careers, administered by the U.S. department of labor. One of the five is a woman, 23 years old. All are black, and four still are on parole themselves. "They're good. They can break through the walls of silence that others can't," said Bill Wienks, their supervisor.

Police Clear Man In Murder

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police have located and cleared a man they had wanted to question in connection with the June 29 murder of Filippo Vendemini. Toronto shoe store operator.

Police said Wednesday the man was Vincenzo Sicari, a Montreal pizza parlor operator who had acted as a shoe buying agent for Vendemini on two trips to Italy.

Police said Mr. Sicari and the murder victim were planning a buying trip and Mr. Sicari came to Toronto see some changes Vendemini wanted made in his order.

Vendemini left Mr. Sicari at Toronto airport about midnight and drove home where his killer was waiting.

Mr. Sicari returned from Italy Tuesday and did not know of his friend's death.

DO KIDS LIKE ICE CREAM?

The answer, of course, is a resounding "yes" to both questions!

Kids have been eating and enjoying ice cream down to the last "lick" ever since it was invented.

And Want Ads have been the "working" ... producing results for both buyer and seller even longer than ice cream has been in existence. If you haven't used the Want Ads, you're missing one of the real treats in life.

And it's so easy, all you have to do is dial 962-9171 to place a low-cost, fast-acting Want Ad.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "Live Like a Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: While on a picnic during my vacation I was stung by a wasp. I suppose that isn't unusual, but I never saw such a persistent, angry little beast.

He came at me again and again until he finally got me in the forearm. Then he seemed to "stagger" away a and practically fell into the grass. We couldn't find him again.

I had a terrible reaction for a few days and my arm was swollen for about a week. Could he have been sick to eat that way? — Mr. Y.

Comment: Sick? Perhaps. But most likely, drunk.

Had he been feeding on any old grapes lying there in the sun? If so, you'll be interested to learn observations made about 75 years ago by a well known English surgeon, Sir Lawson Tait (English surgeons are called Mister).

His spoke of drunken wasps. He said — according to the Journal of the American Medical Association — that sugar in certain fruits becomes changed into alcohol during the process of decay, i.e. on grapes and plums.

"You will see them get very drunk, crawl away in a semi-somnolent condition, and repose in the grass for a some time till they get over the 'bout' and then they will go at it again.

"Moreover," he added, "they do their worst in stinging, both in the virulent nature of the stroke and the utterly unprovoked character of which they are guilty.

"I was stung last year by a drunken wasp and suffered severely from symptoms of nerve poison for several days. In such drunken peculiarities the wasps resemble their human contemporaries."

Wasps? Stay out of their way (if you can). If you suspect they are drunk, run — do not walk — to the nearest exit!

* * *

For Mrs. H.: You can be thankful that your conservative sponsor's doctor's not to operate has saved you a lot of money and suffering. I am glad you are well without surgery.

A definition of a good surgeon is "one who knows how to perform an operation, but also one who is aware when surgery is not necessary."

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is killing himself.

What can I do besides nagging, pleading, etc., etc.? My husband had his first heart attack several years ago. Last year he came through a real bad attack. He was in intensive care and needed a pacemaker to keep him alive.

But now that he feels better, he has forgotten all of his promises to behave. He is only in his 40s, has a very high cholesterol level and keeps nibbling cheeses, pastries, and many other saturated fats. In addition he works harder than ever and keeps on smoking about 1½ packs a day. Do I have to worry? — Mrs. B.

Comment: I think you do. So does he. I have known many men who kept their resolves after a serious coronary attack. They gave up their bad habits, lived moderately—and for a long time.

But some, like your husband have short memories. Unfortunately, Mother Nature is often not so kind, and doesn't forgive such lapses in conduct.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices fell sharply in mid-morning trading today and sent the Toronto stock market into its fourth consecutive downward session.

However, volume remained extremely light.

The industrial index, which has fallen 6.33 since Monday, dropped 2.14 to 175.47.

The index gained 8.43 points in a six-day rally that ended last Friday.

Trading in Revenue and its warrants was delayed at the open.

Revenue and Kaufman and Broad A were finally announced that Kaufman and Broad has entered into an agreement whereby Revenue will purchase a $5,000,000, a 8¾ percent, one-year. Revenue note at a price of 95.

Kaufman and Broad received from Alex J. Rubin, Revenue president, and Leonard Kaufman, Kaufman Broad, executive vice-president, a one-year option to buy 2 shares of Revenue common shares at $5 each.

Revenue closed Wednesday at 5, down ⅛.

Inco lost ⅞ to 38. Inco workers in Sudbury walked off the job today after their contract expired.

Cygnus lost 1¼ to 77¾. Sourcy I to 29, OSF Industries ¾ to 34¼, Royal Bank ¾ to 19½ and Imperial Oil ⅛ to 18⅝.

Seaway gained 1 to 13¼.

On index, western oils dropped 1.11 to 227.87 and base metals .43 to 105.96. Golds gained .37 to 223.17. Volume by 11 a.m. was 458,200 shares compared with 557,000 at the same time Wednesday.

The Toronto market recorded its second lightest daily volume of the year Wednesday as it plunged into its third consecutive daily loss.

Volume was 2,026,000 shares compared with 2,672,000 Tuesday. The lightest daily volume was 1,930,000 June 30.

The market opened with a small loss, then dropped sharply. It edged down further toward the close.

The industrial index fell 1.50 to 176.61, after being down 1.39 in the first half hour of trading. The index has fallen 6.33 since Monday after rising 8.43 in a six-day rally that ended Friday.

Observers had hoped the market would mark the beginning of a basing out period for the market after a serious June set-back.

However, it appears that determining political conditions in the Middle East and Vietnam and the continuing presence of the monetary conditions that touched off the June slump have worn away more investor confidence.

The only brightness in the market picture is the light volume.

Many observers said this indicates investors still seem uncertain about the immediate future of the market.

Losers outnumbered advancers 309 to 147 Wednesday. Eighteen of the exchange's 21 group indexes declined with banks, utilities and golds rising fractionally.

Real estate issues led the market down. Revenue lost ¾ to 5, Bramalea ½ to 7¼, Block Bros. ¼ to 8¾ and Capital Building ¾ to 5¾.

Maple Leaf Gardens did not trade. The issue closed Tuesday unchanged at 27¾.

After the market closed, it was announced that income tax evasion charges had been laid against Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, respectively president and executive vice-president, respectively of the Gardens.

Smythe and Ballard control about 40 per cent of the Gardens' outstanding stock.

Westcoast Transmission was unchanged at 29. Westcoast said it plans a $100,000,000 expansion of its natural gas system to increase its capacity to 1,200,000,000 cubic feet daily from 945,000,000.

The company also said it has launched a suit in the British Columbia Supreme Court seeking more than $13,000,000 in damages from Canadian Prestressed Steel and Pipe Ltd. for alleged delivery of defective pipe which Westcoast claims cost sharply into future earnings.

Union Carbide slipped ¼ to 17¾. The company will build a $2,000,000 air separation plant at St. Andrews, 18 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Racism Charge Refuted

MONTREAL (CP) — A blast of a charge of racism that pre-of a charge or racism that precipitated a $2,000,000 computer-wrecking rampage by disgruntled students at Sir George Williams University last February.

In a 128-page report released today, a five-man committee of university professors found that Professor Perry Anderson "did not discriminate against students" and recommended that the university "express its confidence in his impartiality."

The committee, itself a centre of controversy, concluded that nothing was found in the evidence "to substantiate a general charge of racism."

The complaint was made in the spring of 1968 by six West Indian students taught by Prof. Anderson during the 1967-68 school term. In a formal complaint signed last Jan. 10, they charged him with racism and incompetence.

Without going into details, the students said Prof. Anderson discriminated against blacks by assigning them unfairly low marks and by refusing to call them by their first names, as he did for white students.

Claiming that little attention was being given to the case, the students and their supporters occupied the university's sixth-floor computer centre Jan. 29.

The occupation was abruptly ended by March 11 when the university called in police to investigate rumors that university files were being destroyed in a seventh-floor cafeteria.

After a 10-hour rampage that left the centre damaged to clear the students from the building, university officials said, leaving behind a computer centre destroyed by fire, wide-spread smoke and water damage and surrounding streets littered with university records and computer tape thrown from windows.

A total of 97 persons were arrested during the sit-in and riot. Since then, 87 adults have been before the courts on charges of conspiracy, arson and mischief. Parents of six juveniles were fined a total of $1,500 in juvenile court after a similar accusation was ordered for a seventh. Charges were dropped against the juveniles.

The trials of the adults are scheduled to begin this fall.

Cutback in U.S. European Troops Called for by Senate Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leaders have approved a call for a far greater cut in U.S. troop strength in Europe than now planned by the White house.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield described as inadequate President Nixon's order to withdraw some 15,000 military men from overseas bases during the next year.

The White House did not disclose the specific areas involved, but the order announced Wednesday exempted Vietnam and other spots of trouble and tension.

It was learned the Senate Democratic policy committee already has agreed to back a resolution urging the administration to substantially reduce U.S. manpower in Western Europe.

Mansfield, the resolution's chief sponsor, said he will formally introduce the measure later this year.

He said the United States is maintaining 2,700 bases, 400 of them major installations, covering 4,000 square miles in 30 foreign nations.

All told, he said, some 1,750,000 troops, dependents and employees are based overseas.

Mansfield said it would represent real progress if those figures were cut by half.

The White House announced 14,900 men will be brought back to the United States during the next year "in the interests of lessening budget and balance of payments costs and of reducing the American presence overseas."

This, plus a reduction of some 5,100 civilian employees abroad, could lead to eventual balance of payments savings of $71,000,000, the White House said.

Civilian payroll cuts are to be general, including a 10 per cent reduction in South Vietnam.

But the military cuts do not apply to forces in South Vietnam, South Korea, Berlin, to other areas of Southeast Asia where U.S. forces supported military operations, or to manpower committed to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Presumably, this means reductions in U.S. forces in Spain, Japan, and Turkey.

The kind of cuts Mansfield wants would have to come in the NATO area, exempt from the Nixon order.

The United States has 228,000 men in West Germany alone.

Mansfield said the Germans are in far better economic shape than the United States to provide forces for their defence.

Meanwhile, West Germany agreed Wednesday to provide $1,530,000,000 in the next two years to help maintain U.S. troops and their dependents in Germany.

The money would cover about 80 per cent of the U.S. balance-of-payments drain in keeping the troops there. Initially, the agreement provides that West Germany will buy about $925,000,000 worth of U.S. goods and services and provide $595,000,000 through other financial measures, such as loans.

The agreement means the Bonn government is paying at the rate of $700,000,000 a year for the current and coming fiscal years to offset the cost of American forces in West Germany. This compares with $725,000,000 paid during the fiscal year which ended June 30.

A Life in Their Hands

The clothes burned off his body, Barry Bernhardt, 23, of 1420 E. Fourth St., Brooklyn, lies on the pavement as his car burns after crashing into a wall on the northbound lane of the New England Thruway in New Rochelle, N.Y. At bottom, rescuers pull Bernhardt away from the flaming wreck. A passenger in the car died in the crash. Bernhardt is in critical condition. (AP Photo)

Changes in Auto Industry

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Still riding the boom generated by the Canada-United States automotive trade agreement, the Canadian auto industry will continue to rationalize its passenger car and truck assembly lines when 1970-model production begins in the next few weeks.

All four major Canadian auto manufacturers plan extensive shuffles in their model lines. This year's model changeover, in fact, will be the most extensive since the auto trade pact was signed four years ago.

Chrysler Canada Ltd. will add a third line to its Windsor assembly plant production schedule, and for the first time the company's Windsor truck plan will be realigned to build for a combined Canada-U.S. market.

The Windsor plant will add the Dodge Dart to its production for the North American market. Production of the compact Dart is being phased out of a Chrysler Corp. plant in Detroit to make room for a new sports-type car to be called the Dodge Challenger.

American Motors (Canada) Ltd. has confirmed that it will assemble its new sub compact Hornet at its Brampton plant near Toronto.

Both General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Ford of Canada Ltd. plan to alter their model mixes but have not yet disclosed details.

Keith P. Manurek, executive vice-president of Chrysler Canada, said production of all light and heavy-duty trucks will be phased out of the company's Windsor truck plant at the end of the 1969 model run next week.

Starting this fall the plant will concentrate on high-volume production of medium-duty trucks for North American sales.

Chrysler plants in the U.S. will take over production of light and heavy-duty trucks.

Up to now, Chrysler Canada's Windsor truck plant has produced in relatively low volume a complete range of 34 truck models, ranging from half-ton pickups to heavy-duty, diesel-powered highway tractors. This output will drop to 10 medium-sized truck models and two school bus chassis this fall.

Chrysler Canada recently completed # $2,000,000 modernization of its Windsor truck plant.

Insurance Companies Enter New Field

VANCOUVER (CP) — The entrance of insurance companies into commercial building development has produced a mixed reaction among independent developers here.

The independents welcome the large capital resources of the insurance companies, but are generally wary of weighted competition and possible loss of control of their own developments.

Some developers are frankly pessimistic about insurance companies moving out of their traditional role as suppliers of mortgage money and into the fields such as land assembly, contracting construction and then managing the finished development.

There is the danger insurance companies will waste millions of dollars in policy holders' funds used in developments by companies lacking experience in the field, some independents claim.

The insurance companies retort they can acquire personnel with the necessary skill if necessary, but meanwhile are generally content to work with independent developers who already have proven their competence.

The insurance companies also point to the regulations of the Canada Insurance Act which limits to a maximum of about 10 per cent of investments the amount an insurance company can put in projects of this nature.

They also believe that since they put up the money they should share in the profits. This way they can protect policyholders by combatting the inflationary pressures constantly reducing the value of the dollar.

John A. (Sandy) Reid, who conceived and supervised completion of Denman Place, an apartment-shopping centre-theatre unit in Vancouver's west end, said he feels that insurance companies have to take a potential profit-making position to hedge against inflation and taxation.

"The large companies are going to get larger and the small developers are going to have to get out of business.

"The sad part is some insurance companies are not relying on developers. I have seen millions spent in excess of what should have been—all across the country, not in isolated cases.

"Some companies are making terrible mistakes costing their policy holders millions."

Like Denman Place, Pacific Palisades, a downtown condominium office-apartment, has been developed with insurance companies sharing the ownership.

Developer Mel Zajac is busy completing the final stages of the Palisades and he agrees that the insurance companies are justified in wanting to share in the developer's profits.

Britains' New Racial Problem Called 'Profoundly Disturbing'

LONDON (AP) — A massive report on Britain's growing race problem, published today, finds the situation "profoundly disturbing."

The report, sponsored by the non-political Institute of Race Relations, is based on five years of study and research in Britain, which has absorbed more than 1,000,000 colored subjects from colonies and former colonies.

The report's most startling conclusion is that re-establishment of compulsory national service for Britain's young men to harness their energies is "worth seriously considering." The draft in Britain was discontinued in 1960.

Drafters under the proposal would have the option of serving in civilian occupations and various forms of community service at home or abroad.

The institute's survey describes the nation's immigration policy as an "open sore" and states that lack of a coherent immigration policy "has been one of the main factors in the deterioration of race relations in Britain."

The survey predicts that by 1986 the non-white population will be between 2,074,000 and 2,373,000. The total population of the United Kingdom is about 55,000,000.

The institute's report reaches the conclusion:

"We are dealing with minorities who are here to stay and they and their children will be part of the future of this country. This is not a situation which can be altered by anything short of a deliberate coercion of these minorities into departure."

The report recommends repeal of a section of the 1965 Race Relations Act that makes it a criminal offence to incite others to racial hatred by speech or writing.

One research project disclosed that "the degree of prejudice in the population is quite considerable," but "the degree of tolerance in the population is even higher."

"The one fact that stands out above all others," the report says, "is that throughout the field of employment, discrimination is widespread and pervasive."

It urges that housing be made easier for immigrants by lifting the severe limitation on home loans now in force.

—The inclusion of lectures on race relations in police training courses.

—Admission to Britain in the future on a basis of 1, temporary skilled employment, 2. seasonal or temporary work, 3. entry for settlement, 4. as students, 5. as visitors with no numerical limit laid down in law.

—Overhaul of current citizenship law.

Addiction Foundation Urges Doubling Cost of Drinking

TORONTO (CP) — Doubling the cost of alcoholic drinks would be an effective way of combatting alcoholism, the Addiction Research Foundation suggested Wednesday.

The foundation, in a major report based on 10 years of research into the use of alcohol, also found evidence that price increases restrict drinking.

Consumption had tended to drop in Ontario whenever prices went up.

"The formula indicates that a doubling of relative price is accompanied by a reduction of 51 per cent in general consumption, 50 per cent in liver cirrhosis mortality, and a fall of 60 per cent in excessive consumption." Liver cirrhoses is a disease accompanying alcoholism.

It said the government should base the price of drinks on alcoholic content—the more alcohol the more the drink should cost—and gradually raise the price to twice the current level.

The report has been sent to liquor control board commissioners of every province.

Research showed that relatively high prices on hard liquor did not lead to lighter drinking, drove drinkers to cheaper beverages as was thought, but simply to eager.

A price boost, the report said, would make more liquor outlets such as sidewalk cafes possible without increasing general consumption and would at the same time increase liquor control board revenues.

Statement On Borg Requested

OTTAWA (CP) — R. G. L. Fairweather (P C—Fundy-Royal) called on Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday to make a public statement giving the government's reason for commuting the death sentences of Leonard Borg to lifetime imprisonment.

Mr. Fairweather said in he Commons there is "public disquiet" over the reprieve of Borg, who had been sentenced to be hanged for the murder of an RCMP officer in Grand Prairi, Alta.

Mr. Trudeau replied that he was prepared to take the matter up with Solicitor-General George McIlraith.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 11

Your birthday today: Your motto for the coming year is "I will do it myself." No one else to show the way. The year promises to be free of major events. Social, political activity generally decline. Today's natives like to make their own rules, and some are noted for industriousness, scholarly genius.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Finish the weekend chores early; there are changes you must prepare to meet. Enjoy a sociable evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Put your main effort into work unassisted, as co-operation is less fluent for the moment. Your feelings get in the way of your judgment on business (so let well enough alone).

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You will do better if you master your fretful mood today. Avoid comment on others' actions, as it will only be taken as criticism.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Make this a saving-up day; throw away the useless. Take care, as you will not be able to retrieve anything cast away now.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Get everybody talking today while you listen and match up the stories. You'll learn something unusual and be in a better position to prevail later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Get the job done so you'll have the time to do what you want to do later. Take care of any unfinished details, any backing of correspondence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your diplomatic skills must be exercised today with relatives; nothing is gained by real tension. Study, self-improvement are strongly favored, while travel and purchasing are less productive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now you begin to see some point to recent events and the pattern of comment you have been hearing; this is not accidental.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your encouragement of your fellowmen today is beyond price. Reach out to help and to share in their goals. Home improvements (more space or better access) turn out well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Inside information, technical advice, good counsel is available if you will look. Credit offered today is favored for later profit. Pamper yourself a bit.

AUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Expect people to be quite sensitive today. Put your emphasis on improving your own resources. Thrift is quite in order now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Get everybody involved in repairs and maintenance activity. Check your home for hazards, first aid supplies, and similar items, just to be sure. Then meditate in some other place for a while.

Hearing Postponed

TORONTO (CP) — Hearing of disciplinary charges against Constable Sydney Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, scheduled to start Friday, has been postponed at the request of defence counsel David Lewis.

Mr. Lewis, deputy leader of the federal New Democratic Party, requested the postponement because of parliamentary business in Ottawa.

Charges against Constable Brown were laid after he posed with a beggar's cup for a photograph which ran in a Toronto magazine. An accompanying article outlined the differences the police association has in gaining higher wages for its members.

U.S. Senator Says Washington Sits on Report Assailing DDT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Gaylord Nelson has charged the U.S. agriculture department with sitting on a report condemning the general use of DDT.

Agriculture officials denied any such report exists, but did announce Wednesday the department had ordered a temporary halt in the use of nine persistent or long-lasting pesticides —including DDT—in government pest control programs.

The Wisconsin Democrat called on Agriculture Secretary, Clifford Hardin to ban use of the toxic pesticide altogether.

Nelson said the department has kept the report quiet because "they haven't done anything about it."

Dr. G. W. Irving Jr., administrator of the agricultural research service, and Harry Hays, director of the pesticides regulation division, said no such recommendations have been made to Hardin.

"If there had been a report I would have known about it," Irving said.

Nelson acknowledged the report may not yet have reached Hardin's desk. But he added: "There is no doubt in my mind the report exists."

He contended the department's temporary halt to use of DDT in its own programs was a "ridiculous palliative" designed to assuage public opinion.

"The department of agriculture is America's worst offender," Nelson asserted. "It is locked in with the agricultural interests that use DDT."

Nelson said Hardin set up a special committee to study a report on long-lasting pesticides by the National Academy of Sciences and National Research Council.

The committee recommended a ban on aerial dusting of DDT and use of the pesticide "aquatic areas"—near lakes, rivers and streams, he said.

Nelson has contended DDT is contaminating the country's water—especially in the Great Lakes area—and poisoning the environment for fish, wildlife and even man.

The committee's recommendations don't go far enough, he said, even though they are "a step forward."

The temporary suspension—good until completion of a 30-day review—affects agriculture department pest control operations on military and civilian airports, joint federal-state projects and national forests.

In addition to DDT, pesticides involved are Dieldrin, Endrin, Aldrin, Chlordane, Toxaphene, Lindane, Heptahlor, and BHC. All are "persistent"—long-lasting—pesticides.

Only a minor percentage of the persistent pesticides used in the United States are used in the programs affected by the temporary ban, Irving said.

Ontario Ban Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario Liberal party said Wednesday DDT should eventually be banned in Ontario.

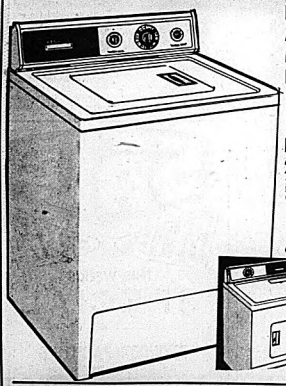
Murray Gaunt, legislature member for Huron-Bruce, suggested a program which would prohibit the use of DDT for home and garden in 1970, outlaw it for all other uses other than the control of cutworm in 1971, and ban it entirely as soon as a satisfactory alternative is produced.

He also proposed that the government immediately publicize substitutes for DDT through pamphlets, broadcasts and advertisements in farm and garden publications.

No Danger Indicated

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday that recent surveys have not indicated any dangerous level of DDT or other pesticides in Canadian food.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) said there had been reports that DDT content in food is reaching unsafe proportions and asked whether the minister would institute a full study on the problem.



Mr. Munro said the question is under review but no decision has been reached on such a study. Meanwhile, latest surveys indicated the level of pesticides in food does not constitute a danger.

U.S. Ready To Limit Missiles

BRUSSELS (AP) — Allied diplomats reported today the United States is ready to discuss curbing nuclear missile with the Soviet Union without demanding on-the-ground inspections that Moscow has rejected in the past.

Their disclosure followed several briefings at North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters by Phillip Farley, No. 2 man on the U.S. negotiating team in the strategic arms limitation talks proposed by President Nixon.

JOHANNESBURG (AFP) — Laurence Gandar, chief editor of the Rand Daily Mail, was sentenced today to pay a $280 fine or serve a six-month prison term for having published in 1965 "false information" about prison conditions in South Africa. Benjamin Pogrund, who wrote the four articles, was sentenced to six-months' imprisonment but the sentence was suspended.

Safeguard Compromise Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears to be moving toward a compromise which would bar deployment of the Safeguard missile defence system but would step up testing of radar and computer components, probably at two Pacific test sites.

Senator George D. Aiken, the Vermont Republican who nudged the Senate closer to Safeguard could not be approved without modifications. But he predicted a program could be worked out acceptable to both a substantial majority of senators and the Nixon administration.

Deputy Defence Secretary David R. Packard did not rule out the possibility of compromise.

"The question of a compromise is a matter which will have to be dealt with by the president," Packard told reporters. "It's not in my hands. He's running it."

At the moment, the possible compromises before the Senate as amendments would:

—Limit the Safeguard program to research, barring any deployment or site acquisition. Senators John Sherman Cooper (Rep., Ky.) and Philip Hart (Dem., Mich.) introduced the proposal.

—Provide for installing computer and radar elements at initial Safeguard sites in North Dakota and Montana near the Canadian border for research purposes, but bar deployment of the missiles themselves. Senator Thomas J. McIntyre (Dem., N.H.) introduced this amendment.

Diversion Studied

U.S. May Buy Ontario Water

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario Water Resources Commission said Thursday the federal and Ontario governments are conducting a study which could lead to diversion of some Northern Ontario rivers and the sale of fresh water to the United States.

Murray Cheetham, commission information director, said the province and the federal department of mines, energy and resources have been studying northern water potential for three years.

He said the rivers involved are the Moose, Attawapiskat, Severn, Winisk and Albany, all of which flow into Hudson and James bays.

The study arose from proposals for huge hydro-electric power projects on the rivers and diversion of their flow by Lake Superior to provide more water in the Great Lakes, he said. The study may not be completed for another three or four years.

In Ottawa, Keith Penner, Liberal member of Parliament for Thunder Bay, was ruled out of order Wednesday when he tried to put questions to Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, on a possible diversion of fresh water from the Hudson Bay watershed into Lake Superior.

He said in an interview Thursday that a $2,100,000,000 plan exists for a diversion scheme.

Apollo, Astronauts Getting Final Checks

Biafra Relief

Canada Ready To Inspect

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has taken another initiative aimed at expediting the flow of food to beleaguered Biafra.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced in the Commons Thursday that the government has offered to supply neutral inspectors for relief flights into the secessionist region of Nigeria.

He said both sides in the Nigerian civil war are willing to accept neutral inspectors as a precondition for resumption of mercy flights into Biafra.

Such flights have practically ceased since the shooting down of a Red Cross plane by the federal Nigerians late last month.

Mr. Sharp said "all interested parties" now are looking to daylight flights as the best way of getting food to those who need it in Biafra.

Previously, relief flights went into Biafra exclusively by night. However, the Lagos government stopped granting the food planes safe conduct because planes carrying weapons to the rebel Biafrans were slipping into the relief funnel.

It was understood that Canada conveyed its offer of neutral inspectors to Lagos three days ago. No reply had been received by Ottawa as of Thursday.

The inspectors' job would be to certify that relief planes do not carry weapons to Biafra.

As far as could be determined, no approach had yet been made to Biafra, with which Canada—recognizing the territorial integrity of one Nigeria—does not have official relations.

After making his announcement in the Commons, Mr. Sharp received an all-party delegation of MPs in his office. The delegation asked for Canada to take the initiative in convening an international conference to find a formula for daylight flights into Biafra.

It also urged that Canada make a ship available as a neutral site for such a conference, which will bring representatives of the belligerents.

The delegation presented Mr. Sharp with a memorandum along these lines signed by four Liberals, five Conservatives, four NDP members and one Creditiste. Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and NDP Leader T. C. Douglas were among the signatories.

Historic Moon Voyage Near

By Howard Benedict

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With countdown for their moon landing mission under way, the Apollo 11 astronauts today receive their final major prelaunch physical examination.

Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins planned several hours with doctors.

The examination determines if they are healthy for their demanding eight-day flight and also provides baseline heart rate, respiration and other data for in-flight and post-flight comparison.

For the last month, doctors have been drawing complete medical profiles of the three spacemen, who are to start their voyage to the moon at 9:32 a.m. EDT next Wednesday. Previous major physicals were completed June 16 and July 1.

The information will be particularly important when Armstrong and Aldrin walk on the lunar surface July 21. It will provide clues to when the astronauts might be tiring in the unfamiliar one-sixth gravity field board leaves the system. The latter on the moon.

The lengthy countdown for the launching of the mammoth rocket started on schedule at 8 p.m. Thursday after two technicians climbed into a first stage fuel tank to find and stop a leak in the helium pressurization system.

They corrected the problem by tightening a nut at the base of a helium storage bottle. The helium is used to pressurize the fuel tank and operate certain valves.

Armstrong and Collins reviewed charts and checklists to be carried on the flight. Aldrin travelled to nearby Patrick Air Force Base to undergo some weightless training in a K-135 aircraft and to simulate landing on the moon in a helicopter.

In Washington, the administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration predicted that long distance travel around the earth will, in the future, be by way of space, instead of "plowing through the atmosphere."

Dr. Thomas O. Paine told a Senate appropriations subcommittee Thursday "a whole new transportation system" will come from the Apollo 11 moon mission, by the late 1970s or the early 1980s.

PM Flays Opponents

Opposition Is Accused Of 'Stupid Filibuster'

OTTAWA (CP) — Bedlam erupted in the Commons today when Prime Minister Trudeau accused the opposition of a "stupid filibuster" and said 80 per cent of the daily question period is "sheer hypocrisy."

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux invited Mr. Trudeau to withdraw the remark about hypocrisy but the prime minister declined.

David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, said Mr. Trudeau is trying to make a shambles of Parliament.

He said that if Mr. Trudeau were decent and "man enough" he would withdraw his crack which imputed motives to other MPs.

The Speaker said it now was Mr. Lewis who was imputing motives.

Point Rise in Month

Consumer Index Jumps

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index advanced a full point in June to 125.9 from 124.9 in May due chiefly to higher food and clothing costs, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The 0.8 per cent increase in the month raised the index—based on 1961 prices as 100 points—5.2 per cent above the June, 1968, figure of 119.7 points.

The biggest increase in the food component of the index since July, 1967—an advance of 2.2 per cent—accounted for almost three-quarters of the June increase in the all-items index.

More than half the increase in the June food component is attributed to a 12-per-cent climb in beef prices.

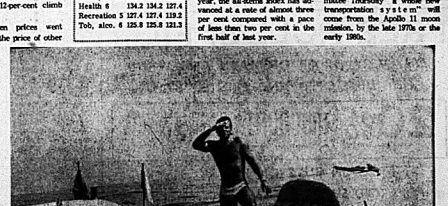
While chicken prices went down slightly, the price of other meats except beef increased by about six per cent.

The clothing component increased by almost one per cent and higher rents were largely responsible for another upward turn in the housing index.

Summer increases in travel costs caused the transportation

Late Thursday, while Armindex to move ahead marginally. The component indexes for health and personal care, recreation and reading and tobacco and alcohol remained unchanged during June.

The increase in the all-items index was the second biggest in 15 months. The index jumped 1.1 per cent in April, then slowed down to a slight increase in May.



Of the seven main component indexes which make up the all-items guide, housing counts for about one-third of the total and food for more than one-quarter.

In the first six months of this year, the all-items index has advanced at a rate of almost three per cent compared with a pace of less than two per cent in the first half of last year.

Planning Board Recommends Zoning Change

Objection Overruled as Four Seasons Gets Green Light

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Despite the objection of an anonymous person, Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night gave the green light to re-zoning to permit construction of the Four Seasons Motel, Bell Telephone training school and marina on Belleville harbor.

In recommending the re-zoning to city council, the board disregarded the objection filed late Thursday afternoon in a letter. It was delivered by hand from the city legal flirth of Robertson and Black.

The unknown objector termed the re-zoning "premature" in the light of the urban renewal study now under way, said several adequately zoned areas are at present available for the development and suggested the entire zoning in Belleville should be reviewed by the Ontario Municipal Board.

The letter said the Four Seasons application constitutes spot zoning, "premature in view of the zoning review", and suggested one probable recommendation in the urban renewal plan might be a downtown hotel. This, the objector said, would be impossible if the Four Seasons development went through.

The objector reserved the right to make further objections if he deemed it necessary in the future.

A peculiarity of the letter was the fact it was delivered by hand by a city solicitor 10 minutes after City Hall closed Thursday afternoon. The letter bore no letterhead, nor was it signed. The copy for the city clerk was given to the planning board staffer at the same time for delivery to Mr. Stalker.

Hotel interests contacted today generally denied any connection with the objection.

J. Stewart Robertson, solicitor whose firm sent the letter refused to reveal the identity of his client.

"I filed the objection on the grounds that if a person pays taxes he has a right to query what is being done with his money," Mr. Robertson said.

Eric Grant of Marathon Realty, an unsuccessful bidder on the motel-training school development, refused to confirm or deny any involvement by his company in the objection.

Last week Marathon, the real estate division of Canadian Pacific, withdrew options on land west of North Front St. where it has proposed to site the development.

Last Thursday Mr. Grant told The Intelligencer "there would be no objection unless the re - zoning affects our property." Marathon owns a parcel of land north of the land optioned by Four Seasons.

"We are still studying the effect the re - zoning will have on our property," Mr. Grant said, "I'm not prepared to say any more at this time."

Sam Goodman, proprietor of the Sun Valley Motor Inn this morning refused comment on the objection.

However, last night he told reporters that the board would require the objector to reveal his identity if the matter went to an OMB hearing.

Planning Board's re-zoning recommendation will be considered by city council at a meeting July 21. If the re-zoning bylaw is passed then, the objector can file his objection with OMB within the next 14 days. If such an objection is received, the OMB is required to call a public hearing.

Fred Risen, a Four Seasons' director, appears at the public hearing called by the planning board last night to ask for an immediate decision on the re-zoning.

"Unless we can proceed with the re-zoning we can't live up to our commitment to the Bell Company to have the training school facilities open by September, 1970," he said.

He said the motel will have 125 rooms, 90 of which will be occupied by Bell trainees for a nine-month period each year.

During June, July and August, all the rooms will be available to the public, Mr. Risen predicted that an addition would be required within two years of the motel's opening to accommodate tourists.

"Our economic feasibility studies of this area indicate there is a growing demand for our type of accommodation and there is sufficient traffic in the Belleville area to stimulate further motel developments," he told the board.

"A new hotel in the core of the downtown area would not affect us, nor we it," he said.

OMB Hears Sewer Protest

An Ontario Municipal Board official today reserved judgment on appeal from a Belleville fuel company against assessment for a Foster Ward sewer installation.

The protest was formally lodged at city hall today by Liquifuels, fuel suppliers with a large storage terminal in the South Front Street area.

Company lawyer, B. W. Hurley, said his client was objecting to any assessment being imposed for the new sanitary sewer extension along South Church Street. Liquifuels property is expected to be hooked to a new sewer already installed at the corners of Pinnacle and Front Streets.

Presence of the company's storage tanks ruled against any development in the South Church Street area.

City solicitor E. Guss Porter submitted the company's application was not of order. Since the South Church Street sewer had yet to be installed no assessment had yet been made. Any such appeal must first be launched before a court of revision, not the OMB, he said.

OMB official D. Jamieson, who sat as a one-man board, adjourned the hearing after taking submissions from both counsels.

A decision must await scrutiny of the evidence before an OMB panel in Toronto, said Mr. Jamieson.

Toronto Man Arrested After City Police Chase

A Toronto man was arrested early Thursday afternoon on a charge of possession of stolen goods and careless driving, following a police chase through the city.

William Roy Johnston of Palmerston Ave., Toronto was remanded to the county jail after he was apprehended by police at the corner of Byron and West Streets. He was charged with theft of a power lawn mower from Cherry's Furniture World at Belleville Plaza, and careless driving.

Harry Ostrin, manager of the sewing centre at the Plaza, spotted a man pushing a lawn mower down the mall. He queried Cherney's manager, Douglas Shaw about the sale. Mr. Shaw and Mr. Ostrin together approached a man sitting in his car in the A and P Store. They asked to see a sales slip for a mower. The car took off.

Mr. Ostrin followed in his car with a passenger, while Mr. Shaw called police. At the corner of Victoria Ave. and Church St., the brakes on Mr. Ostrin's car burned out and he was forced to stop. His passenger threw a note to a Bell Telephone lineman in a nearby pole, asking him to call police and notify them of the location of the fleeing car.

The police picked up a car on College St. East and pursued it until the driver stopped at Byron and West Streets.

Picton Gets Dial-a-Thought

PICTON — A new service has been introduced to the Picton area by Rev. J. M. Cooke of the Free Methodist Church.

The name of the porject is "Dial-a-Thought". By dialing a special number the caller can be given a needed lift in the form of a three minute message of faith.

Begun shortly after the new year, Rev. Cooke made his appeal to members of all faiths. Since the service has been in operation there has been a steady stream of calls, say Rev. Cooke, from members of his own congregation as well as from those of different faiths.

Said Mrs. Ted Brown, a member of Rev. Cooke's congregation: "I have heard several people say they did the special number two and three times each day."

This is a new approach of trying to make religion a part of daily life, and has been suggested by Rev. Cooke as being a way for tourists who cannot get to church, to get a capsule sermon. For this reason Rev. Cooke has described the service as a "holiday church".

The Free Methodist Church finances the project and makes it available to anyone in Prince Edward County who is looking for an uplift in his daily life.

Marmora Contest Draws Large Crowd

MARMORA — About 800 people were in the audience at Marmora Arena when Ed McGuiness of Indian River played his way to first place in the fiddle contest for the second consecutive year. He took home $50 and the engraved "Golden" trophy donated by Jack Golden.

Runners-up were Tina Irvine of Oshawa, winning $40, Leon Clements of Napanee for $30, Stub Alhouse of Havelock $25. Five dollars in prize money was won by the following runners-up, Ray Irvine of Belleville, Harlan Elder of Cobourg, Charlie Campion of Marmora, Garry Seaboyer of Havelock, Tom Sullivan of Lakefield and Manley Ford of Belleville.

The Cross Country Jamboree and entertainers put on an excellent stage show with Keith Tompkins of Campbellford acting as M.C. for the evening.

Entertainment was also provided by the Cedar Valley Boys, Miss Donna Moon, Miss Diana Yeomans, the Cherry Valley Sweethearts, the Branded Men and the Peat Family Trio.

The stage show also featured a step dancing competition with Miss Brenda McGuiness of Indian River coming first, Vern Matthews of Lakefield, second and Loretta Cavanaugh of Indian River third.

The Marmora Agricultural Society draw for a quarter of beef or $75 was won by Mrs. Vera Empey of Madoc.

The fiddle contest, sponsored by the Agricultural Society and the Cross Country Jamboree received a most enthusiastic response by the contestants and those attending and it is hoped to further improve the show next year.

Deseronto Council Forms Planning Board

DESERONTO — Although in some centres of opinion, the possibility of regional government is dim, Deseronto Council believes in foresight.

It has appointed three of its members to join with three members of the Tyendinaga Township Council to form a joint planning board.

Members from Deseronto are Reeve Donald Armitage and Councillors Jack Lafield and George Lyons. Tyendinaga Township Council appointed Councillors Carman Gibson, William Coorig and Leonard Walsh.

The members of this joint planning committee will attend the meeting in Belleville July 22, when representatives of the provincial cabinet will meet with representatives of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington. Prince Edward and Hastings to discuss municipal control over certain aspects of government, with assessment one of the topics under discussion.

Council also received a communication from Sophiasburg Township for further time to consider Deseronto's offer to furnish fire protection for the township.

The McIntosh Marine and Dredging of Belleville received approval for an additional $500 for the clearing of the site of the former Ideal Vendors building.

It was felt by council members that the firm had done an excellent job, in fact so much so that the Parks Board has approached them to build a dock at Centennial Park.

Deseronto Parks Board Meets

DESERONTO — At a recent meeting of the Deseronto Parks Board several matters in need of urgent settlement were discussed.

The building of a dock was given priority on the agenda. The firm which has been clearing the site across from the park has almost completed the work. Some of the members of the board had approached the firm with respect to building the dock, and had given a favorable answer.

Not enough funds are available to build the 60-foot dock which has been planned, but there are adequate funds to construct one of feet long.

An application has been received from a group in Picton to hold boat races weekly, using Centennial Park as headquarters.

The meeting decided that the matter should be postponed until facilities are in Picton. The park has no launching ramp and no dock, and races at this time would not be feasible.

The recreation committee has $1,000 on hand, which was earmarked for a picnic shelter at Centennial Park. The board decided, that the proposed shelter would be so small that it would be totally inadequate. Plans for the site were shelved until more funds are available.

Funds were received from the Lawn Bowling Association on the dissolution. This money was divided equally between the library and the park. The board has purchased several trees which were planted with these funds.

Fire Damages

A fire outbreak at the home of warrant officer J. M. Easton, 18 McEwen Dr., Middleton Park yesterday, brought the CFB fire department to the scene within two minutes, following a phone call from the Eastons' neighbors who first noticed the flames.

Due to extensive damage to the interior and contents of the house the Easton family is being moved to an empty house at 18 Johnson St.

There were no injuries and cause of the fire is not known. An investigation is underway.

Around the "Cat"

Ten openings remain in the maximum number of 32 players for the "singles" tournament to be staged for men members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club over the next eight weeks and those who have not entered, but want to participate are urged to give their names.

The tournament will be run along the lines as the tourney conducted by the PLBT with each entry being guaranteed at least four games before the winners and runner - up will be decided in the ... nals, secondary, consolation and back-lock events. A small prize will be awarded to each of the finalists in each event which will be financed by the entry fee of $1 for each player.

Reeve Allen Criticizes Agency

Community Spokesmen Favor Hastings Membership in LORDC

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Hastings County council may soon debate joining the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council.

But not before county community spokesmen went on record here yesterday as critics of the provincial government development agency.

The verbal whipping came at a meeting of community groups — local government, chambers of commerce, tourist associations — called by the county's new industrial and planning committee.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss new patterns geared to future Hastings development — among them possible county membership in LORDC.

The debate finally resolved the question. A majority decided in favor of county membership and the committee may pass the recommendation on to county council.

But the verbal sparks generated also illuminated a critical attitude among local communities toward the LORDC.

Among the most outspoken was Reeve Barbara Allen of Tweed—ironically the LORDC representative at the meeting. (Tweed is a member municipality in the development agency and Reeve Allen an LORDC zone director.)

The reeve said she was "bewildering to question the validity and sense" of having such an agency, receiving money from provincial and local governments in grants and membership fees.

Serviced land available in the region had been developed for industry mainly by local municipalities and not LORDC.

For instance: "The LORDC has nothing to do with the boom of new industry coming into Belleville — even though they publish a brochure every once in a while that implies they have a finger in it," claimed the reeve.

Municipalities in the region should either join the LORDC or request the provincial government to disband the organization.

"We should either get involved or tell the government to get rid of it," said Reeve Allen.

Similar thinking was voiced by Jack Wilson, Trenton Chamber of Commerce manager.

"If you're any heels let's join and get inside and do something about it — instead of sitting on the outside looking in," he said.

"I don't believe the point is to ridicule the LORDC. I think the point is to get involved."

Faraday township reeve Jack Horsepool said his municipality had never joined because the LORDC "couldn't do much for us."

Tweed councillor Mrs. Ted Counseyes said she "failed to see" what benefit Tweed had drawn from the LORDC during its membership in the agency.

County warden Don Rodgers said this was a crux of the overall issue—the reason why municipal membership had been declining in LORDC.

No matter what the criticism of LORDC it was "the voice of government" emphasized the warden.

He said he had been in contact with provincial treasurer Charles MacNaughton on the issue.

"As Mr. MacNaughton pointed out to me they (LORDC) are going to spoke policies that affect you. And he stressed to me you are going to have to join or have no voice in it whatsoever."

Bancroft deputy reeve Earl Hawley agreed the county should take out membership.

He warned that LORDC seemed directed by the provincial government toward a regional governmental environment. As such, it had "aspects" of splitting Hastings County.

"We know the government has something in mind. We don't know what it is."

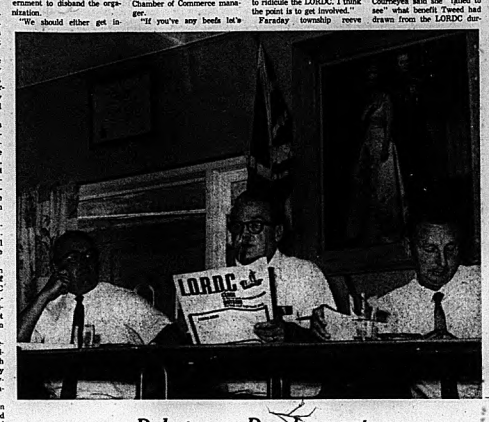
One way for local municipalities to discover senior government intent was to join LORDC, he said.

Marmora reeve William Shannon — chairman of the county industrial and planning committee — rejected warnings of small - community decay in a recent LORDC report Blueprint for Progress.

While the report's outlook was "pretty discouraging" it was the job of the county committee to fight against any such local trends, he emphasized.

Nonetheless, many small-community local councils were bogged down with traditional community problems.

Industrial promotion thus was "most difficult" without county help, he added.



"LORDC is there at our disposal. We haven't been using it," said Reeve Shannon. "They're doing what they're doing because we're not there to change it."

The development council also was "one of the main reasons behind the promotion of regional government," he warned.

"If it's the official government body in our area . . . then, I think, it behooves all of us to get on that thing . . . instead of it running us," said Reeve Shannon. "Surely we're all elected people and a bunch of civil servants shouldn't be running us. And that's what's happening — our estimation."

A show of hands revealed a majority in favor of the county joining the development council although — Reeve Shannon noted "some hesitation."

The committee now will discuss the proposal further and bring in a recommendation to county council, he indicated.

Debate on Development

Marmora Reeve William Shannon peruses information on Lake Ontario Regional Development Council during Madoc meeting of community representatives. Majority endorsed suggestion that county should join LORDC. With reeve are county clerk-treasurer Cari Bateman (left) and county warden Donald Hodgers.

Hastings Tourism Needs Help and Man-made Aids

MADOC — Tourism still is the major industry in Hastings County.

But the industry still needs encouragement from government, a meeting called by Hastings County industrial and planning committee was told yesterday.

As Dick Wigston, manager of Mackenzie Valley Tourist Association succinctly explained: "Everybody has scenery. Now we need man - made attractions . . . and development of those attractions is what is needed."

The support of local government groups like Hastings County council was needed both "morally and financially," he added.

Mr. Wigston was among spokesmen for local councils, chambers of commerce and tourist groups called together by the committee here to discuss — among other issues — possible formation of a county chamber of commerce.

The debate reached no conclusion on the proposal but did provide "some guidelines" for thought, concluded committee chairman Reeve William Shannon of Marmora.

Gordon Bennett, president Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council, indicated the economic significance of tourism was insufficiently appreciated.

Membership in tourist promotion groups hitherto has been left almost exclusively to resort operators, he noted.

"Other businessmen have not partilpated. But this is the biggest industry in the country and everyone should play a part in it," he claimed.

Robert Carlton, Trenton Chamber of Commerce president, emphasized the need for wider participation in promotion work of local chambers.

"A good many people are parasites and live off those who support the chambers of commerce," he said.

Prince Edward County Provincial Park Attendance Down

PICTON — Superintendent of the Outlet Provincial Park, Robert Davison, reports overall attendance at the park down this year.

He attributes the attendance drop to cool, wet weather that has plagued vacationers for the past two weeks.

Last year attendance at Outlet Park from June 30 to July 6 totalled 31,218. On one treat, 27,924 sun worshippers visited the park during the same time period this year.

The park superintendent said that the camping area was not as full this season as it was last year. "The camping," he commented, "gives you the biggest percentage of your crowd."

The "shad squad" at Outlet Park hasn't been as busy as usual this year. For some unknown reason there has been a decrease in the number of dead fish washing ashore.

A crew of six park workers clean up the fish daily and extra men are put at this task when the shad are at their worst.

North Park Beach is enjoying new popularity this year. Despite cool, rainy days in the first week of July, 4,512 holidayers visited there.

Last season in the same time period the park welcomed 3,144 visitors.

The Sandbanks Provincial Park attracted a large crowd on the long weekend this month. The park's camping area, used only when there is an overflow at the Outlet, was opened and 4,946 vacationers "pitched their tents," sunned and swam.

This figure represents a boost in attendance over last season's 2,383 summer folk at the Sandbanks Park in the week from June 30 to July 6.

Prince Edward County's four provincial parks employ 31 "casual workers" and four permanent staff members.

This summer 30 students are working at various jobs in the four parks.

New superintendent for The Sandbanks Park and North Beach Park is Charles Mathieson replacing Wayne Miller. Mr. Miller is now at Bon Echo Park.

On Wednesday at Campbellford a rink skipped by Mel Caverly of Madoc, which included his wife and another bowler won the mixed trebles tournament at Campbellford. Belleville had an entry of Grace Clapp, Owen Gray with "Ab" Wonnacott as skip and this rink won two games but did not figure in the prize money.

On Thursday a rink of Nora Kyle with Thelma Templeton as skip won the top score with a treble rink of Edna Ketcheson, Ina Jackson with Win Smith as skip in third place. Dorothy Price and Marg Sherman wound up in second place. The tea hostesses were Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Whalen, Mrs. Bone and Mrs. Storm.

The Belleville Club will stage a cook-out on Sunday with the first game at two o'clock. At the end of the second game it will be time to eat and a social hour will follow.

Proposal Heard

An Ontario Housing Corporation proposal for 50 new senior citizens' living units in Belleville was outlined to city builders last night.

William Knox, OHC official, said tenders on the proposed scheme would close Aug. 18.

The units, if built, would be in addition to 45 already planned to adjoin the present senior citizens housing project on Turnbull Street.

Alderman Arthur Keegan, chairman for the meeting at city hall, estimated that the new proposal, together with low - income family and senior citizen projects already approved for Belleville, would bring Ontario government accommodation spending in 1969-70 in Belleville to approximately $2,000,000.

Tender forms for the new scheme are now available to local contractors at the city clerk's office.

A Boy Drowns

Vandalism among young people is a sickness of the soul that stems from all manner of perverse behavior, everything from plain ordinary mischief-making to erratic family background that often manifests itself in this way.

There have been reports of vandalism lately from Kingston and Picton, not to mention here in our own midst. There was the damage to the flags at Zwick's Island to name just one incident. But every now and again vandalism moves beyond the realm of mere nuisance to the level of tragedy and there occurs something of the magnitude of the death of an 11-year-old boy at the Moira River's Cannifton Road dam.

It is a bitter lesson for the youngsters believed to have removed bolts holding dam stop logs. It is something they must live with, knowing their action was a contributing factor in the boy's death when he became trapped by undertow between the river bed and loosened dam logs.

Respect for other people and for private and public property are among the facets of character-building parents must instil in their offspring. Being mischievous is one thing — boys will be boys — but there is a limit beyond which even the errant youngster should know he cannot go. That some do, unfortunately, is obvious from this grave event. If there is a lesson to be learned it is that youngsters should be made aware of the possible consequences of irresponsible acts of vandalism. This way perhaps other lives may be saved in future.

Champions All

If the power of example means anything then Belleville may expect to win a few more adherents to the active sporting scene.

There is Price Morris for instance, off to Quebec City this weekend to defend his Canadian weight-lifting championship.

Archery anyone? Then Carol Armstrong, defending her Canadian title in Victoria next week is the one to watch.

And what about field hockey? Here another young Belleville woman is showing the way. Ann Thompson is a member of the Ontario women's team. She works out at home five days a week and commutes to Toronto the other two days for the team's twice-weekly practice sessions.

Miss Thompson says field hockey is one of the few team sports available to women. Indeed, it is a melancholy fact that too few of the school kids among the fair sex are afforded a chance to get out and really get going at a sport of this nature.

Field hockey is played by both men and women all over the Commonwealth, Europe and Asia. It is played in all weathers barring snow and a layer of concrete or the field spattered with mud and perhaps with a cracked shin or two. But injuries are infrequent and the game is excellent for both the sport and for promoting fitness.

Haile Selassie's Visit

Long before the turmoil Africa has seen in recent years the land that is Ethiopia was an independent nation which had known invasion, suffering and finally liberation and freedom again.

Today it is perhaps the most stable country and, historically, one of the oldest in the continent. And paying an official visit to the United States is its popular and seemingly ageless ruler, the Emperor Haile Selassie.

Now 77, with memories of the Italian invasion of 1935 and the country's liberation by British forces in 1941 behind him, Haile Selassie is a staunch friend of the West. His country's 225th consecutive Solomonic ruler, he has occupied the position since 1930. The monarchy derives from a number of earlier kingdoms, descendants of ancient Hamite and Semite tribes. Culturally, Ethiopia owes much to the early Greek and Egyptian civilizations and more recently to Italian and British influence.

Finally rid of invaders, Ethiopia today is strong and stable, a country that commands respect. On its borders are the Sudan, Kenya, the Somali Republic and it has an outlet to the Red Sea in a continent where trouble is not hard to find. It is a country which continues to play a moderating role in African politics.

Political One-Upmanship

Soviet Naval Visit to Cuba Answer to Nixon's Foray

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The absence of official United States reaction to the Soviet fleet's visit to Cuba matches exactly the dearth of Kremlin comment on President Nixon's August visit to Communist Romania.

Thus it is not surprising that most Capitol Hill pundits, operating in this unusual vacuum, should jump to the conclusion that the two events are linked.

As supportive evidence, they point to the unusual timing of the Soviet announcement—almost two weeks before the scheduled arrival of the seventh ship squadron in Havana July 20-27.

Previous such announcements of "friendly" visits to foreign ports have been made only two or three days in advance.

And so, as the ships slide down the U.S. Atlantic seaboard, the predominant reading here is that the voyage is a sort of diplomatic retaliation for the intrusion of President Nixon into Eastern Europe.

Although the Soviet Union has not commented officially on the Nixon mission, there seems little doubt the Kremlin is displeased and Soviet press criticism of Nixon in recent days seems to bear out this theory.

If so, displeased is probably a pretty accurate assessment of the degree of Kremlin ire, since news dispatches from Moscow suggest that Soviet officials have spread the word that the Bucharest trip should not, however, pose any serious obstacles to improving Soviet-U.S. relations.

In this arena, the upcoming Soviet-U.S. talks on limiting strategic arms is the most vital issue.

Aside from aspects of the Nixon visit, some diplomats suggest that a primary aim of the Cuban expedition is a continuation of the Soviet policy of showing the flag in all the world's waters.

Her recent expansive presence in the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean in addition, of course, to regular cruises in the Atlantic and Pacific, has been a source of deep concern to Western military leaders.

In the past, the Soviet Union has shipped economic and military aid to Cuba in freighters but has avoided sending warships into the Caribbean.

Of late, however, the Kremlin has expressed growing concern over the periodic visits by U.S. naval ships into the Black Sea which has long been regarded by the Soviet Union as being within its basic security area—in much the same way the U.S. considers the Caribbean area to be within its sphere.

Aside from being in Havana at the time Fidel Castro is celebrating Cuba's national day June 26, the visit also will take in the Soviet Navy Day June 27.

It thus will provide an opportunity for the Soviet Union to demonstrate its vast increase in recent years of its naval power—long the weakest of the Soviet armed forces—and its expanded world role on the high seas.

Industrial Growth Benefits Area Outside Community

Owen Sound Sun-Times

A survey completed by the Grade 13 Geography class at the West Hill Secondary School has proved that industrial growth benefits the surrounding area as well as the municipality in which that growth takes place.

The survey revealed that 3,141 persons are employed in 20 city industries, and that 1,035 of them, or one of every three, lives outside the city limits.

As one might suspect, a considerable number of them live on rural routes of Owen Sound, 357 to be exact. Another 140 live in parts of Sydenham, Derby, Holland and Keppel townships not served by the rural routes.

Perhaps most surprising is the fact that 538 people are coming to Owen Sound every day from still other communities in Grey and Bruce Counties. Some of them as far as 30 miles away. The communities in which they live benefit from their employment in Owen Sound.

Although survey results don't offer such evidence, one might draw some assumptions nonetheless. Some of these employees live on farms, and have turned to industrial work to supplement their income because a small farm doesn't provide a satisfactory income. Some of these people live outside Owen Sound to escape higher city taxes.

Still others prefer to live in a smaller centre, and they are not as much concerned with the distance they must travel as with the time required. In today's world, it doesn't take long to commute 15 or 30 or even 50 miles.

What is true of industry in Owen Sound is probably true of industry located in other Grey and Bruce centres. Not all the employees come from the municipality itself.

RCMP's Role
Canadian Security Under Review

Regina Leader-Post

Prime Minister Trudeau wisely rejected a royal commission recommendation that Canada's security matters be left to a civilian agency similar to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Besides the risk of infiltration which he cited in a civilian bureau, the U.S. experience of jurisdictional squabbles between the CIA and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and between the FBI and state police, speaks against such a proposal.

Generally, the prime minister lauded the RCMP for their record in security work, although he called, quite rightly, for increased "civilianization" of the force, making it more attractive to university graduates, and giving its security and intelligence division more independence.

Although it jettisoned the key recommendation, the government did not reject the report itself, which it has had in hand since last November, and which was prepared under tight security over a two - year period.

When an abridged version of the report was tabled in the Commons last week, the prime minister indicated that some recommendations had already been acted upon and that other would be implemented shortly.

There are some disquieting aspects of the report which have not been pointed up as much as the key recommendations of a civilian security force.

One such is the recommendation that investigators be empowered under the Official Secrets Act to intercept a suspect's mail. If this were extended to include persons undergoing routine security checks for civil service clearance, it could be a dangerous provision.

Airstrips for the North

Ontario Government

Plans for a series of airstrips in Northern Ontario for commercial and tourist use have been revealed by Ontario Transport Min ster Irwin Haskett.

Mr. Haskett said the Province will spend $842,000 this year to help build seven airstrips. The location and spacing of the airstrips will provide a pattern of air corridors covering 300,000 square miles from the Quebec border to Manitoba and northwards to Hudson Bay.

The purpose of the program is to co-operate with community groups in local municipalities with a view to making them accessible by air. On the commercial corridors, the airstrips are to be spaced at intervals of about 150 miles; on the tourist corridors, the intervals will be 50 miles.

The first runway was opened last year at Minaki, near Kenora. Work is underway or will be shortly at: Moosonee, Big Trout Lake, Sandy Lake, Cochrane, Kirkland Lake and Nestor Falls. At Graham and Pagwa former Federal airports have been bought with the aim of including them in the system. Other locations under consideration include Sioux Narrows, Nakina, Pickle Lake, Wawa, Killarney, Port Loring, Gerrish, Gogoma and Fort Frances. Also, the small airport is receiving financial assistance in its share of the cost of bringing an airstrip into operation.

Cottage Life—Maybe It Is Not What It Used to Be

Letter to Mrs. Thompson, advice columnist of the Globe and Mail

I have been coming to the same cottage for more than 40 years, and I enjoy it less all the time. I don't yearn for wood stoves, oil lamps, and outdoor plumbing, though I'm glad I was born soon enough to know what that was like; what bothers me is that there are so many more people here than there used to be, that they have so many more boats, and that some are so careless with their children.

I notice a lot of people who go to all the trouble of coming to a cottage and then turn around and send their kids to day camp. This seems odd to me. It also keeps the kids out of trouble. What really gets to me is the sight of an 11- or 12-year-old piloting a motorboat, or a 7- year-old out paddling a canoe in deep water all by herself, or a 10-year-old who can barely swim diving off a dock into deep water. I've even seen non-swimmers out on water skis.

When we were kids we were never allowed to take a canoe out until we could swim very well, and then there were strict rules about where we could go. And nobody would have dreamed of letting us run a motorboat at all. We rowed, alone by ourselves. Yet every year we have several nasty accidents on our lake that could have been prevented by common sense about safety.

Fun with Mortgages

Letter to Hamilton Spectator

The article on the front page of the Spectator of June 25 "$1,000 down for $20,000 home under new plan," leaves me slightly confused. It says that 10 per cent of the value will be provided by commercial lenders — 20 per cent will be provided by the province — leaving 5 per cent for the purchaser.

Considering a $25,000 purchase, a down payment of $1,250 would be paid. This leaves a mortgage of $23,750. The house would cost $17,000 and the land $8,000.

The first mortgage of $16,150 is taken up by commercial lender, being 95 per cent of the cost of the house, and the province would mortgage the remaining $8,000. If the total mortgage is $23,750, we have $7,600 left for the province.

As stated earlier — 5 per cent of $25,000 is $1,250 (down payment) 75 per cent of $25,000 is $18,750 (first mortgage) 20 per cent of $25,000 is $5,000 (second mortgage) for a total of $25,000.

Later on we read, "These figures would apply only if the lot was purchased outright". Surely if the lot was purchased outright there would be no need for the second mortgage.

Instead, we find "The monthly payments on the first mortgage at nine and three-quarters percent over 35 years would amount to $128.04. At the same rate and for the same length of time the payments on the second mortgage would be about $60 per month." This gives a total of about $188 per month, which in 35 years gives a total of approximately $79,200.

Forget the spot of course, is that the interest rate is subject to change every 1 / 5 years. Which way will it go? If now we add the realty taxes, utilities, maintenance, etc., for persons earning $6,000 per year (before income tax) is in for a bit of heavy stretching.

I can hardly wait to work up to the low-income bracket in order to take advantage of the beneficence of our government.

Seat Belt Can Save Your Life—But Only If You Wear It

Ontario Traffic Safety

"I'm a good driver so I Don't Need Seat Belts"

Even the best driver can make a mistake. And remember: many collisions involve two vehicles. It's human nature to think that collisions only happen to "somebody else". That's what everyone says . . .

until it happens to them.

"I've heard seat belts can break"

That's remotely possible. But it takes 5,000 pounds of force to break an approved seat belt — that's in good condition. Before it breaks, it will have saved you from smashing into the dashboard or windshield with that kind of killing force.

"What if the car catches fire or goes under water?"

Seat belts help to keep you conscious and uninjured so you can get free of the car. It takes only a split second to release the seat belt.

"We don't drive fast"

Most injuries and deaths result from collisions at 40 mph or less. A sudden stop or a collision at even twenty miles an hour can smash you and your passengers against the windshield with brutal force.

"They look uncomfortable"

They're only uncomfortable if you sit on them. They prevent slouching that adds to fatigue.

"I'd sooner be thrown clear of the car"

That's dead wrong. Research shows that you are at least five times more likely to be killed if you are thrown out of the car.

"Our youngsters are trained to stay in their seats"

But could they stay in their seats if you stop abruptly or have a collision? Almost certainly not. And the driver can't hold a youngster with one hand while driving with the other, — especially in a panic situation.

Almost One Month Long

Apollo Timetable from Blast Off to Astronauts' Release

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Highlights of the Apollo 11 mission schedule (times EDT):

Wednesday, July 16

9:32 a.m.—Saturn V rocket blasts off from Cape Kennedy to put astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins into orbit 115 miles above the earth at 17,400 miles an hour.

12:16 p.m.—Third stage of rocket fires to increase speed to 24,200 m.p.h. and Apollo 11 zips out of earth orbit toward the moon, 230,000 miles away.

1:41 p.m. — Astronauts separate command ship, pivot around and linkup nose to nose with lunar module, pulling it free of its housing atop the rocket's third stage.

Thurs., Fri. July 17-18

Apollo 11 coasts outward, making mid-course corrections as needed to zero in on moon. Two color television transmissions planned.

Saturday, July 19

1:26 p.m.—Apollo slips behind the moon and astronauts fire main engine to put the ship into a lunar orbit ranging from 69 to 196 miles high. After two orbits, lasting four hours, they again fire the engine to adjust the orbital path to 62 by 76 miles. For more than a day the astronauts will orbit, checking their navigation and mapping the landing site.

7:22 p.m.—Aldrin crawls through tunnel into LM to check systems for two hours.

Sunday, July 20

9:32 a.m.—Armstrong and Aldrin enter LM.

1:47 p.m.—Armstrong and Aldrin separate LM and begin descent to lunar surface. Collins remains in lunar orbit in command ship and will show television views of separate, and the lunar surface.

4:19 p.m.—LM lands in the moon's Sea of Tranquility near a crater named Moltke. For 10 hours, Armstrong and Aldrin check systems, rest, don back packs and make other preparations for walking on moon.

Monday, July 21

2:12 a.m.—Armstrong opens hatch and starts five-minute descent on ladder attached to one of the landing legs. He pauses on second rung to open a compartment containing a black-and-white television camera which will relay live to earth his first steps on the surface.

2:21 a.m.—Armstrong steps on the moon.

2:41 a.m.—Aldrin joins Armstrong on the surface, and during stay of about two hours they plant the American flag, gather soil and rock samples take photographs, deploy scientific instruments and evaluate their ability to work in the moon's one-sixth gravity. All this is relayed to earth by the television camera mounted 30 feet from the LM.

4:42 a.m.—Astronauts return to LM and for nine hours they rest, eat and prepare for liftoff.

1:55 p.m.—LM ascent engine fired to lift the cabin section off the moon, leaving the descent stage with its landing legs on the moon. The take-off ends lunar surface stay of nearly 22 hours. For 3¼ hours, Armstrong and Aldrin fly rendezvous mission to catch up with Collins in the command ship.

5:35 p.m.—Command ship and LM dock. Armstrong and Aldrin return through tunnel to rejoin Collins in the command cabin.

9:35 p.m.—LM is jettisoned in lunar orbit.

Tuesday, July 22

12:57 a.m.—Behind the moon, astronauts fire engine to blast out of lunar orbit and start the return trip to earth.

Wednesday, July 23

Apollo 11 continues the 3½-day coast toward earth begun Tuesday; astronauts make any necessary course corrections and vacuum cabin to capture possible lunar germs. Two television programs are scheduled during the journey.

Thursday, July 24

12:51 p.m.—Splashdown in the Pacific Ocean about 1,200 miles southwest of Hawaii. Frogman drops from helicopter into raft, opens Apollo hatch and tosses in biological garments which the astronauts put on. Spacemen step into the raft and spray themselves with a disinfectant before being lifted by helicopter to the deck of the carrier Hornet.

On carrier they transfer into an airtight trailer to start quarantine. In the trailer are a doctor and a technician who will stay with them. President Nixon is on the carrier, but because of the quarantine he does not greet the astronauts. He talks with them through a phone plugged into the side of the trailer.

Fri., Sat. July 25,26

Carrier and escorting ships steam toward Hawaii with astronauts remaining in quarantine.

Sunday, July 27

Hornet arrives at Ford Island in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. trailer, with astronauts inside, is transferred to a C-141 aircraft for flight to Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston.

Astronauts move through a plastic tunnel into airtight Lunar Receiving Laboratory. Spacecraft and rock samples, in sealed boxes, also are brought to the lab for study.

Tuesday, Aug. 12

If the astronauts have developed no illnesses and the rocks show no signs of lunar bacteria, Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins are released from quarantine.

Getting to the Airport

Getting to the airport is sometimes the most time-consuming part of the trip, as anybody in the jet set can tell you. It may well remain true in the rocket age. Here the Apollo 11, now in the countdown stage of its moon trip, is shown some time ago inching toward the launching pad, from the vehicle assembly building at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Disappearance Causes Search

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force has launched a full-scale search of Atlantic waters for a round-the-world British yachtsman.

Donald Crowhurst, aboard his 41-foot trimaran Teignmouth Electron, was nearing the end of a voyage which began in England 302 days before when he vanished 700 miles west of the Azores in mid-ocean.

He was within sight of winning the world race "organized by a British newspaper and taking the £5,000 ($12,000) prize back to his wife and four children.

His hometown has prepared a hero's welcome.

But Thursday, the 7,500-ton British cargo ship Picardy, steaming to the West Indies, met the trimaran and flashed the word back to London: "Regret abandoned."

There was no apparent explanation.

The trimaran's sails were set and the boat seemed ideal for travel. The liferaft and rubber dinghy were lashed to the deck. The log, a camera, film and recording tape and 36-year-old Crowhurst's personal belongings were intact.

"The fact that the sails were set indicated Teignmouth Electron was travelling when abandoned," said a race organizer.

The unmarked condition of the boat indicated he was not overtaken by a storm.

He may have tripped and fallen. The two forestalls were apparently ready to be hoisted and Crowhurst could have been working in the bows.

The Royal Navy asked the U.S. Air Force base at Lajes in the Azores to mount an all-out search.

Striking Workers Expected at Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking construction workers are expected back on their jobs Monday if the terms of a three-way agreement signed Thursday is ratified by union members within the next few days.

Ronald Carey, president of the Building Federation of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said CNTU leaders are pleased with the agreement reached after all-night bargaining sessions.

The agreement, signed by representatives of the CNTU, the Quebec Federation of Labor and five employer associations representing construction companies, was announced by Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare.

Details of the agreement were to be announced today.

Some 6,000 construction workers affiliated with the CNTU in the Quebec city area walked off their jobs May 12 to back union demands for higher wages and greater job security. They were joined June 11 by 5,000 workers in the Rimouski, Hull and Eastern Townships area.

There was no strike in Montreal where the QFL, which represents workers in the metropolitan area, had reached an agreement with contractors early in the spring.

Your First Class Dilemma.

Frankly, the menus on all our new DC-8 jet First Class Connoisseur Service flights of over two hours make it very difficult for you to make up your mind. But the dilemmas are delicious. Especially if your flight takes more than four hours. Having to choose between Canard à l'orange or Aloyau rôti — and six desserts that include Soufflé à la Royale, Parfait à la menthe and Pêche au Brandy—can be excruciating.

However, we make things as easy as possible. By giving you complimentary refreshments in our comfortable lounge and with your meal. By offering you tantalizing canapés. And by pampering you with luxuries like scented hot towels and rose petals in your finger bowl.

On Economy flights, too, Connoisseur Service is great. With Filet Mignon and Rock Cornish Hen competing for your attention. We've even added another stewardess to look after you.

Connoisseur Service is yours to enjoy. And it's yours on Air Canada only. Ask your travel agent to arrange your reservations. Solving dilemmas was never like this. Delicious.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Morley R. Davidson, Massassaga Rd., announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Anne, to Mr. Richard Lawrie Woolley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Woolley, RR 1, Belleville. The wedding will take place August 9, 1969 at 7 p.m. in Bridge St. United Church.

* * *

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Edwin Wellstood (nee Rosemary Ross) was entertained at a crystal shower at the home of Mrs. P. Smale, with Shirley Smale as co-hostess; a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. E. McGrath, with Mrs. F. Clapp as co-hostess for the staff of Trenton High School. A linen shower was held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Ross with Mrs. J. R. Cox assisting as co-hostess. A towel shower was held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Cox, with Mrs. E. Edwards as co-hostess. The mother of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal party at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, Belleville.

MAJOR E. WELLSTOOD AND MRS. WELLSTOOD

Community Gathers To Honor Couple

Salem Community hall was filled to capacity recently, when friends and neighbors gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sine before their moving to Stirling.

Ed Colcon, acting as chairman expressed regret in losing the Sines from the community and wished them every happiness in their new home.

Mrs. Frank McGee led in community singing accompanied by Mrs. Doug Faires. Readings were given by Miss Edna Tanner and Mrs. Harold Holden. Piano solos by Tommy Faires and Kathy Ketchan were enjoyed.

Mrs. Tom Clements read the address and Everett and Erma were presented with a gift for which they very suitably expressed thanks and appreciation to all for the gifts and all who helped with the party.

They extended an invitation to all to visit them in their new home in Stirling. Several neighbors spoke briefly, lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Friends Bid Church Family Farewell

A happy yet sad event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Trupp of Foxboro when a large number of the members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church gathered to honor them with a surprise farewell supper prior to their departure for England.

The Trupp family has been active in the Adventist Church of Belleville for the past 12 years and much of their time and money has gone towards building a new church located on Dundas Street West.

Along with his activity in church work Mr. Trupp is a science teacher at Quinte Secondary School and in this respect has accepted an exchange visit to England.

Following the bountiful repast, the honored guests were presented with a gift, and an appropriate hymn was sung.

Wellstood – Ross

St. Michael's Church, Belleville, was the scene of the July 5 wedding when Rosemary Adelle Ross, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Kinnear Broadworth of Belleville, became the bride of Major Edwin William Wellstood, son of Mrs. E. H. Wellstood, of Toronto, and the late Mr. E. H. Wellstood. Officiating at the ceremony was Monsignor J. P. Sullivan. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was Sister Avila, and the soloist was Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, W. K. Broadworth, wore a traditional length gown, delicately styled in white organza. The gown featured long sheer sleeves and an angel collar fashioned in layers. An overlay of organza formed a scalloped coat effect down the front of the gown, and swept into a graceful chapel length train, falling from an organza bow at mid-back. Her long flowing veil of silk illusion was caught at the crown by small appliques of guipure lace. She carried a bouquet of white and blue carnations and stephanotis.

The couple were piped out of the church by Sgt. J. M. Huggan, of the Pipe and Drum Corps, Second Battalion, Canadian Guard, Ottawa.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Sharon Heffernan, sister of the bride, wore a white cotton lace over pale blue silk, featuring short sleeves falling in soft folds from the shoulders.

Bridesmaids the Misses Shirley Smale, Elizabeth Ross, cousin of the bride, Susan Ross, and Lisa Ross, both nieces of the bride, were gowned the same as the matron of honor, their attire was completed by white lace picture hats with a trim of blue daisies at the crown. All carried bouquets of white and blue 'mums.

Flower girl was Miss Jennifer Cox, cousin of the bride. She wore a dress similar to the other attendants, except in white lace with a white underlay. She carried a basket of white and blue carnations and stephanotis. The ring-bearer was Master Jimmie Ross, a nephew of the bride.

Best man for the ceremony was Allan Wellstood, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Capt. R. E. Marenetta, Capt. V. B. Martin, Capt. W. A. Brocklehurst, Capt. Declert, Capt. M. G. McKewon, Lieut. E. H. T. Gaden.

For the wedding reception, held at Club Canara the aunt of the bride received the guests wearing a turquoise French chiffon dress and coat. The dress featured chiffon ribbing in the front and back. Matching accessories and a corsage of a white orchid completed her outfit.

Assisting the aunt of the bride, the mother of the bridegroom chose a pink and white linen ensemble. The straight lined dress was sleeveless with appliques of white lace around the collar. The coat was a pink and white summer lace, which she wore with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride chose a pink and white checked silk coat and A-line dress, completed by a white orchid corsage. Upon their return the couple will reside in Alliston, Ont.

WEDDING

REID — COLDWELL

St. George's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church, Etobicoke was the setting on Saturday, June 21, 1969 at 3.30 p.m., when Dianne Marilynne Coldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coldwell, 54 Sixth Street, Etobicoke was united in marriage to Grant Raymond Reid, of Etobicoke, formerly of Stirling RR 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sarles of Stirling RR 2. Rev James Small officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Tom Mitchell who also accompanied the soloist Donald Barth.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length empire styled gown of Italian cotton crepe highlighted with appliques of daisies on the chapel sleeves and down the front of the dress. A tiny headdress of matching material was caught in a full length Italian silk veil with scalloped edges. She carried a white prayer book crested with yellow roses and white shasta daisies.

Mrs. Lynne Robinson of Toronto as matron of honor wore a full-length gown in the same styling as the bride's in muted printed silk in yellow, pink and white on sand background with print silk roundels of matching material in her hair. The bridesmaids, Miss Wanda Lezdok of Toronto and Miss Linda Haggerty of Stirling were dressed identically to the matron of honor and all carried wicker baskets of yellow and white shasta daisies with greenery. The flower girls, Miss Diane Bickford and Miss Donna Bickford were dresses styled identically to the bride's but in solid yellow with print silk waistband and matching silk flowers in their hair. Each carried a tiny wicker basket of white shasta daisies and greenery.

Garnet Reid attended his brother, while ushers were Barry McDowell and Ellison Boyce.

At the reception held in Acot Inn at Rexdale the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pale turquoise crimpolene ensemble of A-line dress and coat to match. white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Assisting, the mother of the bridegroom wore a shantung coat and dress ensemble with deeper green accessories and a yellow carnation corsage.

For the honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and New York State, the bride chose a pale green silk linen dress and coat set with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The couple will reside at 2596 Lakeshore Blvd. W., Apt. 401, Toronto 500, Ontario.

Family Reunions

DONALD CLAN

The Donald family picnic and reunion was held recently in Beavermead Park, near Peterborough with 61 family members in attendance.

The program directors were Mrs. Jean McAdams, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Derry and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dawson, all of Oshawa.

The children's races were won by the following: under four years: Donna Mae Dumbrusky; four to six years: Bonnie Hiltz, Tenna Dawson; seven to nine years: wheelbarrow race, Michael and Douglas Derry; ten to twelve years: Juanita and Joe Derry.

The adults' race and contest were won by the following: women's shoe kick, Betty Ann Ash; men's hat calling, Andrew Donald; teenagers' races: boys, Kenneth Nixon; girls, Cathy Derry. The game of guess the number of beans in the jar was won by Edna Dumbrusky.

Other prizes went to Jackie Dawson, the youngest baby present; Lena Dawson, youngest grandmother present with her grandchildren; Roy Dawson, youngest father present; Gerald Dawson, owner of oldest car.

The picnic was brought to a close about 4 p.m. with everyone having enjoyed a good time.

Next year's program heads are: president, Wilbert Green; secretary, Mrs. Marian Green; helpers, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stickle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Derry.

W.I. Members Enjoy Garden Party

The Lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harrison of Latta was decorated with colored lights and streamers for a garden party and strawberry social attended by 40 W. I. members and their families.

The business part of the meeting was in charge of the president Mrs. Arthur Legge and the secretary Mrs. Garfield Hall reported that $200 was cleared from the strawberry social. Plans were completed for sending the children of the community to swimming lessons at the Kinsmen's Pool, Belleville.

Mrs. Harry Harrison curator for the Tweedsmuir History was in charge of the remainder of the program.

Music was provided during the evening by Mr. Ernie Becker, Laverne Hicks and Mrs. Arthur Marshall. All enjoyed community singing.

Mrs. Harrison introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, curator of the County Museum, who showed some slides of historical importance with an interesting commentary. Appreciation to all was expressed by Mrs. Legge.

The children enjoyed a fish pond.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "It certainly isn't any fun to take Jenny visiting. She behaves at home, but she is naughty when we're out. I can't seem to teach her to keep her hands off other people's things. I had to spank her at the Taylor's today."

Mother: "Jenny, this little suitcase has a new doll and doll clothes, a coloring book and a puzzle in it. You must sit down and play with these while I visit with Mrs. Taylor, or we will come right home and I won't take you with me the next time."

A special set of toys and entertainment material and some definite instructions beforehand may help keep a 4-year-old interested enough to control her natural curiosity about another person's possessions when she is away from home.

Lemon Pie with Easy Meringue

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I would welcome a recipe for lemon meringue pie — one in which the meringue does not weep. It is the meringue which gives me the trouble. I have tried many different ways: make sure meringue is sealed to edges put meringue on cooled filling, hot filling, warm filling; leaving in warm place when meringue is browned or in a cool place — with the same result — weeping . . . any suggestions would be welcome. — Mrs. B. D.

ANSWER: You did not enclose your recipe but I suspect you are using too much sugar in the meringue. What follows is my best thoroughly tested

LEMON MERINGUE PIE
(4 eggs)

1 cup sugar
5½ tbsps. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups boiling water
4 large eggs — yolks and whites separated
¼ cup butter
1-3 cup lemon juice
Grated rind 1½ lemons
½ cup sugar (second amount)
½ tsp. vanilla
One deep 9" baked pie shell

In a heavy saucepan, stir together thoroughly the sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Stir in boiling water and cook, stirring, until thick. Pour some over the 4 beaten egg yolks, stirring, then return this egg mixture to saucepan and stir over heat 1 min. Remove from heat and add butter and rind and let cool until you can hold your hand comfortably on outside. Then stir in lemon juice and pour into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue made of leftover 4 egg whites, beaten until stiff, adding ½ cup sugar slowly and beating until very stiff. Stir in vanilla and completely cover lemon filling right to edge, peaking up meringue attractively. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until tinged with gold — about 10 to 15 min.

'Almost' Suicide Case; Urges Need for Love

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with special interest your column on suicide. You said individuals who have suicidal patterns develop them early in life and if a person is bent on destroying himself, he will do so and nobody can stop him.

I wish I could say you are wrong, but I can't. I do believe, however, that you could have added something to your answer. Please tell your readers that an alert and perceptive friend, relative or doctor might be able to help a self-destructive individual decide that he wants to live.

I speak from experience, as one who attempted suicide twice. After the first attempt, a nurse (who should have been doing something else for a living) told me she was merely trying to get attention. This so infuriated me that I was determined to kill myself and prove her wrong. I realize now how sick I was and how twisted was my reasoning.

No person will take his life if he feels he is really needed. This was my problem and it still is, to a large extent.

There are times when I feel hopelessly inadequate and I scream at my husband that I am a burden, that I'm not fit to live. He screams back, "I love you! I need you!" until I am quiet. Then he holds me in his arms and gives me the reassurance I need. If someone I love said he wanted to kill himself I would take him in my arms (oh, the miraculous healing qualities of a tender touch) and tell him I love and that I need him. Then I would go to the phone and call the best physicialtrist in town. — STILL FIGHTING.

DEAR STILL: You are half way home. You'll make it, I am certain. Please write again six months from today. I'd like a progress report.

* * *

DEAR ANN: Stop telling parents they should make their kids take music lessons no matter how much they hate to practice. My mother made me despise the piano because of her nagging. Now I wouldn't go across the street to hear Horowitz.

They called me the "Little Leadcbreaker." Two sets of neighbors moved out of the building on account of me. One neighbor told me she had a headache for six months straight. I said I was sorry but my mother paid me ten cents an hour to practice and it was my only source of income. She said, "I'll give you fifteen cents an hour if you don't."

I'm a father now with three kids of my own. None of them is musically inclined and I don't push it. If we want music we turn on the hi-fi. — PEACE.

DEAR PEACE: And who do you think plays the music you hear on the hi-fi? Musicians who practiced, that's who!

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm getting married soon and my mother and I are having a fuss over the invitations. Mom plans to have engraved on the bottom, "Please omit gift. We want their presence, not your presents."

I say it would be in poor taste. No etiquette book mentions this. Can you advise us? — WRECKSVILLE.

DEAR W.: I hope your mother will see it your way. No reference to gifts should appear on an invitation.

'Catch A Falling Star and Put It in Your Pocket,' Theme of Humorous Speaker

By DORIS CLARK

"Catch a falling star, put it in your pocket, keep it for a rainy day." This was the theme of Angela Armiit, vibrant personality and journalist, talking to an audience of writers.

She was telling us to register the everyday, unexpected things. To jot them down, ready to pull out of a hat when we need them. And that's what I did with Angela's ideas.

We can all do this if we keep a pocket-size notebook and pencil handy. She told us to watch for unusual and amusing signs. Here are a few she had collected:

On outside church announcement board: Sermon title: "What is Hell Like?" On panel below: "Come out and hear our choir."

In tailor's window: "Don't stand outside and fairx at our prices; come inside and have a good fit."

Sign over door of dance hall: "The management reserves the right to exclude any lady they think proper."

Comment about passport pictures: "If you really look like your passport picture, chances are you shouldn't be travelling anyway."

Who'll be first to write in and share a favorite Rainy Day Star?

Dear Doris: After 10 years of marriage, I was shocked to discover my husband's interest in a younger woman, a customer of his. When it all came out, he decided not to break up the home, on account of our little girl.

Apparently, his only dissatisfaction with me is a lack of sexual aggressiveness, which I feel is natural to a person with my characteristics — introvert, conservative, sensitive, with traditional ethics and morals.

I still love him but am not sure I can continue living in a situation which contravenes all my principles. — Deep Dilemma

Dear Dilemma: Let's get this straight: It is quite possible to be a moral and sensitive person and still enjoy sex. Without this expression you miss something very precious in marriage.

God made humans, with human impulses, and because man is the pursuer his sex reactions are more urgent than a woman's. It is up to any wife who truly loves, to use her sensitivity to be aware of this and what it means.

I don't condone his infidelity. I'd suggest you have a try at improving this aspect of your marriage. A professional counsellor can help you.

Dear Doris: All these ads for rummage sales nearly drive me wacky because I used to find them such fun and now I can't get out to go to them. So — I decided to have one of my own!

I called five friends, told each of them to bring four articles they didn't want. Nothing to be priced over 25 cents. And to come for sandwiches and tea and we'd have our sale.

Of course they didn't bring "garbage things" and we took turns choosing. I nearly went out of my mind when I saw (and got without losing my reputation as a hostess) an old amber glass slipper, and a pair of wooden curtain tiebacks and an Elsie Book. We really did have fun. They want to do it again after housecleaning time. — M. T.EA

Dear M. Tea: You mean you were all both sellers and buyers? What did you do with what was left over?

TREND IS TO VOCATIONAL TRAINING — Mrs. Athena Athanassiou of Greece, president of the World YWCA, says the trend of the international body is back to an intensive vocational training program. Mrs. Athanassiou, shown during a recent visit to the Y in Ottawa, says governments are helping the Y in its betterment program. (CP Photo)

YWCA Active in 76 Countries

OTTAWA (CP) — To most women in North America, membership in the YWCA is social and recreational: the Y is a place to meet new people and enjoy an occasional swim. But for thousands of women in other countries, belonging to the Y is changing their whole way of life.

Mrs. Athena Athanassiou of Greece, president of the World YWCA, described the expanding role of the youth association during a visit to Ottawa.

A slim, attractive woman who speaks English and French fluently, she called the World Y a body whose limbs are in 76 different countries," ranging from Iceland to Argentina, England to Fiji.

The Y organization has an executive committee of 20 women from 18 countries who carry out the policies set by members. Mrs. Athanassiou was elected president at a World Council meeting held in Melbourne, Australia, in 1967.

On the international level, the trend is back to an intensive vocational training program, Mrs. Athanassiou said. Y work is conditioned by the needs of the community in the Caribbean, South America and Africa the need is for education and social development.

In Sierra Leone, the Y started with a small group of 30 dropouts from primary education. Now there are 400 involved at primary and pre-vocational levels.

In Fiji, a public affairs program started for women has developed into a series that attracts the interest of the whole community.

Mrs. Athanassiou said Africa is the area most aware of the need for leadership to help women accept their responsibilities as wives, mothers and citizens.

"Men and women both are aware that opportunities for women are scant. In Africa, one girl for every nine boys can plan to go to high school. It's not that the people aren't aware of the situation. it's just that facilities don't exist."

The Y is helped in its betterment program by governments, who are becoming increasingly interested in using non-governmental agencies to facilitate their aid to developing countries.

In Freetown, Sierra Leone, the Swedish government's external aid department provided new buildings for Y classes. The German government. Interested in assisting women in Tantania, chose the World Y to channel aid to a building project in Dar es Salaam.

Recently, the Canadian government, operating through the world organization, made it possible for the Y in Amman, Jordan, to acquire new facilities for vocational and recreational programs.

"Such long - term projects give hope to the whole area," Mrs. Athanassiou said. "It means so much to these people to be able to look farther ahead than next week.

One of the most important aspects of building a world is to make contact between those who need help and those who can provide it. We hope to extend leadership in this field."

Bright Summer for Student Workers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Summertime — and the living is easy.

And — as in any season — it's even easier if you've got a job.

This includes the student work force — the group which once a year floods the employment scene with the suddenness of a summer shower.

In recent years, their growing number has complicated the situation.

But there are bright spots. Right now, for instance, the people down at Canada Manpower's Belleville offices are basking in the glow of what seems a job well done for youthful work-hunters.

It's the first summer the Manpower people have set up a special department to handle the student worker load.

Since it's a new venture, there are no local statistical precedents for comparison.

But Manpower spokesman are describing its results as "an unqualified success."

One reason, they are quick to conclude, is the current economic burgeoning across Canada.

Still, the project has paid dividends they believe.

The office not only was opened specifically for students, it is run by students.

Opened May 1, it is housed in quarters provided by the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization on East Dundas Street.

In charge as placement officer is Eric Ferguson, an honors history student at York University. Assisting him is Ann McCorquindale, who will study journalism this year at Carleton.

Since the doors opened more than 800 students registered for employment. Hundreds more turned up to make job inquiries.

They're still showing interest.

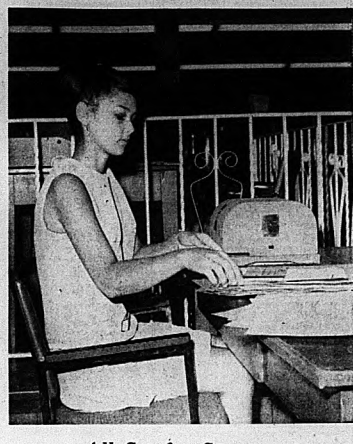
Eric Ferguson says job inquiries still number around 40 daily, while employers still are actively hiring applicants.

To date, about 200 of the applicants have been placed by the Manpower project in various jobs around the Belleville area.

The placement officer estimates another 400 found employment in various ways.

The placements he describes as a "significant increase" over other years when applications were processed through usual Manpower methods.

Jobs range over a wide variety of local industrial and commercial units.



The students are now at work in construction, and packaging industries, serving in secretarial and personnel capacities, in tourism and government agencies.

The activity at the job centre also has stimulated interest from other sources.

"We don't know whether this is the first project of its type in Canada or not," says Eric. "But other cities are looking at our project here and they're thinking of setting up the same type of thing."

Wide Range of Jobs

Students have been placed in wide range of summer jobs by Canada Manpower youth project. Marilyn Sparling, 19, for instance, found employment with Belleville General's physiotherapy unit.

All Set for Summer

Despite big demand, many students are economically set for the summer — settled in paying jobs. Aiding in work-hunt is student centre organized by Canada Manpower in Belleville, which found employment for young people like Bonny Brannigan, here at Unemployment Insurance Commission offices.

Commons to Discuss Indian Affairs

Hees Motion Rejected by Speaker

OTTAWA — Speaker Lucien Lamoureux today rejected an adjournment from George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings to have the Commons debate the cost-of-living.

Mr. Hees made his motion in a bid to launch debate on what he called "a critical situation."

The Hees' - motion sought discussion of "the serious increase in the consumer price index by one full point during the past month . . ."

The increase amounts to an annual 10-per-cent boost in the cost of living. Mr. Hees said.

The motion criticized the government for failure "to take steps" to deal with the problem.

In a telephone interview with the Intelligencer Mr. Hees said the increase of a full point made known this morning warranted the "setting aside of the rest of the business."

"It's one hell of a serious situation," said Mr. Hees.

Mr. Hees said that the cost of living has been continually rising over the past three years and that four governments budgets brought in to correct the situation have been impotent.

"The first three budgets contained tax increases and didn't do the trick and of the two measures in the last budget neither will do anything."

Mr. Hees was referring to the capital cost allowance to slow down building and expenditures as well as the Kennedy tariff reductions brought in in the last budget.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux in overruling Mr. Hees, ruled today in favor of an NDP request for an emergency Commons debate on Indian affairs.

The special debate was to start at 3 p.m. EDT today.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) sought the debate on Indian affairs by saying that the current talks by Jean Chretien, Indian affairs minister, with provincial authorities and Indian bands is leading to Indian "turbulence and fury."

The government recently announced a proposed new Indian policy under which responsibility for Indian affairs would be transferred to the provinces and Indians be given full citizenship like all other Canadians.

The Speaker pleaded for a short debate. He said the Commons staff is already overworked and should be permitted to leave at a reasonable hour Friday evening.

The Speaker disallowed three other motions for emergency debates.

Ambrose H. Peddle (PC—Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador) sought a debate on the food and fuel shortages at mining towns on the Quebec-Labrador border.

He said Transport Minister Don Jamieson should take urgent action to end the embargo by the Quebec, North Shore and Labrador Railway on shipments of food and other supplies. The embargo was causing severe hardships in the area.

Richard R. Southam (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) sought a debate on the shortage of boxcars for Prairie grain shipments.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) sought a special debate on the one-point increase in the cost-of-living index.

Gorilla Scares Crowd

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

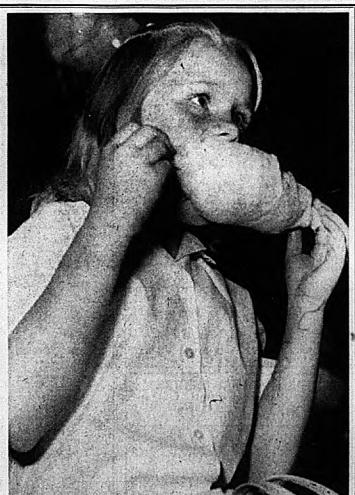
A harmless part of a circus routine took an unfortunate turn last night as Beatty Brothers Circus performed in the Picton Community Centre.

A huge "gorilla" was wheeled into the arena and put through his paces but after performing a number of stunts the gorilla "escaped" and ran among the crowds of children.

A number of children, unaware that the gorilla was really quite human, ran home crying.

Several parents, angered by the near panic of their children, made complaints to officials protesting the act.

Aside from the incident, an estimated 1,000 people packed the arena to see the show.



Phil Dodds, a member of the Prince Edward County Community Centre Commission, which sponsored the show, remarked that people leaving the show could be over heard saying, "It was a great show."

However Mr. Dodds added, "The circus did not live up to its advanced billing as far as animals were concerned."

Recreation director, Wayne Ring, said despite the unfortunate incident the circus was a bigger success than last year.

Last year the commission made approximately $600 but this year the figure is expected to reach $900.

The Beatty Brothers Circus left last night for Marmora as they continue their tour of the county.

Happiness Is . . .

Happiness is a ring side seat at the circus and a huge cloud of candy floss. Seven-year-old Jane Lewis of Picton was one of the 1,000 people who packed the Picton Community Centre to see the Beatty Brothers Circus perform their routines.

Plastic Cornea Enables Father To See Children for First Time

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A father blind for 31 years spent a joyous day with his four children Thursday after seeing them for the first time.

"I felt so happy, all I could do was cry," said Ralph Voelker.

Voelker, 48, returned home Wednesday from New York after an experimental eye operation, the sight in one eye restored.

Waiting for him were his four children, Paul, 8, John, 6, Alan, 3 months, and Jeanne, 15 months. A week ago in a New York hospital he had seen his wife, Dolores, for the first time. They have been married 18 years.

"It took a lot of courage to marry me," he said of his wife. "I wouldn't trade places with anyone. I'm a pretty lucky guy."

Voelker went through a series of operations that were unsuccessful. But on June 29 he left for Columbia Presbyterian Hospital where eye specialists attempted the experimental operation. A plastic cornea was sewn onto his right eye. He still can't see out of his left eye.

Not ones to stand idly by while females invade everything from our mikies to our tackle boxes, the Intelligencer sports department today begins to fight back on behalf of the us-fairer sex.

Today sees the first in an irregular series of contributions by Wendell Divot, champion of the bespectacled golfer, friend to all anglers with wives too squeamish to gut perch, A sort of Ann Landers of the tube-and-lee cube sporting set, as it were.

* * *

DEAR WENDELL: I am at a loss what to do.

It all started on the first hole at the Bay of Quinte Country Club — you know, the one that runs along Highway 2, the Robarts-Nixon Champs Elysees, or whatever they call it.

Anyways, Wendell, I had just hit my drive into beautiful position (o the right side of the first fairway when calamity struck.

My nine-iron approach to the green took this grumpy rotten slice towards the highway, going through the windshield of a passing truck. The haul — a Titlist, I might add, which cost me $1.40 — made the driver, the truck veered across the centre line and smashed up a Citroen, a school bus, two passing heifers, and a Department of Highways canteen wagon, in that order.

I am being sued by the Ontario Departments of Highways, Education, Agriculture, and Tourism (the Citroen was being driven by the mayor of Canvasback, South Dakota), although not necessarily in that order.

What can I do?

Judicially yours, Lucky Patterson.

DEAR LUCKY: Things are never as bad as they might seem. I suggest closing your stance a bit, and moving your top hand over your grip. That nasty ole slice will be gone in no time.

P.S. Advise you stop using Titlists — the money you save might come in handy in the near future.

sinseerlie, Burt Inestine.

DERE . . . Uh . . . DEAR BURT: Your persistence and conviction — not to mention your bravery — are to be admired. Don't take this personally, but I find you averely verbose. You will find making friends at university much easier if you are more down to earth.

I have sent copies of your resume to several institutions — of higher learning — that I thought might be interested.

Northwest Territories School of the Midnight Sun and Applied Arts and Sciences say they need a fullback.

* * *

MR. (AND I USE THE TERM LOOSELY) DIVOT: You make me sick.

What kinda crum are you anyway. I've never read anything so revolting in my life, and if I ever see anything like that again, I intend to have you arrested, impeached and excommunicated, whichever applies in your miserable case.

Furthermore, why don't you check your facts before writing any drivel like that? Any dummy could have told you you were wrong. Or don't you care?

It's just this kind of irresponsible journalism that makes my blood crawl and my flesh boil.

And did you ever stop to think that children have access to that kind of rot? Well it's hightime you thought about mending your ways.

Let's hope it never happens again, for your sake.

Yours Truly, Anonymous.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: You have a point there.

McCovey Tops Polls for NL Dream Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey, San Francisco Giants' home-run slugger, topped the National League all-star poll released today while Felix Millan of Atlanta Braves and Clean Jones of New York Mets made the starting lineup for the first time.

McCovey, the Giants' first baseman, edged Hank Aaron, Atlanta's right fielder, 296 to 295 for the most votes cast in the annual balloting of players, coaches and managers.

The vote, announced by commissioner Bowie Kuhn, determined the eight starters—pitchers excluded—who will face the American League July 22 at Washington. The Nationals have won six in a row and hold a 21-17 edge in the series.

Managers Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals and Mayo Smith of Detroit Tigers, the 1968 World Series rivals, will select the pitchers and other members of the 38-man squads to be announced in the next 10 days. Starters, except pitchers, must play at least the first three innings.

Millan's selection over Glenn Beckert, the highly-regarded second baseman of Chicago Cubs, was one of the most interesting developments. It was the closest contest on the ticket with Millan beating Beckert 137 to 110.

In the only other close competition, the Cubs were the winners when Ron Santo took third base over Tony Perez of Cincinnati Reds, 196 to 151.

Don Kessinger, the Cubs' shortstop, joined McCovey, Aaron and Santo as repeaters from 1968 by outdistancing Denis Menke of Houston Astros 228 to 102.

Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's catcher, won over Randy Hundley of the Cubs, 261 to 76.

Matty Alou, Pittsburgh Pirates' centre fielder who leads the majors in hits, was voted into the starting outfield with Aaron, named for the 15th time and fifth straight as a starter, and the Mets' Jones, who is the league's leading hitter.

McCovey was a big winner at first base with 296 votes to 33 for runner-up Lee May of Cincinnati.

The top three outfielders were Aaron 295, Alou 232, and Jones 12.

The starters were evenly divided between divisions with four from the East and four from the West.

Tennis Opens Doors

PRAGUE (AP) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) Thursday opened the way for top professional tennis stars to compete in its international tournaments and perhaps eventually in the Davis Cup.

The ILTF, ruling body of tennis, redefined player categories to allow a "touring professional" classification for pro willing to submit themselves to its jurisdiction during the time they play in ILTF-sponsored tournaments.

"A touring professional may compete in all tournaments and events which are declared by the ILTF to be open to all categories of players," a statement issued at the end of the federation's ninth annual meeting declared.

Wants Mandate

Bunny Boo-hoos to Delegates

CRANS-SUR-SIERRE, Switzerland (CP) — Barry Albasiny of London, the aging czar of European ice hockey, broke down and cried Thursday after telling delegates the walls of the International Ice Hockey Federation "are crumbling around me."

The outburst occurred during the 69-year-old chairman's closing remarks at the IIHF's annual meeting after he mentioned "noticeable cracks in our armor."

"The first crack was when I was unable to solve a problem between Sweden and Canada and the second was the severe criticism of my actions by a delegate today," he said.

"In the case of Canada and Sweden, it is the first time in my experience with this federation that I have been unable to effect a solution. . . .

"Up until now I've tried to help world hockey. Now we are split. We are no longer paddling one canoe but at least four. And this gives people who wish to use it against us the opportunity to break up my family.

"Please give me the power at your newly-elected international president for the next three years to reunite the congress."

It was at this point that Albasiny began sounded sentiment, halted, began again and suddenly gripped the table before him as tears ran down his cheeks.

Earlier in the closed meeting, Lady Eldoew of Sweden had asked Earl Dawson of Canada the reasons for cancelling tours of Sweden by Canadian club teams during the coming winter.

Dawson said that poor press about the action of Canadian players in Sweden in the past "prompted us to reach this decision."

Eldoew replied that Canada had already agreed in a letter of June 5 to send club teams to Sweden and he would hold them to the promise.

Ahearne intervened and said that contracts for international matches made before Sept. 1 of any year were simply gentlemen's agreements.

Shortly after this, Frens Henrichs of the Dutch federation evoked disappointment over the makeup of the IIHF.

"Europeans we have a very strong president," Henrichs said. "But what we lack is what Mr. Ahearne would call Her Majesty's royal opposition.

"The IIHF has spelled its end by forgetting to help Canada when it asked. Now the danger is apparent. No one will pay TV money to see only Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden in the world championship. And you know it will come to this after the 1970 world tournament, Mr. President.

"Canada has a problem with amateur hockey and you have refused to help her but yet you have said yourself that we have very dangerous people around us."

Stinson's Regains Lead At Belvedere's Expense

Stinson's Construction got themselves the 1968 Commercial League championship without the pennant. This year they appear to want both.

The Builders moved into undisputed possession of the seventeam loop's top spot Thursday night with a 6-2 win over last-place Belvedere Hotelmen.

Meanwhile the surging Point Anne Cementmen kept themselves within the four-team playoff circle by upsetting Ellis Juniors 3-1.

Once again, the addition of Bob Swan to their lineup this year proved to be one of the smartest moves Stinson's could have made.

Swan's four-hitter baffled Belvedere, who only managed singles by Bob Smith, Doug Rose, George Daniels, and Rusty Garvin. Swan only struck out three, but also only gave up one walk.

Larry Burley was touched for five of the seven Stinson hits and five of the six Builders' runs before giving way to Wayne McConnell in the fourth.

McConnell fanned seven of the winners the rest of the way.

It was a 1-1 game until the fourth, when doubles by Neil Campbell and Bob Swan, a walk to Jim Sopha, Ron Fuller's single, and a wild pitch accounted for four Stinson runs and chased Burley from the slab. Ralph Plane's single off reliever McConnell brought in Rick Locke with the sixth run for the winners.

Belvedere Locke Thompson and Locke also hit safely for Stinson's who now enjoy a two-point edge over City Hotel and Ellis Juniors.

POINT ANNE 3
ELLIS JUNIORS 1

Point Anne Cementmen kept second-place Ellis Juniors in suspense before handing them a 3-1 loss.

The Juniors gave Mark Sheridan a 1-0 lead in their first bat when Dale Duvall singled home catcher Wes May, on by a fielder's choice.

Sheridan enjoyed a 1-0 three-hitter behind six strikeouts until the seventh and last inning.

A leadoff walk by Tom MacDonald, followed by Larry Fraser, and singles by Jamie Hunter and Stu Muirhead provided the Cementmen with a 3-1 margin. Prior to the seventh, Sheridan had limited Point Anne to singles by Fraser, Jim Horwood and Mike Cook.

A rally by the Juniors in the bottom of the seventh fell short, stranding Paul Goodfellow on third after tripling, and Wayne McTaggart on first with his walk.

Pitcher Jamie Hunter got Steve Ling to pop up and John Campbell to ground out to third to preserve the Point Anne win.

Hunter struck out three and walked a pair in his six-hitter. Bob Parsons led the Juniors at the plate with a double and single.

Linescore:

Point Anne	000 003 3 - 3 6 0
Ellis Juniors	100 000 0 - 1 6 2

Charles Still Leads Open Left-Handed

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (CP) — Bob Charles figures he has a better than an even chance to win his second British open golf championship right here where he picked up his first in 1963.

The lanky left-hander from New Zealand went into the third round of title play with a seven-under-par 135, one stroke ahead of veteran Christy O'Connor of Ireland.

Charles Thursday tacked a 69 onto his opening-round 66 and poked as if he had a comfortable lead.

Then O'Connor, 44, smashed the front nine in 32 and came back in 33 for a record on Lytham's tight, 6,848-yard par-71 links on the shore of the Irish Sea.

O'Connor needed only 25 putts in all while Charles took 28.

Behind them, Peter Alliss tied at 138 were England's Tony Jacklin, 25, and Alex Caygill, 28, American Billy Casper was next at 140.

Orville Moody of the U.S. at 141 was shooting for the big double—the U.S. and British Opens in the same year.

Tied with Moody at 141 was Peter Thomson of Australia, five-time British Open winner, who turned in a 70 Thursday.

Defending champion Gary Player of South Africa was tied at 142 with John Panton of Scotland. Player had five birdies on his second round but two over-par holes held him to a 69.

Jack Nicklaus of the U.S., 6-to-1 joint favorite at the start with Casper and Player, improved to a 70 Thursday for a 143 total. He was tied with Kel Nagle of Australia and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, the 1967 winner. Nagle had a 71 and de Vicenzo a 72 Thursday.

The second round cut the 130 starters to 70 low scorers and ties. The cutoff score was 151 and this left 73 players for the third round. By nightfall the field will be cut to 65 lows and ties for Saturday's 18-hole final.

Merchants Drop No. 14

BRAMPTON — It's not often that a team having no chance at winning even 50 per cent of its games is a shoo-in for playoffs.

But that's the case with the Belleville (occasionally Trenton) Quinte Merchants, who last night dropped their 14th game in 17 starts — a 9-7 loss to Brampton Excelsiors.

With only seven games — including one postponed fixture — remaining in their 24-game schedule, the Merchanis have no hope of playing .500 lacrosse. But they are automatically in the playoffs, following the recent Ontario Lacrosse Association announcement that Huntsville's election to enter "B" playdowns means the remaining four Senior A teams are in.

Familiar in Belleville during hockey months as a defenceman with the Senior A Mo-Hawks, Greg Marchen led Thursday night's Merchant offence with a three-goal performance. Jim Hickey had a pair with singles going to Larry Jones and Don Graham.

Even making the playoffs has not solved the Merchants' over-riding financial problems.

After drawing average gates of just over 100 in the Belleville arena for their first six home games, the Peterborough expatriates tried to switch to Trenton.

The novelty apparently wasn't enough there either; the Merchants drew only 68 paid spectators to Tuesday's 17-6 loss to Brooklin Redmen.

Next scheduled home game — wherever it may be — is against Huntsville Tuesday night.

Footwear Is Larry Zebedee's Concern

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Larry Zebedee doesn't make shoes or own a shoe store, but he's an expert on footwear — the horse variety.

Many of the Belleville area horses competing in the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's weekly harness racing meet Saturday at the Fairgrounds will start on equal footing.

That's because Zebedee is the only practising 'smith' in Belleville.

A routeman for Reid's dairy, Zebedee owns 13 horses in all including mares and foals and he has two horses — Minado, a three-year-old pacer who has won two races here this year, and Demetryus, an eight-year-old gelding, entered in Saturday's third heat of an eight-race card.

Zebedee previously restricted himself to shoeing his own horses but this year he has taken on the added task of shoeing other owner's horses.

He averages about 20 customers per week and all are of the racing variety. Since each horse has to be shod about every three weeks Zebedee is a very busy man. He estimates that it takes him approximately an hour to shoe a horse's four hooves but stresses that the time varies with the patience and co - operation of the horse.

The task entails that the old shoes be removed, the hooves trimmed to the proper length and angle (a hoof level is employed for this purpose), and the new shoes put on and nailed in place from the bottom of the hoof up with the new nails being clinched over on the top of the hoof.

Some of the tools employed by Zebedee are a clinching stand to rest the horses foot on, nippers to trim the hooves, a rasp to file the bottom of the hoof, a clinching block to assist in clinching the nails, a blacksmith hammer to drive the nails in and hoof level to gauge the angle of the hoof.

Larry does his smithing at the Belleville Fairgrounds — a central location accessible to most of the local horses — and shoes the bulk of the local race horses with the exception of those done by their owners or trainers.

Larry's job is a strenuous one, partially compensated by a two - dollar per - shoe service charge.

"The main requirements for this job are a strong back and not too many brains," Zebedee says jokingly of his vocation which has become a lost art in local horse circles.

Many of his customers will be included in Saturday's eight - race, 34 horse card.

Manicure?

Larry Zebedee files off the outside of Tollbridge's foot Wednesday afternoon at the Belleville Fairgrounds after shoeing the first of the two-year-old stallion's four hooves. Herman Lucas Jr., the son of the horse's owner, soothes the young pacer while Zebedee applies the finishing touches to the right front hoof.

Printers Blotted

The International Hardware Recreation Club have won only three Departmental Softball League games in 13 starts — and last night they took their second from last year's pennant - winning Intelligencer crew by a 7-1 count.

A pair of doubles, triple and single by Harold Redquest, and Tom Cain's single accounted for all the IHRC hitting, but aided by Intelligencer pitchers Ron Colloden and Dave Feeney, and three errors afield proved fatal to the Printers.

Ken Osborne went the route for the win, only yielding singles to Bill Moreton, Merv Thompson and Pat Brown while striking out seven.

The CN Turbos reportedly widened their first - place lead to five points by whip-

Cowan Emerges as Amateur Leader By Virtue of Nifty Second-round 67

BRAMPTON (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener takes a two-stroke lead into the final round of the Ontario amateur golf championship today with five players at his heels.

Cowan, 30, shot a five-under par 67 Thursday on the 6,720-yard Bryston Golf Club course to overtake the early leaders.

With an eagle on the par-five, 550-yard ninth hole, the defending amateur champion started a charge that carried him to the top of the 153-man field.

"It was the best round of golf I can ever remember playing," said the insurance salesman whose 72 Wednesday gives him a two-round score of 139.

Nick Weslock of Mississauga, who had a 69 after the first round, birdied four holes on the back nine but missed a two-foot putt on the 18th hole to finish with a 72 and a 141 total.

The four others at 141 were Ben Kern of Toronto, first-round leader Stu Hamilton of Brampton and Indiana University school-mates Wayne McDonald of Hornby and Ken Trowbridge of Bolton.

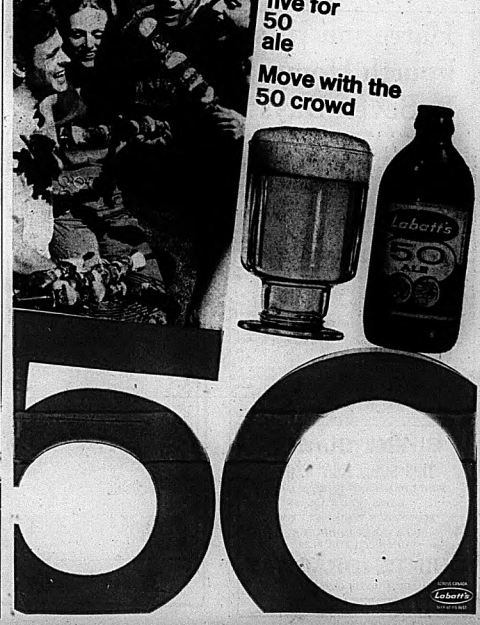
Kern gathered the largest gallery of the day as he approached the par-four 425-yard 18th green which had hurt Weslock. At this point he was six under par.

Hamilton was unable to recover from the five he took on the par-three third hole and finished with a 73.

Tom Krakenberg of Oshawa, co-leader with Hamilton after the first round, shot a 76 for an even-par 144 after two rounds. Tied with him was Jim Neale of Burlington.

Alone at 143 was Jim Burford of Toronto.

McDonald and Trowbridge, both 21 and golf scholarship students at Indiana, shot 70s after first - round 71s. Trowbridge's scores clinched him a spot on the Ontario team which will play for the interprovincial title and Willingdon Cup at Kitchener, August 13-14.



Trowbridge's total after two rounds of the Ontario Open at St. Catharines last month and two rounds of the amateur was 287 — two strokes better than McDonald's.

Weslock leads the Willingdon team with a composite score of 429, Cowan 281 and Neale 287.

Cowan used a driver and a two-iron to come within 30 feet of the pin on the ninth hole, then sank the long putt which gave him the only eagle of the day.

The field for today's final round has been cut to the top 60 with 151 as the cut-off.

Despite a creditable showing, Bay of Quinte Country Club member Roger Ling, playing out of Oshawa, missed the cut. Ling shot a 77 Thursday to give him a 78-77—155.

Alston Admits Juan's Tops... He Has To!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"He's the best pitcher in the National League," Los Angeles manager Walter Alston said Thursday night after Juan Marichal, San Francisco Giants' brilliant right-hander, tamed Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 on three hits, one a bunt.

"He's got all the pitches and plays."

In other National League activity, Atlanta Braves held off San Diego Padres 3-1, Cincinnati Reds nipped Houston Astros 5-4 in 10 innings, Chicago Cubs copied a five-game skid with a 6-3 victory over New York Mets, St. Louis Cardinals stalled Philadelphia Phillies 9-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates edged Montreal Expos 2-1 in 11 innings.

Marichal's masterpiece gave the Giants' their third consecutive triumph over the Dodgers in 13 games, enabling them to creep within 2½ games of the pacesetting Dodgers in the NL's Western Division although remaining in fourth place. Atlanta is one-half game out and Cincinnati two back.

In running his record to 12-3 with his eighth straight complete game, Marichal yielded a leadoff single to Maury Wills, a one-out double to Tom Haller in the second and Wills' safe bunt to start the ninth after Marichal had retired 17 batters in a row. Marichal's mates gave him a two-run double in the third following singles by Bobby Bonds and Willie Mays, saddling Don Sutton with his fourth straight setback.

Hank Aaron started Atlanta toward snapping a three-game losing streak with a two-run double in the first inning following Felipe Alou's infield hit and a walk to Felix Millan. San Diego starter Dave Roberts, making his second major league appearance, failed to retire a batter.

The Padres collected 12 hits —four by Ollie Brown—off Jim Britton and Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que.—but scored only in the eighth on Roberto Pena's homer, his second. It was the Padres' 30th defeat in the last 35 games.

Johnny Bench lashed a tie-breaking two-run single in the 10th that gave Cincinnati its triumph over Houston, although Jim Wynn of the Astros socked his 31st homer in the bottom of the inning. Bench singled after Tony Perez walked with two out and Lee May doubled.

Harrelson Hits Fourth Homer In Seven Days

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ken Harrelson and Harmon Killebrew hammered home runs Thursday to help Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins to victories and continuing hot slugging streaks.

Harrelson's shot, which helped the Indians whip Detroit Tigers 7-5 in 11 innings, was his fourth in the last seven days. Killebrew, with five homers in seven days, drilled his 25th of the year in Minnesota's 6-5 victory over Kansas City Royals.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles trimmed Boston Red Sox 5-4 and Oakland Athletics bombed Chicago White Sox 12-2. California's game at Seattle was postponed by rain.

Harrelson walked in the fifth, stole second, took third on a fielder's choice and scored on a sacrifice fly for the Indians' first run.

Then he replaced his 14th homer of the year with a man on in the seventh as Cleveland rallied for four runs to take the lead. Norm Cash's pinch homer tied it for the Tigers in the bottom half of the inning, but Tony Horton's bases-loaded, two-out single drove in Cleveland's winning run in the 11th.

Harrelson's homer raised his season's batting average to .305 —about 30 points less than Killebrew. The Twins' slugger lifted his major-league leading RBI total to 86 with a run-scoring single. His homer helped Minnesota to a 6-0 lead against Kansas City.

Then the Royals stormed back on homers by Lou Piniella, Chuck Harrison and Mike Fiore, but they fell one run short.

Oakland, 3½ games back of the Twins, kept pace by whacking Chicago. The Athletics exploded for eight runs in the fourth inning—their biggest single inning of the season—and Rich (Blue Moon) Odom coasted to his 12th victory with a three-hitter.

Crunch Is Faced

CRTC Rules Are Tough for Cable TV Licences

OTTAWA (CP) — After almost a year of deliberation, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission has faced up to the big crunch in cable TV.

The upshot is bad news for persons who try to speculate in broadcasting licences.

The CRTC announced Thursday its decisions on just who gets what in cable TV in the heavy population belt of southern Ontario and British Columbia's lower mainland.

The decisions sliced up Toronto eight ways. Three big Toronto operators were squelched in bids to spread their systems to the suburbs.

Two of the companies awarded Toronto licences were approved for operation only on condition that they shed their connection with a daily newspaper-television-station interest. Two of the 10 companies applying for the lower B.C. mainland got the nod on condition American interests within their operations sell out.

Pierre Juneau, CRTC chairman, who answered questions at a news conference called to release the decisions, stated the commission concern this way:

"In the field of information, there are two important principles we think have to be considered.

"One is that competition is a good thing; the more sources of ideas, views and information, the better. . . .

"Secondly, the quality of the sources of ideas, views and information."

This was the problem that faced the CRTC when it was handed responsibility last April 1 for licensing cable TV.

Some people had obtained licences from the transport, department—which previously handled applications—without any concrete plans for setting up systems. They were speculative.

For the speculators, the CRTC had two policy statements.

First, in an attempt to sort out the cable TV question, that during its first year of operation it would hear applications for new CRTC licences only from companies or persons who held old transport department licences.

It noted that after the CRTC started public hearings last September, the importance of cable TV became more apparent. It became obvious that new persons or companies should be allowed to bid for a cable territory.

The policy statement Thursday said the public interest would be better served by leaving room "for a larger number of persons and companies to play a role in this new type of enterprise."

In a second policy statement, the CRTC reminded the industry that all sales of cable company assets must have prior approval of the commission.

The CRTC would not look favorably on any sale where this new operator would raise charges to subscribers or lower the standard of service for a fast recouping of his investment.

Backing up its contentions, the CRTC denied applications by some Ontario operators who held old transport department licences but who had taken no action to set up an operating system.

The CRTC said licensing these operations would be equivalent to sanctioning sale of the licence to someone else.

Rogers Cable TV Ltd., linked with John Bassel, publisher of the Toronto Telegram and with a big interest in CFTO-TV, the only privately-owned TV station in Toronto, drew commission attention for its cross-media operations.

E. S. Rogers, head of the cable operation, has two radio stations in Toronto. Glen-Warren Productions Ltd. has a 50-per-cent holding in Rogers Cable.

Also, Glen-Warren has the same share ownership as Baton Broadcasting Ltd., the licensee of CFTO-TV.

In British Columbia, Surrey Cablevision Ltd. and Express Cable Television Ltd., both licensed for the Vancouver area, got their licences on condition that they shed holdings in their operations by Columbia Broadcasting System of the United States.

In both situations, the CRTC said, there is "excessive concentration of ownership." Columbia and Mr. Welch had interests in other broadcasting concerns in Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria.

The Thursday announcements reiterated that all broadcasting operations in Canada must be in compliance with new regulations on foreign ownership by Sept. 1, 1970.

"I'm afraid we'll have to find another way to keep our weekly allowances in line with rising prices."

Youths Ride Niagara Rapids In Inner Tube

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP) — Three 17-year-old youths on an inner tube survived a three-mile ride through the rapids below Niagara Falls Thursday.

Police on both sides of the river said they believe Michael Page, Michael Heinbrazer and Richard Dickerson, all of Niagara Falls, N.Y., were the first to survive an accidental shooting of the rapids.

CBC Costs Are Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Net operating cost for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. reached a record $154,951,683 during the 1968-69 fiscal year.

The annual report of the publicly-owned corporation, tabled in the Commons Thursday, showed total expenditure of $196,487,305 during the year ended last March 31. Total expenditure the previous year, the former record, was $180,562,816.

Revenue from advertising, interest on investments and miscellaneous earnings whittled the total expenditure for 1968-69 by $41,535,622 to give the $154,951,683 net figure.

In 1967-68, comparable revenue was $39,999,920 and the net cost figure was $149,562,816.

Public funds supplied to the CBC during the year totalled $148,329,000, representing about $7.06 for every Canadian. This figure was $143,283,000 the previous year.

PCs Say Laborers Earn More Than MPPs

TORONTO (CP) — Laborers earn more than members of the legislature, the official publication of the Ontario Conservative party says in advocating a pay increase for MPPs.

Consensus, a 12-page tabloid newspaper, says a review of salaries disclosed that MPPs are paid less than plumbers, electricians, carpenters and assembly line workers.

A Conservative spokesman said the article reflected the opinion of the newspaper and was not an expression of party policy.

The article avoided recommending a new pay level, but mentioned $15,000 and $18,000 a year as amounts some Tory members consider acceptable.

MPPs now are paid $8,000 a year in salary. Members from outside Metropolitan Toronto receive an additional $4,000 annually in a tax-free expense allowance and Toronto area members receive $3,000.

Consensus says many out-of-town members are forced to establish a second residence in Toronto, often in a hotel, the extra accommodation alone costing between $1,000 and $2,000. Travel costs are additional.

Fire Kills Ten

POSEN, Mich. (AP) — Ten persons died Thursday in a farmhouse fire outside this potato-growing community in northeastern Lower Michigan, firemen said.

All who died were related. Seven were children ranging in age from 15 months to 16 years.

The toll was the highest in recent Michigan history. Twice since 1950 eight have died in two separate fires.

COMPLETELY INSTALLED AND SET UP IN YOUR HOME WITH RCA's 5 YEAR COLOR PROTECTION PLAN ON PICTURE TUBE, TUNER AND CIRCUIT BOARD.

RCA SOLID INTEGRATED CIRCUITS are designed to be the most reliable type known to television science. It operates with a minimum of heat, the main cause of TV component failure.

INSTANT-PIC CONTROL ENDS WARM-UP WAIT. You get instant sound and picture seconds after you turn on the set. To turn off all power, simply turn "holiday" switch off.

TRANSISTORIZED NEW VISTA VHF TUNER incorporates three solid state components, a metal-ceramic tube and four tuned circuits into the most powerful VHF tuner in the television industry. There are no filaments to burn out or cause damaging heat . . .

ONE-SET VHF FINE TUNING CONTROL automatically "remembers" to select the best signal. Once set for each channel, it seldom needs to be changed.

SUPER BRIGHT HI-LITE PICTURE TUBE (guaranteed 2 years) produces the most vivid color ever from RCA. Perma-Chrome gives locked-in color purity.

SIMPLIFIED COLOR-QUICK TUNING. "Tint" control is color-keyed for easy adjustment of flesh tone and hues on each channel. "Color" control is also color-keyed to help you select the color intensity you prefer.

SPACE AGE CIRCUITRY. RCA solid copper circuits replace old fashioned "hand wiring" in a majority of potential chassis trouble spots. They won't come loose or short circuit and assure you of long life and dependable performance. Circuit boards guaranteed for life.

TRANSISTORIZED AUTOMATIC CHROMA CONTROL electronically stabilizes the color intensity setting you select for each channel, guarding against color fading or over-saturation caused by changing signal conditions.

DO KIDS LIKE ICE CREAM?

The answer, of course, is a resounding "yes" to both questions!

Kids have been eating and enjoying ice cream down to the last "lick" ever since it was invented.

And Want Ads have been "working" — providing results for both buyer and seller even longer than ice cream has been in existence. If you haven't used the Want Ads, you're missing one of the best treats in life.

And it's so easy, all you have to do is dial 962-9171 to place a low-cost, fast-acting Want Ad.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

What is the most difficult decision any person can make?
To be a doctor's lawyer — or a dropout? To marry or not to marry? To sue for divorce? To retire?
All perplexing decisions, it is true. But the one that supercedes them all is one of health: "Shall I, or shall I not, consent to operation?"
For example, there is no problem when a patient comes down with a severe attack of gallstone colic. The pain is so excruciating, the nausea and vomiting so intense, that the patient can't wait for the doctor to bring relief — whether by medication or by operation. So it is with an attack of acute appendicitis. Operation is welcomed.
But suppose the patient has stones in his gall bladder that are "silent"? He has no symptoms. What then? Shall he defy the doctor's advice and have them out? Or, feeling perfectly well, shall he go his merry way sticking a mental thumb out at any operative intervention?
In many patients this is not a difficult decision to make. But there are others when the problem is much more serious.
For instance, a patient comes in for a complete physical. He feels fine. He's just been told he believes in routine checkups to "keep him around longer."
His doctor takes the routine stool X-rays and to his dismay — and that of his patient — finds a small, round shadow in the lung that is quite suspicious.
The doctor asks for consultation with a chest expert, and the diagnosis is solitary pulmonary nodule cancer until proved otherwise. Chest specialists and thoracic surgeons I have spoken with tell me that such lesions should be considered cancerous until proved otherwise.
Therefore, early operation is the answer. The risk of operation, they say, is negligible, and early removal of the mass in the lung gives the patient a better chance for recovery.
According to Burchet R. Wilder, M.D., in Section 3, section of 217 asymptomatic solitary pulmonary nodules revealed primary cancer in 34 per cent; and in 53 percent of patients 50 years or older.
I can understand how any apparently well person would hesitate to have surgery just because the doctor found "some little something" in an X-ray. As I said, the decision is a difficult one.
But in view of the potentiality of its life or death quality, I cannot emphasize too strongly that there is only one answer to your doctor's decision to operate on a "coin lesion" in the lung. The answer is yes — and the sooner the better.
* * *
Dear Dr. Steincrohn: According to my neighbor I misunderstand that sometimes the pill is not given to women because it may be dangerous. Will you mention the conditions? — Mrs. Y.
COMMENT: Only the doctor can make reservations in each individual patient, but here are some of the important conditions the doctor takes into account: 1. Liver disorders. 2. Any disease predisposing to thrombosis or phlebitis. 3. Migraines. 4. Extreme obesity. 5. Appearance of migraine headaches.
I want to stress that only the doctor should be the judge of how important such apparent contraindications are in each individual patient. Listen to him rather than to well-meaning neighbors.

Deciding to Have Operation Is Difficult for Patient

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market showed its first strength this week, advancing fractionally in mid-morning trading after opening with a small loss.
A slight rise in New York appeared to be the main reason for the Toronto turnabout.
Volume continued at a slow pace.
However, declines outnumbered advances 104 to 100.
Golds and oil refiners, which took heavy losses Thursday, led the overall advance.
Oil refiners rose 1¼ to 21¼ and in oil refiners, Imperial and Gulf Canada each gained ¼ to 19 and 19¼, respectively.
Western oils, another weak group Thursday, moved ahead slightly with Home A up 1¼ to 26¼ and Great Plains 1 to 30¼.
The trading halt that was imposed on Revenge Resources continued today pending a release from the company.
Kaufman and Broad Inc. of Los Angeles was optional canada in Toronto in exchange for picking up a $5,000,000 Revenue note.
Globe Envelopes A was up 1¼ to 11¼ after the company raised its quarterly class A common dividend to 13 cents from 10 cents.
On index, industrials were up .17 to 174.07, golds 1.87 to 228.45 and western oils 1.25 to 251.57.
Base metals slipped .11 to 105.35. Volume by 11 a.m. was 428,000 shares compared with 458,000 at the same time Thursday.
The Toronto market recorded another loss Thursday, extending for the fourth consecutive day.
Volume continued to decrease with only 1,794,000 shares traded, the second lightest daily volume this year, compared with 2,028,000 Wednesday.
The industrial index fell 2.51 to 174.10. Since Monday the index has fallen 8.84 points.
It gained 8.43 in a six-day rally that ended last Friday, only fully followed a similar slump in June which knocked 13.79 points off the industrial index.
Lack of investor confidence in the immediate outlook for the market seems to be the reason for the light trading. Many observers say the market could continue to drop unless some news appears.
Western oils and oil refiners were among the weakest groups Thursday.
Western oil stocks, which were among the hardest hit in the June slump, continue to slide with Dome off 25 cents, drilling in Alaska and the Canadian Arctic.
Western oils. Home B dropped 2¼ to 60, Home A 2 to 65, Scurry 1¼ to 28¼, Great Plains 1¼ to 29¼ and Pacific Pete 1¼ to 33¼.
Oil refiners, which have fallen substantially during the month, led down by Gulf, off ¾ to 19¼, Imperial, ¼ to 19¾, Texaco, ¼ to 30, and Shell, ¼ to 26¾.
Trading in Revenge was halted. The stock closed Wednesday at 5, down ⅝.
Kaufman and Broad Inc. of Los Angeles has agreed to purchase a $5,000,000, 8¾-per-cent, one-year Revenue note in exchange for a one-year option to buy 3,600,000 Revenue shares at 15 each.
If Kaufman and Broad exercises the option, it will gain effective controlling interest in Revenue.
Inco dropped 1¼ to 57¾. Inco Limited has also walled off from their jobs Thursday after their present contract expired.
Consumers Gas lost 1 to 33 after rumors were denied that Japan Indonesia Ltd. has a promising gas field west of Borneo. Asamers is drilling in on-shore Indonesia.
Canada Lead Gardens dropped 1 to 26¼ on 110 shares.
Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, recently fired as president and executive vice-president respectively, of the Garden, charged Wednesday with income tax evasion.
On index, western oils fell 8.86 to 250.34, golds .96 to 196.43. Golds gained 1.78 100 222.52. Losers 1.4 to 1 outnumbered gains 387 to 111.

Astronaut Not Upset by Seat

HOQSTON (AP) — The wags are saying that Michael Collins is like the guy who arrived on the Santa Maria while Columbus went ashore.
While Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin take man's first steps on the moon July 21, Collins will ride around in the ship alone in orbit 60 miles above them.
"Well, I think I would probably be less than human if I said I thought I had the best seat of the three," says Collins, 38, a lieutenant-colonel in the air force.
"On the other hand, I can also say with complete honesty that I'm happy with the seat that I have. . . . I like to feel that I couldn't be doing what they are doing unless I were there doing my third of the part.

Spy Claims South Africa Involved in Mboya's Death

LONDON (Reuters) — A self-confessed double agent has claimed that South Africa was involved in the assassination Saturday of Kenyan minister Tom Mboya.
Peter Toombs said on a television news program Thursday night he was a spy for both South Africa and Tanzania.
Toombs, 47, an antique restorer, was asked if South Africa was implicated in the assassination of Mboya.
"Yes," he replied.
Toombs said he was told by his South African contact in London that there had been an "incident" occurring in Kenya.
"By inference, the only incident that could have occurred, and did occur, at this time was the assassination of Mboya," he explained.
He said he was giving up his double agent role because he felt "I'm getting to be an . . . grave physical danger."
Toombs said he had the impression South Africa wants to stir up trouble in countries in Africa to establish that the only stable governments were white governments.

Squirts Get Chance For Big Splash

Belleville's youngest and smallest softball team — the Associated Canadian Travellers — will get their first taste of inter - city competition Saturday.

They are entered in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's Squirt Tournament which will be held Saturday at the Alemite and Queen Victoria School ball diamonds.

With no previous experience in tournament play or competition with squirt clubs from other centres, it is hard to judge the capabilities of the Travellers.

But they have shown promise during house league play in the peewee division where they sport a record of two wins and three defeats in competition against the older teams.

The Travellers open the tournament at 9 a.m. Saturday morning when they take on a club from Toronto West Hill at the Alemite ball park.

Etobicoke tangles with Unionville at Queen Victoria School at 9:30 in the first scheduled game, while North Bendale of Scarborough meets Port Perry at the Alemite at 10 a.m. in the third opening round game and North York opposes Richmond Hill at 10:30 a.m. on the Alemite diamond in the fourth opening round game of the eight team tournament.

Both the "A" or championship division semi-final games will be played at Alemite ball park. The winners of games one and two meet in the semi - final at 11.30 a.m. and the winners of games three and four oppose each other in the second "A" division semi - final at 2.15 p.m.

Queen Victoria School will be the site of the "B" or consolation division semi - finals. The losers of games one and two tangle at 12.45 p.m. and the losers of games three and four play at 2 p.m.

Both the "A" and "B" championship games will be played at the Alemite. The "B" title game starts at 4 a.m. and the "A" title game at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Welch Hints He Won't 'Buy' Plan to Double Liquor Price

TORONTO (CP) Provincial Secretary Robert Welch is unlikely to go along with the recommendation Wednesday of the Ontario Alcohol and Drug Research Foundation that beer, wine and liquor prices be doubled to reduce alcoholism.

Mr. Welch, in charge of the sale of alcoholic beverages in Ontario, said Thursday the foundation's proposal was "very interesting but it remains to be seen what influence they have."

Studies conducted by the foundation show that a gradual doubling of prices would cut general consumption of alcoholic beverages by 57 per cent and consumption by 60 per cent.

Mr. Welch said in an interview that the study is compiled by scientists "and now it's up to the officials to decide what to do."

"If you're going to use financial standards to control consumption you might wind up with only the rich being able to afford alcohol," he said.

He added that poor persons might be forced to "illegal ways" of acquiring liquor.

Half-votes Recommended For Muskoka Cottage Owners

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Muskoka cottage residents should be given votes worth only half the votes of permanent residents in electing municipal councillors, says a 269-page report presented Thursday at a public meeting.

Cottagers outnumber permanent residents 2 to 1.

The report, prepared after a two-year study by Donald Paterson, was introduced at the meeting by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough.

It recommended a two-tier system of government, favored giving cottage owners the right to vote by mail, rejected the idea of summer elections, and said the interests of cottage owners are different, particularly in the areas of social needs.

Most of Mr. Paterson's major recommendations were forecast in the preliminary report released last October.

First regional government study done of a vacation area, it could set a pattern for others.

Bracebridge, heart of the Muskoka area, is about 100 miles north of Toronto.

Giving the cottage owners full representation by population would mean the three vacation municipalities—Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay and Lake of Bays — would have half the representation on the regional council. Their year-round population is about only one quarter of the regional population.

Department Split

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough Thursday announced a partial reorganization of his department into two divisions—assessment, and administration and finance.

The report said the cottage population will outnumber permanent population 3 to 1 within the next 25 years.

The interests of the cottage owners are different, Mr. Paterson said in the report, particularly in areas of social need.

Following the pattern of past regional government studies, the Paterson report recommends a two-tier system of government, with indirect election to the upper, or regional council. The first regional chairman is to be appointed by the cabinet, with subsequent chairmen elected at large.

Representation on the regional council would be weighed according to the populations of various municipalities or wards. A three-year term of office was recommended for all councils in the region.

The idea of summer municipal elections for the Muskoka area was rejected by Mr. Paterson because of budget problems created by councils taking office two-thirds of the way through the calendar year.

A large section of Mr. Paterson's recommendations was devoted to a possible postal ballot for cottagers.

Voting by mail would require the cottage owner to be registered on a special list for absentee voters. The ballot forms would be sent and returned by registered mail.

Mr. Paterson recommended that should postal balloting not be adopted then polling should take place on two consecutive Saturday's in early September.

The report recommended the establishment of six-area municipalities of the towns of Gravenhurst, Bracebridge, Huntsville, and the Muskoka Lakes, and townships of the Lake of Bays and the Georgian Bay areas.

Mr. Paterson proposed a system of wards be established for election to area councils, with the head of council elected at large.

Electricians Out on Strike

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Electricians in Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg and Orillawa, members of local 894, international Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, went on strike at midnight Wednesday night for higher wages.

Who 220 electricians went on strike a week after a conciliation board report was released on a new work agreement with contractors.

A union spokesman said also in dispute is a building time between home and work sites. About 40 construction projects in the area are affected by the strike.

Strictly Personal

International Law Absurd

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We may have been shocked at the shooting down of an American spy plane by North Korea this spring, or by last year's capture of the Pueblo—but I doubt that we have any right to feel outraged by these events. They only confirm the absurdity of what we call "international law."

Obviously there can be no "law" between sovereign nations, because there is no common authority that bands them to it, and no means of enforcing it short of war. St. Thomas pointed this out 600 years ago.

Indeed, when it suits them, nations have always regarded international law with the same view that Samuel Goldwyn took when he uttered his famous dictum: "An oral contract isn't worth the paper it's printed on."

If "international law" was always a contradiction in terms, it is a double fraud in this electronic age of ours. What is the point of a 3 - mile limit or a 9-mile limit or a 12-mile limit, when modern monitoring devices can penetrate to the heart of another country's inland defenses? The absolute distinctions in the "law of the sea have become ironic, and sometimes fatal, jokes in our time.

The great powers of the world are all engaging in espionage around the globe, using most sophisticated technological instruments, but still claiming an "immunity" of the high seas that is as outmoded as the Barbary pirates. These old-fashioned limits — such as the difference between 12 miles offshore and 13 miles offshore — are ridiculous in the age of sevaltizing devices that can track human activities.

The laws of the sea were formulated in the age of sailing-ships, when it made some sense to keep coastal waters open for a dozen miles; today we are trying to apply the same formula to airplanes, but how can anyone rationally define what "air space" from a country's borders can be kept free from intrusion?

If we can collect information on North Korea's defenses, and she lacks the capability to mount her own reconnaissance system, then it is to be expected that such spying will be resented and repulsed. The powerful nations have such an advantage in this technological era that it is not surprising that smaller, poorer countries feel they must make brutal reprisals for the invasion of national privacy.

Let us say we are doing it for pragmatic reasons, or peaceful reasons, or "defensive" reasons, whatever that means. But let us not be hypocritical and cite "international law" when we are caught at it.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 12 —

Your birthday today. Now is the time to plan ahead for higher earnings, better percentages. Put in the first three months preparing your new program or finding a better job, then take advantage of the rising tide in the latter part of the year. Today's natives tend to attract trial and tribulation by their impulsive actions, restless minds, and willingness to question authority.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today the shortcomings of your community come to attention to your attention. Take yourself and our friends for a short journey to get a different perspective. Pay no attention to rumors, but leave no opening for comments about yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): For once, settle back and plan, and leave the physical chores to others. Try newly learned skills. Review your health. Clear up all correspondence.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Avoid financial moves today. Neglected tasks are up for review and perhaps now you can do something effective about them. Keep in mind your favorite charity.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Pressure builds up for some far-reaching decisions on your part. Follow you will find that the issues revolve on what seem now to be trivial points.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Be conservative; check with people who have just done what you are about to try — there are new changes to take into account. See what others are covered through haste and carelessness, and learn.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Nothing quite goes as you wish. This is especially true if you visit without proper appointments. Associates, family are inclined to be noisy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Do not let business temptations lead you into hasty commitments. You are quite optimistic, and business should be rather good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your partners can be of more help than you realize. Original solutions of economic and efficiency problems may also occur to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Before you realize it, you are involved in something you had not planned. If you can not go alone, take several people with you — not just one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The better organized you are today, the easier it is to cope with the quirks that happen all day — even more in the evening.

AUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Keep to a steady, consistent pace and put first things first. You have a long list of useful things to do, including some traveling.

PISCES (Feb. 19— Mar. 20): Your regular habits turn out rather well today. Practical ideas, experiments could back fire. (Expect a play for your sympathy this evening).

Less Than 20 in House, Opposition Forces Early Adjournment

OTTAWA (CP) — A gleeful opposition caught the government with only eight of 154 Liberal MPs in the Commons Thursday and forced premature adjournment of the House under the quorum rule.

The minor coup, which left Liberals fuming, came during private members' hour. However, it had more relevance to the hardening rules debate that has kept the House in session beyond a planned June 27 summer recess.

Conservative Leader Robert L. Stanfield said his party is prepared to fight the government's proposed new time-allocation rules for days and weeks.

And Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) threatened a "work-to-rule" program by the opposition.

Mr. Stanfield battered the government for trying to "get a firm grip on the throat of a minority opposition" through rule 75C, by which the government alone could control debating time.

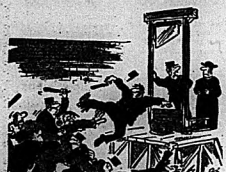
Two other rules would provide for all-party agreement on time allocation or three-party agreement.

The quorum rule, embedded in the constitution, says at least 20 MPs in the 264-seat House must be present for debate to continue.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) was speaking on a motion to produce a manpower study when Mr. Knowles interjected that there were 14 or 15 MPs present and called for an adjournment.

Mr. Knowles, Mr. Orlikow, Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) and a couple of Conservatives promptly left the House, leaving behind Mr. Stanfield, Adrien L'a m b e r t (Creditiste—Bellechasse) and eight Liberals.

Liberal Whip Bernard Pilon called more MPs in minutes as Deputy Speaker Albert Bechard turned the chair to Speaker Lucien Lamoureux and Clerk Assistant Gordon Dubroy began counting heads.



Mr. Dubroy made two counts, one m o m e n t s after the Knowles injection and another once Mr. Lamoureux was in the chair. The second showed 26 MP's present.

Mr. Knowles maintained that the first count, which was not disclosed, was the important one. After Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Lambert added that there had not been 20 MP's present earlier, Mr. Lamoureux adjourned the House at 5:39 p.m.

That sliced two hours and 21 minutes from Thursday's regulation sitting time.

Mr. Stanfield said a co-operative atmosphere rather than rules such as 75C would be more effective in getting a legislative program through the House.

Post Office His Problem

Advocate of Communication, Kierans Stumbles in Dialogue

OTTAWA (CP) — It's ironic that Communications Minister Eric Kierans should be under attack in the Commons over an alleged fall-down in communications between management and employees within his department.

The irony goes well beyond the name of the department. It also happens that Mr. Kierans is one of the strongest advocates in the cabinet of constant communication between politicians and the public.

Apart from his frequent references to this during his leadership campaign last year, Mr. Kierans was the first cabinet minister to launch the NATO debate publicly when he advocated Canada's withdrawal from that alliance. For about a month, prior to the government's decision to withdraw some of its NATO troops, Mr. Kierans stumped the country, in open disagreement with some of his cabinet colleagues.

"I wanted to get people discussing NATO," he says. "The prime minister had invited people to express their views—but apart from a few academics, there was very little discussion. I could only conclude it was a dead issue."

If the issue was dead, it was hardly the fault of the blunt-spoken Mr. Kierans. Typically, he didn't pull any punches when he advanced his arguments for withdrawal.

More recently, as the minister was the target of daily pot-shots over the alleged communications shortcomings within his department, he was in the process of involving Canadians in the challenge of naming the proposed new communications satellite.

Meantime, he is optimistically looking forward to an end of the criticism involving his handling of changes in the post office.

"If I can get it humming by the first of next year," he says, "I will consider it the best job I have ever done."

"And I think I will."

Acknowledging some failures in the consultative process last year, he says he is determined not to let this occur again.

"We're going to bring the 48,000 employees of the post office closer to the decision processes."

"Meanwhile, the criticism doesn't bother me. I know it's going to turn around."

Toronto Police to Begin Charging Betting Shops

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police will begin pressing charges against operators of off-track betting shops today, but it appears that the shops, for a while at least, will continue placing bets in one form or another.

About 60 of an estimated 200 off-track betting shops in Toronto were still operating Thursday.

Inco Dispute Negotiations To Go on During Weekend

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations aimed at settling the work stoppage at International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. mines, mills and smelters in Sudbury and Port Colbourne, Ont., are expected to continue through the weekend and perhaps into next week.

Negotiations were to resume today at 10 a.m.

Two bargaining sessions Thursday yielded no clear results. "We'll probably be here all weekend," said an Inco spokesman.

Some 17,200 members of Locals 6200 and 6500, United Steelworkers of America, failed to show up for work when the company's contract with the union expired Thursday at 8 a.m. Instead, 10-man picket teams were setup at each plant.

Union spokesmen call the work halt a lockout and company spokesman refer to a "picket production stoppage."

The base rate under the expired agreement was $2.39 in Sudbury and $2.76 in Port Colbourne with an average rate of $3.06 an hour as calculated by the union.

Inco's offer is 95 cents an hour spread over three years, the increase in first wages being 71 cents, the rest in fringe benefits.

The union began bargaining with demands of an increase of more than $2 an hour and later came down to about $1.50 an hour in a three-year contract.

Each penny separating the two teams represents a minimum cost to the company of $335,000 a year, calculated on the existing size of the work force. Inco's 95-cent-an-hour package increase is equal to an increase in the labor bill in the third year of the agreement of about $32,000,000. The union position would add another $18,000,000 to the bill in the third year.

The company, which made a profit last year estimated at $143,745,000, mainly from the sale of 420,840,000 pounds of nickel, is under pressure from the world market to reach an early settlement.

Quebec Strike Ends As Ontario One Begins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The labor picture in Canada this week has appeared marked by flash-in-the-pan settlement of one major strike—of construction workers in Quebec—occurred within a day of a walkout of 17,200 mine, mill and smelter workers in Ontario.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows major strikes or lockouts in Ontario, Quebec, British Columbia and Newfoundland.

ONTARIO

Sudbury-Port Colborne—17,200 workers at mine, mill and smelter facilities of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. Started at midnight, July 9. Basic issue is wages.

Toronto—Several thousand construction workers including cement masons, painters, glaziers and plasterers remain locked out by the Toronto Construction Association since May 2 after breakdown in negotiations over a new contract. Tentative agreement has been reached between the association and 4,900 carpenters, also locked out since May 2 and voting to declare a strike last Sunday. The combined strikes and lockouts have affected work on projects worth an estimated $2,000,000,000.

A walkout by 125 subway construction workers Wednesday ended after a promise Thursday to reinstate eight dismissed workers.

Peterborough—220 unionized electricians on strike in Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg and Oshawa seek higher wages in a new work agreement with contractors. Started midnight, Wednesday. Forty projects are affected.

QUEBEC

Quebec City-Eastern Townships—11,000 construction workers, some on strike since mid-May, will begin work Friday on a settlement reached between their representatives and five employer associations. Wages were the main issue in a violence-ridden dispute.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Baie Verte—more than 300 asbestos mine workers remain on strike after seven weeks against Advocate Mines Ltd. Wage parity with Quebec workers is the main issue.

Labrador City-Wabush—1,500 workers on strike since May against Iron Ore Co. of Canada Ltd. and Wabush Mines Ltd. Negotiations reopened Tuesday with employers doubling their original offer of 37-cent-an-hour increase in a three year contract.

Trudeau Qualifies Hypocrisy Charge

Most Questions Irrelevant; PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was the centre of a storm which blew up in the house Friday and which produced 20 minutes of bedlam.

It ended with the prime minister obeying a gentle but persistent summons from Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to, in effect, withdraw his charge that a point of order made by NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles was "sheer hypocrisy".

Friday's tempest was touched off by an innocent-sounding question from Robert Thompson PC-Red Deer as to whether the prime minister intends to be in the House next week or go through with his plan to visit the west.

"I think the West is more important than listening to a stupid filibuster," snapped the prime minister.

(Mr. Trudeau's eight-day trip to the Prairies begins Sunday.)

The reference was to a debate that has been going on most of the time since June 27, when the Commons was scheduled to recess for the summer.

At issue is a proposal, hotly opposed by the three opposition parties, under which the government would be empowered to limit debate on public bills where intra-party agreement on a time-allocation formula is not attained.

Amid shouts of "sit down" from the Liberal benches, Mr. Knowles contended that the prime minister's remark was uncalled for, and added that if Mr. Trudeau had a "modicum of respect for this place" he would withdraw it.

Mr. Trudeau retorted that about 80 per cent of the questions asked of the government in the House are not to elicit information, "are not of a serious nature." His only qualification of Mr. Knowles's point of order was that it was sheer hypocrisy.

Catcalls and cries of "shame," traded between the government and opposition benches, punctuated the protracted exchange.

At one point David Lewis (NDP—York South) said he was going to stand on his feet until "honorable members opposite have the dignity and decency to shut up."

The Speaker refused to accept the contention that Mr. Trudeau's reference to a filibuster

Baptistes Call PM A Saboteur

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Jean Baptiste Society of Montreal accused Prime Minister Trudeau Friday of sabotaging its annual parade by putting moral pressure on foreign ambassadors to stay away.

In a statement issued by President Francois Albert Angers after an executive council meeting, the society said that Mr. Trudeau's effort, to sabotage the June 24 parade by "pressure of moral constraint on the ambassadors was not to his credit, nor did it contribute to the prestige of Canada."

Under Mr. Trudeau, the federal government has become "master of the art of provoking comic-opera diplomatic incidents" in French-Canadian affairs, the society said.

The Prime Minister was not invited to the big Montreal parade this year that commemorates the feast day of French Canada's patron saint.

But the society did send invitations to about 70 foreign embassies in Ottawa. When Mr. Trudeau heard of this, he said he did not see how representatives of foreign governments could attend the Montreal celebrations when the Canadian government was not invited.

At the last minute the society withdrew its invitations to the embassies and extricated the diplomats from a delicate protocol situation.

Vanishing Seamen Mystery Deepens

LONDON (AP) — Donald Crowhurst, British round-the-world yachtsman, was given up for lost today. But the mystery surrounding his disappearance deepened with the disclosure that his vessel was the fourth found apparently abandoned in the same area within 12 days.

Shortly before the search for Crowhurst was abandoned, Lloyd's Shipping Exchange in London disclosed that since June 30 three other boats have been found unmanned in the same area where Crowhurst's boat was found.

Planes searched all day Friday for the 36-year-old sailor whose deserted three-hulled Yacht Teignmouth Electron was found Thursday 700 miles west of the Azores.

The London Sunday Times, which sponsored the around the world race that Crowhurst had been favored to win, announced that the $12,000 prize for the fastest voyage would go to Crowhurst's wife Clare. A spokesman said the trimaran had crossed the line of its outward journey and that had completed its circumnavigation of the globe. Crowhurst had been at sea 262 days.

The Vagabond, a 20-foot boat belonging to Peter Wallin of Sweden — another lone globe-circling sailor—was found Sunday by the Swedish ship Golar Frost. A boarding party discovered everything on board undisturbed but no sign of Wallin. The last entry in the boat's log was July 2.

On Tuesday, the British tanker Heliorama sighted the upturned hull of an unidentified 36-foot craft. That was nine days after another British ship, the Maplebank, reported sighting a 60-foot vessel, thought to be a white-hulled yacht, floating bottom-up off North Africa.

The London weather centre said: "Although it seems remarkable that so many yachting mysteries could occur in the same area of the Atlantic within the space of a week or more, we have recorded no weather phenomena or gale-force conditions which could account for it. You can take it from us the weather is not to blame."

When the British cargo ship Picardy picked up the Teignmouth Electron, there was no sign of a mishap aboard, and all of Crowhurst's vital equipment, including his life raft, was stowed safely. Only his movie camera seemed to be missing.

Mrs. Crowhurst suggested her husband might have gone for a swim in his scuba gear and been out of sight when the Picardy picked up his trimaran. The sailor's agents radioed the cargo ship to ask if his underwater equipment was on board and expected a reply today.

Indians Will Be Consulted

OTTAWA (CP) — A special Commons debate Friday drew assurances from Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien that new policies will not be implemented until the Indians are consulted.

Mr. Chretien flew back from Halifax, where he had gone earlier Friday to discuss a recent federal policy statement with Nova Scotia leaders, to defend it in the Commons.

The debate was unexpected and came as a result of a motion by Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) to set aside regular business and discuss adverse Indian reaction to the June 25 policy statement.

Mr. Chretien said most of the criticism results from misunderstanding or misrepresentation.

Indians appeared upset by the belief that the federal government was acting too hastily in land and treaty rights questions.

But the policy statement was just a basis for consultations with the Indians, that might lead to legislation later.

Indians feared their reserve land might be sold for "a few bottles of beer" if they were given control of it, but there would be safeguards against this. A majority of the band would have to agree to land sales.

Mboya's Planned Death Stepstone to Disorder

NAIROBI (AP) — Kenya's vice-president said Friday the assassination of Tom Mboya was "political execution monstrously conceived but brilliantly planned and carried out."

Daniel Arap Moi told a news conference: "Both the assassination and its consequence so far have aimed at chaos and civil disorder, as a stepping stone to the imposition of some alien ideology.

"We have uncovered in our investigations many tactics of confusion, spurred on by all rumors and lies as part of the remorseless purpose of divide and seize."

Moi appealed to the foreign and local press to avoid inflammatory speculation. Asked about a report that a South African spy was involved, Moi said he had no knowledge of this.

"I call on all Kenyans to stand together in defence of our nationalism" and all that was fought for and have built with our faith and blood," he said.

Two persons have been killed and more than 60 injured in rioting that followed the assassination of the popular economics minister a week ago.

Nerve Gas Is Tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department disclosed Friday it is conducting open-air tests of lethal nerve gas at three widely scattered locations across the United States.

The military also unveiled the extent and nature of its program in documents supplied to a House of Representatives government operations subcommittee.

In addition to the Dugway Proving Ground in Utah, where about 5,000 sheep were accidentally killed last year by nerve gas, the deadly gases are being tested at the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland and at Fort McClellan, Ala.

The gases include Tabun, Sarin, Soman, VX—which was responsible for the sheep kill—and mustard, the army documents said.

The gases are packed in bombslets, landmines, mortars, artillery shells and rockets.

The documents are the first admission that open air gas testings have been conducted at locations outside Dugway, committee sources said.

No Blue for Brown

TORONTO (CP) — Constable Sydney Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, had his identification card returned late Friday after David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, had a telephone conversation with Deputy Police Chief John Murray.

Earlier in the day, a charge of discrediting the police force was withdrawn against Constable Brown, but he was ordered to turn in his uniform and his identification card.

The charges against Constable Brown arose after he posed in uniform with a beggar's cup in a photograph which ran in Toronto Life magazines last year. An accompanying article described the difficulties members of the association had in getting pay increases.

Deputy Chief Murray said Constable Brown was asked to hand in his uniform because the police commission felt he did not need it.

Constable Brown has been on leave of absence from the police force since 1962 when he became president of the association.

Charles O. Bick, president of the police commission, said the decision to withdraw the charge against Constable Brown was made by the deputy chief, but Hugh Crothers, a member of the commission, disagreed.

He said the decision was made by the police commission during a meeting Thursday.

Kelso Roberts Writes Memoirs

Bellevillian Who Became Attorney-General Dubs Robarts '007'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Kelso Roberts, the Belleville boy who went on to become a provincial cabinet minister and political rival of Premier John Robarts, has labelled the premier a James Bond in matters of finance.

Mr. Roberts, who was defeated by Mr. Roberts for the Conservative leadership in Ontario in 1961, has privately published his political memoirs today. The book is called Thirty Years of Ontario Political Action.

Mr. Roberts, 70, joined the Frost Cabinet as attorney general in 1955, quit the Cabinet in November 1958, and resigned his seat (St. Patrick's) in March, 1967. He is now practising law in Toronto.

In his book he makes clear he does not hold Mr. Roberts in the same respect and admiration as he did his previous premier, Leslie Frost.

"In the last three or four years of my association with government and the legislature of Ontario, he, Mr. Roberts, came to remind me of James Bond, not in the spectacular personal performance of superman and lover attributable to Bond, but rather in his well-publicized forays with consequent huge commitments on behalf of the province in enterprises scarcely less safe than the episodes of Bond."

As land and forests minister, the post he held at the time of his resignation from the cabinet, Mr. Roberts was a booster of the attractions of his native Quinte area. He once recounted the story of how he told a visiting Russian dignitary, as they were flying over the area on a trip from Ottawa to Toronto, "Down there is the most beautiful countryside in the world."

His father, a Belleville lawyer, died when Mr. Roberts was 11, and he was raised by his mother, grandmother and aunt. He obtained his education in city public schools and the old Belleville High School, later going on to Upper Canada College and Royal Military College.

Mrs. A. McLean Haig, R.R. 3, Belleville is a sister.

Mr. Roberts left Queen's Park expressing serious concern over levels of Government spending and unhappy about failure to crack down in the securities field. He discusses these issues in his memoirs.

"John Roberts became, in the rapid — transit type of government he developed and headed, at times a victim of the huge propaganda machine he was party to building.

"His powers of extrication have so far triumphed and he has avoided politically disastrous consequences," Mr. Roberts writes.

Mr. Roberts reveals that in September, 1966, he he sent Mr. Roberts a number of charts drawn of show escalation of provincial spending since 1945. In the five years from 1946 to 1950, provincial revenue exceeded expenditures by $26.3 million. The balance was reversed and by the 1966-67 fiscal year the government was forecasting a single - year deficit of $337 million.

On the securities issue, Mr. Roberts writes that he called for stock exchange reform in speeches in and outside the legislature before his retirement.

In one speech, he described securities and stock exchanges as survivors of an era of financial piracy, often accompanied by double - dealing. He called for a review of the function, adequacy and purposes of stock exchanges.

Capt. Ed Gurney and family view Belleville Salvation Army Citadel. Capt. Gurney has taken over command of Belleville corps.

New Officer for City's Salvationists

The Salvation Army's Belleville citadel has found a fresh recruit for its admirers — a man who will spend much of his working days within its newly-built walls.

He is Capt. E. T. Gurney, now in Belleville to take command of the city's Salvation Army corps.

Capt. Gurney was posted to the Quinte city from Brandon, Man., and among his first vivid impressions of his new command was the recently-constructed citadel on Victoria Avenue.

"I think it's probably one of the finest I've seen anywhere," he comments.

His wife, Glenys, agrees.

The Gurneys — shown above viewing the citadel with children Kenneth, Carolyn and Marian — have had much opportunity for comparison.

Born in Oshawa, Capt. Gurney met his wife — whose hometown is Guelph — while attending Salvation Army training college in Toronto.

Since then they have served in various areas of Ontario and the West.

Capt. Gurney's postings included Kirkland Lake, Carleton Place, Toronto and Calgary, before his appointment to Brantford three years ago.

He succeeds June Dwyer — now promoted Salvation Army major and in charge of the East Toronto citadel — to the Belleville post.

Picton Man Dies In Whitby Crash

WHITBY — Harold Bassett, 41, of Picton was instantly killed Friday in a series of 15 accidents on a five - mile stretch of highway 401 near here.

Bassett's transport truck was in collision with a car and two other trucks that had stopped, or were stopping, because of accidents on the road, say police.

Visibility at the time was almost zero due to a heavy fog layer which blanketed the Whitby area for several hours in the morning.

Eric Cooney, of Belleville, is in critical condition in Toronto General Hospital with injuries sustained in the same accident. Cooney was a driver of one of the transport trucks. Two other persons were also injured in the series of accidents.

HARD ON HEARING

EDMONTON (CP) — Farmers and drivers of earth moving equipment are among the persons most affected by high noise levels—noise that will damage permanently their hearing ability. Keith Smith, a hygienist with the Alberta Industrial health services, told the Alberta Public Health Association. He warned that too much noise can cause pain, nausea, fainting, convulsions and ever death.

PM Qualifies His Statement

was unparliamentary and should be withdrawn. But he invited the prime minister to agree with him that members of the House should not impute motives to other members.

"Although that word used may describe the seriousness of a statement asked by the question, I certainly wish to obey your ruling, sir, and I do so," Prime Minister Pearson said.

With that qualified if with drawal the uproar died down.

A government move shortly afterward to resolve the rules dispute took the form of a subamendment to Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) to a Conservative amendment to the government's time-allocation proposal.

The sub-amendment proposed that the matter be referred back to the House committee on procedure and organization, as suggested by the Conservatives. But instead of being instructed to eliminate the provision for government allotment of debating time, it would retain it to cover two situations.

Where no agreement can be reached by the four parties, and where the government and the official Opposition do not form part of a majority favoring a particular time-allocation formula.

If the Liberal proposal had been accepted, the debate would probably have been cleared for a speedy end to the debate and the parliamentary session.

However, the Speaker accepted opposition arguments that the sub-amendment went beyond the scope of the amendment it purported to deal with, and ruled it out of order.

The rules debate was later short by an emergency debate on the government's new Indian policy.

Quebec Man Is Charged

A Quebec man is in Hastings county jail on a charge of possession of an offensive weapon after provincial police allege they found a sawed off shotgun in the trunk of his car.

Patrick John French of La Salle, Quebec, was stopped by the OPP on Thursday night for speeding on the Macdonald Cartier Freeway near Belleville. A subsequent search of his car revealed the shotgun, police say.

A passenger travelling in the car was released. Bail for French was set at $2,000 cash.

New Pollution Controls Are Lauded by Potter

"Wonderful" was the reaction of Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, to the provincial government's crack-down on pollution, announced late yesterday.

"They're finally doing something," he said this morning, commenting on regulations introduced by Ontario Minister of Energy and Resources George Kerr.

The new regulations, claimed to make Ontario the Canadian leader in pollution control, call for devices on new cars to control exhaust gases and measures to prevent discharge of contaminants from steel mills, asphalt factories and refineries. The industrial controls must be in operation by Sept. 30, 1970. Commercial and diesel vehicles manufactured from now on must have anti-pollution exhaust controls.

"I have a lot of confidence in Mr. Kerr," Dr. Potter added. "I have discussed the matter of pollution with him for the past one-and-one - half years. Last week, when he was in the district to open the O'Hara house I took him around and pointed out some of the local conditions.

"I feel these regulations are just the beginning. Before long he will be cracking down on all forms of pollution."

Dr. Potter lauded Corby's as a leader in the local fight against pollution, with new control measures now being installed at its Corbyville distillery.

"But we still have a problem with Domtar (a paper manufacturer) in Trenton and I hope Mr. Kerr will find a solution for this one," Dr. Potter added.

He said the main problem locally is water pollution, but he feels more optimistic about the situation now than he did when he first entered the legislature.

Regarding DDT, he noted that the Department of Lands and Forests has ceased using the insecticide and "we're pretty well at the stage where it will be banned for general use."

Dr. Potter said he is seriously concerned with detergents containing phosphates which added nutrients to the water, thus promoting algae growth.

"It's coming to the stage where we will have to ban them too," he said. "Until we clamp down, manufacturers won't come up with a substitute for the phosphate detergents. I'm sure they could find a substitute that won't pollute our waters if they were forced to."

Versatility Keeps Her Busy

By JUDY SCRIEDER
Staff Reporter

Playing piano, teaching, attending summer courses at Queen's and raising a family — any one of these would keep the average woman busy.

For Mrs. Margaret Flett, 58 Lansdowne Dr., Belleville, all four activities are important.

Born in a "small town" in Southern Manitoba, her lifelong ambition was to teach. Having received her teaching certificate in Winnipeg, she was employed by the Manitoba School Board instructing students in music. In The Pas music festival, Mrs. Flett entered 22 choirs.

An accomplished pianist, she has been playing professionally in the Hertt Mueller Trio for the past three years, entertaining at weddings, dances and clubs in the immediate area, as well as Toronto. Mrs. Hertt's natural musical ability helps her in "faking" some songs — she can play any piece if it's humable.

The Fletts came to Belleville from Quebec five years ago.

For the past three Mrs. Flett has been employed by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board in its "home instruction program," working with physically disabled teenagers unable to attend regular classes. Mrs. Flett, the only such teacher in Hastings County, conducts her classes in homes or hospitals.

This summer, Mrs. Flett is furthering her own education, picking up two credits at Queen's University towards an eventual Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English and a minor in Psychology.

Last summer, while working on an English credit, she attained the highest mark in her class and was subsequently awarded the Queen's University W. T. MacClement scholarship. Coming to Kingston every day, she returns home to look after her own family, four children, ranging in age from four to nine years.

All this activity sets a busy pace. But, Mrs. Flett says she loves every minute of her busy days and never seems to tire.

"I just wouldn't be satisfied if I wasn't involved in all these things," she says.

Things are happening right around her own household too — "Patches" the family cat has had a litter of kittens

'We're Proud of Mom'

Mrs. Flett, accomplished pianist and winner of the Queen's University W. T. MacClement award for the highest mark in English last summer, relaxes from busy schedule with children. With her are Janet, 9, Craig, 6, Jennifer, 4, and Cara, 7.

Wellington Still Waits Word on School Tax Rates

PICTON — The budgetless village of Wellington and its reeve Robert Boyce still await word on Prince Edward County's school tax situation.

About four weeks ago Mr. Boyce and three other Prince Edward County reeves went to Queen's Park, to protest the county board of education's tax rates.

Returning from the trip Mr. Boyce stated he felt progress had been made in a two-hour discussion between the county delegates and education department officials. It was believed an error had been discovered in the calculation of the education tax levies of three of the four townships represented. Confirmation of progress by department officials was expected by Reeve Boyce and his fellow delegates within a week.

Four weeks have passed and there still is no confirmation of possible calculation errors.

During this time The Prince Edward County Board of Education requisitioned one third of Wellington's education tax levy.

The village ignored the request and did not set a budget at its last council meeting July 7.

Prior to the council meeting Mr. Boyce said he spoke with Norris Whitney, M.P.P., and was promised that the county delegation to Queen's Park would "know more" in a few days.

Mr. Boyce reported today that he had made three telephone calls in an unsuccessful attempt to learn more from department officials.

"We've got to get an answer soon in order to set our budget," said Mr. Boyce.

"It puzzles me that there has been a delay of four or five weeks," he added.

The delay, however, has not affected Wellington council's decision to withhold payment of the requisitioned tax money, he indicated.

Commented Mr. Boyce: "If they can delay a decision then we can delay a payment."

How is the board of education reacting to the hold out?

"They have said nothing," stated Mr. Boyce.

Hail Hits Fruit Farms

AMELIASBURG — Hail, one of the dreaded risks of fruit farming hit Ameliasburg township during today's early-morning thunderstorm in the Belleville area.

Hail stone, some as large as peas, fell for two or three minutes in the driving rain storm, reported apple grower Lyle Weese of RR 1, Carrying Place.

"I wouldn't guess the damage caused, but some fruit will be marked as a result," he said.

Horses Seek Greener Grass

PICTON — Horses, like people, apparently sometimes fall prey to the proverb that grass is always greener on the other side of the fence.

Last night six horses and ponies, grazing on the property of Pierce Jones here, escaped the .50-acre pasture and headed for the other side of the fence — in this case a wheat field belonging to Calnan's dairy farm.

The six errant equines made their escape through a gate opened by pranksters.

Owners were notified by the OPP and rushed to the scene armed with grain basins and bolder shanks.

About 20 would-be wranglers took part in a round-up lasting nearly two hours. The horses, luckily, remained in the wheat field and did not approach the nearby highway.

And, like humans, horses do not necessarily learn with age that the grass isn't greener elsewhere. Frolicking in the wheat field was a black golding named Star Dust who is 34 years old.

Former Warden On School Board

PICTON — Wilfred Burrus Wellington - Hillier school area representative to the Prince Edward County Board of Education has resigned.

Mr. Burrus submitted his resignation after accepting a job as manager of a new feed company branch at Copetown, near Hamilton.

Replacing him on the board will be Mrs. James Clemenson, a Wellington resident, active for many years in municipal affairs.

Mr. Clemenson, Wellington greenhouse operator, is a former County Warden. He also served as Reeve of Wellington for a time, and was the village clerk for several years.

Tiny Dictionary Defines 18,000 Words

By GEORGE H. CARVER

You've heard the expression: "I'll cram his words down his throat."

Recently I discovered the feat can be performed, literally, especially if Daniel Webster were alive.

The Websterian "dose" comes in a dictionary one and one-half inches long one inch wide and one-half inch in thickness.

It is bound in a fold over leather case with a dome fastener.

On the front is inscribed in faded gold lettering: "The Little Webster."

It contains 786 pages upon which are printed 18,000 words.

On the reverse side in the same faded gold is inscribed a cut of the American Liberty Bell with the lettering "The Sesqui - Centennial Philadelphia. 1776-1926. 150 Years of American Independence."

The print, I would say, is very legible five-point with the words set in blackface, their definitions in lightface type.

The tiny tome can be read easily with the naked eye. No magnifying glass is necessary. Minute punctuation marks such as periods, commas, colons, semi-colons are exceptionally plain.

The Websterian Lilliput contains 715 pages of words and their definitions beginning with "A". "aback-backward" to "Z". "zyme, a ferment".

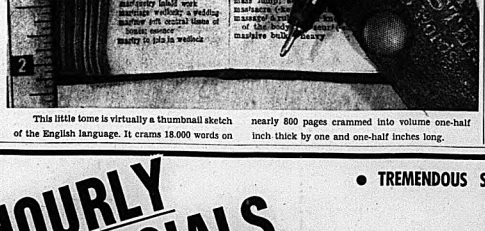
These are followed by pages of abbreviations and special abbreviations used in advertising, newspapers, and by writers, stretching from "A.A." - Associate of Arts to "YMCA".

Then follows weights and measures avoirdupois, troy, apothecaries, long cloth, square, cubic, liquid, old wine, dry, shipping time and angular.

It contains the metric system, measures of length, measures of surface, land, volume, wood, and dry and liquid measures.

An explanatory note says "some words difficult of representation in ordinary spelling have fluid pronunciations represented in whole or in part by re-spelling in parenthesis."

Then follows coins of practically every country in the world and their nominal values.



The tiny book ends with some eight or ten pages of irregular verbs.

The little book is exceptionally well preserved date no doubt to the wrap-over leather binding. The pages show little of the yellowing hands of time.

About 90 per cent. I would say, are as black and white as the current edition of a daily newspaper.

Apparently it was printed as a memento of the Philadelphia Sesqui - Centennial in 1926.

It is the property of Mrs. Jim Cook, 294 Front Street, who discovered it while browsing around in a Greenwich Village, New York used-book shop in 1932 and purchased it for $2.70.

This little tome is virtually a thumbnail sketch of the English language. It crams 18,000 words on nearly 800 pages crammed into volume one-half inch thick by one and one-half inches long.

Industrial Boost

Belleville's industrial prospects could scarcely be more promising than they are at this time.

These prospects are all the more significant considering that only a year or two ago the city seemed to be very much in the doldrums.

Now events are moving rapidly as a whole new range of commercial enterprises become established.

All the more encouraging are the observations of executive personnel from the new plants in our midst. For instance, Brooke Bond President F. L. Patterson when he was here the other day noted Belleville's proximity to major international markets, its record of good labor relations, its industrial promotion program and forecast that the area likely would become the nucleus of an important food-processing industry.

Mr. Patterson went so far as to describe the city as one of the finest industrial locations in Canada, with space to grow and added, "We focused on Belleville for reasons which other firms planning to expand cannot help but notice as well."

In a sense it is puzzling that it has taken so long in recent years for industrialists to recognize Belleville's potential. True, the city has always had a solid industrial base, but for a time it looked as if it was losing momentum. Now all that has changed and suddenly the city is on its way to an exciting industrial future.

The Brooke Bond president, head of one of the country's top food-processing concerns, mentioned other new industries coming here — Campbell's Soup, the Four Seasons resort hotel combined with a Bell Telephone training centre, and predicted the Belleville-Trenton area would soon rival the Niagara-Hamilton-Toronto region as this country's leading industrial complex. .

All this has not come about without effort. The Industrial Commission, with the support of the city and the general public has played a large part. This, together with Belleville's special advantages — proximity to markets and room for expansion, recreational and educational facilities, not to mention an atmosphere more tranquil than that of larger centres — has combined to give the area a well-deserved boost.

The Last Post

The strain of battle shows on the face of William C. Gearing Jr., 20, of Rochester N.Y., pictured on the cover of a recent issue of Life Magazine.

But it is all over now. Gearing is dead, along with 240 other United States soldiers who lost their lives between May 28 and June 3. It was an average week's loss for the Vietnam war where the first U.S. deaths, incidentally, occurred exactly ten years ago this week — on July 8.

Since then 36,000 men have been slain in battle, more than the number who died in the Korean conflict of 1950-53. Return of course has been a much more drawn-out affair.

The bodies of this war start rolling home in the Life photographs of men killed during the week of May 28. Their ages, mostly between 18 and 22. A few were in their middle and late twenties, a few either in their middle and late thirties. But all were young, and of course most of them were very young. There was word a while ago of the death of a husky Negro youth who had lied about his age. The youngest U.S. soldier to die in Vietnam, he was only 15.

Gearing, the handsome youth on the cover could be termed a neighbor, for Rochester is what — perhaps 40 miles across the lake from us, and most of its citizens have been visitors by boat to this area of late. It brings Vietnam just a little closer to Canadians.

Women Drivers

Well it is a proven fact that women drivers by and large are safer behind the wheel of a car than men. The most courteous too, as a survey in Sarnia revealed recently when three out of four winners of courtesy awards were women.

Now they are even entering the field of automotive journalism. Pictured running her eye over material on seat belt safety at a recent seminar in Toronto was Aldona Batternhwaite, assistant editor of the Canadian Motorist Magazine.

Another representative of the distaff side at the conference was Margaret Phipps, one of a panel of eight medical and auto experts who discussed the subject of seat belts and their value in saving lives.

Not only are the womenfolk interested in the subject of highway safety, they also practise it behind the wheel.

Parliament Is A Bore... Needs Livening Up MPs Say

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "The problem here with this issue," rumbled West Edmonton Conservative MP Marcel Lambert, as the Commons began its first summer overtime sitting on the thorny rules question, "is how to put miniskirts on it."

Parliament initially was to have recessed June 27 for the summer, reassembling in early October.

Everyone had their holiday work plans made.

Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative Leader Stanfield, Real Caouette of the Creditistes and Tommy Douglas of the New Democrats, each in his own style, would be going out across the land on some very low key campaigning.

Their followers had rail and air reservations confirmed for travel home to maritime and western points for some holiday relaxation, of course, but more important, for a little fence-mending in the constituency.

Their Ontario and Quebec colleagues, with homes within, at most, a half-day's travel from the Capital, had been slipping out by train, plane and car all week.

The big staff of the Commons and Senate — the hundreds including the masseuse, the stonecarvers, the barbers, (three chairs), the valets (two), the locksmiths, upholsterers, and the sculptor who help keep this little city - on - Parliament Hill in operation — were all set to begin taking their piled-up sessional overtime in the form of extended summer vacations.

And there they all were, six days later, on July 2, beginning a stretch of the unhappiest sort of overtime there is — at work on what should have been vacation days.

The new rules — designed to "modernize" Parliament—were the hangup.

The Liberals called it moderization.

The Opposition labelled it straight-jacketing.

The idea — all were agreed on this — was to speed up the agonizingly slow parliamentary process.

The problem — for the government and opposition alike — how to win, first public interest, and then, public support.

Or, as Marcel Lambert speaking from experience of 12 years in Parliament, as MP, cabinet secretary, the minister and finally as Speaker, saw the difficulty:

"How to put miniskirts on it."

The issue of House rules, baldalloused, as far as the taxpaying public was concerned "has no damned political sex appeal."

It might be the big crunch of all for parliamentarians,but for the public it was a big bore — unless, of course, some inventive House mind discovered a way to give it hazazz.

Once, just such a miracle did come to pass. That was 13 years ago when the rules — involving Closure — became entangled with the explosive issue of the financing of the Trans Canada Pipeline.

But there was a secret ingredient then — now missing — the spectacularly abrasive personality of Clarence Decatur Howe. And without his provocative presence, any instant replay of excitement over such an unexciting issue as House rules was not going to be easy.

Parliament's problem with public interest goes much deeper than the utter lack of political sex appeal of its rules hangup. Rules eventually get straightened out with or without much public interest. But Parliament's deeper problem of public involvement remains unsolved.

Its performance on that first day of summer overtime provides a clue.

Came the Daily Question Period — the supposedly "Sock-it-To-Tudy-Time."

And how do you suppose the Opposition led off — with a blistering series of questions cooked up to burn the government on the hot issue of inflation? Do not be silly.

Then maybe the burning question of housing? Wrong again. Big government spending and high taxes? Uh uh. The continuing morale crisis in the cutback Armed Forces — the ever-higher cost of living — tons of unsold, tough and damp wheat — soaring interest rates — any of these and other issues of which Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer are so acutely aware?

None of them was what?

Biafra, that is what. For the 460th time in the Session. Eight minutes and a page and a half of Hansard on Biafra, shared by Democrats.

Imagine! Four hundred and sixty-six references — count them, they are all catalogued in the Hansard Index — to Biafra.

How many on wheat — not grain, but wheat — would you believe only 15? On inflation, 66. Taxes, 84.

And some of the Honorable Members complain that the paying public does not take them or their Parliament seriously.

Like the kid in the public gallery the other day said, when he saw the House in action: "Get real."

Letter to the Editor

Quack Remedies Will Not Cure Inflation Reader Says

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Many years ago, before the practice of medicine reached its present stage of development, a treatment was used by ignorant men, claiming to be doctors, known as blood - letting.

Whether the patient had a chill or a fever, or an illness unknown, leeches were applied to the body, or blood was drawn from a vein in the hope of effecting a cure.

Of course, the only result was to weaken the patient still further.

Today, our country, Canada, is slightly ill, suffering, in fact, from galloping inflation of the money-fix.

Accordingly, the "political quacks" and financial blood-letters who inhabit Parliament Hill have applied the ancient quack remedy.

The leeches have been turned loose, and the sky is the limit for interest rates and taxes, all in the name of a healthier economy.

Now if the higher interest rates and taxes will cure inflation, obviously low interest rates and low taxes must have caused the inflation in the first places. Does anyone believe this?

I predict that the present money policies will kill off many small businesses, make housing more and more expensive, cause manufacturers to again increase prices, force unions to demand higher and higher pay, and in short, weaken the patient by increasing inflation.

And furthermore, I accuse our political and economic quack leaders and financial experts, of deliberately using a remedy that they know will not work. The ancient quack doctors had the excuse of ignorance. What excuse is there for our government?

Lakehead No More

The Name Is 'Thunder Bay'

Owen Sound Sun-Times

The names Port Arthur and Fort William, long familiar to Canadians and especially those of us with a superficial interest in Great Lakes shipping, are passing into the limbo of Canadian history.

The two cities, familiarly known as The Lakehead, are amalgamating into one big city along with the townships of Neebing and McIntyre. The name of the new city will be Thunder Bay.

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough has signed an order - in - council confirming the Thunder Bay name, but not before many protests had been made by residents who sought to retain the name Lakehead for the new city.

In a plebiscite last month, voters chose Thunder Bay over two other choices, Lakehead and The Lakehead. Thunder Bay received 13,821 votes, Lakehead, 13,303 and The Lakehead 8,477. Some voters thought that the similarity between the last two names sold it the vote and insisted that the name Lakehead be retained.

In the final analysis, Mr. McKeough tossed the ball to the newly elected council of the city to get on with the name. The council backed Thunder Bay.

And so the new city is Thunder Bay, a name not unknown to Canadians. But it will be a long time before the familiar term Lakehead disappears from use.

When to Shake Hands —UK-Style

F.S.M. in the
Winnipeg Free Press

British etiquette is a difficult thing to master, and it continues to puzzle even such pillars of the British Establishment as Basil Boothroyd, the assistant editor of Punch.

In the letters column of The Times of London, Mr. Boothroyd has broadcast a moving appeal to knowledgeable readers, asking them to enlighten him on the proper procedures of a handshake. This is an appeal that will evoke painful experiences in the heart of many visitors to Britain.

On the continent of Europe it's simple: one shakes hands continuously and on all occasions. You meet a person, you shake hands. You part from him, you shake hands. (If it is a she and you feel particularly chivalrous you may throw in a hand kiss.) You meet the same person a few hours later, you shake hands. No problem.

In North America you shake hands as the spirit moves you. But it's different in Britain.

I remember once being invited to the home of the late Lady Margaret Stewart, the daughter of Lord Londonderry. The door was opened by a young man in slippers and shirt - sleeves. He put out his hand. I shook it warmly. How could I know, having never met a butler before and having always imagined butlers as middle-aged gentlemen in morning coat and sideburns, that the man I shook had stretched to grasp my hat and umbrella?

So I can feel with Mr. Boothroyd when he writes: "Can anybody tell me the present rules for hand-shaking? . . . I mean socially. Introductions, say, Either I stick my hand out and they look at it as if it's the first they've seen, or I decide not to and they're reaching up my sleeve for it. What about hostesses and guests? Shake on arrival but not departure? The other way round? Both? Neither? Does sex come into it? Class?

"All I know is that whatever the local rule, I'm always wrong. Help."

It's All in the Mind

Windsor Star

Montreal's Dr. Hans Selye, who makes many things uncomprehensible where little light was shown before, now offers the encouraging news that "an awful lot of harm is done by exaggerating the dangers of anything."

By way of example, he avers that doctors and medical societies that lead public health crusades may do more - harm than good. As a case in point he asserted this week that he finds many people suffering from heart neurosis.

Smoking is bad for you? Dr. Selye points out it is a common way of reacting to stress. If people didn't smoke, they would probably overeat or else chew their nails and feel, or drive aimlessly, which may not be an improvement on smoking.

The doctor himself, now 62, likes to rise at 5 a.m. and take a whirl around the campus on his bicycle. The exercise, he suggests, won't be restrained. Most of us who like to settle back for another forty winks on these dewy morns will be grateful for the hint.

Anglican and United Church Women Are Trained Together

TORONTO (CP) — Women who want to work for the Anglican or United churches now are being trained at the same school, a move the school's principals say may have unpredictable side effects.

The Anglican Women's Training College and Covenant College, the United Church training school, began fully combined operations in June.

Harriet Christie calls the arrangement a trial marriage, to be made legal next year if it works out, but she also says the Anglican property is being sold.

Dr. Christie and Marion Niven are co-principals of the new school, as yet unnamed. Dr. Christie has been principal of Covenant College, Miss Niven of the Anglican college. Staff and students of both now are at Covenant.

Dr. Christie says: "There is a feeling for Anglicans that they have burned a pretty big bridge."

She says the school project is not officially a step toward the much-discussed union of the two churches, but is an undertaking that will be watched.

"We are recognized by both churches, of course. We had official approval to proceed. But no one officially regards this as a step toward church union.

"I think it would be fair to say both our churches are watching to see how this works out, to see how further steps might be taken" to church amalgamation.

"We are trying to be careful, knowing this could further or hamper things."

The school has 27 students, most of them from the United Church. Enrolment in the Anglican school has been low for several years.

Miss Niven says she hopes the combined school will have a positive effect on the standing of Anglican women workers, which she says needs improving.

"A lot of parallel things are happening that might affect it. I see this change as part of the picture. We are a new college, trying to fit the needs of the 1970s. A lot of people are still thinking of church workers in terms of the 1950s."

She says what needs changing most is the attitude toward women in the church. She recently attended a meeting of Anglican women church workers who want to form an organization of registered church workers.

"We talked about what we would put on a button if we gave buttons out at the Anglican general synod meeting in August. One suggestion was 'May women speak for themselves,' instead of someone saying, 'You are in the church and these are your talents, and this is what you will be doing.'"

The school teaches women and men who work for the churches in jobs other than the ministry, such as Christian education and church social work. The United Church school has accepted male students for about six years. Dr. Christie says they also accept students who are not necessarily going to work for the church.

She says the two schools plus the Presbyterians' Ewart College have co-operated on some courses for a number of years. Negotiations to combine the United and Anglican schools began two years ago, and they shared classes last year.

The central part of the course is a seminar to focus on issues in society and on the relationship of Christianity to them.

"We don't basically hope to recruit more people. Jobs aren't as plentiful as they were. For so long we didn't have enough graduates. We don't know what's happened, whether churches have stopped asking us or started hiring lay people. And with churches amalgamating, if there are enough ministers to go around, then jobs will go to men.

"I hope we may be able to help prepare people for new ways in which the church can work, whether in jobs the church will pay for or as volunteers.

"For instance, we must do some work in bridging the gap between youth and parents, find ways of working with young people so they help build their own programs. We need more skill in working with people, in building programs rather than laying on structured plans.

"And we must work toward renewal of the church at the points where the church is changing. In the area of faith itself, we want to provide the opportunity, for people who want to do this, to work through questions of their own faith and belief, and not tell them what to believe."

Artistic Monk

Rev. Diaken Filotsy Kstoz, 65, the beekeeper monk at the Studite monastery near Woodstock, Ont., displays one of his religious paintings. Distinguished by rich, glowing colors on gold backgrounds his paintings hang in numerous churches throughout Europe. All Father Kstoz's work is the property of the monastery and he never knows the sale prices.

Eastern Europe Red States Differ in Stands on Religion

VIENNA (AP)—Religion is still being attacked in all Communist states, but different lines are followed in the East European countries.

Albania, China's only ally in Europe, officially closed all places of worship last year. Travellers arriving there reported they saw destroyed or damaged churches and mosques throughout the country, the Austrian Roman Catholic news agency Kathpress has reported.

In October, 1967, an Albanian literary monthly declared that 2,169 churches in the country of 2,000,000 inhabitants had been closed by then.

Bulgaria, a staunch follower of the Moscow line, constitutionally grants religious freedom, but in practice this amounts to a pretence of tolerance toward the Eastern Orthodox Church which strictly adheres to the political attitudes of the ruling Communist party. The Bulgarian Orthodox Church, as did its Soviet sister, publicly approved the Soviet-led Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia last August.

While making a show of subsidizing the Orthodox Church, Bulgaria officially welcomes the decline of religion. The official news agency BTA noted in December, 1968, that the number of non-believers had risen from one-fifth to six-tenths of the population after the Communist takeover in 1998. BTA said "Communist society is making efforts to free the believers from religious deception."

Romania, which has repeatedly asserted the right of each Communist state to sovereignty, also has taken a stand of its own in matters of religion. Party chief and President Nicolae Ceausescu said last year: "We appreciate the contribution of the cults and their leaders to the building up of the new Romania."

The patriarch of the Romanian Orthodox Church, Justinian Marina, openly condemned the invasion of Czechoslovakia barely three days after it took place.

Romanian Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer and Foreign Minister Cornelia Manescu paid a visit to the Roman Catholic pontiff when they were in Italy last year.

While some 60 per cent of the Romanian convents had been closed by 1963, seven out of 10 Romanians were still members of the Romanian Orthodox Church.

Hungary recently reached an accord with the Vatican on the appointment of bishops, but the deadlock over Josef Cardinal Mindszenty's exile is still a political refugee at the United States Embassy in Budapest—still has not been overcome.

Several Hungarian churchmen have been arrested in the past few years and some still are in prison. The mere fact of attending a church wedding recently caused the expulsion of a Hungarian Communist from the party.

The Czechoslovak government has recently started secret talks with the Vatican, amid signs of improved church-state relations. As far back as 1965, the Czechoslovak authorities started releasing priests from prison, but they were not allowed to resume their clerical duties.

Pressure on the church in Czechoslovakia and Hungary is easier than elsewhere in southeastern Europe. Most of the action is against religious classes in the schools. The result is that only a fraction of elementary and secondary school children attend such classes.

Sheffield Plate Discovered By Accident in the 1740's

At one time Sheffield Plate had a specific meaning. In the days before electroplating this sheets of silver were fused to a copper plate, one on each side like a sandwich. After fusing the Sheffield Plate could be worked like solid silver.

Sheffield Plate was discovered by accident in the 1740s by Thomas Boulsover. He used a copper penny to wedge a silver knife handle in a vise, while he repaired it. After fusing the Sheffield Plate could be worked like solid silver.

Boulsover did not follow up his invention except in the manufacture of buttons and snuff-boxes. Joseph Hancock was the first important manufacturer of Sheffield Plate and his earliest was silvered on one side only. Soon eventually gave up silver-smithing to concentrate on rolling Sheffield Plate for others, by silvering it on both sides.

Henry Tudor and Thomas Leader, both silversmiths, manufactured Sheffield Plate as did a number of others, notably Matthew Boulton.

The same skill and care used in silver-smithing was applied to the manufacture of the new fused plate. Ingenious methods were developed to bind the edges so the copper didn't show. Forks, spoons and pierced work baskets were also made of Sheffield Plate.

It was illegal to mark Sheffield Plate items, and there was some concern that it was even illegal to manufacture them. In 1784 an Act was passed giving platers the right to mark their work as long as it was not an Assay Office mark. As makers were not required to mark their wares, much of it is unmarked:

Sheffield Plate is valuable now for the skilled workmanship involved and the quality of objects manufactured. In the 1840s when electroplating developed, sheffield fused plate was dropped for the cheaper, easier-to-manufacture electroplate. The name "Sheffield Plate" was retained as a standard of quality. Most current silver plate advertised as "Sheffield" is actually a copper base, machine punched to shape and electroplated with silver, exhibiting none of the skill or handwork of the original.

The cake basket illustrated (sheffield fused plate of the period 1740 to 1840) is said to have been taken from the tent of General Prevost after the Battle of Stoney Creek in the War of 1812. There is a second cake basket, engraved—"This basket was taken from General Porter's tent in the War of 1812 - 14 and was given with other articles of loot to Major Fitzgerald of 41 Regiment." General Porter, an American General, is thought to have "liberated" the second basket from a home at Niagara-on-the-Lake earlier in the War. Both baskets are Sheffield Plate: The engraved basket provides us with evidence that Sheffield Plate remained in Canada after 1814.

Most old Sheffield Plate shows copper at points of wear. The genuine article is worth more than electroplate and less than sterling. In perfect condition old Sheffield is almost indistinguishable from sterling. Take file out may be used to detect copper. Silversmith's hammer marks are good, but not infallible indication of early Sheffield fused plate.

Friends Honor Couple

MARMORA — An "at home" was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kilpatrick, Marmora, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary on July 3.

The celebration was planned by Mrs. Beatrice Kilpatrick, Madoc, and their daughters, Mary Anne, teacher of home economics at Carleton Place District High School, and Bonnie, in grade 13 at Centre Hastings Secondary School, Madoc.

Besides the many friends who called in the afternoon and evening, immediate families here for the occasion were Mrs. Kilpatrick's sisters — Rev. Sr. Josephine O'Neill, Superior of St. Francis General Hospital, Smiths Falls, Mrs. Reg. Leslie of Toronto and Mr. Loney, and Mrs. Margaret Stover of Peterborough, cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Neil O'Keefe of Campbellford, and Mr. Kilpatrick's mother, Mrs. Kilpatrick, Madoc. Mrs. Annie O'Neill of Peterborough, a sister of Mrs. Kilpatrick was unable to attend due to illness.

Special thanks was given the couple by Rev. Father T. G. Scanlan, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, who also blessed the gift of gold rings given them by their daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Kilpatrick were married in Sacred Heart Church on July 3, 1944, by Rev. Father H. J. Farrell, pastor at that time. Born in Madoc and Marmora respectively, they have resided in Marmora for the past 20 years.

Stoco Couple Celebrates 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hughes, of Stoco, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Their family honored them with a surprise celebration. It started with 9:30 Mass at St. Edmund's church, Stoco, offered in their honor.

Their three sons, and their wives and two daughters and their husbands and all their grandchildren attended, plus many close relatives.

In the afternoon open house was held from 2 to 4 p.m. A beautifully decorated table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake. During the afternoon, Mrs. Hughes' two sisters poured, Sister M. Rose and Sister Clarissa and two granddaughters served. Miss Janie Hughes and Debby Weise.

About 150 guests signed the guest book.

Among those present were Sister Maurina, sister of Mr. Hughes. She was the bridesmaid at their wedding in 1919. The best man was Leo Whalen of Taber, Alberta, who was unable to attend. Several out-of-town guests were also present.

Later, a five o'clock dinner was served to about 75 in number, of family and close relatives.

Guy Hughes (brother of the bridegroom of 50 years) was toastmaster. He presented the "bride and groom" with a gift box of various items.

In the evening, their neighbors and friends in the vicinity brought food, salads and sandwiches and a beautifully decorated cake to wish them a happy anniversary, and also presented towards a gift, also a money tree. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes received many precious gifts.

The previous Sunday to the actual celebration, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes received a certificate of congratulations from Her Hon. John Robarts, the Government of Ontario, presented in person by Mr. and Mrs. Clarke T. Rollins and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills.

The day of the celebration, their daughter Rev. Elder Weiss presented them with a copy of the papal blessing from his Holiness Pope Paul of Rome and Mr. and Mrs. William McCrea, Reeve of the township of Hungerford, presented them with a book of Historic Hastings, compliments of the Hungerford Council.

Lobbyist Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian nurses are urged in an editorial in the July issue of Canadian Nurse to hire a government lobbyist from their own profession to make nursing significant in the eyes of the government.

The editorial, signed by editor Virginia Lindabury, said the government virtually ignores the country's 80,000 nurses when planning health legislation.

A lobbyist could tell the association about pending legislation and government policy and also tell the government about the association's views, the editorial said.

LIEUT. HOWARD R. BERRY AND MRS. BERRY

Berry — Locklin

The wedding was solemnized in Wesleyan Methodist Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 28, 1969, of Edith Jean Locklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Locklin, Belleville to Lieut. Howard Russell Berry of Glen Cove, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Berry Sr. of the same place. Rev. E. F. Le-Roy assisted by Rev. J. S. A. Spearman. Miss Judith Thompson provided traditional wedding music at the organ and provided accompaniment for the soloist Ira Spearman and for a duet selection by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Spearman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of Gioconda embroidered silk organza featuring leg o' mutton sleeves, and a flared detachable train of plain silk organza extending from the empire waistline. She wore a Spanish mantilla headdress of lace and carried a white Bible crested with a solitaire white orchid.

The maid of honor, Miss Hazel Locklin, sister of the bride wore a floor length yellow chiffon over taffeta gown enhanced with long sleeves. She carried a nosegay of white mums and lily-of-the-valley. Another sister, Miss Shelley Locklin along with Mrs. Donna Lee Stockin, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Ellen Logue as bridesmaids were identically attired to the maid of honor. Each carried a nosegay of yellow mums. Miss Debby Hodgen, cousin of the bride was flower-girl, while her little brother was ring-bearer.

Howard R. Berry Sr. father of the bridegroom was groomsman, while those who ushered were Robert Vanda Kappelle, Philip Stockin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Kenneth Locklin, brother of the bride and junior usher Wayne Locklin, brother of the bride.

For the reception at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a pale green ensemble of peau de soie dress and chiffon coat with matching chiffon hat. The bridegroom's mother who assisted wore a pink sheatung dress with matching jacket and a small beret in matching material with a gardenia corsage.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Puerto Rico, the bride chose a turquoise print dress with short cape of plain turquoise material and white picture hat.

The couple on return will reside at Fort Leonardwood, Missouri.

WEDDINGS

RILEY — SMITH

Bridge Street United Church chapel was the setting on Saturday July 5, 1969 at 3.30 p.m., when Helen Lorraine Smith, daughter of Mrs. M. W. MacKay of Ancaster and the late Mr. S. Smith was united in marriage to John Stuart Riley of Toronto, son of Mrs. Stuart A. Riley and the late Mr. Riley. Rev. Robert Crooks officiated at the double-ring ceremony and wedding music was rendered by organist Donald Davenport.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother Clifford Smith wore a bridal gown of white lace over taffeta featuring a square neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her headress was of white silk net roses trimmed with seed pearls from which extended a short silk net veil. She carried a nosegay of American Beauty roses and white carnations.

Her only attendant was Mrs. James Stollard of Sudbury who wore a gown of pale pink lace over taffeta with deep pink satin wedding ring collar and cuffs. Her headdress was styled similarly to the bride's but in pink and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and pink and white carnations.

Gerald Williams attended the bridegroom and the usher was Robert Brett.

A reception was held at Club Canara where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a pale lace over taffeta dress with deeper blue satin wedding ring collar, white accessories and a pink orchid and carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a rose brocaded satin dress with three-quarter length sleeves and flowered hat with white accessories and a corsage of carnations and a white orchid.

On return from a honeymoon to points east, the couple will reside in Toronto.

LINDSTROM — RODGERS

The double-ring wedding ceremony was performed in Parkdale Baptist Church Belleville, on Saturday July 5, 1969 at 12 noon, when Joanne Gail Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Rodgers, Belleville, was united in marriage to Paul Alan Lindstrom, CFB Trenton, son of M.W-O Harold Lindstrom and Mrs. Lindstrom of Picton. The officiating clergyman was Rev. E. Penny assisted by Rev. K. Cairns of Picton. Mrs. Marion Foster played the wedding music and accompanied the soloist Miss Carol Penny.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of white pique with an overlay of daisy patterned nylon fashioned in princess style with round neckline and wrist length bell sleeves of daisy patterned nylon. A three-tier waist length veil of white nylon net with daisy pattern on each tier was caught to a circular headdress of white daisies. She carried a nosegay of yellow sweetheart roses with stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Heather Hansen as maid of honor wore a street-length yellow silk dress with daisy pattern nylon overlay pinafon styled similarly to the bride's. She carried a nosegay of white shasta daisies with yellow mums.

Robert Cairns of Picton was groomsman, while the ushers were Allan Rodgers of Oshawa, brother of the bride, and David Brown of Picton.

At the reception in Parkdale Community Centre, the bride's mother wore a dress of aqua wearing a street-length pink coat and dress ensemble of peau de soie with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a blue lace over silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip points west, the bride donned a dress of mint green linen, white accessories and a corsage of white mums.

ADVOCATES COMPUTERS

VANCOUVER CP — Dr. Leone Prock, an associate professor at Simon Fraser University here, says technology is far in advance of education and is frequently ahead of man's ability to benefit from advances. Dr. Prock, one of a group of 13 experts who met in Paris recently to discuss the implications of new technology, says computers could be used to ease the problem of overcrowding in schools.

"We started earning an extra $80 per week by sending in a coupon like this one."

"Three years ago, we were caught in the squeeze of rising prices—both of us working and still never able to save—or have the things we wanted.

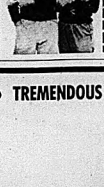
"Then we made an investment.

"We invested in chinchilla ranching with the Chinchilla Guild of Canada.

"We found we could start a chinchilla ranch in a spare room—or even our basement! The animals are clean and quiet—and there's no odor. They require very little attention, so we can ranch in our spare time.

"But the dividends are full time.

"For us, it was the answer.



"Yes, an investment in chinchilla ranching through the Chinchilla Guild of Canada might be the answer . . . for extra income . . . for full time income. And you can start for as little as $700 down.

"If you're seriously interested, fill out this coupon and mail it to me today. I'll see you get the full story. No obligation of course.

Bakeries Enjoy Mary Moore Recipes, Too

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I thought I would let you know how good your recipe for General Brock High School Butter Tarts is. I made some in our bakery yesterday, making your recipe four times as big . . . I am going to try your new Date Oatmeal Squares recipe too. 'Did you ever think when you started writing recipes that they would end up in a bakery? . . . I'm going to give you an idea for a pastry I make sometimes in the bakery, which sells well. It is easy to make so I won't spoil any sales by telling you how . . . Take a white cake. In the bakery we have a large slab 18" x 24". Cut it in half to make two layers. Spread with a little whipped cream and cover with sliced bananas. Put the top layer back on and cover with more whipped cream. Cut in squares about 2½" x 3". Then take a large orange, wash it and leave the peel on. Cut it in thin slices and put one slice on each square. We call them orange banana slices. They really look nice with the white cream and the bright color of the orange. Sometimes I spread a little raspberry jam on the bottom layer before I use the cream and bananas. For a change you can use colored cake instead of plain white. Some thing more expensive but very delicious is to use pound cake instead of white cake. Instead of whipped cream, I suppose any kind of whipped topping would work. I hope you enjoy this if you try it . . . James H. D.

ANSWER: I did! By coincidence I had a pound cake in my freezer so I cut two lengthwise slices, ½" thick, from it and followed your directions and it was attractive and delicious. I thought your suggestion using slab white cake was particularly appropriate for our readers who are social conveners for church and club functions who have hundreds to serve. I made a little change. I peeled the orange and cut each thin slice in four quarters to make eating this square with a fork a little easier. It was pretty too. I think I will try it again in peach season substituting them for sliced bananas. Thank you, James H. D.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Don't ask me for any allowance this week. You didn't get the yard work done the way you're supposed to."

Son: "The grass didn't look as if it needed cutting. I thought I would do it next week."

A friendly reminder of a time limit for accomplishing household chores will be more effective than later punishment for neglecting them.

Father: "The grass should be cut by Friday or it will be too high. Be sure to plan on a couple of hours for yard work between now and Friday."

Son: "I'll do it today or tomorrow."

WITH PERIL AS PARTNER
(An Athenia Survivor's Account)

"Mental pictures will be erased by time." — Edna Campbell.

* * *

On a November day (4th) in 1939, at Hove, (near Brighton), Sussex, England, Miss Edna Campbell, a Brantford, Ontario girl, a dear friend and former college room-mate of "Brantford Young Ladies' College" days of Mrs. E. Branscombe, 64 Queen Street, writes her a first-hand, rare, passenger-account of the sinking of the ocean liner, S. S. Athenia.

As a visitor to the past, Mrs. Branscombe's kindness and generosity allows our readers to peer over the shoulder of the writer of this valuable document as she writes:

"Well, the war came. I have a great admiration for the way the English carry on stolidly amid difficulties. They have 7-6 income tax taken out of every Pound. They have evacuated children planted in their homes; all so much country. Why, there are 30,000 or more in Brighton and Hove. The 'blackout' itself is a trial. Every window must be darkened. Not a glimmer must show. There are not the boats are swept off the seas" in spite of coal rationing.

"If I survive a shipwreck, financial wreck physical wreck I expect I can a winter here. I can get clothes as I go along but never replace my mother's keepsakes — I were daily a string of her pearls which were 70 years old . . . All my weekly possessions went down to Davy Jones' locker.

"I have such a sad tale to tell you of our 'S.S. Athenia' dear Pat. It never seems easy to write it. If I've told you, comes easily, but not that . . ."

all kinds of troubles . . ." and relates how her passport and personal papers were lost at sea, and the difficult ordeal of getting duplicates. "I write endless letters . . . Donaldson Line wants me to go home now, when and where they decide. I mean on a ship they choose, with no convoy. No liners have convoys, only merchant ships" and declares, now that she is settled in Hove

Ann Landers

Mother of Boyfriend Wants to Pay for Baby

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 18 and pregnant. Jordy and I talked about getting married when we were going together, but when I told him I was in a fix he said that he wasn't going to let a dumbell like me ruin his chances for college. I kicked him out of the house and decided that night to give up my baby for adoption.

ANN LANDERS

Yesterday Jordy's mother came to see me. It was the first time I had ever met her. She offered to pay my hospital and doctor bills, plus $400 if I would give the baby to her cousin and her husband. The couple has been married ten years and they have no children. They are lovely people, she said, and would be so happy if they had a child to love.

I am sick with indecision. My mother says it's up to me. Help me decide — NEED GUIDANCE.

* * *

DEAR NEED: If you sell your baby to this boy's family it will be the second biggest mistake of your life. Do you realize what it would be like to watch your child grow up under your nose? Tell Jordy's mother no and continue with your plans for adoption.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can getting mooched on run in the family? My Dad is the Number One target for relatives who want to borrow luggage, golf clubs, garden tools, etc. My mother has been driving "the girls" to their weekly club meeting for as long as they don't even say "thank you."

I inherited the family curse when I bought a new car seven months ago. A certain guy who works for back home company has figured out the exact minute I will pass his house. Every work day for the last five months Milly the Moocher has been out in front just in time to hook a ride. When I get in my car to go home at night Milly is already sitting in it, waiting for me.

Wouldn't you think he'd slip me a couple of bucks for gas once in a while or maybe offer to fill the tank? Would I be in line if I suggested it? — EL JERQUE.

DEAR EL: Of course, Milly should offer something in the way of compensation, but since he hasn't, don't suggest it. If his cheapness bothers you, change your travel route. In the meantime, how many of you readers who ride free to work are demonstrating your appreciation by crashing through with an occasional token of gratitude?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife is the world's lowest paid employee. For 30 years she has been a cook, a maid, a laundress, chauffeur, gardener, housekeeper, nurse and psychiatrist. She made her own clothes and cut her own hair. She also put up with a miserable mother-in-law.

This great woman managed to raise five wonderful children and she has kept me sane, well and happy.

Don't you think she deserves a medal? I hope you will print this letter because her birthday is tomorrow and I want her to know what she means to me. How about it, Ann? — MARRIED TO AN ANGEL !

DEAR MARRIED: Here it is — plus my birthday wishes to your angel.

Successful Living

Rome-An Empire of Culture

By DORIS CLARK

I was in Rome last month. Rome is 2700 years old. At the time of Christ there were already one million people living there. It was the ancient empire.

Nowadays it is still an empire of commerce and industry and culture, visited by 150,000 Canadians every year. The Canadian Embassy there has been instrumental in bringing out a painting exhibition, a Canadian choir, a dramatic company, and the Canadian ballet — just to mention a few of the efforts we have made to let them know Canada has culture too!

I enjoyed Rome. You can't go around the corner or up a street without running into a Roman statue or an ancient church, or a "Wedding-Cake" palace erected in honor of an emperor like Victor Emmanuel. In the Rome Museum we examined statues carved in marble, of such things as a smiling, pretty little girl; a discus thrower, two wrestlers, a military man of Roman times. I think they must have spent their evenings and weekends chipping out the faces and figures of those they loved. Do you suppose they had arts classes like we have?

But it was the living, 1969 Romans, that I enjoyed the most. They are a friendly, happy people. They dash about on the streets, dodging their own (apparently) disorganized traffic, and willing to give directions to anyone who looks puzzled — even if the directions are wrong. Which they often are. Roman waiters love to heap up your plate with delicious pasta, far more than Canadian stomachs can stomach. And they are insulted if you don't clean up your plate.

Young Romans frankly look all female figures up and down. I began to think that the ladies would have felt ignored or neglected if they had not been looked at. The girls have caught on to the miniskirt fashions: dresses couldn't have been any shorter without turning into neck ruffles.

So much do they prize their links with antiquity that anyexcavating operations which unexpectedly comes upon signs of home built 2,000 years ago (but well underneath the street) will be stopped at once. This is one reason why efforts to create an underground system of transportation have met with great difficulty.

But there are modern parts of Rome. There is the new sports centre built for Olympic games in 1960. There are lovely green parks and fountains and residential developments of modern style.

I learned some useful Italian words, not the least of which was "Parrivederci!", which means I'll be going back — and that's for sure!

Confidential to Worry Wart: I know it sounds wacky to say "Don't worry", and let it go at that, when your world gets upside down. Yet — let's face it — you either control your worries or let them run you ragged. You hold that decision in your own two hands.

Decide, every single day, that you will do your best with what confronts you. Determine that beyond that you will refuse to stew. Do your stewing time to delve into a new area of interest, like reading a space map or a story about Rome! Even a few minutes of change can transform your outlook.

But Use Has Been Banned

U.S. Agriculture Department Has No Evidence DDT Is Unsafe

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States department of agriculture says it has no evidence DDT is unsafe even though the department temporarily has banned use of the pesticide in its own operations.

Senator Gaylord Nelson (Dem. Wis.) charged earlier this week that the department is unwilling to end permanently all use of the chemical because "the department of agriculture is locked in with the agricultural interests who use DDT."

But Dr. George W. Irving, administrator of the agricultural research service, says the department has found nothing to warrant cancelling registration of DDT for interstate shipment under current regulations.

"To do that, we would have to find that DDT is either ineffective or unsafe," Dr. Irving said in an interview. "We have no evidence that it is either."

The department has ordered a halt to use of nine persistent pesticides—including DDT—in government pest-control programs pending completion of a study in early August.

The temporary ban affects only a small percentage of pest-control programs involving use of DDT and the eight other persistent, long-lasting pesticides, Dr. Irving said.

Concern over DDT's effects has been growing since early this year when the federal Food and Drug Administration seized 21,000 pounds of Great Lakes salmon found to contain DDT residues.

Dr. Irving said the effects on fish and wildlife do not enter into his agency's consideration of whether or not to register pesticides for interstate shipment, sale and use.

"There is nothing in our law which is explicit on that," Dr. Irving said. "That would be an extention of our authority that our lawyers aren't willing to grant us yet."

Nelson has urged Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin to cancel registration of DDT. The senator said this week the department is sitting on a report condemning its use for aerial dusting and near lakes, rivers and streams, but this was denied by a department spokesman.

Representative Bertran L. Podell (Dem. N.Y.) urged the department and two other federal agencies to impose a ban on production of DDT, which amounts to more than 100,000,000 pounds a year in the United States.

"You picked a great time of the year to start a feud with our next-door neighbor!"

British Forces Beat Out Canadians in Annual Rifle Shoot

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canada's armed forces placed third—same as last year—Friday in the United Services competition at the Commonwealth rifle shoot.

The eight-man Canadian team came in behind the British regular army, winner for the second year in a row, and the RAF. But it beat out some highly-rated British service teams.

The United Services is the main inter-service shoot for teams of eight at the National Rifle Association meet that opened last Monday and continues to July 19. It is fired at various distances and pits teams from the Commonwealth against eight branches of the British forces.

Scores this year over the trick Bisley ranges were not as good as last year. The British army scored 1,319 out of a possible 1,600 down 21 from its winning score of 1968.

The Canadians fell off by 23 with 1,344. They were beaten out by the RAF with 1,398 but were ahead of the Royal Marines, Royal Navy, territorial army and RoyalhNavy reserve.

In the Canadian cadets' big match of their trip Friday, they missed regaining the Alexander Graham Bell Trophy for a one-day team match against the pick of British cadet forces.

The Britons won it for the third straight year with 715 out of a possible 800 to 706 for the Canadians in the eight-man eventat 200 and 300 yards.

Apart from the cadets, Friday shooting was centered to relatively minor matches as individuals from Canada's three teams —the third is the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association contingent—warmed up for more serious competition during the weekend.

Today's shooting will begin rounding toward the Bisley Grand Aggregate to be decided late next week. Wednesday the marksmen will compete in the first stage of the men's Prize, most coveted of Bisley awards which was won last year by Arnold Parks of Saint John, N.B.

These Students Behave

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealanders are congratulating themselves on the fact that their students are among the best-behaved in the world.

The 29,000 students at six universities and one agricultural college have not joined the almost worldwide movement of protest and violence by students.

An opposition member of Parliament recently described New Zealand students as "the most docile and confirming" group of students in the world.

Peter Rosier, president of the New Zealand University Students' Association, explained:

"Our universities are still too small to support cohesive militant groups to organize activities. Also, the university authorities have kept a lump ahead of student demands.

"Unlike the situation in many other countries, New zealand students have for years hbd representation in the running of their universities. There may be grievances in this sphere, but we can't claim that administrations have been hostile to students.

Avenger Bombs Forest

From April 1, 1968 to Nov. 31, 1968, the federal resources department reports there were 6,933 forest fires in Canada and 2,051 acres of land and timber destroyed. British Columbia, with its stands of giant Douglas fir, spruce, hemlock, pine, cedar and balsam, had a large number of fires in 1968 but were able to control the loss to 33,880 acres. Here, an Avenger bomber drops chemicals on a raging fire in south-central British Columbia.

Individuals Argue Bell's Application To Increase Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — The individual had his say Friday at the Canadian transport commission hearing, dealing with Bell Canada's application for a rate increase.

In a 2½-hour break from the daily routine of highly-complex financial arguments, Robert Archer of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Carlyle Gilmour from the Moosejaw area, explained their personal objections to the application.

Mr. Gilmour said Bell has reduced the real estate value of a farm he owns by building a microwave tower nearby.

Microwave transmissions now were passing over his farm at Covey Hill, 30 miles southwest of Montreal, and prospective buyers "are afraid" to locate there.

He recommended that provincial treasurers impose a property tax on the company to be applied to all land over which microwaves are sent.

Mr. Archer told the commission he should be allowed to present his views even though Saskatchewan is not among the territories served by Bell since he would be affected by any changes the company makes in long-distance rates.

Earlier, Ernest Saunders, counsel for Bell, opposed Mr. Archer's request to appear, suggesting that he was not a "legally interested party" since he did not live in Bell territory or represent anyone who did.

Mr. Archer said reports on the hearing by the Canadian Press had distorted the meaning of the proposed rate increase by failing to mention how it would change rates for long distance calls.

Commission Vice-President Pierre Taschereau said there is much more information in the record of proceedings than appears in the press reports.

Repeated efforts to determine the effect of a rate increase on long-distance calls have failed to produce any firm answers.

Bell spokesman said Friday the increase, if any, for long distance rates has not been calculated.

Bell is applying for rate increases in its territory covering Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and the Northwest Territories.

If granted the increases would mean 40 to 70 cents more a month for home telephones and $1.30 to $2.95 a month more for business telephones.

Later Friday, MP Eugene Whelan (L—Essex) told the commission it should study Bell's activities in the cable television business.

Toronto Announces Controls On Pollution But Not DDT

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government announced controls on environmental pollution Friday, establishing new standards, revising old regulations but refusing to take action on the use of DDT.

The regulations governing air pollution from automobiles, trucks, diesel vehicles and some industries which were announced by Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr place the province in the forefront of pollution control in Canada.

The stringency of standards first established in 1968 has been increased to decrease the amount of pollutant emitted by cars to conform to U.S. regulations. Part of the program will be a safety check system on highways to insure that 1969 and 1970 car and truck models conform to specifications.

BRINGS MEMORIES

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Lawyer Ernest Wentzel, who has been arrested twice for criticizing the South African government, bought the door to the jail cell where he spent 21 days in 1964. He got the door from contractors demolishing the old police headquarters. He said he plans to install it in his home.

At the same time, Mr. Kerr announced the first in a series of industrial pollution controls for iron foundries—there are at present about 90 in Ontario—that will be expanded to cover asphalt factories, refineries and steel mills.

Mr. Kerr also announced a change in regulations requiring pleasure boats with sleeping accommodation to contain toilet facilities and a holding tank. The discharge of raw sewage or garbage from pleasure craft remains forbidden but only boats with toilets must have a holding tank. The exemption applies mainly to sail boats used in racing, he said.

But in a meeting after a press conference, Mr. Kerr told three members of the Pollution Probers, an activist research group against pollution, that the government will consider banning DDT only when its use in the province is shown to be harmful.

Twenty-five members of the University of Toronto group had earlier marched on the legislature wearing gas masks to demand a ban on DDT. Mr. Kerr agreed to meet with members of the group and their sponsor, Dr. Donald Chant of the U. of T. zoology department, to discuss their findings concerning DDT.

The controls on pollution from motor vehicles announced by Mr. Kerr change the units of measurement and tighten the standards. Mr. Kerr said the measurements in future will be in grams per vehicle mile rather than the parts of pollutant per million parts of vehicle exhaust.

Mr. Kerr said iron foundries will be required to submit detailed pollution control schemes by Dec. 21 this year and have controls operational by Sept. 30, 1970. Cost to each foundry will range from $25,000 to $300,000 and the controls are expected to cut pollution from foundries by 97 per cent.

Weslock Eyes Canadian Titles After Provincial Win

BRAMPTON (CP) — What does 51-year-old Nick Weslock to for an encore after winning the Ontario amateur golf championship Friday for the seventh time?

First there's the Canadian Amateur and then the Canadian Open and after that, well, I'll try to qualify for the United States Amateur," said the Scarborough golfer who also won the Ontario Open at St. Catharines last month.

Weslock was one of only three golfers who broke par 72 on the 6,728-yard Brampton Golf Club course Friday. His three-round total was 212, 69-72-71.

This was two strokes better than defending champion Gary Cowan of Kitchener and Wayne McDonald, 21, of Hornby.

Alone at even par 216 was Stu Hamilton of Brampton, who shot a 75 Friday.

Weslock's legs almost didn't carry him to the course in the morning.

"I woke up at 3 a.m. with muscle spasms in both legs. I took some pills and was on a trip until I got to the course."

It must have been a good "trip", Weslock birdied the second and third holes.

But he said he didn't feel he had won the tournament until he sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the par-five 470-yard 17th hole.

He finished with nine pars, five birdies and four one-over pars.

McDonald and Cowan both met disaster on the back nine. After the second round Cowan had a two-stroke lead over five others.

However, he failed to sustain any kind of a drive Friday. He three-putted the 17th for a six and then on the 18th, when it was too late to catch Weslock, he sank an eight-foot putt with a two iron for's birdie on the hole.

McDonald, on the other hand, hit into a creek on the par-three 16th and took a five. Before the 16th he was five under par for the three rounds.

Then on the 18th, his tee-shot landed in a gully, his wedge-shot hit a tree and he wound up with a five.

The only three players to break par Friday, all with 71s were Weslock, Bob Harris of Georgetown, who finished at 223, and Bob Bradley of Oshawa, 225.

With Three Consecutive Sub-par Rounds

Jacklin Leads British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (CP) — Wiry Tony Jacklin of England carried a two-shot lead into today's final round of the 1969 British Open golf championship.

Jacklin has posted rounds of 68-70-70 to date over Royal Lytham's 6,848-yard, par-71 layout, always swept by tricky breezes off the Irish Sea.

His 206 total, five under par, enabled him to overhaul New Zealand's Bob Charles and Ireland's Christy O'Connor. Both are at 210.

Roberto de Vicenzo, the 1967 British Open winner, and Peter Thomson of Australia who has won this title five times, are tied at 211.

The nearest American is Jack Nicklaus on even-par 213. But Nicklaus still is confident he's still in contention at only five shots off the pace.

Nicklaus started with a 75, then got a 70 and Friday a brilliant 68.

De Vicenzo moved from 10 strokes off the pace into contention with Friday's best round, a 66.

Jacklin had his problems Friday, catching bunkers on three of the last four holes, but saved his round with good recovery shots on all three. At 15, he slashed out of the sand to within a foot of the hole.

Charles had a one-under-par on the front nine, but lost four shots on the 12th, 14th and 15th holes. O'Connor also ran into trouble on the back nine, which took him 39 strokes to complete.

"I played as well today as I did when I broke the record yesterday," O'Connor said, referring to his 65 Thursday. "The difference was my putts refused to go in."

The field was cut to 46 for the final round, with 222 the cutoff point.

East and West Split CFL Exhibitions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The East and West split exhibition football games played in the Canadian Football League Friday night.

Touchdowns by Gerry Shaw, Jerry Keeling and Howard Starks carried Calgary Stampeders past the Argonauts in a game before 27,452 fans at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

And in Regina, a blocked convert by linebacker Jimmy Jordan gave Eskimos Tiger-Cats a 32-31 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders before 11,500 fans.

The Stampeders, who opened their pre-season schedule last weekend with a 23-10 victory against British Columbia Lions, were never behind against the Argonauts.

The Western Conference club took a 9-0 lead in the first quarter and outscored the Argos 15-10 in the final quarter. There was no scoring in the second and third quarters.

Larry Robinson had three converts and a single for Calgary while the Stampeders gained their other two points when Henry Harrison and Ron Payne dropped Toronto quarterback Wally Gabler for a safety touch in the first quarter.

Rookie Dickie Moore had the only touchdown for the Eastern Conference Argonauts, making their initial start of the exhibition schedule. Another rookie, Tom Johansen, kicked a convert and 32-yard field goal.

The Argos used Gabler at quarterback in the first and fourth quarters, Frank Cosentino played the second and Tom Wilkinson the third.

Keeling and Redell attempting to replace Pete Liske, played at quarterback for Calgary. Liske left the Stampeders after last season to join Denver of the American Football League.

Tommy Joe Coffey paced the Hamilton attack with two touchdown, four converts and a 38-yard field goal. Fullback Ron Dushney, a rookie import from Notre Dame University, also scored two touchdowns and quarterback Joe Zuger kicked a 48-yard single.

Jack Abendschan booted 13 points for Saskatchewan, three field goals, two converts and two singles while newcomer Bobby Thompson, scored a touchdown. Hugh Campbell, returning to Roughriders this year after one year of coaching at Washington State, scored the other two touchdowns.

Sazio Saves Tax Dollars

HAMILTON (CP) — General manager Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats apparently won't have to go to the Supreme Court of Canada to defend his method of saving money on income tax.

A federal tax appeal court said Thursday his department will not appeal an Exchequer Court decision last December that upheld Sazio's right to sell his services to the Canadian Football League team as a corporation instead of an individual.

By incorporating himself as Ralph J. Sazio Ltd. he has taken advantage of low tax rates that apply to the first $35,000 of corporate earnings.

The case went to court after the tax department ruled the $42,286 paid to Sazio for coaching the Tiger-Cats in 1964 and 1965 was personal income and not that of the company.

Mr. Justice A. A. Cattanach ruled then that any person rendering services may incorporate a business to render those services.

Corporations pay only 12 per cent on their first $35,000 of earnings, much less than individuals.

Sports On All Fronts

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Wren Blair, coach and general manager of Minnesota North Stars, expects a decision July 20 from Punch Imlach on whether Imlach will accept the North Stars head coaching job. The National Hockey League team announced Friday that Blair conferred recently with Imlach, fired coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, near Blair's summer home at Hamilton, Ont. Blair said Imlach has settled his contract with Toronto, disposed of stocks he owned in Maple Leaf Gardens and "is close to making a decision about his future." Blair, who wishes to give up half of the dual front office-coaching job, said Imlach is also weighing an offer from Vancouver "which involves some ownership." Vancouver is considered likely to be granted one of two expansion franchises for 1970-71 when NHL meets Aug. 9 at Chicago.

REGINA (CP) — Birdies on the back nine gave Bobby Breen of Toronto the lead in the Saskatchewan open golf championship Friday with a first-round, five-under-par 66. Breen, with a par 34 on the front nine of the 6,176-yard Wascana Country Club layout, picked up the birdies on the 10th, 11th, 12th, 17th and 18th holes. The professional from the Pine Valley Golf and Country Club has a one-stroke lead over two other Ontario professionals — defending champion Moe Norman of Gilford and Alvie Thompson of Toronto.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Belkin of Vancouver scored the major upset of the afternoon Friday by defeating Cliff Richey of the United States in the quarter-finals of the $25,000 Washington Star international tournament. Belkin beat Richey, ranked No. 5 in the U.S. and a member of his country's Davis Cup team, 7-5 1-6, 6-2. Richie led 5-1 in the first set before Belkin won six straight games. Arthur Ashe of the U.S. defeated Bill Bowrey of Australia 9-7, 6-2. Thomas Koch, Brazil's No. 1 player and sixth seed here, easily defeated Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico, also a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, 6-2, 6-2. Ismael el Shafei of Egypt defeated Jaime Fillol of Chile 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. In the semi-finals today, Ashe meets El Shafei and Koch takes on Belkin.

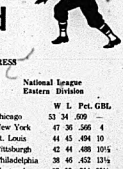
NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Don Bosch of Montreal Expos will return to Montreal today and undergo surgery on his left knee, the club announced Friday night. Bosch, bothered by a recurring knee ailment, batted .179 in 48 games with the Expos.

Sandra's Feeling Happier -- And Her Play Shows It

TORONTO (CP) — Sandra Post of Oakville, with her American friend on leave from Vietnam for a while and "feeling much happier", turned in a two-over-par 75 in the $22,000 women's open golf championship at Bayview Golf and Country Club Friday.

"Do you know, I hit 16 greens today," she said. "For 2½ months I've had putting problems, but they're all gone too." Miss Post said she was tired after touring Canada doing promotional work for an automobile manufacturer, but a week's rest and "knowing John (her friend) is safe" has lifted the pressure.

Miss Post, 21, who has played only 10 tournaments this year in the Women's Professional Golf Association tour, said she plans to return to the circuit "pretty steady" and expects to miss only two more tournaments in the next 2½ months.



Clad in miniskirt, matching blouse and floppy hat for Friday's round in 85-degree weather, she feels she would be getting engaged "pretty soon."

John has only another seven months to serve with the United States Army in Vietnam.

She met her fiance-to-be while playing amateur golf in Florida.

Amateur Sets Record Pace In Quebec Golf Tournament

MONTREAL (CP) — Bert Daykin of Montreal fired a two-under-par 68 Friday, beating the amateur record by two strokes and equalling the pro record, as he took over the lead at the half-way mark of the Quebec amateur golf championship.

Daykin went out in 33 and came home in 35, bettering by two strokes the par 70 mark set by Toni Hunt of Montreal in the 1961 Amateur. He equalled Will Homenuk's "pro" record, established in 1966.

Daykin's round over the 6,465-yard Montreal Summerlea course gave him 141 after two rounds and a four-stroke lead over Don Rioux of Ottawa, the defending champion, who had a one-over-par 71.

Don Davidson of Hull fired a one-under-par 69 for a two-round total of 146 and a third-place tie with Gord LeRiche of Montreal. LeRiche had a 72 Friday.

Bobby Saggo of Montreal, tied with Rioux for the lead with 71 after Thursday's opening round, slipped to fifth place after shooting 76 Friday for a two-round total of 147.

The field of 141 was cut to the low 80s and ties after Friday's round, leaving 84 golfers to battle it out in the third round today. The cutoff score after two rounds was 159.

The field will be cut to the low 60s and ties after today's round.

Porsche Challenged

Watkins Glen Record Falls

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — New Zealander Bruce McLaren and Dennis Hulme both broke the lap record for the Watkins Glen course Friday while a sleek new French Matra moved in to challenge Porsche's domination of international endurance racing.

McLaren and Hulme are preparing for Sunday's $50,000 third event in the 11-race $1,000,000 Canadian-American Challenge Cup series of road races. They were credited with laps of 132.31 and 131.68 miles an hour respectively in their bright Orange Group 7 sports-racing cars designed and built by McLaren.

The fastest previous lap by any machine over the demanding 2.3-mile Glen course was 128.97 m.p.h. by Mario Andretti during the 1968 U.S. Grand Prix for Formula 1 cars.

England's John Surtees, driving a Chevrolet-powered McLaren, rediseigned by Texan Jim Hall, had the next best time for the Can-Am group. He was clocked at 128.57.

Porsche, which already has won the international constructors' title, had the fastest practice times for today's six-hour race for prototype and grand prix touring cars.

But the two Matras, particularly one driven by Frenchman Johnny Servoz-Gavin, served notice they will have to be reckoned with.

Jo Siffert of Switzerland was clocked at 120.88 m.p.h. in his Porsche 908 Spyder.

Servos-Gavin, making his first start on the Glen course, took the new Matra around at 119.65, considered a brilliant debut for the low-slung French entry.

Killebrew Powers Twins to Win; Bosox Collect 30 Hits in Double Sweep

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Carl Yastrzemski, Ken Harrelson and Harmon Killebrew all used long ball power Friday to lift their teams to American League baseball victories.

Yastrzemski clobbered a home run in each game as Boston Red Sox trimmed Baltimore Orioles, the Eastern Division leaders, 7-4 and 12-3.

Harrelson tagged a grand-slam home run, his fifth homer in eight days, as Cleveland Indians bounced Detroit Tigers 8-1.

Killebrew, the current major league RBI leader with 90, socked two home runs for Minnesota Twins in a 9-3 win over Seattle Pilots. The Twins' slugger has 27 homers over the season and nine in the last 10 days.

The second-place Red Sox cracked 30 hits off seven Baltimore pitchers in the doubleheader, 22 in the 12-3 second game, to cut the Orioles' lead to 11½ games.

In other AL games Friday, New York Yankees nipped Washington Senators 4-3, Kansas City Royals beat Chicago White Sox 8-5 and Oakland Athletics blanked California Angels 3-0.

Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith drove in nine runs and scored eight more between them as the Red Sox ripped the Orioles. Smith tagged a three-run homer for Boston's winning margin in the opener after Yastrzemski's seventh-inning homer had snapped a tie.

Then Yaz slammed a three-run shot in the first inning of the second game.

Mike Andrews had five straight hits in the second game and Smith rapped seven hits in the doubleheader, extending his hitting streak to 19 games, longest in the American League this season.

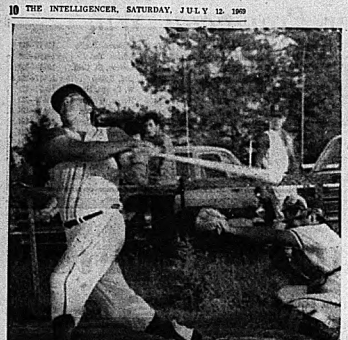
Killebrew drove in four runs with his two homers and a double.

His nine homers in the first 11 days of July make him a threat to the single-month record of 18 set by Rudy York in 1937.

Ted Uhlaender also had a two-run homer for the Twins.

Harrelson, who has hit four homers in Cleveland's last five games, unloaded in a six-run third inning. It was his second career grand slam homer and helped Sam McDowell, win his 11th game of the year, allowing five Detroit hits.

Jim Price homered for the Tigers' only run, depriving McDowell of his shutout with two out in the ninth inning.



Mel Stottlemyre scattered 10 hits and won his 12th game of the season, beating Washington for the Yankees. Horace Clarke's first-pitch homer in the first inning ignited a three-run Yankees' rally. Joe Pepitone drove in a pair of runs for New York and Lee Maye homered for Washington.

Bob Taylor's eighth-inning pinch-hit single drove in the tie-breaking run and then Paul Schaal singled a pair of insurance runs across, helping Kansas City beat Chicago. Bill Mercton drove in three runs for the White Sox, one of them with his 16th homer of the season.

Lew Krausse scattered seven hits and pitched his first complete game of the season, shutting out California for Oakland.

Reggie Jackson drove in two Athletics' runs with a fifth-inning double.

POWER TO SPARE — Shannonville infielder Bill Barberstock does an about-face after taking a mighty cut at one of Harold Pascoe's pitches during league-leading Shannonville's 3-2 win over Read Wednesday night in South Hastings Baseball League action at Read. Barberstock missed this pitch but stroked a double and a single to lead his team's attack.

Dodgers, Braves Swap Lead Again

Cubs and Mets Lose to Also-rans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Mets and Chicago Cubs, fighting for the lead in the National League Eastern Division, were both stunned Friday by losses to teams far out of contention.

The Cubs, who lead the Mets by four games, fell 7-5 at home to fifth-place Philadelphia Phillies. The Mets also played at home and they were bounced 11-4 by Montreal Expos, the expansion team lodged in sixth place, 25½ games back of the leaders.

The Mets, who this week won two of three games from the Cubs, play in Chicago Monday.

Bobby Bonds of San Francisco delivered two key hits as the Giants recovered to win 6-4 in 10 innings over Los Angeles and knock the Dodgers out of the Western Division lead behind Atlanta Braves.

The Braves needed three runs in the ninth inning to down San Diego Padres 6-3 and move half a game ahead of the Dodgers.

In other NL games, St. Louis Cardinals clipped Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 and Houston Astros trounced Cincinnati Reds 12-2.

The Expos ended a four-game losing streak and assaulted the Mets with a 15-hit attack, including a double and two singles by winning pitcher Mike Wegener, who produced four runs batted in.

Wegener, 22, a rookie, won his fourth of 11 decisions, but he needed late help from Dick Radatz.

Wegener was backed by Bobby Wine's two-run homer, his first of the year; Gary Sutherland's two-run double, and Mack Jones' 15th homer.

Ron Brand also contributed three hits and scored three times.

The Cubs grabbed a 5-3 lead with a pair of runs in the eighth, but Philadelphia came back in the ninth on homers by Ron Stone and Johnny Briggs and Tony Taylor's run-scoring single.

Singles by Mike Ryan, pinch-hitter Dave Watkins and Taylor led to the eighth loss in 12 games for Jim Cuba.

Bonds, who hit his winning two-out single to centre after a walk, Hal Lanier's single and another walk, contributed a double and scored one run when the Giants came up with two to tie the score 4-4 in the ninth inning.

Willie Davis' two-run single and Wes Parker's one-run single gave Los Angeles a 4-2 lead in the seventh inning before Bonds helped the Giants to their 11th victory in 14 games. It moved them into third place, two games behind the Braves.

Pinch-hitter Bob Aspromonte singled in two runs and Felipe Alou singled in one in the ninth as Atlanta handed San Diego its fifth straight loss.

The Padres took an early 2-0 lead, but the Braves came back in the third with three runs on singles by Alou, Felix Millan and Clete Boyer and Rico Carty's two-run double.

San Diego pulled even 2-2 in the third when Larry Stahl tripled after Van Kelly singled.

Lou Brock and Vada Pinson each drove in two runs in a five-run seventh that carried St. Louis past Pittsburgh for its seventh victory in eight games.

Houston exploded for nine runs in the sixth, most ever scored in one inning by the Astros. It's hailing Cincinnati's five-game win streak.

Denis Menke led the way with a double and a triple for four RBIs. Jim Wynn had three singles and Doug Rader hit his sixth homer for Houston.

Bikinis Added Attraction At Quinte Dragway

Pure stock and stock competitions will receive added attention Sunday at the Quinte Dragway, but perhaps not as much as the female spectators.

"Bikini Blast II" is the name of the game Sunday at the Quinte Dragway and all girls in bikinis will be admitted for just one dollar.

Meanwhile on the dragstrip first place will be worth $50 and second place $25 in the pure stock competition in Sunday's instalment of the Quinte Dragway's twice-a-month racing.

The financial reward in the stock class is double that in the pure stock competition. $100 will go to the first place finisher in the stock class and $50 to the runner-up.

Competitors in the eliminator classes will earn the big money Sunday at the Quinte Dragway which is situated about a half mile west of highway 49 near Deseronto.

The super stock/street eliminator and competition eliminator classes all offer $300 for first place, $150 for second spot, $100 for third and $50 for fourth.

Trophies will be awarded in all classes with three or more entries in Sunday's competition which is sanctioned by the National Hot Rod Association.

The gates open at 8 a.m., time trial start at 9 a.m. and the eliminations begin at 1 p.m. Admission is $2.27 plus 23 cents sales tax — except for bikini clad girls of course!

Joyces Seek Fourth Straight Win Over Kingston

The league - leading Belleville Joyces will seek to parlay their mastery over the Kingston Lakeview Centennials into their fourth consecutive win over the Kingston club when the teams tangle at Kingston's Cricket Field Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

Two of the prime architects of the Joyce's 7-3 record — catcher Larry Mavety and versatile infielder Gary Goyer — currently rest near the top of the pack in the EOBA's batting statistics released this week.

Mavety's 18 hits in 35 at-bats and .514 batting average is good enough for second place in the EOBA, while Goyer's .426 batting percentage places him fifth in the league.

Goyer dominates the league in other offensive categories. His 20 hits, 17 runs scored, 11 runs-batted-in and four doubles make him the league leader in each of those categories.

The Joyces will be without the services of outfielder Ralph Place, Sunday. Place, the sixth leading batter in the league with 15 hits in 36 plate appearances and .417 batting average, will be sitting out an indefinite suspension he received for manhandling an umpire in the Joyces 9-3 loss to the Leaside Maple Leafs in the first round of the recent Peterborough Baseball Tournament.

Kingston outdoose Belleville in the Peterborough tournament and barely missed the trip to Halifax for the Canadian Senior Baseball Championships in August when they dropped an 8-7 12 - inning decision to the Inter-county all-stars in the tourney's title game.

But Kingston has a poor record this season against the Joyces. Belleville has scored 13-9, 8-3 and 11-6 wins in three previous meetings between the arch - rivals this season.

Belleville has been idle since the Peterborough tournament June 28 — July 2, while Kingston will play host to the Oshawa Juniors today at the Cricket Field.

Trenton Hands SACO Initial Defeat of Season

Trenton scored three runs in the sixth inning en route to defeat Belleville SACO 7-1 in a Quinte Bantam Softball game Friday night at Alemite Field.

Trenton pitcher Galloway went the distance giving up only two hits and a walk to hand Belleville its first loss in 14 season starts.

Belleville tried out four pitchers in an effort to snatch a victory. Romano, Voe, Johnson and Sprackett all made attempts to stump the Trenton hitters but they allowed seven hits and three walks, but were hindered by six errors afield.

Mills clubbed a homer, Galloway managed a double and two singles and Winney, Leech and Ferguson hit singles for Trenton.

Belleville could only collect a triple by Muscloe and a single by Penn.

Today the SACO club will travel to Toronto to compete in eight - team North York tournament.

Lyons Seek Their Share Of Booty in 15-mile Ski Race

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

The Lyons are hoping to bring home the lion's share of the booty from Sunday's fifth annual 15-mile water ski race in the Bay of Quinte of Green's Point.

Ricky and Larry Lyons, that is. The 15-and-19-year-old brothers finished third and first respectively last year and will be again Sunday competing against a field which is expected to number two dozen entrants.

Ricky, the youngest entrant in the race last year, will in all probability be the youngest competitor again this year.

Last season he fell once over the 15-mile endurance test and wound up third while older brother Larry—the only competitor who didn't fall in last year's race carried off top honors despite the fact that he was being pulled by the smallest boat in the race, a 13-foot molded plywood boat powered by a 25-horsepower engine and

Last year's race was Ricky's first on water skis and he hopes to have benefited from the experience. "I'll do a few things differently this year and I'll work extra hard to stay up all the way," said Ricky, who will enter grade 10 at Picton's Prince Edward driven by 18-year-old Billy Van Vlack.
Collegiate this fall.

"My legs got numb about three-quarters of the way through the race last year and my hands and arms were sore. I had to change hands on the bar quite often to rest them in the later stages of the race," Ricky added.

"Staying afloat all the way is the big thing," said Ricky.

That's quite a feat when one considers that the boats will be travelling between 30 and 30 miles per hour for the whole 15-mile distance.

Ricky has been practising for two weeks at his Waupoos home on Smith's Bay and has made a few changes this year. Van Vlack, who piloted Larry to victory last year, will drive for Ricky this year and the pair plan to have a bigger, faster boat this year.

"Communication between the skier and driver is important to win, the spotter in the boat is very helpful too because the driver can't be watching the skier all the time," Ricky added.

"I'd really like to beat Larry this year," Ricky admitted. "He hasn't let me forget that he won last year."

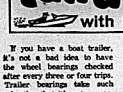
If ski racing is a relatively new thing to Ricky, water skiing certainly isn't. The 5'1", 110 pound youngster has been skiing since he was seven years old and is now no slouch on the waterways with eight years experience under his belt.

Larry is surveying in Toronto at present, but he'll return home Saturday for Sunday's race.

Competitors are required to be at the Quinte Lodge, which is located six miles east of Picton, by 10.30 a.m. Sunday so that the boats can be classified according to speed by the members of the Picton Outboard Club, the race's sponsor.

The race itself gets underway at 1.30 p. m. and spectators will also be treated to a kite flying stunt ski exhibition by members of the Prince Edward Ski and Sail Club.

Gerald Barber, the vice-president of the Picton Outboard Club, said "Spectators are welcome and should be able to get a good view from the shoreline along Green's Point near the Long Reach. The skiers will go around the five-mile circular course three times, so they should be in view almost all the time."



Water Ski Hi-jinks

Ricky Lyons of Waupoos goes through his repetoire of water ski techniques during practice session for Sunday's 15-mile ski race sponsored by the Picton Outboard Club. Ricky, who at 14-years of age was the youngest competitor last season, will be out to improve on last year's third place performance.

Fun afloat with Stan Davies

If you have a boat trailer, it's not a bad idea to have the wheel bearings checked after every three or four trips. Trailer hubs should be such a beating that it's not unreasonable to expect that they will wear out faster than the bearings on a car.

The trailer bearings are frequently immersed, in water, the wheels are smaller, they turn faster, they are more heavily loaded and the tire pressures are higher. All of which means that you are going to have to service the trailer bearings much more frequently than the car's wheel bearings.

If you can't take the wheels off yourself have an arrangement with a service station for a periodic inspection. I have such an arrangement and the service costs me about a dollar per trip with the trailer. It's a buck well spent.

If on any inspection the bearings are scored, scuffed, burned, roughened or even discolored from heat replace them. When the wheel hubs are replaced after each inspection have your garage man make sure they are packed with the special waterproof grease designed for the job.

There are a couple of other areas of preventive maintenance involved in trailering. For instance make sure the boat is positioned so there is a little weight on the tongue and car hitch. The trailer load should not be balanced exactly. Ten per cent of the trailer's weight should be forward of the axle and bearing on the hitch. Or it should be at least 50 pounds no matter what the gross weight of trailer and load happens to be.

A good idea is to take the bathroom scale out to the trailer and actually see the weight on the tongue and hitch. Guessing is not good enough.

Weight on the tongue and consequently on the back wheels of the car, tends to cut down trailer sway and give better control of car and load.

Another extremely important thing often overlooked is tire pressure. I once saw a service station attendant inflate a car's tires to 28 pounds (the recommended minimum for the size) then bleed some air out of the boat trailer tires to bring them down to the same pressure. Actually the trailer tires (they were 5.70 x 8 carrying a 900 pound load) should be inflated to 75 pounds.

If you have any doubts about what pressure your trailer tires should carry, write to the Canada Safety Council, 26 The Driveway, Ottawa, Ontario. The Council is conducting a campaign against trailer tire under-inflation this summer and have some interesting literature on the problem.

They also have a table of pressures to which all trailer tires should be inflated on every condition. The table is supplied by the Rubber Association of Canada, the tire manufacturers.

The schedule of Solunar periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the time shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, also of regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

A Tale Of Geese And Gander

KAMSACK, Sask. (CP) — A columnist in The Times weekly newspaper recently passed on to his readers the following essay by a school pupil:

What is a goose?

Geese is a low, heavy-set bird which is mostly meat and feathers. His beat side one end and he sits on the other.

Geese can't sing much on account of the screem in the moisture. He ain't got no between-the-toes and he's got a little balloon in his stomach to keep him from sinking.

Some geese when they git big have curls on their tails and is called a gander. Genders don't hatt to set and hatch but just sit and eat and go swimming. If I was a geese I'd rather be a gander.

Burlington Man Proves Truth of Fishing Theory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For anglers who use a spinning outfit, tension means two things.

First, there's the tension from waiting. Second, there's the tension on the reel.

Jack Ireland of Burlington, Ont., took 2½ hours to prove those points last Sunday when he caught an 88 pound sturgeon on 14-pound test line.

The bottom-feeding sturgeon took a minnow for bait, quite unusual for the prehistoric-looking, leather-skinned fish which used to fill the nets for Ontario fishermen.

When you set your reel, set it at the weight you think will be the weight of the fish you catch. Do this correctly and anything larger will spin away without breaking your line.

And if you catch a sturgeon, there are few ways to cook it.

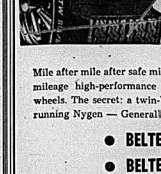
One of the best is that followed by an angler named Hilding in Nakina, Ont., in northwestern Ontario.

He says you should fill three pots with milk; take a good chunk of sturgeon; boil it in one and then transfer to the other to take off the grease.

After that, he says, take out. If you don't want a sturgeon the department of lands and forests reports good success in 19 of its 21 districts.

The eastern area report:

Lindsay — In Kawartha Lakes, pickerel and panfish good, bass excellent, and muskellunge fair. All species fair in all other waters.



TWEED — Lake trout, good in Birch Lake, fair in Kamaniskeg. Limerick, Sharbot and Eagle lakes. Speckled trout good in Quirk, Mink and Ledyard Lakes as well as Bowens, Craigmont and Faraday creeks. Pike good in Centennial and Clear Lakes. Pickerel, excellent in Trent River, good in Baptiste, Paudash and Calabogie lakes.

MORTGAGE MONEY

Mortgage
Money
If you have invested money in a home it is probably the best collateral you have. For example, by using this equity at Seaboard Finance most homeowners can obtain a lower interest rate than is possible on a personal loan. And at Seaboard you can borrow up to 80% of the value of your property, or in some cases even more. See us for cash today.

MORTGAGE MONEY

Mortgage
Money
If you have invested money in a home it is probably the best collateral you have. For example, by using this equity at Seaboard Finance most homeowners can obtain a lower interest rate than is possible on a personal loan. And at Seaboard you can borrow up to 80% of the value of your property, or in some cases even more. See us for cash today.

Greens Troublesome At Women's Open

TORONTO (CP) — High it's a lot easier, because the winds and grass that grew rapidly on the greens in humid, 85-degree weather plagued the 56 professionals in the eight-man fours Friday at the $22,000 women's open golf championship at Bayview Golf and Country Club.

"The greens grew in two hours," said Donna Caponi, who shot a one-under-par 72. "They were hard to read, very fast."

Sandra Haynie, 36, of Roanoke Bay, Tex., turned in a three-under-par 70 to lead the first round lead. Miss Haynie, third in money winners of the women's professional tour, was followed by Carol Mann of Circinnati, last year's winner, with a 71.

Miss Caponi, the U.S. Open champ from Burbank, Calif., Shirley Englehorn of Palm Springs, Calif., Marilynn Smith of Stuart, Fla., and Betty Rose of North Key Largo, Fla., all had 72s.

Best Canadian was Pamela Miller, an amateur from Oshawa, Ont., who fired a 73 with rinse of 36 and 37.

She was in seventh place, three strokes off the pace, and was the highest-placed amateur.

Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., who turned in a 75, said she was not as nervous this year as she was last year.

"Down in the United States, it's a lot easier, because the press treats you at home and are expected to perform."

Although she experienced some lonesomeness on the course, Miss Post reported she was feeling "just super" about Friday's performances.

Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, who won the Ontario amateur earlier in the week, fired a 77 while Nancy Smith, a 19-year-old professional who plays out of the Bahamas, had an 81, well out of contention.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Carl Auger of London and Miss Susan Burleigh of London spent the past weekend with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Cotten and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Auger.

Mr. and Mrs. John Furry of Rapid City, Manitoba are holidaying with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Buckingham and children.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brown of Peterborough were guests of Miss Mabel Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowers were visitors last week with their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Bowers.

John and Carol of Huntsville, Mrs. Alice Redshaw of County Durham, England spent over five weeks with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Clive Mathews and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry O'Connor of Belleville are holidaying with Mrs. O'Connor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar for two weeks.

Mrs. Gary Wilson, Patti and David of Hamilton are holidaying with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cotten.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock were visitors of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mrs. Harold Tripp of Carnation Farm, Brantford, spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. Grant McLaren.

The community extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Callahan (nee Janice Macfarlane) who were married in the Read Catholic Church recently. A dinner was held for over 80 guests by Melrose UCW and a reception followed in Read Parish Hall.

Sotheby's Now International

From $4,500 to 52 Million in 200 Years

LONDON (AP) Two hundred and twenty-five years ago a little shop called Sotheby's opened in London to buy, sell or auction paintings and other objets d'art.

In its first year it did about $4,500 worth of business.

In the last six months Sotheby's auctioned $52,800,000 worth of paintings, jewels, drawings and antique furniture at its offices in London, Toronto, New York, Paris, Edinburgh, Melbourne, Johannesburg, Los Angeles, Buenos Aires and Florence.

It has just opened a new office in Munich.

Presiding over this high-priced octopus of art is Peter Wilson, a six-foot-four Englishman, chairman of Sotheby's and the world's best-known art auctioneer. He handles the paintings and leaves other categories of valuables to acknowledged experts among his partners and staff.

Wilson quit his job as a London newspaper reporter in 1936 to join the firm because "I simply loved fine paintings." Since then he has banged the gavel on about $144,000,000 worth.

How does one face an auction house million-dollars with the nod of a head or the wave of a hand?

"At first I was petrified," said Wilson. "Now I am more wrapped up in the offerings to display any particular emotion."

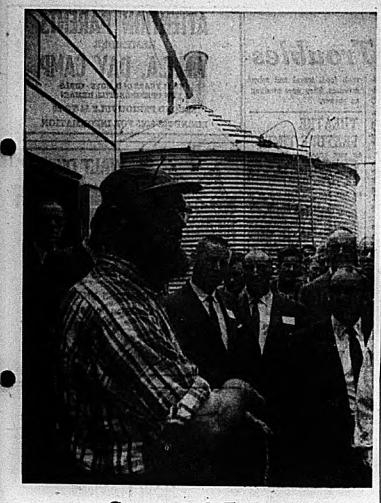
Operating Sotheby's is a mountainous responsibility. At its Bond Street office alone there are always about $20,000,000 worth of "things" lying around, posing a king-sized security headache.

Sotheby's employs a faceless army of guards, men and women, plus a variety of electronic gadgets that Wilson would "rather not talk about." But the biggest problem is not major burglary.

It's the tiny little pilfering that goes on all the time," Wilson said.

The amount of money involved is trifling, but Wilson dislikes the embarrassment of having to finger some little old lady who tried to filch.

Wilson has "a few things" he likes in his homes in Kent and the south of France, but he is so steeped in Rembrandt, Rubens, Franz Hals and Picasso in his business that he admits to some escapism.



"I like to garden," he said. "There's something about working with soil."

He denies being a millionaire but admits he is far from the bread line. Wilson "knocks down" 10 per cent, the auction house fee, and that is a lot of money when you deal in millions.

Wilson has seen some strange discoveries in his 33 years at Sotheby's.

A middle-aged lady once asked Sotheby's to examine her furniture. She said she had one old picture and wondered if it would be worth about $400. It was Claude Lorrain's Judgment of Paris, which auctioned for $420,000.

A book expert sorting through a room filled with rubbish found the long-lost 10 books of Caxton's translation of Ovid in the great printer's own hand. The manuscript went for $325,000.

Soviet and Iranian Workers Laboring Round the Clock

ISFAHAN, Iran (Reuters) — A force of 14,000 technicians, skilled workers and laborers, helped by 300 Soviet experts, is working around the clock to build Iran a giant steel mill — the first in its history.

The Soviet Union is financing the building of the new "Steel City" in central Iran. Iran will supply natural gas and industrial and agricultural products to Russia in return.

The site is 35 miles south of this historic central Iranian city, which is famed for monuments, mosques and minarets, and for its textile mills.

The steel mill is scheduled to produce 600,000 to 700,000 tons of steel a year during its first phase in the 1970s, increasing to 1,000,000 tons in its second phase. Eventual output would be 3,000,000 tons.

Also with Soviet help, a machine-tool plant is being built in Arak, 175 miles northwest of here. It will start operations with an annual capacity of 25,000 to 30,000 tons of light and heavy machine tools and agricultural machinery.

In addition, the Russians have financed and provided technical knowledge for the construction of a trans-Iranian natural gas pipeline from the southern oilfields near the Gulf of Iran area to Astara, on the Caspian coast in the north, on the Iran-Soviet border.

The Soviet Union, under a technical and economic agreement signed in 1963, gave Iran a credit equivalent to $286,000,000 for the entire project—the steel mill, the machine-tools plant and the pipeline.

That was later supplemented by another credit of $160,000,000 to cover liter phases of the project.

A number of Iranian iron and steel engineers and technicians have been sent to Russia for training.

Work on the steel mill started in March, 1968. More than 90 per cent of the foundation work has been done and about 10 per cent of the actual plant construction.

Plans provide that by 1971 a single blast furnace will be in operation, with a daily output of 1,500 tons of pig iron.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I warn you. This is not a very happy note. It's about a friend who choked to death right in front of our eyes while we were out for dinner. Later, we learned the truth about it. At first we thought he had died of a heart attack.

This incident reminded me that you had written a column a few years ago about the danger of people biting off more than they can chew. In view of the recent horrible experience — and another I heard of — don't you think your readers would benefit from a similar column? I'm sure many have forgotten all about the dangers of eating too much at one time. — Mrs. E.

COMMENT: I think you are right. It's time for a replay. Just last week I read of a similar unfortunate incident.

People do not realize that whenever they take too large a bite of food there's always the gamble whether or not it will go down or get stuck in the gullet. This may happen at home as well as at a restaurant. People should be just as careful about swallowing large portions of food as they are of eating chicken or fish bones.

Here, for example, are excerpts from an important article which appeared a few years ago in the Journal of the American Medical Association, called "The Cafe Coronary" (Sudden Deaths in Restaurants) and written by H. K. Haugen, MD of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.:

"A middle-aged or elderly person, at a fashionable restaurant, is partaking of filet mignon, or perhaps broiled lobster or prime rib of beef. At the same time he is conversing with companions at dinner.

"Suddenly he ceases to eat and talk. The dinner companions are perplexed but not alarmed for there is no indication of distress. Then, the person suddenly collapses at the table.

"Attempts at resuscitation are made by the maitre d'hotel, waiters and friends. In some instances a physician may be present who also attempts to aid the stricken person. The ambulance arrives and the person is rushed to the nearest hospital emergency room where he is dead on arrival.

"The emergency room physician, or the family doctor, attributes death to natural causes and probably to coronary artery disease. The above is death from asphyxiation due to occlusion of the airway by food."

Dr. Haugen went on to describe the findings in nine similar cases, six were male, and three female. The victims ranged in age from 46 to 71. The food which lodged in the windpipe or otherwise obstructed the airway consisted of steak in four cases, beef in two, ham fat in one, kippered herring in one, and broiled lobster in another. What aggravated the circumstances, was that five of these patients had upper and - or lower dentures, Four had rather high levels of alcohol in their blood and small amounts were found in three.

I consider this is important and deserves widespread discussion. Tell your friends. If you wear dentures, have had a few highballs or too much wine, make it a rule never to bite off more than you can chew.

For Mrs. B.: An ectopic pregnancy is one that takes place in the fallopian tube (which leads from the ovary to the uterus) rather than in the cavity of the uterus. It usually has to be terminated by operation.

* * *

For Mrs. O.: I agree. Quiet, grateful patients are usually the most appreciative. They are the ones who remain loyal to their doctor for years, and so do their children. I don't know why, but the overly effusive ones are often the first to forget. ("What have you done for me lately?")

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because a boy with a paper route—a junior independent merchant—has a year 'round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience—learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.

Your newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by newspaperboy route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

Javelin Champion Has Troubles

By DON MacLACHLAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — It took Jay Dahlgren less than 2½ years to become Canada's top woman javelin' thrower and go to the 1968 Olympics. Then, despite hopes for a medal in 1972, she was ready to quit.

In fact, she did retire briefly this spring, went home and hoping that somehow, somebody, somewhere, will give her a job or some financial assistance to keep her in sport.

"Every Job I have had has been cut short because of my athletic endeavors. All money I have possessed has gone to athletics. Needless to say, there are not many spare pennies.

"It's not just me either. What's wrong with Canadians? Are Canadians not patriotic or what? Aren't they interested in getting support behind their athletes? I guess it really bothers me."

"It seems so wrong," says Lionel Pugh of the University of British Columbia, her coach. "I rate her as one of the finest athletes I've ever had. Does anyone care about a potential medallist?"

Both say her case is not unique but she presents an example of a wider problem. She has says Pugh, to live, train, study and work—and to do it all on her own means some compromise.

"With excellence there is no compromise," says Pugh, the man who got her to switch to javelin from discus and shotput. "Medals will always elude those who accept the compromise."

"What we're not asking for is a direct subsidy or somebody saying 'Well, here's $10,000, get on with it.' What we're looking for in her case is just somebody who can get her decent work. She'll do the rest."

Miss Dahlgren, 20, is a student at Vancouver City College and hopes to go to UBC to study physical education. She shares a $110-a-month basement suite and a small, seven-year-old car with another girl.

Last summer, for example, she held three jobs: in a department store, the UBC book store and a fried-chicken house in Kamloops, B.C. Twice she had to leave jobs for athletic trips abroad.

Pugh and Miss Dahlgren have submitted to Ottawa a four-year budget, at a little less than $2,000 a year, for rent, food, travel and school expenses. They were awaiting an answer.

Spock's Conviction Overruled; Work Harder to End 'Nam' War

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock says he will work harder for an end to the Vietnam war now that an appeals court has overturned his conviction on charges of conspiring to counsel young men to avoid the draft.

"I feel pleased personally," the author-pediatrician said. "But I'm going to redouble my anti-war work."

"It seems to me absolutely tragic that young Americans will continue to die in Vietnam for an indefinite period."

In a 52-page decision Friday, the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered acquittals for Spock and Michael Ferber of Boston, a Harvard graduate student, on grounds that there was insufficient evidence of criminal conspiracy to warrant their convictions in a 1968 trial.

The court ordered new trials for two other men convicted with them, Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., chaplain at Yale University, and Mitchell Goodman of Temple, Me., an author and teacher. It said their rights were prejudiced when Judge Francis J. W. Ford of U.S. District Court in Boston posed 10 questions that he instructed the trial jury to answer in returning a verdict.

In Washington, a spokesman said the justice department would not comment until it could fully review the ruling. The office of the U.S. attorney for Massachusetts also was non-committal.

Two of the three appeals court judges concurred in the rulings. The third said he believed all four defendants should have been acquitted.

After their convictions June 14, 1968, all four men were sentenced to two-year prison terms. Ferber was fined $1,000 and the others were fined $5,000 each. Execution of the sentences was stayed pending appeals.

A fifth defendant at the trial, Marcus Raskin of Washington, was acquitted.

The appeals court held that Goodman was not entitled to acquittal "because a properly instructed jury could have found he had the requisite specific intent" to further an anti-draft conspiracy.

The court cited Goodman's authorship of a paper entitled Civil Disobedience Against the War and his remarks at a rally in Washington.

In denying Coffin an acquittal, the court noted that he signed Goodman's paper, made remarks similar to Goodmin's at the rally in Washington and, at a later rally in Boston, "not only spoke but assisted in the collection of draft cards."

Acting Is Now Secondary To Child Star Patty Duke

NEW YORK (AP) — She is still tiny, still vibrant, still beautiful.

But at 22, celebrating her 15th anniversary in show business, child star Patty Duke is definitely no longer a child star. She now is a mature mite five feet tall—weight 98 pounds—and anxious to tackle mature roles.

"When I was younger it used to bother me that I was so small," she said. "It doesn't any more, although I suppose I would like it if I were a couple of inches taller."

In her latest film, Me, Natalie, she plays a love-awakened 18-year-old girl moving about in the world of the wounded young.

They had me wear a false nose and false teeth," she remarked, smiling.

Patty is coming soon to move from the United States West Coast back to Manhattan, where she was born Dec. 14, 1946. Her father was a cab driver, her mother a restaurant cashier.

At the age of seven, Patty started her phenomenal acting career. In the busy years that followed she appeared in several stage plays, more than 50 television shows and a number of movies. A landmark of her life, of course, in 1963 as "best supporting actress" for her part in The Miracle Worker. Then only 16, she was the youngest person ever to receive the movie award.

Inevitably, Patty's childhood was not a normal one, but she doesn't feel her early stardom left any permanent emotional scars.

"I had some regrets, but the good outweighs the bad," she said. I'd like to have spent more time in school, but I was given greater opportunities.

When I have children, I wouldn't want them to take up a theatrical career unless they really had the urge to. I think children have enough responsibilities while growing up without having to compete with adults in an adult world."

An instinctive performer and a conscientious one, Patty spends most of her spare time reading scripts, searching for roles that she feels will expand her acting horizon.

"It's part of the homework," she said. But acting to me is secondary now. My goals are personal. I want to be happily married and have children."

At the moment, however, Miss Duke is temporarily married. She is separated from her husband, Harry G. Falk Jr., a television director who is double her age.

To Patty life is summed up in the word "adjustment."

"You have to learn to adjust to the things you have but also to change what you don't like about your life—and avoid becoming cynical."

Police Want Falls Survivors

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP) — Police are trying to locate three teen-agers who Thursday survived a three-mile trip on an inflated truck inner tube through rapids below Niagara Falls.

Tavern owner William Murdock of Lewiston, N.Y., rescued the youths as they went by his motor boat on the inner tube about one mile above Lewiston.

He said the youths told him they were playing on the inner tube near Devil's Hole, about four miles below the falls, when the current pulled them through the rapids to near Lewiston.

The youths identified themselves as Michael Page, Robert Dickerson and Michael Heinbroner, all 17, of Niagara Falls, N.Y. But police later learned the names given to a Niagara Frontier State Park Policeman were false.

None of the three was hurt. They were not admitted to hospital.

The three are the first to survive an accidental shooting of the rapids. Four years ago, a twin-hull catamaran became caught in the rapids and was smashed to bits. One man was drowned and two others rescued.

Power employees at the Ontario Hydro Sir Adam Beck generating station, across the river from Lewiston, witnessed the teen-agers' adventure.

Two of the youths hanging on to the tube and being tossed violently about in the middle of the rapids were waving and shouting, the witnesses said.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For July 13

Your birthday today: Healthy self-interest in the coming year will lead you to a less complicated way of life, with fewer bad habits and less wasted time. Much that has happened in the past now comes to be forgiven or re-evaluated. Much emotional growth is presaged by a naivete generally seek lofty ideals, sometimes with much personal sacrifice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Gather friends and neighbors for an active, social day. The younger ones interested in the affairs of the home and family give them all something to do.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Divide your day among group affairs, visiting friends briefly, and resting. The evening lends itself to quiet conversation.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There isn't very much to fret about now, so just enjoy being alive. If the urge to work overtakes you, try straightening out your books.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today you must work closely with your ambitions, however vaguely you may express them. Show or demonstrate may be difficult to come by until sometime in September. Begin planning now.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your Sunday is more enjoyable and more productive if you will think of the future. Older people have some interesting things to tell you. Although most of their suggestions are inapplicable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Fresh social and business contacts develop spontaneously if you are moving around, getting acquainted. Younger people are more helpful than usual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Travel today can combine business and pleasure well, but get the business part done early.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now that it is Sunday it is time to slow down and allow other people a chance to catch up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): People are certain to scatter themselves a bit this Sunday. Make allowance for most of them to be somewhat late.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This Sunday really has all sorts of joy for the young in spirit. Let lightly and steadily pace yourself in the lively atmosphere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you will just do what is convenient and is consistent, this serene Sunday will be one of the nicest you've had in a long time. Give some thought to the care of your health.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Put on your best attire, get something fit for worship and make a long day of just celebrating Sunday.

For July 14

Your birthday today: The coming year — different from any before. You'll answers no longer apply. The simplest moves require original ideas. Nothing is as possible or as automatic in their enterprises, especially when meeting the public.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Friends, associates are all briskly producing. Be alert for opportunities. You also find yourself rearranging your home today.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Find a new way of getting to your regular routine, even if just a fresh definition or a sense of humor. The affairs of relatives are now easier to manage.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): This Monday is the right day for going ahead with your plans, but everything in moderation! People co-operate and you have a fair chance to improve your standing.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): New beginnings come up suddenly and are calmly dealt with today. Be persistent, ordering the developments without making a fuss over them. A strong monthly cycle starts now . . .

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Inspiration comes to you today, so make a vigorous beginning of another successful week. Allow room for others to enjoy life with you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You can put together a winning combination in your work. Well-organized groups should get a good start early. See that your diet is adequate but not heavy. A short fast might help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Investigation turns up an unexpected opportunity for you. Be punctual this morning. Add something to your surroundings this afternoon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Long-standing questions possibly come to the decision point now. Settle them and then get down to business. It's a successful day for the diligent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 —Dec. 21): Credit, loans, refinancing are favored today. Verify everything as you go. Strive for quality in your regular work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Working matters need your undivided attention but try not to spend too much time on the minute details. Remember to take home something nice for your loved ones this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Spend your day improving your situation. Seek a fresh and interesting way of expressing yourself. Put in solid endeavor while taking the time to consciously make the amenities.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Today be the one who is listening instead of the one who is talking. Discover a different path to follow, a detour if nothing else is handy.

Moon Flight Naught To These

NEW YORK (AP) — To the science fiction writers who predicted it in the first place, the moon flight of Apollo 11 is old hat.

Present-day science fiction authors already are writing about things like civil rights for robots, the next step in man's evolution, and travel to the stars.

Isaac Asimov wrote recently of a "segregationist" robot who cries to take a human out of "mongrelizing" himself with a transplanted metal heart.

Arthur C. Clarke's novel 2001 and Childhood's End both tell of man evolving into a kind of pure, disembodied soul.

Almost all writers assume that someday Einstein's theoretical limit on velocity, which says nothing can exceed the speed of light, somehow will be overcome to allow man to span the light-years that separate stars.

Stories with space travel as their central theme do not abound. "It's getting harder and harder to find them," says Edward L. Ferman, editor of The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction.

START NEW TREND

He says much recent writing deals less with the "hard" sciences of physics and astronomy and more with the "soft" sciences of psychology, anthropology and sociology.

Frank Herbert's novel Dune, for example deals with a desert planet so arid its human occupants use water as a medium of exchange.

Arthur C. Clarke once wrote that a scientific idea is something is possible is usually right.

"But if he says that something is impossible he is very probably wrong."

In 1865 Jules Verne wrote about an "untenable" idea in his book, From the Earth to the Moon.

And last December, more than 100 years later, the Apollo 8 crew left from Cape Kennedy, about 100 miles from Verne's fictional Florida launch site, circled the moon much like the Verne explorer, and landed in the Pacific, where Verne's travellers splashed down.

Such are the "impossibilities" of science fiction.

Larry Tanghe, corporal -at the Whitby detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police since 1963, was recently promoted to sergeant and stationed in Madoc. Sergeant Tanghe was originally posted in Barrie and also served with Bracebridge, Bradford, Simcoe, Ottawa and Whitby detachments.

Back on the Job Monday

Montreal Construction Workers to Start Building Again

MONTREAL (CP)—About 11,000 construction workers are expected back at work Monday in eastern and southeastern Quebec following their acceptance of a new contract proposal.

Construction workers affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions voted by wide majorities Friday in seven centres to accept the terms of an agreement worked out by representatives of the CNTU, the rival Quebec Federation of Labor and the construction industry.

The strike, which began May 13 in the Quebec City and Rimouski regions and spread to the southeast part of the province a month later, halted work on millions of dollars worth of construction projects.

The dispute was marked by violence, bombings, threats and verbal feuding between rival labor organizations.

The strikers demanded higher wages and increased job security, including union-administered hiring halls.

Although the agreement did not include settlement of the key hiring halls issue, it did grant construction workers pay increases and more job security.

Under the agreement's terms, the workers are to receive a 54-cent increase in their hourly pay, which varies according to the 14 regions established by Bill 290, provincial legislation passed last year governing labor relations in the industry.

The over-all increase includes an increase of from 20 to 31 cents to bring pay into line with Montreal levels.

The increase was granted in three instalments. The first is effective on the workers' return to work; the second Dec. 1 and the third Feb. 1, 1970.

As a job security measure, the agreement established jam labor categories for hiring purposes — permanent and part-time.

Permanent workers are to have priority over part-time labor and permanent workers from the region in which the construction is being carried out are to have priority over those from outside the region.

Also, employers are to give 24 hours' notice of dismissal.

Union security is protected by an agreement by all parties that each worker must pay union fees even if he is not a union member.

Vacation pay has been increased by one per cent, except in the Quebec City region, where the increase amounts to 0.no per cent. Standardization of vacation benefits is to be achieved by 1973.

Compulsory social security contributions have been increased to 10 cents from five cents an hour.

The agreement was ratified by wide majorities in each of the voting centres, varying from the 83-per-cent approval of Quebec City workers to the unanimous vote by workers in Thetford Mines in southern Quebec.

The voting ended two months of trouble

In the Eastern Townships, citizens armed themselves with shotguns to prevent attack by roaming goon squads wielding chains and baseball bats. The goon raids against construction sites where non-union labor was employed resulted in an estimated $30,000 worth of damage.

Police are investigating eight bombing incidents in Quebec City and Montreal earlier this week.

What may have contributed to the strike's settlement was a threat by the QFL last week to recruit striking CNTU construction workers with the promise of a nine-month labor agreement including a nine-per-cent wage increase in a move to end the strike.

Danish Government Loses Popularity

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Economic policy failures plus coalition disagreements have greatly diminished the popularity of the Danish coalition government.

The coalition—formed by the Conservatives, Liberals and Social Liberal (Radikal) parties and led by Radical leader Hilmar Baunsgaard—came into office in February, 1968, taking over after 15 years of Social Democratic government.

The new coalition promised an economic cleanup, with lower interest rates—of vital interest to mortgage-paying home-buyers—a slowing down in the increase in public expenditure and an improvement in the endemic balance-of-payments deficit.

The 1968 balance-of-payments deficit, about $211,000,000, was about the same as in 1967. But in the international currency crisis in May the government's economic policies ran into serious trouble, with exchange reserves exhausted.

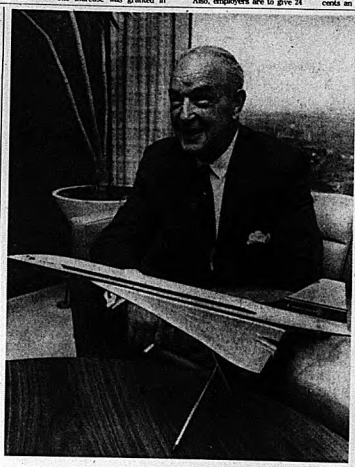
The National Bank's discount rate was raised by two per cent to a record nine per cent, following a one-per-cent increase in March. Long-term bond rates, including mortgage rates, rose by about one per cent to an effective rate of 10 per cet.

The monetary measures were followed up by a variety of indirect taxes.

The government also set the income tax scale for 1970, when a pay-as-you-earn income tax system comes into force. It is to be high that it will give the state a 35-per-cent increase in income from tax compared with the current year.

Tax rates are already high by international standards, with the skilled worker earning an annual average of about $6,448 paying about 25 per cent in state and local income tax and roughly another 10 per cent in indirect taxes.

To no one's surprise, the government's popularity slumped in the latest opinion polls, which showed the main opposition party, the Social Democrats, increasing in support from 34 per cent on election day to 42 per cent.



The government also appeared to lose popularity over contradictory statements about defence policy.

Twice recently the premier assured Parliament there was no change in defence or foreign policy, although his party's annual congress called for a decrease of NATO facilities in Denmark which would include a return of rockets capable of bearing nuclear warheads.

Most observers, however, expect the coalition to maintain a firm enough majority in Parliament to hold out until January, 1972, the latest possible date for a new election.

Crusading Editor Guilty; Fined $280 After Trial

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Crusading editor Laurence Gandar was fined $280 Friday after being found guilty in a 99-day trial of contravening South African prison laws.

The 54-year-old editor-in-chief of the anti-government Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail was offered the alternative of six months in prison, but paid the fine.

Gandar, and Mail reporter Benjamin Pogrund, 35, were convicted Thursday on two counts of publishing false information about conditions in South African prisons without taking reasonable steps to verify it.

Pogrund and Gandar after on the prisons charging that black prisoners were subjected to torture, and sentenced to three months' imprisonment on each of the counts. But the sentences were suspended for three years on condition he does not repeat the offence for. which he was convicted.

Well-wishers crowded around Pogrund and Gandarl after Judge Petrus Gillie announced sentence.

Among them was a black African, apparently unknown to both men, who grabbed Gandar's hand and said "I'm sorry."

The trial gathered worldwide attention and charges that the government was trying to stifle press freedom. Gandar is a leading opponent of the official government policy of racial separation.

South African Associated Newspapers, owners of the Daily Mail was found guilty of the same charges and was fined $210 on each count.

The article on prisons in The Mail—based on interviews with former prisoners and guards—described sodomy, brutality, unhygienic conditions and electrical shock punishment in certain prisons. The accused pleaded innocent to the charges. They have 14 days in which to lodge appeals.

More Difficult to Get Bank Loan

Institutions Still Tightening Lending Strings

TORONTO (CP) — Financial institutions are continuing to tighten the strings on lending, making it more difficult, for both large and small borrowers, to get a bank loan than it was three months ago.

Loans are not only harder to come by, they are getting more expensive.

Some observers say a house mortgage may be almost impossible to swing this summer, with both insurance companies and Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. cutting back on their lending from last year.

But figures to bear out these impressions are scant.

A. H. Crockett, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and chief general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, says bank loans appear to be levelling off.

"But it takes quite a while to have an effect on figures — partly because of previous loan commitments by the banks."

Bank of Canada statistics show general bank loans outstanding at July 2 at $14,860,000,000, up about 16 per cent from a year ago.

E. H. Flanagan, vice-president of Trader's Group Ltd. and president of the Canadian Consumer Loan Association, says the real impact of tighter credit has been felt by finance companies only in the last 45 days.

The loan companies expect growth in loan volume for the first half of this year to be about 3.25 per cent, just half the rate of the first six months of 1968.

Mr. Flanagan says there has been a "detectable slowdown" in durable goods financing, apart from cars, this year.

Large business loans by banks have probably fallen off more sharply than personal loans in the last three months Mr. Crockett said. Business loans stood at $8,327,000,000 at April 30, up about 20 per cent from a year before.

Banks raised their lending rate to prime customers—mainly blue-chip corporate borrowers—to 8½ per cent this month. Although existing lines of credit have been cut back, bankers say they are taking "a pretty hard look" at any requests for increased lines.

"Things are going to get worse before they get better," Allen Lambert, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, predicts.

Mr. Crockett says bank mortgage funds are being rationed, but earlier commitments—some first half of this year to be about 3.25 per cent, just half the rate of the first six months of 1968.

pushed mortgages held by banks at the start of this month (to $1,204,000,000, up $261,000,000 from a year ago.

Along with a tougher lending policy by banks, the major reason for the loan slowdown, bankers say, is the Bank of Canada's June directive for chartered banks to increase their secondary reserve ratios. This automatically decreased their liquidity, eliminating $269,000,000 which would otherwise have been available for lending.

Bank liquidity sank to 27.9 per cent late in June, considerably less than usual. Liquid assets declined even further early in July, showing that the central bank's objective is apparently being met at this level.

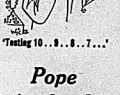
Soviet Spaceship Heads for Moon

Apollo Crew Will Talk'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — As their spaceship nears readiness for its Wednesday morning launching, the Apollo 11 astronauts pause in their training tonight to tell the world how it feels to be going to the moon.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins will be questioned by a panel of four news media correspondents. All three U.S. television networks planned to carry the interviews at 7 p.m. EDT.



On pad 39A, the manifold tasks to make ready the mighty Saturn V rocket for its 9:32 a.m. launching Wednesday were two to three hours ahead of schedule.

"No problems have been encountered," the space agency reported Sunday night as the countdown resumed after a scheduled 16-hour halt.

At just about the time Apollo 11 lifts off for the moon, an unmanned Russian spaceship called Luna XV should be arriving there.

After a relaxing Sunday, the Apollo astronauts returned to make-believe flight controls

Pope Applauds Apollo

CASTEL GANDOLFO Italy, (AP) — Pope Paul asked Christians around the world Sunday to pray for the Apollo 11 astronauts.

The head of the Roman Catholic Church devoted his first public speech to the moonshot since he arrived here Thursday. He is resting before his planned trip to Uganda July 31.

"Science fiction comes true," the Pope said of the moonshot. "Men is at the centre of this undertaking and appears to us as a giant, appears to use as divine, not in himself but in his principle and in his destiny.

"Honor, then, to man, honor to his dignity, his spirit, his life. And let us pray for the scientists and the heroes of this fabulous undertaking."

To Obtain Soil Reds May Aim

MOSCOW (CP) — An unmanned Soviet spaceship headed for the moon today amid speculation that its mission is to take some of the spotlight away from Apollo 11, getting samples of the moon's surface and returning them to earth.

If all goes normally, the Luna XV spaceship should approach the moon Wednesday, at about the time the United States sends its three astronauts off for the lunar landing.

The first American to walk on the moon is not scheduled to do so until early Monday.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, announced that Luna XV was "launched to the moon from the orbit of an artificial earth's satellite" at 5:55 a.m. Sunday and six hours later was 40,300 miles from the earth.

One Western diplomat in Moscow suggested that the Russians were trying for another space first—the landing on the moon of an unmanned ship which would scoop up some moon soil and return it to earth before U.S. astronauts make their landing Sunday.

If this is not the mission, the diplomat said, then Luna XV may orbit close to the moon so that it can observe the U.S. astronauts after the landing.

Tass said Luna XV will "conduct further scientific exploration of the moon and space near the moon." No details were given.

Soviet cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoi said in Helsinki, Finland, Sunday that although he had no details of the flight, he thought Luna XV might land on the moon and probe the consistency of the pocked lunar surface. But he said he did not know if it would bring back moon chunks.

Earlier this year Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Leonov said he expected Russia would exhibit a piece of moon rocket at the 1970 world's fair in Japan.

Reds Try 'Great Feat'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — Frank Borman, who commanded the Apollo 8 moon-circling flight in December, said Sunday it would be a "great feat" if the Russians return a sample of the moon's surface to earth in the unmanned spaceship the Soviets launched Sunday.

Asked by reporters what the aim of the new Russian lunar probe was, Borman said: "I would guess that it is probably an attempt to land an automatic sampler and return a sample to the earth.

"It would be a great feat. If they can do this unmanned it certainly points out that their technology is right up there.

But he said it would be "a little difficult to take the edge off a manned landing" and from the scientific point of view" there is no substitute for the human judgment man takes with him into space."

Adequate observation of any body requires a man," he said.

Summer Sunday in Belleville

A spit of land jutting out from the bathing beach at Zwick's Island makes an ideal location for contemplation, scenery viewing or just loafing. Perfect summer weather on Sunday drew a large crowd to the park for swimming, picnicking and sun bathing.

Music Maker and Fans

Fans, juniors grade, moved right into the band shell at Zwick's Island yesterday afternoon to hear a pop group perform in one of the weekly Sunday afternoon concerts.

Mobs in Three Ulster Towns Loot and Burn After Twelfth

LONDONDERRY (Reuters) — Screaming mobs looted and burned in three Northern Ireland towns Sunday night in the latest outburst of centuries-old religious hatred.

Police in many places gave up the struggle to control the rioters and concentrated on saving their own skins from Roman Catholic mobs.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark today called an emergency cabinet meeting of his Protestant-based Unionist government.

Chichester-Clark was vacationing in London Sunday after taking part in an Orangemen's parade Saturday.

Bitter fighting broke out Sunday night.

A police patrol in Londonderry had to fire in the air to get out of a back alley, and a mob in Dungiven bottled several policemen up in a building and threw gasoline bombs in an effort to burn the place down.

At least 41 policemen and 14 civilians were injured in fighting Sunday night.

Police spokesmen described the fighting as the worst they had seen since the civil rights campaign against the government erupted into violence last autumn.

Injuries for the first time included victims of gunfire. Two civilians were hit by stray shots in Londonderry.

The rioting was largely in Catholic areas. The outburst began Saturday after 100,000 militant Protestants of the Orange Order staged their annual parades.

July 12 is the anniversary of the final defeat in 1690 of James II, the last Catholic king of England, in the Battle of the Boyne in Northern Ireland.

Street brawls after the Orangemen's parades are an annual occurrence in Northern Ireland, but the fights escalated into communal riots in about half a dozen towns Saturday and flared again Sunday in Londonderry, nearby Dungiven and in Lurgan, 100 miles to the south.

Arsonists set fires in homes, and rioters looted stores and broke windows in Londonderry. At least 40 persons were arrested and Catholic priests joined police in appealing to the mobs to go home.

Nigeria Permits One Flight

From Reuters-AP

LAGOS (CP) — The Nigerian federal government and the International Red Cross have agreed on a single mercy flight to Biafra to take in urgently-needed medical supplies and relieve Red Cross personnel there.

But 2½ days of talks between Marcel Naville of the Red Cross and Nigerian officials failed to find any agreement on resumption of large-scale relief supplies for 1,000,000 Biafran war victims facing food and medical crises.

The talks were to resume today.

Red Knight Dies

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Lt. Brian Alston, 23, the Canadian Forces' youngest Red Knight solo aerobatics pilot, died Sunday night in the flaming crash of a Tutor jet at CFB Moose Jaw.

Alston, appointed a Red Knight about a month ago, was killed while practicing for an air show. Witnesses said the single-engined plane burst into flames on impact with a runway.

Cause of the accident was not immediately known.

Born in Calgary, Alston, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Alston and a brother Richard, all of Toronto.

Altar Boy Set Afire By Gang

NEW YORK (AP) — A gang of 14-year-olds set fire to an altar boy Sunday night in the subway station at 42nd Street and Eighth Avenue.

Robert Lacey, 16, suffered first- and second-degree burns on his back. He was treated at hospital and released.

Police captured two of the five gang members near the scene and apprehended the others later.

Lacey told police he was on his way to his parish church to serve mass when the attack occurred.

Witnesses said the boys sprayed an inflammable liquid on the back of Lacy's shirt as he stood in line for a 20-cent fare token, then set him afire. Other passengers tore the shirt off Lacey.

Drug Abuse National Threat Says Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told Congress today it must act against the drug abuse problem now as "a serious national threat to the personal health and safety of millions of Americans."

Hostage, 60, Subdues Three Fugitives with Own Machine-gun

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — A daring man whose family was terrorized by three armed, escaped prisoners held two of them at bay and shot a third with their own sub-machine-gun Sunday night to end an hours-long chase by hundreds of police.

The action capped more than 15 hours of freedom for the three, who had held and released 13 hostages in several parts of the state.

The three were James Marion Sumner, 28; Garry Robert Williams, 22; and Luther Petitit, 29, all of Houston, Tex. They escaped from the Gregg County jail, at Longview, Tex., early Sunday with a deputy sheriff and the jailer as hostages.

The three led Texas Rangers, state police, the FBI and deputy sheriffs of eight parishes/counties on a chase through north and central Louisiana.

The manhunt ended about 11 p.m. at the frame house of Leo Martin at Flatwoods, in the Kisatachie National Forest.

"They stormed the house," said a shaken Martin, 60. "They rammed a gun into my girl's back and came in."

He said the escapees were eating dinner with him, his wife, and 16-year-old daughter when Petitit left the room at the sound of an approaching car. Another momentarily put his sub-machine-gun down.

"That was my chance," Martin said. "I grabbed it up and held it on the other two and made them sit down on the floor. The tall one (Petitit) came back in and as he walked through the kitchen door, that's when I let him have it," said Martin.

"The others saw I meant business and I didn't have no more trouble out of them."

But Martin's terrified wife picked up an automatic shotgun and "she went wild and filled the kitchen full of holes," Martin said.

Martin said he released Sumner and Williams with their weapons with the promise they would not hurt his wife and daughter. The pair was captured a short time later.

Dam Policy Will Be Set

Executive members of the Moira River Conservation Authority will meet Friday evening to decide on policy for the operation of the Authority's dams at Belleville and Stoco Lake.

Last week the seasonal dam on the Moira at Riverside Park in Belleville was the scene of a drowning accident when a Toronto area boy was caught between stop logs raised by water pressure after retaining pins had been removed by vandals.

As a result of the accident police ordered operation of the dam to be discontinued until a different method of securing the retaining pins was devised.

It is not expected that the dam will be placed back in operation until after the inquest into the Toronto boy's death. The date for the inquest is expected to be set soon.

The Authority's seasonal dam at Stoco Lake has not yet been placed in operation as the lake level is still above that requested by the cottage owner's association.

The cottage owners have asked that the lake level be stabilized at two feet on the park gauge.

The primary purpose of the Stoco dam is to control the level of the lake which previously has dropped markedly during the dry summer months.

KICKING UP THEIR HEELS to celebrate their reunion after 44 years of separation are five members of a Scottish family. Sharing a toast, in Scotch of course, with their Belleville brother J. W. Sewer Issue Overblown: Trenton Councillor

TRENTON (Staff) — Councillor Duncan MacDonald, chairman of the Trenton council public works committee, said this morning that the town's sewer by-law and non - service situation has been "blown all out of proportion" and indicated town council is willing to work with the people concerned and get things straightened out.

Mr. MacDonald said he was in favor of refunding any money owed.

"But first council will have to meet and then we will have to meet with the people concerned," he said.

"I cannot see any sense for the mayor to talk to the Ontario Water Resources Commission as I have already talked to them twice and they told me they would not charge for any service which is not rendered."

The story came to light when Miss Betty Simpson, 4 Flindall Street, resident complained that she was being assessed a sewer charge despite the fact her property was not receiving service.

Many residents in the North Murray and Flindall Street area have been protesting the sewer charge from its beginning four years ago.

Sewer charges in Trenton were imposed January 1, 1965, the charges taking the form of 50 per cent on water bills for residents living on serviced streets and 30 per cent for residents whose properties were not serviced by sewers.

The sewer surcharge was to be increased this year from 50 to 75 per cent and from 30 to 35 per cent on the water bills but in view of the questionable worth of the by-law the public utilities has been asked to hold the move in abeyance.

It is expected that Mayor James MacDonald will call a special meeting of council to discuss the topic.

However, Mayor MacDonald could not be reached this morning for comment.

Youth Remains Under Care

TRENTON — Seventeen-year-old Rodrick Gregory Pattison of 32 Second Street, Belleville, remains in intensive care in Trenton Memorial Hospital this morning as a result of a two-car accident on Highway 33 near County Road One Sunday morning.

Picton Division of the Ontario Provincial Police said the accident took place when a car driven by David Errol Christopher, 20 Avondale Road Belleville, was passing the car directly behind the Pattison vehicle.

Christopher, 20 and his five passengers were uninjured.

Pattison was alone in his car at the time.

Investigating officer D. Gaudry said total damages amounted to $1,800. The investigation continues.

Napanee Pair In Hospital

A single car accident west of Napanee on highway 502 sent two Napanee women to Belleville General Hospital early Sunday.

Sharon Elaine Snider, 18, of 203 West St., Napanee, and the driver, Linda Sweet of 75 Dundas St. East, Napanee, both suffered head injuries.

Their car left 502 after going out of control and ripped into a fence. Damage is estimated at $1,000.

Charges of careless driving and driving unaccompanied with only a learner's permit have been laid against a Kingston girl Diane Edith Brookes, 17, following an accident Saturday night on the West Lake Road near Bloomfield.

Miss Brookes and her two passengers suffered minor cuts and abrasions after the car left the road and struck a fence. Damages are estimated at $700.

Highland Fling After 44 Years

Family reunions are a summer tradition, but one held yesterday had a special significance.

Two Scottish sisters were reunited with a brother they hadn't seen for 44 years. It was a great day for J. D. Wilson as he played host to all four of his sisters at the home of Dan Wilson on Coleman St.

The oldest and youngest of the four, Mrs. Coline Crowden of Edinburgh and Mrs. Mary Smith of Birmingham, are spending three weeks in Canada with relatives. Mrs. Annie Sked of Edinburgh has been in Canada for a year, and the fourth sister, Mrs. May Jarvies, is now living in Malton.

Mr. Wilson, a veteran of two wars, labels himself "the greatest liar in the world."

"I was under age when I enlisted the first time and over-age the second time," he recalls. He served with the Veterans' Guard, guarding and escorting German prisoners of war, during the second.

His Scottish sisters, who arrived in Canada last Wednesday, have one objective in view during their visit. They want to see Niagara Falls.

"There's a lot of emphasis put on it in our schools," they explain. "Everyone in the old country has heard so much about it, it's the one place we all want to see first."

Four generations celebrated with Mr. Wilson and his four sisters on Sunday. Children, grandchildren and two great grandchildren were on hand for the occasion.

Counties Agree

NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington County Council has endorsed the study of Belleville resolution calling for full provincial grants in support of separate schools.

The Belleville resolution originated with Mayor Russell Scott following a student-sponsored seminar at Nicholson Catholic College on the issue.

At present, government grants and local property tax levies are directed toward separate school education only until grade 10. Separate school education in grades 11, 12 and 13 is offered on a private, fee-paying basis.

Lennox and Addington has no separate secondary schools.

The neighboring county also endorsed a resolution from Hastings County Council calling for government controls on additive phosphorus in household and commercial detergents.

Tweed Kiwanian Attends Convention

TWEED — The 54th Annual Convention of Kiwanis International held in Miami-Miami Beach, Florida, was attended by Dick Simon of Tweed.

Approximately 20,000 people — Kiwanians and their families — were on hand for the affair, the fifth in Miami-Miami Beach. They represent some 275,000 Kiwanians in more than 5,000 clubs.

Kiwanians and their families in attendance heard from top personalities during the three and a half days of the convention: Harold M. Hehmbaugh, West Hollywood, California, president of Kiwanis International, presided. The leaders of Kiwanis' two youth groups — Phillip R. Keplan, president of Key Club International and Peter L. Kellner, president of Circle K International and several other distinguished guests.

Work being accomplished at the convention includes the election of a president, president-elect, two vice-presidents a treasurer, and five trustees for 1969-70. Also, recognition of the clubs and districts throughout the organization, judged tops in community service work and over-all excellence plus the adoption of resolutions upon which the organization's community service program for the coming year will be based.

Rodeo Comes To Cloyne

CLOYNE — The largest touring rodeo show in North America, Tom Bishop's 4-B Ranch Rodeo and Wild West Show will appear at the North Addington High School, Cloyne July 29.

Each performance retains some of the original explosive action that made the Thomas W. Bishop wild west stampede famous in the 1920s and 30s.

Bronco riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and bull riding are features of the show. The 4-B square dance on horseback, with four couples mounted on fast moving cow-ponies is another attraction.

Starting time of the show is 8 p.m.

Horse shows are for small children too, as this youngster found out Sunday. Sitting atop one of the entries, he has a bird's - eye view of the Quinte Western Horse Association's annual show.

Chariots Swing In Annual Show

TRENTON — The Quinte Western Horse Association held its annual show Sunday at Bain Memorial Park before a crowd of some 600 spectators.

Pole bending, chariot races and saddle-up races were just three of the events that kept the spectators cheering their favorites to victory.

Top rider was Belleville's Joanne McNevin, placing first in the barrel and keyhole races, as well as the western pleasure and pole - bending competitions. Miss McNevin placed second in Senior Western Equitation.

Jack Lange won first place standing in the flag and pickup races, and the senior western equitation. He was awarded second prize in the barrel race and reining class competitions. The keyhole race and western pleasure events gave him a third-place standing.

Rick Lange took two first-place wins in the reining class and junior western equitation competition.

Costume and parade events gave Mary O'Neil two first-place standings.

The horse show saw a total of 97 entries. Peter Cameron of St. Catharines, judged the events.

Youth Recaptured

A Bloomfield youth who escaped reformatory Friday night was recaptured early today in Kitchener, say Belleville provincial police.

Thomas Lalonde, 19, escaped Burwash reformatory Friday when he and a companion overpowered a guard and stole his car.

Lalonde's fellow - escapee was recaptured later.

Lalonde, serving 13 months definite and six months indefinite for parole violation and fraud, was arrested about 4 a.m. today.

Picton's 15-Mile Special

City Twosome Win Marathon Ski Races

A pair of Belleville competitors combined to capture the Class "A" title and overall championship Sunday in the Picton Outboard Club's fifth annual 15 - mile ski race off Green's Point near the Long Beach.

Dalton Lambert towed Tony Terhaar to victory in the "A" class for boats with speeds of up to 42 miles per hour and they also outdistanced the "B" class competitors, who were powered by boats with a speed capability of up to 33 miles per hour.

Last year's overall champion Ricky Lyons of Wauposs topped the "B" class competitors and finished second overall. He was driven by Troup Fife of Napanee.

Laverna Moore of Picton towed Doug Stevens of Belleville to second spot in the "A" class and David Whale towed Mike Goring of Toronto to second place in the "B" class of the 15-p mile endurance contest.

Ricky Lyons, at 15 the youngest competitor in the race and one of the pre-race favorites, failed to finish when his harness broke on the first lap of the three - laps around the five mile course. He tried to continue with the broken harness but was unable to finish. Last year Ricky finished third overall.

Rough waters and uncertain weather conditions were cited by Gerald Barber, the vice - president of the Picton Outboard Club, as the reasons for the small entry field of only eight boats — exactly half the number which competed the previous year.

Members of the Prince Edward Ski and Sail Club put on an exhibition of kite flying and water skiing stunts as an added attraction.

The kite flying was a popular item on the program with Mike Church and Jack Duff running through their routines high over the water.

Human pyramids of three and five men were executed with form and grace. Jim Mahee, Rick Jones, Terry Minaker, Mike Church, Barry Ryckman and Wally Frauce performed in the pyramid acts.

Mike Church also gave a demonstration of bare foot water skiing.

The Prince Edward Ski and Sail Club has granted permission to use Pump House Point for their home base. The club will host at the Prince Edward Yacht Club, Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Merv Beaton, Springbrook LOL 442, acted as parade marshal, portraying King William of Orange at Marmora's Orange parade Saturday. Mr. Beaton led the Orange Lodge members down the main street of the town in the Quinte area's only pageant celebrating "the Glorious Twelfth".

Orange Order of Day At Marmora's 'Glorious 12th'

MARMORA — The invasion of the Orange took place last Saturday in the town of Marmora as 31 lodges took part in the celebration of the "Glorious Twelfth."

Merv Beaton, of LOL 442 Springbrook, was a portrait of King William of Orange as he headed the two-and-one-half mile parade.

Prior to the parade members of all lodges were treated to a hot turkey lunch by the ladies of LOBA 1193 Madoc in the community centre.

The Havelock Pipe Band had the honor of being the first band, marching behind an honor guard of Marmora firemen.

Then a reported 6,000 people lined the route to watch the 2,100 marchers pass in review under steady rainfall. Or completion of the parade all Orangemen and friends gathered in the fairgrounds for speeches and presentations.

Gordon McFarlane, treasurer of the Marmora Lodge, said Orange Lodge officers were pleased with the turnout. The day was a great success . . . despite the rain."

Winners of the best Lodges in the parade were: men's Lodge — Malone; women's Lodge — Wallbridge LOBA, and the Juvenile Lodge from Tamworth took first in their division.

Familiar Clubhouse Leaves Point Anne

POINT ANNE — High maintenance costs plus the fact that it no longer is used for its original purpose as a single workers' dormitory, is resulting in the disappearance of a long familiar Point Anne landmark.

It is the old Canada Cement Company clubhouse built prior to World War II, to provide living accommodation for single workers at the cement plant.

"Maintenance of the old building was becoming too expensive and it was no longer being used as a dormitory," said plant official Andrew Robb.

Disappearance of the clubhouse is resulting in more than a little nostalgia on the part of many of the older plant workers who are going to see the old building go.

The building now being razed is not the original clubhouse structure. About 1930 the original clubhouse was razed by fire and was reconstructed.

The old clubhouse is not the only living accommodation at Point Anne which is going under the wrecking hammer because of high maintenance costs.

Three of the older company-owned family houses are seeing the same fate, being past economical repair.

Soviet

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory and an expert in tracking space flights, discounted the lunar soil return theory. He said Russian spacecraft do not appear to have the carrying capacity to attempt a lift-off from the moon. But he said the Luna XV flight "could be the start of a new series in which the Russians will attempt to do automatically what the Americans expect to do with man."

Since cosmonaut Alexei Leonov took the first walk in space in March, 1965, the Soviet manned space program has lagged and the emphasis has been on unmanned flights. The Russians maintain the manned efforts are equally good at providing scientific data and do not risk human life. Their showing in this field has been impressive, but unmanned flights do not have the same impact on the public as manned flights.

Outlet Services Wide Open

By Margaret Haylock
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Reverend Peter Breedveld is a 30ch century apostle who "takes the church to the people." It open air worship services each weekend at Outlet Provincial Park.

Pastor of the Bible Christian Reformed Church in Bloomfield, Rev. Breedveld has been conducting open air services in the park's amphitheatre since 1962.

Before the open air services began many campers flocked to his church in Bloomfield for the Sunday morning service. The small church was filled with regular worshippers and vacationers. Rev. Breedveld felt that outdoor services at Outlet Park would give all campers an opportunity to go to church.

"Many of the campers who come here would like an inland church but most of them neglected to pack suits and hats with their Sunday attired robe," observed the minister. He added that the open air services solved 1 1 problem for vacationers because dress is casual. "Sometimes we have a bather just out of the water who decides to join in the service," said Rev. Breedveld.

Summer services at the park are sponsored by the Christian Reformed Churches of this area. Guest ministers f r o m Belleville and Trenton often join Mr. Breedveld at Outlet Park. Sunday, the brass band of the Christian Reformed Church in Belleville played during the service. More than 200 campers gathered in the amphitheatre to hear Rev. Breedveld speak. Most of them were casually attired in shorts and T-shirts. Additional picnic tables were carried in to accommodate the large number of worshippers wailing to be seated.

"We learned from trial and error," says Rev. Breedveld. "In its first year the open air church was not as successful as it might have been because there was no public address system."

The installation of a PA system coupled with the use of a portable organ made services in the out-of doors an important part of the campers' weekends according to the minister who has worked ea earnestly on the project.

"The people really, enjoy these outdoor services a nd some begin to ask me in June when I will be opening my church at the park," said Rev. Breedveld.

During July there is a daily Vacation Bible School held in the park for youngsters between the ages of 5 and 13.

The Bible School begins last year, operates in such a way that it integrates with camping activities. R e v. Breedveld estimated that 60 children attend the school daily.

The minister is very happy with this year's attendance at "church." It more than justifies his opinion that the campers appreciate and desire a place to worship while holidaying. Standing on a platform set before the Provincial Park's movie screen, Rev. Peter Breedveld takes the church to people of all faiths. with God's sky for the roof of his temple.

Ski Party Charged

A Criminal Code charge, hitherto rarely pressed in the Belleville area, has been laid against a Toronto boat-owner.

Robert Vandervoort, 24, of Don Mills, has been charged by Belleville Provincial Police for an alleged offence while towing a water-skier in the Trent River at Glen Ross Sunday.

Vandervoort, claim police, did not have a second "responsible" person aboard his boat keeping watch on the skier.

Police say many boat owners are unaware that such an offence is stipulated in the Criminal Code, carrying a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment.

Commons Hassle

Last week's big row in the Commons, in the course of the rules debate, was described by one observer as "the ugliest confrontation of the Trudeau government's first parliamentary government.

Charges by Mr. Trudeau of a "stupid filibuster" by the Opposition, of "hypocrisy," counter charges from the other side of the House and an invitation to the Prime Minister by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to withdraw the "hypocrisy" remark had all the elements of a first-class uproar.

But it was no worse than the recent spectacle at Westminster of members throwing books at each other. If the Mother of Parliaments can stoop to such indignities then there is some excuse for Ottawa.

Perhaps the summer is getting to that long and hot stage. At any rate, Mr. Trudeau pointed out he would rather go ahead with his planned visit to the West than listen to a "stupid filibuster." With the Western farmers in the mood they are in it may be for Mr. Trudeau a jump from the frying pan into the fire.

Parliament has survived worse outbursts than this, from the pipeline debate and the flag issue to the Munsinger spy affair. Members of Parliament are only human and we must expect flare-ups every now and again.

Once the Commons has calmed down, however, decisions should come to an end to behavior which frequently seems childish and that the important problems facing the nation be tackled with dispatch.

One such major problem is the jump in the cost of living which the member for Prince Edward-Hastings, George Hees, has been attempting to have discussed by the House. Bread-and-butter issues like this — the problems of the Western farmers with their wheat glut is another — are too important to be sidetracked by arguments over technicalities.

TV and the Moon

How long can a wealthy country like South Africa afford not to have television?

One reason advanced is that the government, subject as it is to worldwide criticism of its apartheid policies, believes television would afford its critics even wider opportunities for condemnation of racial segregation in the republic.

This is proof enough of South African sensitivity over its racial policies. But politics aside there are countless other areas of interest to South Africans, as there are in other countries which long since have introduced television.

Soon the television art will reach a new consummation with the flight of the Apollo XI astronauts to the moon. South Africans are as interested in this as any, with the result that many are booking on a package tour to London for five days of television viewing. They will fly to England on July 19 and return to South Africa on July 24.

There will be plenty to talk about when they get back. In Johannesburg, Capetown, Pretoria and Durban it will definitely be the "in" thing to be able to say you have been to London to see the moonshot on television.

Taking Their Ease

It is a long time since we have seen anyone taking the weight off their legs — as they say in Ireland — on a shooting stick.

For the uninitiated, shooting sticks are poles and can stick the bottom end with the spike in the ground, while two leather arms at the top open out to make a handy but not markedly comfortable seat.

They are the big thing of course in Britain, for a day's shooting or at the races. They are frightfully correct ("in" if you like) on such occasions.

But here in Canada, well they are as rare as a 50-cent piece — unless you happened to be in attendance at the Ontario ladies' amateur golf championship and there were two of Canada's top women golfers, Marlene Stewart Streit and Gayle Hitchens Borthwick perched on shooting sticks while marking scorecards.

Any Briton in the gallery might have been excused for thinking he was at Ascot . . . or maybe the heat was getting to him. Shooting sticks — on a golf course? Well really, what are we coming to. . . !

Shadow of the Power Blocs

Fifty-one Non-aligned Countries Confer in Belgrade

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A conference of non-aligned nations, now being held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, for all its built-in limitations seems to offer a chance to confront a batch of common problems.

Toughest of these would appear to be the relations between these underdeveloped nations and the United States and the Soviet Union, in the face of evidence that the Big Two are increasingly interested in arranging issues to suit themselves.

The conference is merely a preliminary meeting—to see whether there should be a summit conference of leaders from non-aligned countries in the near future.

But the delegates, if they agree on the proposed for a summit, also will be expected to outline an agenda for such a conference. They might find it profitable to include a specific debate by their leaders on the topic of big-power relations.

It is a question that affects them all.

And unlike the stronger and more prosperous countries which are generally linked by treaty with one of the super powers, the non-aligned countries are in a poor position to plead their case when they are overlooked in Soviet-American discussions.

As the Arab countries and Israel are discovering at the moment, Moscow and Washington are not only able but eager to attempt a settlement of differences—in this case, in the Middle East war—with the apparent intention of "persuading" their respective allies afterward to accept the settlement.

Both major powers have considerable powers of persuasion in issues such as this because any definition of "non-aligned" which encompasses all the countries at Belgrade would have to be of almost infinite flexibility.

Two near neighbors offer a good illustration. Despite the warmest of relations with, respectively, the Soviet Union and the U.S., delegates from Syria and Tunisia are both considered "non-aligned" enough to appear in Belgrade.

But conversely, these countries and numerous others at the conference are vulnerable to pressure or persuasion from their big-power friends.

Each of these countries represented in Belgrade has had to handle the problem before. But there seems to have been no attempt to share experiences and define a common approach when small-power interests are threatened.

The non-aligned bloc had its beginnings at the 1955 Bandung conference of Afro-Asians in Indonesia.

Most non-aligned countries in 1955 were just emerging from colonialism and their greatest fear was of a clash between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Bandung conference was able to make the Afro-Asian voice heard, despite harsh differences of opinion within the bloc.

Now the wheel has come full circle.

The danger from the super powers may have altered in the interim. It probably even seems less threatening. But in the long term, the non-aligned nations may find an even greater need for a common voice in future dealings with the giants.

Ghost Towns of Ontario

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

There are many stories about the ghost towns of the West. Many of these were once mining played out the people moved camps, and when the mine away. They left the buildings standing and the heavier possessions intact because it cost so much for transportation that heavy objects like furniture were not worth moving to a new location.

This tended to keep the ghost towns intact, more or less. People visited them and some could not resist carrying off souvenirs, but there was no way of carrying off major material, so the ghost towns slept on in the desert sun.

It is not so generally realized that there are ghost towns of a sort not far from home. Our ghost towns, however, are never likely to become tourist attractions or centres of romantic stories, because they have been pulled down or moved away bit by bit until nothing is left. But at one time there were several communities in the United Counties which now exist only in fading memories.

Sadly, many people fear the trend will continue. There are few more schools to be closed, for the smaller ones are already gone. There is a distinct trend toward closing post offices and churches. With such closings, much of the life goes out of these small centres.

Unfortunately, there is not much in sight to restore the vigor of these places. The distribution of goods, even for the purely farm trade, is concentrated into larger and larger units, in many cases. It is now only too clear that farming itself is moving more and more toward larger units. Four or five and sometimes more farms are being consolidated into one large operation. Under present conditions this trend is unlikely to be reversed.

Israelis Try 'Tokyo Rose' Ruse on the Egyptians

Regina Leader-Post

The Egyptians are said to be complaining that the Israelis are using sex and illusion as well as artillery along the Suez Canal front. Loudspeakers are said to be wafting honeyed female voices across the canal from Israeli side, urging Egyptians to cross the canal and "enjoy the pleasures."

This is a ruse used by the enemy in the Second World War although there is no indication the Egyptians are reacting with the amusement with which Allied troops greeted the blandishments of Tokyo Rose in those days.

The Israelis also are said to be putting the landscaping on their side of the canal to use against the Egyptians.

Palm trees popping up in certain spots are believed to be all gone the next are believed to be camouflaged net towers from which the Israelis keep a close watch on Arab activities.

This game of now-you-see-it, now-you-don't, might give a welcome comic opera touch to the conflict were it not for the tragic fact that prospects for a genuine settlement continue to seem even more of an illusion.

Belleville Native Was Attorney-General

Kelso Roberts Looks Back on 30 Years in Politics

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Writer

A "Gestapo" in Ontario? Government may be having an increasing impact on our lives, but is it possible that a police force comparable with that which made the "knock on the door" the most feared thing in Nazi Germany once held sway in Canada?

Fantastic though it may seem allegations regarding such a force by the leader of the opposition in the Ontario Legislature, E. B. Jolliffe of the CCF, led to the defeat of the Drew government in 1945.

Belleville-born A. Kelso Roberts, former Ontario Attorney-General tells the story in his book, "The Member for St. Patrick — Thirty Years of Ontario Political Action," which has just been released.

Here in part is Mr. Roberts' account of that period of provincial political history: The files of March 1946 heralded the defeat of the Drew government. The leader of the opposition, CCFer E. B. Jolliffe engineered the defeat in the house. He would live to regret it bitterly.

"On Victoria Day, May 24, 1945, at the height of the ensuing campaign, Jolliffe addressed the electors over the CBC radio network, promising at the outset to reveal an infamous plot being perpetrated by the conservative establishment. I am certain that Jolliffe will never forget that speech and I am equally certain that the disastrous effect it had on him personally and the CCF party as a whole must return to haunt him even today.

"It is my duty,' said Jolliffe 'to tell you that Col. Drew is maintaining in Ontario, at this very minute, a secret political police, a paid government organization, a Gestapo to try and collect, by secret spying, material that Col. Drew wants to use to try and keep himself in power. And Col. Drew maintains, his secret political force at the expense of the taxpayers of Ontario.'

As a result of this allegation Col. Drew set up a Royal Commission to investigate the charges. The Commissioner was Mr. Justice Arthur Lebel who found that neither Mr. Drew nor his government established such a force.

According to Mr. Jolliffe the police operations were directed from 18 Surrey Place by William Osborne - Dempster and among their activities was the collection of "a mass of material that was deliberately misleading and false about members of the official opposition (CCF), as well as to other opposing parties, to labor and labor organizations and the public at large.

Said Mr. Justice Lebel in his report, "There can be no doubt that all the persons named by Mr. Jolliffe were anxious to see the CCF party relegated to some political limbo — some perhaps more than others — but there in my view, the matter stops.

Upon the various conclusions I have reached Mr. Drew, Mr. Murray and Mr. McCullagh could not possibly have had anything to do with seeking the defeat or dissemination of the CCF party or other opposition elements by the employment of any of the means mentioned . . .

Gladstone Murray, Montague A. Sanderson and George McCullagh, President and publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, were sued by Mr. Jolliffe as "propagandists of big business" involved in the alleged illegal activity or conspiracy.

The story is one of many Mr. Roberts draws upon in his long experience of provincial politics.

Mr. Roberts, corporate counsel of the Toronto law firm of Keith, Ganong and Roberts, begins his chapter on this incident with words of F. A. MacDougall that are singularly appropriate to political life in general.

"Those who would carry on the great public schemes must be proof against the most fatiguing delays, the most mortifying disappointments, the most shocking insults, and worst of all the pitiless public judgment of the ignorant upon their designs."

Another intriguing episode in the course of Mr. Roberts' political career was one he describes under heading "The Shady Lady." It occurred in 1960 during his term as Attorney-General and it concerned a CBC national network show, "Close Up" portraying the activities of "The Other Woman."

The program presented an interview with an unidentified woman who stated she was engaged in the role of a professional co-respondent. In about 120 divorce actions over the previous four years she had received a fee for her services amounting to $100 per case.

Mr. Roberts tells of the efforts by his own department and by newspapers in Toronto down the woman. Identified in July 1960, the woman told a newspaper she had lied when the CBC and had never acted as a divorce co-respondent and that her TV interview (for which she was paid $150) had been given entirely on the basis of what she claimed to have learned about divorce proceedings.

The former Attorney-General concludes his account of this episode, with a comment that is significant in light of Canada's divorce laws at that time, when adultery was virtually the only grounds for divorce open to unhappily married couples.

"There is no question that the "shady lady" program did a terrific thorough investigation and a great deal of public interest and the collateral evidence of tragic and disastrous to certain individuals, undoubtedly have played an important part in improving practices and revealing the dangers of resorting to shady practices in divorce proceedings.

"Fortunately the areas where the abuse of the process of the Court had taken place were found to be quite limited and it was able to say in November, 1960, with confidence, before a group of students at McMaster University that rigged divorces constituted a small minority of Ontario divorce cases."

At the outset Mr. Roberts tells of his service in the first world war and of his early political consciousness and the Mitch Hepburn period.

Born in Belleville, the eldest of four, Mr. Roberts' lawyer father died at the age of 42 when he was just eleven.

"My mother, my grandmother Kelso and a maiden aunt, Minnie Kelso, brought us up," he relates. "After completing high school and boarding a year at Upper Canada College, I entered Royal Military College and was gazetted a second lieutenant in the Royal Field Artillery in the latter part of World War I. As a subaltern I had been assigned to a forward section of the D 46 brigade four - tenth division a few months prior to the Great German offensive of 1918 which opened on March 21, with gas and smoke barrages of unprecedented volume.

"On the 11th of November, 1918, the first anniversary of the end of World War I, I was studying law at Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

"After a call to the bar and a short stint of practice in Toronto, I heard of an opening in a mining town (Cobalt) for a young lawyer and with only a few dollars in my pocket, I headed north. Many of my activities and life interests stemmed from that venture."

Bicycles Create Freak Pileup

AMELIASBURG — In a freak accident yesterday involving three bicycles, Raymond Lightfoot, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lightfoot, Redneersville Road, suffered a broken leg.

The accident happened on a grade on the lane leading to the Lightfoot residence west of the village of Redneersville.

The three-bike pile-up resulted when leading rider Kim Haggerty 12, lost control of his bike and went sprawling in the centre of the driveway. Young Lightfoot, following ran into him, and Allen Bellamy 12, last in the line, fell on top.

When the lads and the bikes were untangled it was discovered that the Lightfoot boy had fractured both bones in one leg just above the ankle. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital where the leg was operated upon later in the day.

Fingernail Shred Reopens Case

TORONTO (CP) — Explorer Charles Francis Hall died, raving of poison, on an icebound ship off north Greenland in 1871. A United States naval investigation ruled he died of natural causes.

Last winter, a shred of fingernail from the 97-year-old corpse was tested in a Toronto laboratory and found to contain arsenic.

The Hall case was the oldest, but not the most complicated, of the 7,500 a year that come to Ontario's Institute for Forensic Studies. Operated under the attorney-general's department, the institute is one of North America's most complete crime laboratories.

In its brick building on Toronto's waterfront, murder is a matter of sand grains, paint chips and chemical traces, too small to be detected without electronic instruments.

The United States expedition that exhumed Hall's body brought the samples to Toronto because the institute is one of the few laboratories in the world able to handle such a case as uncovering a century-old murder.

The scientists at the institute began by taking fingernail samples from the mummified remains of Hall's corpse.

If a person takes arsenic the poison reaches the root of the nail and is carried along with the growth of the nail.

The scientists found heavy concentrations of arsenic in the nails and deduced that the poison had been given to the captain during the three weeks prior to his death.

Many of the institute's cases are becoming legends in the scientific detection field. Douglas M. Lucas, director of the institute, says he's fascinated by matching wits with criminals.

In a Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., case, the lab was able to show that a particular automobile had been used to introduce carbon monoxide into a bedroom where the woman victim was found.

"That was about as close to an Agatha Christie novel as they come," said Mr. Lucas. "It even had one of her characters — a little old cleaning lady.

"We went to trial convinced her husband had done it," he said. But investigators could find nothing that might have been used to pipe the gas into the bedroom.

"The day the trial opened a little old English lady came forward and said: 'I don't know of its important or not, but the day afterward when I cleaned there were bits of burned hose in the fireplace.'

"One of our people hotfooted it up there. She had thrown the had snowed, and there they were, under the snow. Then our job was to show how the hose had been used, where, and with which car."

Now Lutherans Bear Brunt of 'Underground Church' Attack

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The largely conservative Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod was the unwitting sounding board today for a "white manifesto" issued by two outside clergymen and one of its own ministers in strong criticism of all major religions.

Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Episcopal Anglican priest who wrote the best-selling Are You Walking With Me, Jesus?, led a Lutheran pastor and a Roman Catholic priest Sunday in issuing a brief document supporting the economic demands of the "black manifesto."

Mr. Boyd, 46, a local Jesuit theology teacher, Rev. Thomas Rauch, 38, and Rev. Ken Sherman of a Lutheran church in Buffalo, N.Y., urged at a joint communion service that the so-called "underground" church of disillusioned Christians come to the surface to remake their denominations into small local religious communities that care about minorities and the Vietnam war.

The service held in a city park was in violation of Roman Catholic and Lutheran rules about intercommunion.

The Lutheran Action Committee, a small grouping of churchmen impatient with the traditional conservatism of the synod, was busy Sunday sponsoring the Boyd manifesto and protesting the war and the racial discrimination while the others worshipped in customary services in Denver churches.

Several committee leaders caused a minor stir when they tried to question the war during a Sunday service where the new president of the Missouri Synod, opening its week-long biennial convention, gave a sermon devoted to spiritual matters.

Paul Nordeen, 28, a teacher from Brooklyn, N.Y., was escorted from the hall by ushers and held by city police until church was out. No charges were filed.

Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus, 49, a Springfield, Ill., seminary president, was elected synod president Saturday night in an upset victory over the incumbent, Dr. Oliver R. Harms of St. Louis.

No president up for re-election ever had been defeated since the Missouri Synod was started by German immigrants in 1847.

Dr. Harms, 67, has been advocating intercommunion and pulpit exchange between his 2,000,000-member denomination and other Lutheran bodies. His defeat was viewed as a conservative backlash against increasing liberalism in his leadership.

Orange Day Blues

'Glorious Twelfth' Attracts Only 4,000

TORONTO (CP) — This city used to be called the Belfast of the West, but Saturday, with fewer than 4,000 turning out to celebrate the memory of "the glorious twelfth", the Orange Day parade was perhaps the smallest and tamest in Toronto's history.

The march, in memory of the victory of King William III, a Protestant, over James II, a Roman Catholic, in 1690 at the River Boyne in Ireland, was attended by many who said they had come "for the outing" or to "listen to the music" of the bands.

BLYTH, Ont. (CP) — English-Protestant tradition is being thrown out by Quebec-education federal government ministers and the bill on bilingualism is a direct result, Rev. R. A Carson told an outdoor Orangemen's rally Saturday.

The Anglican minister from Lucan, Ont., urged the Orangemen to build up their order and become actively engaged in local and government affairs.

He said the Orange order is the only group presenting Protestant religion in the reform tradition, and it must fight to maintain supremacy of the English language.

Indian Spokesman Says Ottawa 'Acts Like Russia'

BRANTFORD (CP) — Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, Saturday told the Six Nations Indian Confederacy chiefs the federal government is not trying to force its new Indian legislation on Canada's native peoples.

Answering one of the delegates who said the federal government is acting like Russia when it invaded Czechoslovakia, Mr. Nixon said:

"I must object to that. I do not believe the federal government is going to force this on you in the manner of a totalitarian country."

He said the Indians should unite to examine the provisions of the new legislation.

Then, he said The Six Nations, and not just the elected or hereditary people, but the whole 10,000-member group, should file their objections: "and mention those points that you feel have merit."

"The new policy has been damned backwards and forwards, but no one has taken the time to bring out its good points."

Motorcycle Club Brawl Ends in Jail, Hospital

PORT SEVERN, Ont. (CP) — One man was shot in the leg and another severely beaten Sunday during a brawl between members of a Toronto motorcycle club and local youths at Musky Bay near here.

John Williams, 21, and Richard Hubble, both members of the Paradise Riders Motorcycle Club of Toronto, were admitted to hospital in Midland. Williams was shot in the leg with a .32 calibre bullet.

Police said three carloads of youths arrived at a cabin where about 20 motorcyclists were staying. The fight and shooting followed.

Police were holding William Wood, 21, of Port Severn and Terry Andrews, 21, of Coldwater for questioning.

Port Severn is about 20 miles northwest of Orillia.

Drive-In, Take Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Three armed bandits wearing what appeared to be pillow cases held up the Odeon-Queensway Drive-In Theatre Saturday night and stole about $1,000.

The men held up a cashier and doorman and drove away in a stolen car. It is the third drive-in theatre robbery in recent months.

British Oarsman On Home Stretch

MIAMI (AP) — British oarsman John Fairfax fought winds and ocean currents pushing him toward Cuba as he tried to reach the Gulf Stream on the last leg of his six-month row across the Atlantic.

John Austin, the London adventurer, a radio contact in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., said seas were calm when his last communicated Sunday. But Austin said Fairfax complained he was "dammed tired from 50 hours of non-stop rowing."

Austin said Fairfax was believed at least 40 miles north of Cuba on a line that would take him into Miami. However, Austin and photographers searched the Strait of Florida by plane for two hours Sunday without sighting Fairfax.

Spotty radio contact prevented Fairfax, bobbing on small waves in his 24-foot Britania, from providing his searchers with co-ordinates of his position.

"He said he wasn't certain of it, anyway, probably because he was so damn tired," Austin said.

Fairfax left the Canary Islands in January, bound for Miami in an effort to be the first to row the Atlantic alone.

Underground Enterprise Costing Publisher Dearly

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis. (CP-AP) — The owner of a publishing company in this Milwaukee suburb says he has lost about one-half of his advertising revenue because he has rejected pressure to stop printing an underground newspaper.

William F. Schanen Jr., 56, citing freedom of the press as his reason, says he will not bow to economic pressure and will continue to print an underground newspaper called Kaleidoscope.

The newspaper now is fighting charges of obscenity in the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Schanen is president of Port Publications Inc., which publishes three suburban Milwaukee weekly newspapers with a total circulation of about 11,000.

Benjamin Grob, a 68-year-old manufacturer, started a drive to withhold advertising from Port Publications until Schanen stopped printing the underground newspaper. It has been supported by Civic groups, churches, individuals and businesses.

Schanen said the company usually averages about $200,000 annually in advertising revenue. He said already this year the company has lost half of that figure.

UFO Over Petawawa

PEMBROKE (CP) — Two police constables and several other persons reported sighting an unidentified flying object near here early Saturday.

"It was just like a large star . . . no body, no form, just a light about 1,500 feet in the sky," said Constable Jack McKay of the Pembroke OPP detachment.

The object was described as a "cylindrical-shaped brilliant light in the sky moving westward," a town 10 miles north of Pembroke. Constable McKay, his patrol partner Constable Grant Chaplin, and several others, including three military policemen at the nearby Canadian forces base, reported seeing the phenomenon at about 5 a.m. Saturday.

The Canadian forces radar station at North Bay reported Sunday it is checking the incident.

Migraine Cause In Blood?

NEW YORK (AP) — A Washington, D.C., scientist said Saturday that migraine headaches may be related to the concentration of a certain type of cells in the blood.

Dr. Ernst Thonnard of St. Elizabeth's Hospital described his research on the cause of migraine headaches at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Study of Headaches.

The scientist said he discovered that some persons suffering from migraine headaches had a greater number of "basophils," a type of white cells, in their blood on the side of the head that hurts.

He found that during a migraine attack the basophils release a substance called heparin, an anti-coagulant that Dr. Thonnard said my be responsible for the spontaneous ending of a migraine headache.

Circus No Fun

CARLETON PLACE, Ont. (CP) — Three members of a travelling carnival troupe have been charged and a wild melee touched off here Sunday in which fireboxes were used to disperse angry teen-agers.

The troupe members were arrested Friday after a scuffle broke out between some men and a local teen-ager. They were released on bail Saturday and late the same night 150 young people gathered near the carnival site and exchanged words with troupe members.

'Cheese' on Moon?

Apollo II spacecraft commander Neil Armstrong will be the first person to say "cheese" on the moon. While Lunar module Pilot Edwin Aldrin scoops up samples of the moon's surface July 21, Armstrong will record the historic event with a television camera for the millions of people watching on earth.

Doctor Gradually Convincing Colleagues of Space Safety

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Eight years ago Dr. Charles A. Berry had to convince doctors and scientists that astronaut Alan B. Shepard would not die of a heart attack during a 15-minute sub-orbital flight.

Four years ago, he had to convince them that the Gemini 4 pilots would not tumble out of their spaceship and drown after four days in space.

Now, Berry is ready to monitor the hearts of two men walking on the moon. Most of the doubters have been stilled.

"It's indicative of how we've knocked down one medical fear after another in manned space flight," said Berry, the astronauts' chief medical officer. He said the 4,314 hours of weightlessness Americans have endured in space have produced no serious medical problems.

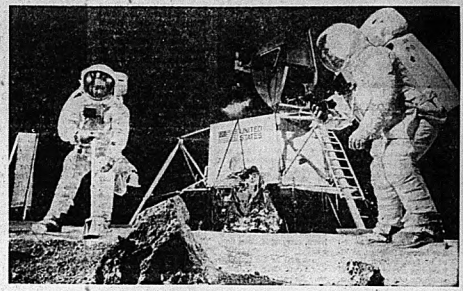
When astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. step on to the moon's surface early July 21, Berry will be in the Mission Control Centre in Houston, Tex., receiving three readings on each man.

He'll be watching heart rate, oxygen consumption and temperature of the water that cools the spacesuit. The last will be an indirect measure of how much of the astronauts' body is producing.

Berry said extensive pre-flight physicals have enabled doctors to draw a metabolic profile of each man.

Programmed into a computer are such facts as the man's work capacity on earth at various heart rate plateaus—120 beats a minute, 140, 160, etc., the related oxygen consumption and how much heat the body generates.

"We'll feed the information we receive from the moon into the computer," he added.



Berry doubts there're any germs or living bacteria on the moon's surface which astronauts could catch and bring home. But to be on the safe side astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin and Michael Collins will taart a 21 day quarantine period the day they leave the moon.

Answer Still 'Nyet'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin of Russia has turned down an invitation to watch this week's Apollo 11 moon launching, the space agency said Saturday.

The refusal keeps intact a record of neither Russia nor the United States having officially witnessed each other's space shots.

A total of 69 ambassadors as well as 100 ofreign science ministers, attaches and military aviation officials have accepted the space agency's invitation to attend the launch.

Space Scoop

Apollo II lunar module pilot Edwin Aldrin demonstrates how he will scoop up samples of the moon's surface when he and spacecraft commander Neil Armstrong land on the moon July 21. First Special Delivery from Moon To Contain Priceless Samples of Dirt

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Eleven days from now, an extraordinary shipment is due from the moon.

It will weigh 50 to 60 pounds, and be vacuum-packed inside two metal boxes.

It will be a collection of rocks and dust picked from the moon's surface by the Apollo 11 astronauts; the first men on the moon. The specimens will be priceless because they will be the first known to have come from any known place in the universe.

Several hundred impatient scientists in 13 countries will be waiting to study these rocks for what they really represent—pages out of the history of the mysterious, challenging moon.

The first question will be are they dangerous? Do these rocks carry germs, viruses, peculiar to life forms that might sweep in a bizarre epidemic among people on earth? They will be quarantined for at least three weeks while this is checked.

The first sample of moon rocks may only tease a bit longer the advocates of various theories as to how the moon and earth began.

One theory is that the earth and moon began as great clouds of space dust, which condensed under gravitational pressure to form planetary bodies wheeling around the sun, about 4,500,000,000 years ago.

Other questions scientists hope the rocks will help answer:

Does the moon have a molten core at its centre—as does the earth—or was it never alive with hot fires from radioactivity or other causes?

Were the moon's tremendous craters and so-called "seas" formed by volcanic action, or by bombardment of meteorites?

Does the moon have life on or under its surface, even if be in the form of suspended animation, for instance a virus that can be freeze-dried, then reactivated on contact with water?

Does the moon have the beginnings of organic materials out of which life might spontaneously spring?

So vital is winning the yield of just one rock that Armstrong's first task when he sets foot on the moon is to pick up a rock and stick it in his pocket, in case some emergency forces a quick halt in his stay on the moon.

Apollo Flight To Pack 'em In

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More people throughout the world are expected to watch the Apollo 11 moon flight on television than any previous single event.

Virtually every country—including some Communist nations—has planned television, radio and newspaper coverage of the event, and Venezuela has declared July 21 a public holiday because of the lunar landing's "great importance for the history of mankind."

The CBC plans two pre-launch specials and coverage of all live transmissions from Apollo, with extensions of 11 p.m. national news when necessary.

There will be a half-hour progress report every evening, with an extra one July 19 during preparations for lunar orbit.

Man's first step on the surface of the moon will be telecast to earth July 21, with the first television show from the moon with live actors starting at 2:12 a.m. EDT and ending at about 4:52 a.m., or perhaps later.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES CALLAHAN

Callahan – McFarlane

St. Charles Borromeo Church Road, was the scene of the recent wedding when Janice Dianne McFarlane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. McFarlane, RR1, Shannonville, was united in marriage to Charles Edward Callahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival Callahan of RR1, Corbyville. The ceremony was performed by Father Leonard Callahan, assisted by Rev. William Hendry. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Mrs. Adrian Callahan. Soloist was Michael Rivers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length A-line gown, of organza over silk, featuring an empire waistline and elbow length sleeves, rounded neck. Her detachable circular chapel train fell from the waist. Both the dress and train were trimmed with organza and silk appliques in a rose design. Her same applique design, completed by a two tier shoulder length veil of organza. She carried a bouquet of deep pink carnations.

Maid of honor, Gloria McFarlane, was attired in a full length sleeveless gown of multi-colored nylon sheer, with an empire waistline, and a rounded neckline trimmed with petals of the same material. Her headdress was a matching ribbon in her hair. Her bouquet was a nosegay of yellow mums in green tulle.

Bridesmaids, Miss Joyce McFarlane and Mrs. Milton Bell, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Carol McFarlane were dressed similar to the maid of honor, carrying identical flowers.

Best man for the ceremony was Frank Callahan. Ushers were Thomas Callahan and Joseph Callahan.

For the reception, held at the Read parish hall, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a pink formel crepe dress with a cowl collar and empire waistline. Her accessories were in white, and her corsage was a white orchid. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a turquoise crepe dress with bell sleeves, accented with beaded embroidery. Her accessories were also in white, complemented by a white orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip, the bride donned a two piece suit of fortrel in white and turquoise, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Alan Lee (nee Donna McGrath) was honoured at a surprise miscellaneous shower at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Elaine McGrath, RR 1, Foxboro, with co-hostesses, Mrs. Florence Levesque and Mrs. Maureen Hollywod, both sisters of the bride. A surprise kitchen shower was also given for the bride by Mrs. Valerie Wardle, sister of the bridegroom, at the home of Mrs. Lilian Lee, Belleville. A shower was also given for the bride-elect by her co-workers of the French Beauty Salon at the home of Mrs. Pam Parm, RR 1, Foxboro.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN LEE

Lee – McGrath

St. Joseph's Catholic Church was the scene of the July 5 wedding when Donna Marie McGrath, daughter of Thomas McGrath, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Irene McGrath, became the bride of Alan Ronald Lee, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee, of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Monsignor Carley. Soloist for the occasion was Bob Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of lagoda featuring Juliet sleeves, trimmed with Venetian lace at the sleeves and collar, with empire banding, also of the same lace. Her train was of embedded lagoda, of unadorned lagoda, while her veil was of flower buds and seed pearls, scalloped with unpearled lace. She carried a bouquet of white and pink roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Betty Broadbridge, eldest sister of the bride, wore a full-length gown of yellow chiffon over yellow satin, with a yellow satin bow at the back of the chiffon train. Short sleeves and a lace bodice also complemented the gown.

Bridesmaids, Miss Camilla McGrath; Mrs. Maureen Hollywood; Mrs. Florence Levesque, sister of the bride and Mrs. Valerie Wardle, only sisters of the bridegroom were gowned the same as the matron of honor, except in green. All carried bouquets of white and green carnations.

Flower girl, Miss Maureen Wardle, niece of the bridegroom wore a floor length gown of yellow chiffon over yellow satin trimmed in yellow lace with a matching short-length sleeves. She carried a white basket of white, yellow and lime carnations.

Best man for the ceremony was Terry Hiddleston. The ushers were Patrick McGrath; Glene McGrath and Steven Turner.

For the wedding reception held at the Pinnacle Room of the Quinte Hotel, the mother of the bridegroom received the guests wearing a lavender crepe dress and a matching lavender lace coat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride donned a green empire styled wrap around dress with a square neckline and white accessories, completed by a corsage of white and red roses. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

Family Reunions

HOLMES FAMILY

Recently the members of the Holmes families gathered at the Holmes' homestead for their 45th annual reunion at the former Queensboro schoolhouse, now the Women's Institute Hall, where nearly all the older ones had gone to school.

Al those in the family sat down to a pot luck dinner prepared by the women with 83 members present. After the repast the young children played outside while the older ones visited and a short business and a brief business session.

The minutes of the last reunion were read, and the secretary, Mrs. Ed Holmes, gave a paper on the history of the Holmes' family, also a summary of the reunions held. The first one was held in 1920 and the second one in 1921 when all the brothers of the original family were present.

Mrs. John L. Holmes of Tweed who will be celebrating her 85th birthday was presented with a gift and a card. Gifts were also given to Mrs. R. A. Sager for never having missed a reunion and to Mrs. Edmund Groves for only having missed one. John Holmes, of Stirling, received a gift for being the oldest man present. A gift for the couple coming the farthest was given to Mr. and Mrs. L. Harris and family, of London, Ontario. A gift for the newest bride was presented to Mrs. John Morgan. It was decided to hold the Reunion in Queensboro again next year (1970). A collection was taken up to help pay expenses.

Several persons went to see the old homestead of the first Mr. Holmes.

The president is Durward Holmes, the secretary is Mrs. Ed Holmes.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM BRYAN BURGESS

Burgess – Bateman

Dr. H. M. Davis officiated at the wedding ceremony in Bridge Street United Church, on Saturday, June 28, 1969, when Karen Jane Bateman, daughter of Dr. Russell G Bateman and Mrs. Bateman was united in marriage to William Bryan Burgess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burdette Burgess of Toronto. Alec Gordon rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist L. S. Thompson in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a hand made Juliet gown of pale peach satin with matching train extending to the floor.

A full-length veil flowed from a headdress of matching material adorned with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and stephanotis

Miss Paddy Bateman attended her sister wearing a full-length sleeveless gown of pale lilac satin backed bandung with hand rolled collar and highlighted with a contrasting dark purple weskit with full bell sleeves. She carried a cascade bouquet of baby yellow and purple carnations. Little Miss Johanna Bateman, sister of the bride, wore a long gown of white organdy with pale pink trim and a matching tiara of pink encrusted with rhinestones. She carried a tiny white basket of baby yellow carnations.

Gerald McAdam was groomsman and the ushers were James Bateman, brother of the bride, Glen Murray, David Reid and Christopher Champion.

For the reception on the spacious lawn at the home of the bride's parents on George Street, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a long sleeveless gown in mauve chiffon with matching coat. Complementing her gown she wore a wrist corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids with a matching orchid in her hair. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a floor-length gown in yellow featuring a chiffon top and shantung skirt with a mauve orchid corsage.

Leaving on an extended trip to Spain and the Middle East, the bride donned a gold colored pant suit with matching shoes and a corsage of gardenias. On their return the couple plan to reside in Toronto.

Belleville Couple Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James V. O'Neill, Belleville recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

An anniversary Mass of Thanksgiving was celebrated in their honor in Holy Rosary Church by their son Rev. Francis J. O'Neill. Two grandsons, Tommy Coughlin and Timmie O'Neill served the Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill were married in St. Edmund's Church, Stoco on June 23, 1919 by the Rev. John J. Quinn. Their attendants, Thomas J. Whalen of Stoco and Mrs. Loretta Lapalm of Smiths Falls were with them for the happy occasion.

Following the Mass dinner was served to about 80 guests in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Father George Mullin of Holy Rosary Church, Sister M. Everdita of Providence Hospital, Moose Jaw, sister of Mrs. O'Neill and Sister M. Clarissa, cousin of Mrs. O'Neill were among the special guests for the occasion.

Centring the dinner table was a three-tiered wedding cake made by their daughter, Mrs. Ken Rashotte of Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill have three sons and eight daughters all of whom were present: Rev. Francis J. O'Neill P.P., Madoc; John of Belair, Maryland; Tom of Belleville; also Mrs. James Murphy (Helen) of Kingston; Mrs. John Fobert (Vera) of Brampton; Mrs. Kenneth Rashotte (Theresa) of Tweed; Mrs. John Ross (Betty) of Belleville; Mrs. Leonard Coughlin (Eileen) of Belleville; Miss Cecelia O'Neill, Belleville; Miss Mary O'Neill of Ottawa and Miss Joan O'Neill of Toronto.

They also have 44 grandchildren. The honored couple were "at home" to their many friends, relatives and neighbors in the afternoon and evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Dancing and a social evening were also enjoyed by a large crowd with John Ervine helping provide the music. He also supplied the music at their wedding of 50 years ago.

Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Millbridge and Stafford Meraw of Tweed provided music for the happy occasion. Among the treasured messages of congratulations was a "Papal Blessing" from Pope Paul VI, and a special message from Archbishop Wilhelm of Kingston.

Messages also received from Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau; Hon. Robert L. Stanfield; Lee Grills M.P.; J. Russell Scott M.P.P., C.M. mayor of Belleville and a plaque from Hon. John Robarts presented by R. T. Potter, M.D., M.P.P.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill farmed for many years in Thurlow township moving to Belleville about 20 years ago.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I'm so rushed. I have to pack all the bags for the vacation trip or the children would arrive without half the things they need. They have no sense of responsibility."

Children can learn to be responsible if their mother will permit them to do the things they are capable of doing for themselves.

Mother: "Make a list of the clothing and other things you will need on the trip, and check them off as you put them in your suitcase. Start packing tomorrow so you won't be rushed at the last minute."

Ann Landers

Husband, Employee Relationship Queried

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband worked with a girl for ten years. She was unmarried and not bad to look at. During the course of her employment they used to have lunch together frequently and he drove her home. I had no objection to this because people who work together often have much to talk about.

A few years ago this woman left my husband's employ, but she still drops around to the office to see him and sometimes he takes her to lunch. I've told him this is out of line and I don't like it. He insists that since there is no sex involved (and I'm sure there isn't) I have no right to demand that he stop seeing her.

ANN LANDERS

I feel that infidelity in marriage need not necessarily mean sexual involvement. The fact that my husband is enjoying another woman's company is, in my opinion, a form of unfaithfulness. I say if they are good friends and want to continue the friendship she should come to our home and visit us. Am I right? — THINKING OUT LOUD.

DEAR THINK: No. You're wrong — on several counts. First. Your notion that a married man is unfaithful to his wife when he enjoys another woman's company is nonsense. A wife who would put such restrictions on her husband demonstrates no confidence in him and enormous insecurity in herself.

Your suggestion that the former employee come to your home to visit is gracious. Why don't you invite her? It probably won't terminate the His and Her lunches, however, since the friendship is obviously a durable one. But being with them from time to time, witnessing their mutuality of interest will reinforce your belief that there is no sex involved and you will feel less threatened.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing in the hope that if I start soon enough we can avoid an office battle that raged for nine weeks last summer. We have a huge air-conditioning unit in our office. It must be adjusted manually. Miss Betterhanyou is always just about to faint from the heat. She insists on turning on the unit as high as it will go. Yesterday she set the controls to please herself, taped over the knobs with adhesive and hung a sign which read "Leave As Is." I nearly froze to death.

Must the entire office force be confined with colds and sore throats all summer because of one natty change-of-life broad? What should be done? —FREEEEE - EEEEEZING FRANCES.

DEAR FREEZE: The boss should call in an air-conditioning expert to settle the argument. The expert should regulate the unit and inform one and all that it is set for the season. Miss Betterhanyou should have the desk nearest the air conditioner and you should be at the far end of the room — with a sweater handy.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Why Not Serve Fish Tonight?

By MARY MOORE

Even the radio commentator chuckled after the food market prices report. Beef prices are sky high. He said "I guess it's fish and chicken for us poor folks."

Previously I had attended a dinner for food editors and other communicators where my table companion was from the Department of Fisheries. She said that they were receiving reports that cookery experts were giving the public recipes for fish that are too fancy.

So I resolved to test-cook inexpensive fish simply. I bought 1-lb. packages of fresh frozen ocean perch for 45 cents per pound and went to work. I baked them three ways — very simply.

BAKED FISH FILLETS

1) On a buttered Pyrex pie plate I placed defrosted fillets and spread them generously with genuine mayonnaise and baked them at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 min.

2) I coated defrosted fish fillets with beaten egg and then with fine bread crumbs. I placed these on a buttered Pyrex pie plate and sprinkled each with a little MSG (Accent), salt and pepper and baked them at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 min. but during last 3 min. raised them up closer to preheated broiler element to brown a little.

3) I dipped defrosted fillets in milk then placed them on a sheet of buttered foil and sprinkled sparingly with chopped chives, MSG, salt and pepper. I baked them at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 min.

NOTE: Any of the above could be served with lemon juice or sauce tartare but I did not.

RESULTS: I liked No. 2 — crumbed fillets — best. The milk dipped, foil wrapped fillets — No. 3 — were moist and very tender. No. 1 was the easiest and prettiest.

So if you belong to the protein group who will rest or cannot afford high priced beef and who are in a hurry, make your choice from above speedy fish fillets methods. One pound fresh frozen fish fillets serves 3 generously and if they are ocean perch that is 15 cents per person, my friends.

Following the opening of the meeting by president Mrs. Wetherall, business items were dealt with. A community picnic was planned for Aug. 10 at Ameliasburg Park.

Mrs. Frank Townsend was in charge of the program on "Human Relations", presenting an informative talk on Ontario's Indian population. A discussion period followed.

The meeting closed in the usual manner and was followed by a luncheon.

The August meeting will be held at Mrs. Clifford Calnan's cottage.

Successful Living

Bachelor Must Try Overcoming Inhibitions

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a 32-year-old bachelor living alone, and I don't like it. I am the quiet, introverted type and so I don't belong to any organized groups. About a year ago I registered with an introduction service, but they haven't been able to find anyone for me. It's sort of discouraging.

The reasons, I think, that this group could not help me, can best be sumrined up by the following personal inventory:

(1) I don't dance (but like all types of music, except western); (2) I have no religious affiliation (raised in the United Church, but now skeptical); (3) the things that I enjoy cannot be shared by the opposite sex (hiking, reading, following professional sports); (4) I don't enjoy parties or social gatherings where there are people that I don't know; and (5) I am basically a loner, having only two close friends.

I am most depressed on the weekends with nothing to do and no one to think about but myself.

Am I a hopless case, or is there some way that I can enjoy life more? — Too Much Alone.

Dear Too Much: Hopeless, no. But getting you out of your shell may take a crowbar, at 32. You are going to have to try something social, much as it pains you.

When you do venture forth, bear in mind that this is the first step in an undertaking to relieve that greater agony, the Being Alone. And that each overture into unaccustomed company makes it easier.

(1) Anyone can learn to dance; (2) there are non-religious affiliations; (3) many, many feminine types enjoy hiking, reading, and following professional sports; (4) parties will only be populated with people you do know after you circulate some; and (5) labelling yourself as a loner and accepting the title, is no way to pave the way for friendships.

Write me again after you've tried something. What you manage will give hope to day once you have reached someone else.

* * *

Dear Doris: How many calories should you consume each day once you have reached the right weight? Also, does it matter what type of foods you consume to make up the allotted calories as long as you do not go over the calorie count? For example; could I have an order of French fries for lunch if I allowed for this in my day's calories?—What's Far for the Doer?

Dear What's Par: You can indulge periodically in any old thing you want, as long as you balance it out. To figure out your daily ration of calories, multiply your ideal weight by 15, if you are moderately active.

Why? Simply because you burn up about 15 calories for each pound of body weight, daily, if you get around a bit.

But — and it's a big but — French fries, or chocolates, or other yummy things, use up more than a reasonable amount of the allotment; that is if you want to keep your nutrition perfect.

Oakleaves a craving for lettuce.

Dear Doris: I read your column every day and I just thought I'd pass along some information to all the women who have filmy see-through negligees. I used to buy them too until one day I bought a floor-length gown with long sleeves and a high neck and my husband told me I looked sexy and more appealing because it made me look young and innocent.

Another good point is that they don't cost half as much, so why not try it, girls? It's worth it! — Mrs. M.

Dear Mrs. M.: So there's still an attraction in a little modesty? Thank you, Mr. M.!

* * *

We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Changes in residential property tax reduction 1969

To ease the burden of local taxes on all houses and all apartments, the Province of Ontario introduced last year a system of tax reductions. In 1969 that system is continuing as a unique method of helping the individual householder.

The system makes payments to every eligible householder in the province. In the case of a home-owner, there is a reduction in his bill for municipal and school taxes. In the case of a tenant, the reduction is allowed on the tax bill of his landlord, and the landlord in turn is required to pass on to the tenant the full amount to which he is entitled. Although the money comes from the Province, it is only through the co-operation of municipal governments that the system is effective.

A long-term program of major municipal improvements is now under way. In the meantime, the tax reduction system is spreading the tax load more fairly by taking more than $120,000,000 annually from Provincial tax revenue, raised from broader sources, and paying the money to individual families in houses and apartments.

Changes in 1969

The system remains basically the same as it was last year, but there have been a number of changes that will have an important effect for many persons:

If a tenant moves out during the first eleven months of 1969, the landlord or his agent must pay him within 30 days the tax reduction to which he is entitled. The amount will be one-twelfth of the rebate for each month of tenancy. (Except for those cases, the deadline for payment of the reduction is the same as last year—that is, December 31.)

Amount of reduction: If your local mill rate goes up, the amount of the reduction will go up. The amount will go down only in the case of certain low-assessment dwellings such as cottages.

A maximum of 50 per cent of municipal and school taxes may be excused through tax reduction, in other words, a cottage or other low-assessment dwelling will not have all its taxes covered; the amount of reduction shall never be more than 50 per cent of the total taxes.

Tenants in Crown properties are entitled to tax reduction in the same way as other tenants. Tenants in Ontario Housing Corporation units or National Capital Commission units are examples.

Who is eligible?

Every owner of a separately assessed residential property, and every tenant of such a property, is entitled to receive the tax reduction. Most houses, apartments, farm dwellings and cottages are eligible.

Roomers are not eligible because their rooms are not separately assessed dwellings.

Note to tenants and landlords

The landlord is required to check on the amount of tax reduction that is due to each rental unit and see that the correct amount is paid to each tenant by December 31. This year if a tenant moves out during the first eleven months of 1969, he is to be paid the proportionate amount of tax reduction within 30 days of his termination of tenancy.

In the very rare cases of landlords who do not act responsibly, tenants can take legal action. They are advised to check first with the Department of Municipal Affairs or their local municipal office to be sure that they appear to be eligible and that their case cannot be settled in a simpler manner.

Nearly all landlords are accepting their role in the tax reduction system and doing it efficiently. The proportion of eligible tenants who had any complications in collecting their 1968 reduction was very small, and it is expected this year to be smaller still.

If you have questions about the 1969 tax reduction system or wish to obtain the basic information in leaflet form, please enquire at your local municipal office or the Municipal Subsidies Branch, Department of Municipal Affairs, 801 Bay Street, Toronto 181. Telephone: Area Code 416, 363-7501.

Gangs Stage Street Fight at Canadian Resort Near Buffalo

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont. (CP) —Forty - two persons were charged with causing a disturbance after friction between gangs of youths from this resort town and Buffalo, N.Y., erupted into a three-hour street battle during the weekend.

Opl. Er. J. Broad of the provincial police detachment at Crystal Beach said Sunday arrests probably would reach 45 in the wake of what police described as "a near-riot" early Saturday.

Some of those arrested also were charged with carrying an offensive weapon.

All were scheduled to appear in court Tuesday at Ridgeway, just north of this Lake Erie resort community.

The battle came after two weeks of minor clashes between rival groups calling themselves "fraternities," and started about the time bars closed at 1 a.m.

One report said the first incident was a street scuffle; another said trouble started in an apartment occupied by U.S. youths over a store on Derby Road, the main street of Crystal Beach.

Bottles and stones were thrown in the free-for-all that raged up and down Derby Road until about 35 provincial policemen brought the crowd under control. Volunteer firemen turned hoses on the battlers.

All police cruisers nearby were called in and reinforcements were brought from neighboring communities. Crystal Beach is 15 miles south of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Police said several gang members suffered minor cuts and bruises. Stones and bottles were thrown at policemen, but none was injured. Windows were broken in a food market across from the apartment where the fighting centred.

About 30 of those arrested were from Buffalo, including seven girls who were charged and then escorted by police to the international border crossing at Fort Erie, Ont.

Riot Equipment Not Needed

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) — Police arrested nine youths Saturday and Sunday morning after two nights of disturbances involving about 70 young people.

Provincial police were called in together with men from neighboring Anderdon, Malden and Sandwich West to boost the four-man local police force to 20.

The OPP brought in riot sticks and helmets but the equipment was not used.

Auto Races at Watkins Glen Are Again Marred by Rioting

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Automobile racing fans departed peacefully Sunday afternoon from this Finger Lakes village without a repeat performance of early morning disturbances in which 36 were hurt and 65 arrested.

Two others were asphyxiated in another, unrelated, mishap during the weekend Canadian-American Challenge cup races.

Among the injured were four deputy sheriffs, part of the large law enforcement force that was on hand to handle the throngs of spectators.

A barn was burned down and fireworks were set off, deputies said. Several mobs were broken up.

Tear gas was used to disperse a crowd of about 200 who advanced on deputies at the track.

Most of the injuries were cuts and bruises. The criminal charges included inciting to riot, disorderly conduct, assault and possession of fireworks.

Last year, 150 were arrested.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Blake of Binghamton, the parents of seven children, were found dead Sunday morning in their closed camping van at a park on nearby Seneca Lake.

Deputy sheriffs said the couple apparently was asphyxiated by fumes from a gas heater and a charcoal cooking unit. Five of their children had accompanied them on the trip and slept overnight in a pitched tent near the van.

Blake, a model maker for International Business Machines, was a member of the communications team at the track. The team watches the track and signals disruptions of the race to the control booth.

Soccer Fans Battle

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Sunday afternoon soccer game here erupted into a 30-minute free-for-all, with about 400 irate players and fans "shoving, punching and kicking" each other, police said.

Several fans were injured, but none required hospital treatment.

The brawl started when linesman Peter Hagl disallowed a goal by Greek Olympians, who were trailing London Celtics 1-0 with seven minutes to play in a London District Soccer League game.

One city policeman said the players immediately attacked each other with fists and feet and fans from both sides crowded the field. The teams were ordered off the field and the game was called, but the fighting went on.

When the factions were finally separated the fans demanded their $1 admission money back, but police advised them to complain to the league.

FIGHT NUDITY

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A religious sect called Maranata is waging a vigilante war against shopkeepers who display nude or seminude pictures in the windows. Members of the group have been plastering windows with red paint and glue.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS:

INFLATION AND YOUR INSURANCE PREMIUMS

Jim Patterson

The government study of the effects of inflation on the home building industry recently illustrated the alarming increase in the costs by citing several actual examples where it cost more to tear down a building currently than to build it in the first place.

That's a result of a drop in the purchasing power of our dollar that is averaging over 4 percent a year.

It is inevitable that this trend effects insurance rates which have risen sharply in the last six years. Here are some reasons why:

Doctor's fees have gone up almost 25 percent and hospital fees have doubled and the settlements for personal injury that arise out of accidents have quadrupled in many cases.

Lawyer's fees have risen as much or more than doctor's charges as well as the fees of the experts who handle the claims along with them.

Automobile repairs have generally jumped a third. Windshields average $30, more, trunk lids $25, more, a fender $40, more and front doors are up over $35.

Large insurance companies who take in over $200 million a year are claiming they are losing money on the business.

What is the answer? Drive with greater respect for your valuable car and your even more valuable life. And never let yourself forget the enormous cost that a moment's neglect can cause.

FBI Arrests Minutemen

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The acknowledged leader of the militant right-wing Minuteman organization whom authorities have sought for 18 months was arrested by the FBI in southern New Mexico, agents said Sunday.

They said Robert Bolivar De Pugh, 48, and his assistant, Walter P. Floyon, 27, were "heavily armed" when agents stopped their pickup truck Saturday night two miles south of Truth or Consequences.

Both men had been sought since Feb. 20, 1968, when warrants for their arrests were issued in Seattle, Wash., charging them with conspiracy in an alleged plan to rob four banks.

The money was to be used to finance the Minuteman's anti-Communist activities, the bureau said.

Seven persons were arrested in the Seattle area in January, 1968, and charged with planning to rob three Redmon, Wash., banks and with discussing plans to rob a Des Moines, Wash., bank.

Agents said the stolen money was to be put toward preparations for "a violent revolution when the Communists take over this country."

Liner Will Remain At Fort Lauderdale

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Plans to move the Queen Elizabeth to parts unknown appeared forgotten as an official agreement was reached during the weekend on a lease for land alongside the stately ship.

The Queen has not made a profit since it opened Feb. 14 as a tourist attraction here, although some 225,000 visitors have boarded it. Without success, its British owners sought a concessionaire to operate it as a floating hotel and later a buyer.

Several weeks ago, the owners ordered the Queen readied for sailing this weekend, but gave no destination. Recent negotiations apparently put an end to those plans.

Utilities Leasing Corp., representing investors seeking to buy the Queen from Cunard Steamship Co., and Port Everglades Authority commissioners reached a compromise agreement for 50-year lease of 135 acres of dockside land.

The Port Authority is scheduled to consider the compromise agreement at its Tuesday's meeting.

The deal is reported to call for payment of an additional $2,000,000 over the 50-year period.

Under an earlier agreement now in effect, the Port Authority received $325,000 worth of channel dredging and 10 per cent of the Queen's tourist gate for 4.5 acres of parking land and dockage rights.

The land lease agreement could pave the way for sale of the 83,673-ton vessel.

Stanton Miller, co-owner of Philadelphia's Drake Hotel, said he would fly to London with hopes of clinching a deal this week to buy the Queen. He said Cunard had agreed to sell the liner for $8,600,000 and that Utilities Leasing Corp. will put up $4,000,000 cash.

Four Killed At Crossing

CALGARY (CP) — Four members of a family were killed and two seriously injured Saturday when a CNR passenger train and a car collided at a level crossing near here.

Killed were George Ball, about 40, of Kamloops, B.C., the driver of the car; his wife, June 40; and sons Richard, 12, and Christopher, 4.

In hospital in serious condition were sons Edward, 14, and John, 10.

Air Traffic Controllers Have 'Collision-itis'

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A psychiatrist says air traffic controllers are suffering from "collision-itis" from being pushed beyond their mental and physical capacities.

The only solution, Dr. W. Wayne Sands said in a report sponsored by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers organization, is for the American public to "accept limited schedules and delays in good grace with the understanding it is for their own safety."

Sands interviewed 22 of the 44 controllers at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. He said in his report the controllers are being pushed by supervisors to handle more planes than they are physically and mentally equipped to handle at one time.

Canada's Total 71

Ontario Leads Accident Toll

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 71 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend, 51 in traffic.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed 15 drownings and five deaths in other miscellaneous accidents.

Ontario led the toll with 26 deaths, 16 on the highways.

Another six persons drowned, two boys died when struck by lightning, one man died in a fall and another died when buried in by a sand dune slide.

Quebec followed with 16 deaths, 14 in traffic, one in drowning and one in a fire.

British Columbia had 11 deaths, seven on the roads and four in drownings, followed by Alberta with six, all in traffic.

Saskatchewan had five deaths, all on the highways, and Manitoba had three, all in drownings.

New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island each reported one traffic fatality and one person drowned in Newfoundland.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, known suicides or slayings.

The Ontario dead:

FRIDAY

Mrs. George Brennan of Collingwood, drowned in Hidden Lake, about seven miles west of Collingwood.

Gary Robinson, 11, of Orangeville, about 40 miles northwest of Toronto, from injuries received when he ran from behind a bay wagon and was struck by a truck.

SATURDAY

Richard James Vera, 18, and Thomas Michael Rankin, 19, both of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in a two-car, head-on collision in Sault Ste. Marie that injured four others.

Romeo Chichini 20, and Wayne Dunford, 26, both of Sarnia, when their car left the road and hit a tree near Sarnia.

Eugene Rioux, 4, of Orleans, about 10 miles east of Ottawa, after being struck by a car near his home.

Irene Wildbore, 18, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., struck by a car as she walked along a Sudbury street.

Donald Hergott, 21, of Elliot Lake, about 70 miles west of Sudbury, when his car veered off the road and hit a utility pole at Elliot Lake.

Carolyn Irene Watson, 9, of Aurora, in a two-car collision near Dundalk, 40 miles west of Barrie.

SUNDAY

Donald James McIntyre, 20, of Toronto, when his car left Highway 127, about 52 miles east of Kingston.

Burton Arlee Warnica, 39, of Innisfil Township in a two-car collision on Highway 11 near Barrie.

Aubrey James Manning, 21, of Ingersoll, in a car-train collision at a level crossing in London, Ont.

Brother Nicolas Vandernoor, 74, of Spanish, Ont., when struck by a car as he crossed Highway 101 about six miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Thomas Mahoney, 26, of South Porcupine, Ont., in a two-car collision 12 miles east of Timmins on Highway 101.

Leon Tipson, 73, of Toronto, of multiple injuries after a fall from a second-floor porch in Toronto.

Sadie Goewitz, 62, of Toronto, after being struck by a chain broken by her husband's car as he tried to drive under it in Toronto.

A London-area man in a two-car collision on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway near Toronto.

Shirley Irene Thomas, 18, of Toronto, drowned in a lake near Parry Sound, 37 miles northwest of Orillia.

Glen Alphonse, 7, of Victoria Harbour, 28 miles north of Barrie, drowned while swimming at the government pier there.

Tammy Blohm, 6, of Pembroke, drowned while swimming at a park near Hanover, 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

Orville Brobart, Jr., 17, of Arnprior, when he was buried in a sawdust slide at Braeside, 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Kenneth Wesley Rarecene, 39, of Hanover, drowned while swimming in Williams Lake, 15 miles south of Owen Sound.

John Frederick Barlow, 5, London, Ont., drowned while swimming in a mill pond near his home.

Fifth Dimension Principals Wed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bride and groom walked down the aisle, but instead of kneeling at the altar they climbed into a 19th century hot-air balloon.

Singer Florence La Rue, 26, of the Fifth Dimension, and Marc Gordon, 33, the group's manager, were married Sunday in the balloon's gondola—50 feet above a hotel parking lot.

The theme of the wedding was Up, Up and Away, the group's first big hit record.

"The most unique wedding I've ever performed," said Rev. Bob Webb, father of composer Jim Webb who wrote the tune.

Attendants held the balloon down as the bride—in an ankle-length gown—and groom stepped in.

As the balloon launched skyward, Mr. Webb appeared a bit nervous and read the ceremony quickly.

He laughed when the balloon returned to earth and said he was glad to be down, down and off.

Chinese Will Return Today To Conference with Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The Chinese Communists said they will return to the table with Soviet negotiators today after a walkout of only two days from talks on navigation along their disputed Asian border.

After nearly a month of meetings in the Soviet border town of Khabarovsk, on the Amur River, the negotiators reached an impasse last week and the Chinese walked out Saturday.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, announced Sunday that the Chinese delegation had told the Russians that "contrary to its statements of July 12, it has decided to remain in Khabarovsk."

The Chinese said they were ready to resume work today on plans for traffic maintenance work and the new wording of shipping regulations affecting both sides of rivers forming part of the border across which Soviet and Chinese forces have been clashing with growing frequency. A Soviet representative replied that his delegation was ready to continue the talks.

Tass reported earlier that the Chinese had walked out because the Russians would not discuss Chinese claims to large areas inside the Soviet Union's Asian border. The Russians said the commission could only discuss border river shipping, not such matters as territorial claims.

Since the current series of border clashes began last March, the Kremlin has offered to discuss the broader aspects of the border questions, but China has not replied to this offer.

Tass charged Sunday that a border clash on July 8 on the Amur about 70 miles west of Khabarovsk was started by the Chinese "to frustrate the conference." Moscow said earlier that one Soviet worker was killed; Peking has announced no casualties but accused the Russians of instigating the attack.

In Peking, Premier Chou En-lai said the purpose of a Soviet proposal of a security alliance for Asia was "aggression and expansion against Asian countries."

Referring to the Soviet leadership as "social - imperialism," Chou told a banquet for a Pakistani delegation:

"The so-called 'system of collective security' in Asia is a new step taken by social-imperialism in its intensified efforts to rig up a new anti-China military alliance.

"Painting the signboard of 'collective security,' social-imperialism actually aims at agression and expansion against Asian countries, trying to force them to abandon their sovereignty and independence."

Toronto Man Says DDT In Fish Threat to Man

TORONTO (CP) — Ald. Anthony O'Donohue of Toronto said Sunday night a study indicating the DDT content in the flesh of fish in two Ontario lakes may be at a toxic level was slipped past the public in a carelessly-prepared Ontario government report.

The report should have concluded that fish reproduction and human beings were endangered by high DDT levels in fish flesh, Ald. O'Donohue told a news conference. He was speaking for an organization called Group Action to Stop Pollution.

He said the report ignored its own findings and concluded no risk existed. The report was prepared by a government advisory committee on pollution under the chairmanship of the then minister of energy and resources management, J. R. Simonett, who later became public service minister.

The report, which dealt in part with whitefish and lake trout in Lake Rosseau and Lake Muskoka, was tabled by the minister March 31. Before tabling it the minister quoted the report as saying "the commission has received no evidence of fish being adversely affected in any Ontario waters."

Ald. O'Donohue said that because of the report's misleading remarks on its own contents it slipped by with little discussion.

He said the "whitewash" permitted George Kerr, who succeeded Mr. Simonett as minister of energy and resources management, to make the false claim last Friday that Ontario has no firm information on DDT danger levels.

Mr. Kerr was speaking to a University of Toronto pollution probe group. He did say at that time that the government would consider banning DDT and agreed to meet with Prof. Donald Chant, chairman of the University of Toronto zoology department and an opponent of the government's pohution policy.

Canadian Agreement With China Expected

TOKYO (AP) — Canada and Communist China are expected to establish diplomatic relations this fall, possibly by September, the Japanese Kyodo news service reported Sunday.

Quoting foreign ministry sources, Kyodo said Canadian and Chinese representatives discussing the recognition issue in Stockholm have made satisfactory progress and likely will reach agreement after two or three more rounds of talks.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has refused to comment on the issues and day-by-day progress of the Stockholm talks.

When he returned from a visit to Stockholm three weeks ago he said the talks had "progressed on substantive issues in a deliberate and orderly way," and that he had confidence they would result in recognition.

Doctors Under Fire

Psychiatrist Calls AMA 'Murder Association'

NEW YORK (CP) — A New York psychiatrist interrupted the opening of the American Medical Association's annual convention Sunday to charge that the AMA "is really the American Murder Association."

Dr. Richard Kunnes told convention delegates the AMA deserves to be called a "murder" association because the organization had "perpetrated a dual system of health care—one for the rich and one for the poor."

Kunnes was a spokesman for a group of protestors who picketed the hotel where the convention is being held.

Outside the hotel, about 100 young persons walked in a picket line. They said the AMA is "illegitimate as an organization and does not represent the people."

One of the protesters said the AMA has "consistently opposed measures to improve America's health care." He said the picketers included doctors, medical students and nurses.

The AMA recently became embroiled in a controversy over the selection of the federal government's top health officer. The position was originally offered to Dr. John Knowles of Boston, but the offer was withdrawn. There has been speculation that Knowles, regarded as a liberal, was turned down because of opposition from conservative elements within the AMA.

Dr. Roger Egeberg, who eventually was appointed to the government post, told the AMA later Sunday that organized medicine "has created a distribution of medical care that suits us and the middle class—to the neglect of the poor."

Addict Blames Doctors

NEW YORK (AP) — A former narcotics addict told delegates to the American Medical Association convention Sunday night that doctors are at least partly responsible for the "drug-dependent culture" in the United States.

Brendan Sexton, 24, said doctors are always ready to prescribe pills to "smooth things over" and they promote the idea that life should be lived on an "even keel."

Sexton was a member of a panel discussing drug abuse. The panel also included a psychiatrist, a lawyer and a priest.

Egeberg, speaking from the same podium from which Kunnes referred to the AMA as a "murder" association, said doctors must "reach out" to do everything possible to bring adequate distribution of medical care to poor people.

Washington Crime Grows Despite Nixon's Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent crime in the federally-run United States capital has continued to increase since President Nixon declared war in January on what he termed Washington's crime crisis.

After nearly six months of planning, Nixon's war took life last week on three fronts: appointment of a new Washington police chief; launching of the U.S. attorney's, drive on big-time operators in narcotics, gambling and fencing of stolen goods, and transmittal by the Justice department to Congress of a $22,400,000 law-and-order plan.

Nixon and Attorney-General John N. Mitchell say Washington is the test tube where crime fighters can develop techniques to eventually curb lawlessness throughout the country.

Their experiment here is based on a 25-per-cent increase in police, use of wiretap and "no-knock" search laws, removal of the right to bail in many cases, faster trials, harsher sentencing and new prisons manned by more guards.

Mitchell says the plan is a "firm but even-handed approach" with safeguards for individual rights at every step.

Congressional approval is needed for the entire package.

Nixon first announced his plan after visiting the city's April, 1968, riot area and dedicating a park to the memory of a school principal killed in a holdup.

For the year ending Jan. 31, 1969, there were 204 murders, 269 rapes, and 9,188 robberies in Washington—all increases from a year earlier. The most recent figures show that in the 12 months ended May 31, 1969, all of those types of crimes have increased even more.

In May alone there were 22 murders, 25 rapes, 798 robberies, 373 aggravated assaults, 1,707 burglaries, 913 grand larcenies, and 925 auto thefts. Except for burglary and auto theft, each of those figures is significantly higher than a year earlier. The 120 murders during 1969's first six months were a 40-per-cent jump over the same period of 1968.

Shorthanded Joyces Fall Prey to Aroused Kingston Team

KINGSTON — Wham!

That was the story here Sunday afternoon at the Cricket Field as Kingston's Lakeview Centennials stopped out 16 hits and trounced the Belleville Joyces 18-7 in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Senior contest.

Kingston's Joy and Bellville's despair reached a peak in the second inning when the Centennials paraded 13 men to the plate and each of their nine players scored a run.

The Centennials banged out six hits — three each off starter Rodger Hunter and reliever Garnie Adams — in the second inning and were aided by Rodger Hunter's three walks and two wild pitches, a walk by Adams and a pair of errors by catcher Larry Mavety.

Belleville never threatened after the disastrous second inning which gave the Centenials an 11-4 lead, even though they tallied a single run in the third without the benefit of a hit and a pair of runs in the sixth on a run - scoring triple by shortstop Pat Asselstine and a single by Mavety.

Segeo Arcuri hurt the Joyces' cause, but Belleville had only eight regulars on hand and coach Jim Whyte was forced to play left field.

Starter Rodger Hunter and rookie Adams were the only hurlers and when one was pitching the other was playing right field. Hunter gave up five walks and an equal number of hits being relieved by Adams with the bases loaded and no one out in Kingston's second - inning uprising.

Adams surrendered 11 runs and 11 hits in his eight inning stint. He struck out seven and walked two.

Lefthander Doug McIlroy went the nine - inning distance for the winners and scattered eight hits. He struck out a dozen batters and walked seven in pitching the Centennials to their first win of the season over the league - leading Joyces after three previous losses.

Seven of Kingston's nine starting players drove in runs during the game, but ironically Guy White — whose trio of doubles made him the only Centennial to collect three hits — was one of the pair unable to drive in a run.

Larry Mavety topped the Joyces at the plate with three singles — each of which drove in a run — in five plate appearances. Pat Asselstine also had three hits — a triple and two singles — and drove in a single run. John McIlhone's run - scoring single and Moe Hunter's base knock accounted for the Joyces' other pair of hits.

Kingston's win — their second of the weekend; the first was a 15-0 rout of Port Hope Saturday at the Cricket Field — leaves the Joyces with a record of seven wins and four losses with five games remaining in the 16 - game EOBA schedule.

Infielder Gary Goyer, the fifth leading batter in the league missed the game because of a leg injury and outfielder Ralph Plaxe, the sixth lead ing batter in the league, sat out because of an indefinite suspension imposed on him for manhandling an umpire during Belleville's 9-5 loss to the Leaside Maple Leafs, Saturday, June 28 in the Peterborough baseball tournament.

Soccer Loop On Upswing

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Sports Reporter

The saying "a rest will do you good" could well be applied to adult soccer competition in the Quinte area.

Interest in soccer at the adult level dwindled until, in 1963, the Bay of Quinte Soccer League was forced to suspend operations.

Now the pendulum has swung in the opposite direction and today the Bay of Quinte League, which was revived in 1967, is a healthy seven-team organization.

"Soccer is gaining in popularity and growing rapidly in the Quinte area — especially on the minor level," claims Joe Iasenza, the manager and playing-coach of the Belleville Rovers of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League.

"We hope to have a junior league in the Quinte area next year and as the youngsters grow up, the enthusiasm for the sport will carry over to our league and give it a tremendous boost."

"Soccer is a great sport — it grows on you. And physically it's one of the very best sports to play. All the body has to be in good shape for you're moving all the time for an hour-and-a-half and if you let down the opposition is liable to walk on you," Iasenza added.

Soccer, the biggest spectator sport in the world bet trailing baseball, football, hockey, horse racing, car racing and often basketball in North America, is played with two teams of eleven men each.

There is a goalkeeper, two fullbacks, a centre half, two halves, two inside men, two outside men and a centre forward. The object of the game is quite simply to put the round leather ball into your opponent's net more often than he does.

Whitley's Travellers, a Trenton team currently occupy first place in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League which has a 12-game schedule. Belleville Rovers are in second spot, Belleville Parsons is third and the RCAF is fourth. Bata Rovers is fifth, Belleville United is sixth and the Trenton Juniors is seventh. The trio of Belleville teams play their home games at Centre Zwicky Island, the Fairgrounds or Centennial Secondary School.

Four competitions stand out during the soccer season. They are the Kent Trophy competition for the championship of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, the Belleville Charity Cup and the Trenton Challenge Cup, a pair of round-robin competitions, and the Mellyer Cup- a single-day round-robin competition.

"The Belleville Rovers, with a record of five wins, a loss and a tie in seven games, are the only local team to have a second identity.

Reinforced with a few players from other teams in the Bay of Quinte loop, the Rovers are a member of the six-team Kingston and District Soccer League which plays a 20-game schedule. They play under the name Quinte Rovers in the Kingston loop.

"The Kingston League is a much stronger league and our defensive weaknesses really hurt us in that class of competition. We're one point out of first in the Quinte League, but in the Kingston league we've only won three, lost three and tied one and are in fourth place," Iasenza said.

"We started out as the Belleville Juniors three years ago but we've now switched to men's competition even though only four of our 13 players are over 21-years-of-age," Iasenza commented.

I'm sure soccer is going to come back big in the Quinte area. It's a game which is universally attractive. On our team we have two Italians, two Jamaicans, two Trinidadians and five Canadians — a good sign of the varied appeal of the sport," Iasenza claimed.

365 Youngsters Playing

Soccer Seeks Inter-City Games

Inter-city competition will be the main topic on the agenda tonight when the Belleville Minor Soccer Association holds a meeting at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

The meeting will be divided into two parts, an executive get-together at 7.30 and a general meeting at 8.30.

Belleville Minor Soccer Association secretary-treasurer Fred Jones said "this is only our second year of operation but we feel we've come a long way and we're prepared to go further.

"At present we have only a house league with 22 teams and 365 youngsters in three age groups. What we need now is inter-city competition to boost the sport and give the youngsters something to shoot for."

"We've inquired about arranging inter-city competition with surrounding cities and the results have been good. We'd like a home-and-home series with a few cities this year and a regular Eastern Ontario Minor Soccer Association and League next year.

"Tonight's meeting will be to discuss this possibility and decide our future action in this regard. We're aiming to get four all-star teams — one bantam, one peewee and two mosquito — going soon so that they can get in four-to-six weeks of training this season.

"Our prime objective for this year is to get the mayor to approve a minor soccer week in Belleville late in August or early in September. We'd like to hold a big tournament here during this week if it can be arranged."

Concentration

Good things come in small packages say the Squirt Travellers. Right fielder Dwight Begley drew three walks in helping the Travellers defeat Port Perry 8-5.

Squirt Travellers Win B Tournament Title

The city's youngest and smallest softball team — the Associated Canadian Travellers — bounced from defeat to championship form to capture the "B" championship at the Belleville Minor Softball Association's fourth annual Squirt Softball Tournament.

Bellleville rallied from a 5-1 deficit and overcame Port Perry 8-5 with a four-run rally in the bottom of the seventh and last inning.

Meanwhile North Bendale swept to the "A" championship of the eight-team tournament with three consecutive victories, including a 5-1 win over Cedar Hill in the "A" series title game.

Cedar Hill whitewashed the Travellers 11-0 in the tournament's opening game, but the locals drew a bye into the "B" series championship when Unionville failed to appear.

Centrefielder Steve Hannah earned the hero's mantle for the Travellers when he slammed a game-winning three-run double to snap a 5-5 deadlock in the seventh.

Hannah also added a single while teammate Robert Chase hit a double and triple and John Heidstra and Dolan collected singles to round out Belleville's six-hit attack.

Robert Chase went the seven inning distance for the winners and limited Port Perry to a pair of singles while issuing seven walks and striking out eight.

Chase, Dale Vos and Dave Giddings hit safely for the Travellers in the opening game against Cedar Hill, but the visitors pounded out 14 hits off losing pitcher Giddings and ran away with the game.

Port Perry advanced to the "B" final by edging North York 16-14 in the second round after being trounced 18-1 by North Bendale in the first round of the tournament which was played at the Alemite and Queen Victoria School ball diamonds.

The North Bendale club from Scarborough proved to be too strong for the opposition and allowed just two runs in the three games while scoring 29.

Kotsopolous was named the winner of the tournament's Most Valuable Player award. He had a pair of singles in five at-bats in North Bendale's 18-1 first round win over Port Perry, slammed a double and single in his club's 6-0 second round win over Richmond Hill and then outdid himself in the title game as he hit a triple and three singles, drove in two runs and scored one himself. Anderson limited Port Perry to one-hit while fanning nine in five innings, one and then hurled a no-hit 16 strikeout pitcher while facing just 25 batters in the Travellers 8-hit 6-0 seven-inning second round win over Richmond Hill.

Cedar Hill had appeared to be a formidable opponent for North Bendale after whitewashing Belleville 11-0 in the first round and Etobicoke 12-0 in the second round, but O'Callaghan ran the North Bendale mound throw a fourhitter and fanned 12 while his mates struck for nine runs and all five runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings to clinch the "A" championship.

Lions Win Midget Contests

The Belleville Lions took two victories over the weekend, trouncing Peterborough 11-0 on Saturday and Cobourg 11-3 on Sunday, in midget baseball contests.

The Saturday game saw Stan Brooks the winning pitcher, allowing three hits and striking out six. The loser was Davidson who gave up 11 hits and struck out two.

Rick Meagher, Paul Wolfe, and Barry Culkin each collected singles to lead the Belleville batters.

The Sunday contest saw Cobourg defeated in their own park as Wayne Farrell went the distance for Belleville on the mound allowing 10 hits and four walks. Livingston, the Cobourg harler, allowed 15-hits one walk and struck out seven.

The game was halted after seven innings because Cobourg was unable to field a full team after several were thrown out of the game.

Brian Coughlin led the winners with three singles and a double.

Belleville's defence executed two double plays and remained free of errors

SACO's Miss Title

NORTH YORK (Special) — Belleville's Saco Bantams captured their first three games in the North York bantam softball tournament over the weekend but then fell to North Bercdale 13-2 in the championship contest.

Saco's walked the tightrope of success in the preliminary games, surviving a three-run outburst by North York in the seventh inning of the first game to win 5-4.

In the second game Saco's had to score two runs in the seventh to defeat St. Catharines for a come-from-behind 5-4 victory and then used three runs in the late innings of the third game to defeat Preston Panthers 5-3.

Saco's relied on the pitching arms of Ken Johnson and John Sprecket during the tournament with each starting two games but each needing relief from the other.

An eight-run outburst by North Bendale in the sixth inning of the final game spelled doom for the Belleville team. Johnson, who had pitched 6 2-3 innings of no-hit ball in relief in the first game was the victim in the title game as he allowed eight hits and nine runs in five innings.

First baseman Dolan had six singles throughout the tournament to top the Belleville batters. Peter Szalikovich had a four-for in the championship game.

Boulter 2nd

Tom Boulter of Belleville placed second in the overall standings at the International Regatta held in Valley Field near Montreal over the weekend.

There were 27 boats competing in the B Stock hydro in which Mr. Boulter was entered.

Downing (1-2), Johnson (4), Through his telephone conversation with Ewbank, Namath apparently received permission to report to camp late and thus technically would not be in default of his contract by not attending Sunday's luncheon.

The coach said he had not been told that Namath could not practice with the team, should the quarterback decide to report to the club without ridding himself of his night spot.

Namath, who announced his retirement June 6 rather than dispose of his interest in his New York night spot, Bachelor's III, arrived here late Saturday night from California where he had been making a movie.

Pilots Lose Direction When Twins Arrive

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Twins bounced the expansion Seattle Pilots for the seventh time in succession Sunday with the help of a rookie and two veterans who are not noted for long ball power.

The Twins swept the American League baseball doubleheader 5-3 and 5-4 from the Pilots to open up a 4½-game Western Division lead over Oakland Athletics.

In the first game, Frank Ullicil hit his first home run of the season and Cesar Tovar his second, while rookie outfielder Charlie Manuel delivered a two-run double to rally the Twins from behind in the second game.

Oakland was beaten 8-5 by California Angels, but the Athletics recovered in the second game of their doubleheader to win 7-2 as Reggie Jackson clubbed his 35th homer of the year.

In other Sunday AL games, Baltimore pitcher Dave McNally collected his 13th season win without defeat as the Orioles, Eastern Division leaders, downed Boston Red Sox 6-3, Cleveland, Indians whipped Detroit Tigers 9-4 after losing the first game 6-1, Washington Senators won twice, 5-4 and 10-1, against New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals, the other AL expansion team, won 8-4 over Chicago before losing 4-1 to the White Sox.

Saturday, Detroit trounced Cleveland 15-3, Kansas City drubbed Chicago 7-0, Minnesota thrashed Seattle 11-1, Baltimore blanked Boston 4-0, Oakland downed California 4-2 and New York beat Washington 3-2.

After Jim Kaat breezed to victory in the opener behind a 13-hit attack, the Twins found themselves on the short end of a 4-0 score in the eighth inning on the second game. But Manuel started them back with a two-run double in the last of the eighth and they rallied for three in the ninth to win.

Leo Cardenas began the decisive ninth with a double and Rod Carew singled him home as a pinch hitter. Ageeching fielder's choice and Tony Oliva's single tied the score and Harmon Killebrew, purposely walked, filling the bases.

Rich Reese popped up for the second out but Manuel bounced a single into right field for the winning run.

Manuel won himself a job in spring training with a .404 batting average. He was promoted from the Class AA Southern League despite a minor league record which included .206, .225 and .231 batting averages. But in 1967, his hitting improved to a .313 mark.

Oakland's Jackson went nine games and 45 at-bats without a home run when he connected in the fifth inning of the second game.

That left him one game ahead of Roger Maris, who hit 61 homers in 1961, but 21 in front of Babe Ruth, who walloped 60 in 1927.

Jackson, who had five hits in the doubleheader, doubled and scored in the seventh inning. Pitcher Chuck Dobson stopped the Angels on eight hits and doubled home a run.

Sal Bando, Oakland's all-star third baseman, tied the opener with a two-run homer in the fourth, but the Angels went ahead to stay in the fifth when Jim Fregosi doubled, Aurelio Rodriguez singled and Tom Egan hit a two-run homer.

Substitute outfielder Merv Rettenmund, playing in place of the injured Paul Blair, drove in three runs to help Baltimore's McNally struggle to his 12th victory of the season, and 13th in a row dating back to 1968. The AL record for most consecutive victories at the start of a season is 15. McNally was replaced in the seventh inning after Boston's Tony Conigliaro hit his second homer of the game.

Tony Jacklin Throws Ball Into Crowd

Jacklin Says U.S. Tour Won Him British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (CP-AP) — Tony Jacklin, the little dark-haired Briton who won the British open golf championship Saturday, has a word of advice for other British youngsters who want to make it big in the world of golf.

"If you want to win the big ones, then you must transform your game in the United States," he says. He did just that for two years and Saturday became the first Briton in 18 years to win one of the top tournaments in the world—since Max Faulkner turned the trick in 1951.

Jacklin, 25, shot a remarkably steady 72 holes and went over par only in his final 18. He won the 109-year-old tournament by two strokes with a four-round total of 280. His rounds were 68, 70, 70, 72.

That was four under par for the par-71 Royal Lytham course near the Irish Sea. Bob Charles of New Zealand, the leader for the first two rounds, couldn't overcome his poor third round and finished in second place with 282. He had rounds of 66, 69, 75 and 72.

Two former champions, Peter Thomson of Australia and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, shared third place at 283. Thomson, who has won the open five times, had a final-round 72 as did de Vicenzo.

Christy O'Connor of Ireland, who set a course record with 65 in the second round, was fifth with 284. Jack Nicklaus of the United States, former winner, and another American, Davis Love Jr., tied for sixth with 285.

Jacklin played his first Open here in 1963 and worked at his game to be able to qualify for a U.S. PGA card and the rich American circuit.

A year ago he won his first U.S. tournament at Jacksonville, Fla., but said he was so discouraged by having missed the cuts for several recent tournaments that he returned to England. He won $22,500 in purse money in the U.S. so far this year.

Brother Act Goes to Joe When Niekro Boys Meet

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Youth prevailed Sunday when Joe Niekro, 24, confronted his older brother, Phil, 30, in a National League baseball pitching duel.

The odds were stacked heavily against Joe, who is with the expansion San Diego Padres. Phil had won 14 games, 11 more than Joe. But the younger Niekro scattered six Atlanta hits as the Padres nipped the Braves 1-0 to prevent them from retaking the Western Division lead from Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers were beaten 3-2 by San Francisco Giants.

In other NL Sunday games, New York Mets swept a doubleheader 4-3 and 9-7 from Montreal Expos, Chicago Cubs, the Eastern Division leaders, won 6-0 and 6-4 over Philadelphia Phillies, Pittsburgh Pirates blanked St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 but lost a second game 4-2 and Houston Astros outscored Cincinnati Reds 9-6.

Saturday, St. Louis stopped Pittsburgh 6-3, Chicago downed Philadelphia 7-4, Houston dumped Cincinnati 10-4, Los Angeles edged San Francisco 3-2, San Diego clipped Atlanta 7-5 and the Montreal at New York game was rained out.

The Padres got their run for Joe Niekro in the fourth inning Sunday when Nate Colbert doubled and scored on Ivan Murrell's single.

The Braves came close to scoring in the sixth inning, but left fielder Larry Stahl cut down a runner with a throw to home plate. The runner was Phil Niekro.

The Niekros had split their first two career meetings, Phil winning in 1967 and Joe last season.

Phil gained some satisfaction by tagging his brother for a single but it was all but wiped out when, after moving to second on Felipe Alou's hit, he was thrown out by Stahl on another single by Tony Gonzalez.

Ed Kranepool, who had tied the score with a sacrifice fly in the first game for the Mets, won it with an eighth inning double that scored pinch runner Bud Harrelson from first base.

Then Tommie Agee cracked two homers and scored four times as New York wiped out a four-run deficit to take the second game from the Expos. Rusty Staub homered and drove in six runs in the doubleheader for Montreal.

Ken Holtzman won his first game in more than a month, pitching a four-hitter for the Cubs in the opener against the Phillies. It was Holtzman's fifth shutout of the season but his first complete game since May 20 and first victory since June 10.

Ernie Banks drove in four Cubs' runs in the second game with a single, triple and sacrifice fly. The triple was the first in two seasons for the veteran shortstop.

Roberto Clemente cracked a three-run homer in the eighth inning of the opener, breaking up a pitching duel between Pittsburgh's Jim Bunning and Bob Gibson of the Cardinals.

Gibson struck out six and ran his career total to 2,002, becoming the 20th pitcher in major league history to pass 2,000 strikeouts.

Namath Misses First Workout

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Joe Namath was absent Sunday as New York Jets opened practice sessions for the veterans, but the controversial quarterback gave coach Weeb Ewbank some indication he might show up at camp later in the week.

Ewbank told a press conference he had talked to Namath on the telephone after the annual get-together luncheon and light workout and said:

"Joe said he had a business deal to finalize and he's going to do that, and then he will get back to me as soon as possible, probably Tuesday night or Wednesday."

Bobby Cox Wins Saskatchewan Open

REGINA (CP) — A blistering final round Sunday gave Vancouver professional Bobby Cox an upset victory in the Saskatchewan open golf championship with a one-stroke edge over defending champion Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont.

Cox fired a six-under-par 65 on the tight Wascana Country Club layout which, when matched with his first and second rounds of 71 and 72, gave him a 54-hole total of 208. The victory was good for $1,200 and a berth in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association final at Quebec City in September.

Ontario Posts Field Hockey Wins Over Quebec, Jamaica

TORONTO (CP) — Centre forward Joan Stevenson scored three goals today to lead Ontario to field hockey victories over women's teams from Quebec and Jamaica.

Ontario defeated Jamaica 1-0 and trounced Quebec 5-0. In another game, Jamaica also blanked Quebec 5-0.

Miss Stevenson scored the only goal in Ontario's victory against Jamaica five minutes before the end of the first half. The Jamaican team pressed in the second half in a bid for a tie, but Ontario goaltender Marilyn Lampson made several fine saves.

Left half Sue Caldwell of Ontario saved the victory when she made a save on another shot that was headed into the net.

Miss Stevenson contributed two goals and Gail Wilson two in Ontario's victory over the inexperienced Quebec team. The other goal went to Karen Empy.

Golf Tour Not Easy for Rookies on Women's Pro Circuit

TORONTO (CP) — Nancy Smith, 24, of Windsor, Ont., now playing out of Freeport, Bahamas, carded a disappointing third-round 83 for a tournament total of 250 in the $22,000 women's pro golf tournament at Bayview golf club Sunday.

She said her short game was "letting me down badly" although "I was hitting the ball well."

Miss Smith and her tour-mate, Gloria Wilcox of Corpus Christie, Fla., left immediately by car for Danbury, Conn., where they will play in the Danbury open Friday.

"Some of the big money-winners fly from place to place, but we poor rookies have to drive," she laughed.

Miss Smith, who joined the women's professional circuit in May, 1968, says the life of a rookie on the circuit is "tough for the first year."

All expenses, except the registration fees for each tournament, have to be met by the player herself.

Money problems for the rookies are increased by a tour directive that all players wear bright, attractive clothing while on tour, and Miss Smith says she keeps her eye out for promising sales of golf clothes.

But the main problem, she said, is not finding bargains, but "finding something in weekend-wear.

"We have to stop at laundromats along the way.

"There's no time to leave your clothes at the cleaners."

Miss Smith, who was born in Tillsonburg, Ont., but spent most of her life in Windsor, Ont., says she is "thrilled to be on the tour."

She taught school in Windsor for a year, then taught golf in Kingston, Ont., before becoming assistant pro at a golf club in Greenville, S.C. Then in March, her brother Mike, who is the head pro at the King's Inn near Freeport, told her the club would like to have a representative on the women's circuit.

"It's very exciting, although a little tiring at times," she said.

Sandra Haynie Wins Easily

TORONTO (CP) — After a disastrous eight on the par-four 10th hole Saturday, Sandra Haynie got "really charged up" Sunday and went out to win the $22,000 women's open golf championship by five strokes.

The 25-year-old Texan shot a 70 on the 6,272-yard Bayview Golf and Country Club course for a three-under-par total of 216, well clear of Marilynn Smith of Stuart, Fla., and Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Tex.

Sandra Post, 20, of Oakville, Ont., led the Canadians with 223 but she had to birdie the last hole for a 71 to edge out amateur Pam Miller, 21, of Oshawa, Ont., who said later she had no plans to turn professional "because there's more to life than hitting a golf ball."

Miss Haynie, a native of Fort Worth who plays out of Hunaway Bay, Tex., didn't make it easy for herself by starting Sunday's round with a one-over-par six on the 530-yard first hole.

"That bogey slowed me down a little and I began to concentrate harder", she said. . . .

She went on to shoot four birdies, three of them on the second nine for her third tour victory this year. She won $3,500, which puts her in second place in money winners this year, ahead of Carol Mann.

Miss Mann, winner of the Bayview last year, shot a final round 76 for 223.

Miss Miller finished four shots ahead of second-place amateur Marlene Stuart Streit of Footbill, Ont., who won the Ontario amateur championship at Port Credit Wednesday.

Miss Miller, a third-year student at the University of Western Ontario at London, shot a steady 74 for 224, better than all but 10 professionals.

Sue Higgs, 25, of London, Ont. finished with a 76 for 227 and fellow amateur Josephine Boomsma of Shawinigan, Que., had 77 for 232.

Vivian Saunders of London had a 74 for 234, but two other English professionals taking their first cracks at the tour continued to have troubles on the green.

Liz Collis of Surrey had an 86 for 249 and Gwen Brandon of Greenfield took 81 for 240.

Nancy Smith, 24-year-old Windsor, Ont., professional playing out of Freeport in the Bahamas, finished with an 83 for 250.

Tykes' Bats in Fine Form In Two Weekend Games

Belleville's Booth TV Tyke All-stars brake out the heavy artillery on the weekend as they clubbed visiting Cobourg and Peterborough teams for easy wins.

On Saturday Billy Whalen held Cobourg batters to five hits as his mates came up with a 12 - bit barrage and a 12-6 victory. Whalen helped his own cause with two doubles and a single and was the top batter for Belleville.

Sunday it was even more lopsided as Peterborough was snowed under 19-0, Catcher Tony Meagher, who had two singles Saturday, hammered the game's lone home run Sunday and added two singles.

For Booth's it was a hitter's paradise as they collected 22 hits off two Peterborough pitchers. Paul Weeks had four singles, Scott Bowes had three and Billy Whalen, playing a different position, had a double and a single.

Whalen struck out 12 batters on Saturday over the seven innings. Peter Hall struck out 11 Sunday in five innings. Brian Loveless pitched the other two innings. Both games were played at Parkdale field.

U.S. Visitors Dominate Hydro Plane Championships

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP) — Ron Larsen of Long Beach, Calif. won the Canadian Grand Prix hydroplane championship Sunday by finishing half a lap ahead of his nearest competitor in the Valleyfield 31st annual regatta.

Between 40,000 and 60,000 spectators lining the oval 1-2-3-mile course watched Larsen take six minutes, 3.3 seconds to complete five laps of the course in his 427-cubic-inch craft Wawa Too for an average speed of 82.1 miles an hour. It was far off the Canadian record of 90 miles an hour for his class.

Far behind in second was Frank Kosnow of Ottawa, Ill. in Miss Ottawa III followed closely by Art Asbury of Dwight, Ont. in Miss Canadiana.

Larsen won $1,000, Kosnow $300 and Asbury $200.

Ten American and Canadian drivers in hydroplanes with 266, 280, 360 and 427 cubic-inch engines started the race but only eight finished.

Marcel Laberge of Ste. Foy, Que., was forced to drop out on the second lap when his Miss Quebec blew an engine while it was running in second place.

And Rangatang, driven by Ken Helwig of Sarnia, Ont., flipped on the 13th lap after Larsen had already won the race. Helwig was not injured.

Besides coming third in the Grand Prix, Asbury in another race Sunday set a record in the 360-cubic-inch class with an average speed of 81.448 miles an hour, beating the previous mark of 74.598 miles an hour set last year.

Bob Herring of Sheboygan, Wisc., set two records in the A and B racing hydro classes.

In the A class Saturday, he averaged 62.005 miles an hour beating the 1968 record of 61.141.

Sunday, he averaged 65.910 miles an hour in the B class, beating the previous mark of 64.768 miles an hour also set last year.

In the 141-cubic-inch class Saturday, Vincent De Berto of Newburg, N.Y., averaged 65.194 miles an hour, beating the previous record of 55.702 miles an hour set by Donald Wilkinson in 1962.

Chuck Howgate of Wyckoff, N.J., Sunday set a record of 57.252 miles an hour in the C racing runabout class to beat the old mark of 56.854 miles an hour set by Jean-Noel Hebert of De Lery, Que. in 1966.

John Webster of Scarborough, Ont. beat his own previous record of 54.005 miles an hour set last year with a speed of 54.381 miles an hour in the B stock hydro class.

And Tom Bird of Burlington, Ont., set 55.556 miles an hour in the C stock hydro class Saturday to beat the old mark of 53.441 miles an hour set by Ray Ogier in 1964.

Tudor Queen Nips Folan

TORONTO (CP) — Tudor Queen, owned by Stafford Farms, moved up in the stretch to beat Folan by a head in the $12,850 Vandal Stakes at Woodbine racetrack Sunday.

The victory was Tudor Queen's second and brought $7,650 to the filly's owner. The two-year-old's total earnings now are $20,947.

Tudor Queen, ridden by Robin Platts, ran the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 and paid $12.10 in winning. Victorian Display finished a close third.

Stafford Farms had a second winner at the eight-race card when Hometown News, ridden by Avelino Gomez, beat Soo Where in the sixth.

The combination returned an exactor of $14.40.

Bonefactress, winner of the first race, and Meadow Hawk, winner of the second, combined for a daily double of $38.50 in the last card of the 42-day summer meet.

Saturday, No Pikrando, ridden by John LeBlanc, won the $20,540 Maturity Stakes, covering the 10-furlong course in 2:02 2-5 to set a track record.

The time bettered the record of 2:02 4-5 held by Mr. Sometime and Bronze Baby.

Imports Finish 1,2,3 At Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Three battle-weary Porsches, their work for the season almost done, swept to victory Saturday in the six-hour endurance race at Watkins Glen, setting a new speed record for the event in the process.

The trio of speedy German machines, their first world manufacturer's title already tucked away, paraded across the finish line in close 1, 2, 3 order, with the red and white car of Jo Siffert of Switzerland and England's Brian Redman in front.

Second was Vic Elford and Richard Attwood of Britain while third place went to Fudy Lins of Austria and Joe Buzetta of Smithtown, N.Y.

The Siffert-Redman car, which bolted to the front at the start and never lost the lead, covered 291 laps or 669.3 miles over the 2.1-3 mile course at an average speed of 111.9 m.p.h. The old speed mark for the event was 109.49 m.p.h. set in 1968.

There were 13 finishers among the 29 cars which started the rain-plagued race.

Gold Medallists Win

World Records Fall at Santa Clara Swim Meet

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (CP-AP) — Two world records fell and two others were tied during the weekend at the third annual Santa Clara international swim meet.

Gary Hall, 17, who enters the University of Indiana this fall, finished in two minutes 34 seconds Saturday night in the 400-metre individual medley, shaving three-tenths of a second off the record held by Charlie Hickcox, also of the United States.

Roland Matthes, 18, the double Olympic gold medal winner from East Germany, clipped one-tenth of a second off his own mark for the same night in the 200-metre backstroke, finishing in 2:07.4.

Mark Spitz, who holds two world records already, claimed a share of Don Schollander's mark in the 200-metre freestyle when he won a lopsided victory in 1:54.3. That tied the record set last year by the now-retired Schollander.

Spitz had tied his own world record Friday night in the 100-metre butterfly with a 55.6 clocking.

Spitz also tied the U.S. record of 52.6 seconds in the 100-metre freestyle Saturday night. That time was recorded two years ago by Ken Walsh and is four-tenths of a second off the world mark held by Mike Wenden of Australia.

Brian Job, a 17-year-old American, set two U.S. records during the meet. He swam the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:07 and set a mark of 2:33.8 in the 200-metre breaststroke.

Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., who holds the world record of 18:47.8 for the 1,650-yard freestyle, finished eighth in both the 200-metre freestyle and the 1,500-metre freestyle events.

Pam Kruse of the U.S. won the 200-metre in 2:09.5 and Sue Pedersen of the U.S. was second in 2:09.5. Miss Coughlan was last in 2:16.2.

In the 1,500-metre, Miss Coughlan was last in 18:26.7. Debbie Meyer, the triple gold medal winner for the U.S. at last year's Olympics, won the event in 17:41.9—more than 10 seconds slower than her own world mark.

Miss Meyer also won two other events during the meet — the 400-metre freestyle and the 400-metre individual medley.

Joan Wright, 13, from Toronto finished fifth in the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:20.0. Sharon Wickman of the U.S. won the event in 1:16.9.

McLaren Wins 2nd Car Race

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Bruce McLaren shook off a mild challenge from a new Italian Ferrari and a more serious one from his teammate, Denis Hulme, and roared to victory Sunday in the $50,000 Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race.

McLaren, driving a McLaren Chevrolet of his own design, grabbed the lead at the start of the 200-mile race and was never headed as a crowd of 60,000 jammed the tight corners of the 3.1.3-mile waddles Glen circuit.

Hulme finished second, only 30 yards behind his employer. A new 12-cylinder Ferrari, driven brilliantly in its first outing by New Zealander Chris Amon, was a distant third.

McLaren, 29-year-old New Zealander now living in England, collected $10,000 plus cash accessory awards in winning his second of the three races run thus far this year in the $1,000,000 challenge cup series for Hulme won the other one.

McLaren averaged 124.06 m.p.h. for his 81 circuits of the demanding course. It was a race record for the Glen. Jackie Stewart set the old one of 124.84 m.p.h. last year in a Formula One car.

George Eaton of Toronto finished fourth in a McLaren-Chevrolet and won $3,000.

Three Porsches, which dominated Saturday's six-hour endurance race, came back to challenge the more powerful group 7 cars -Sunday. It was strictly no contest. The best of the German machines, one driven by Joe Siffert of Switzerland, finished sixth behind Eaton and fifth-place Chuck Parsons of Deerfield, Ill.

McLaren now has 55 points toward the Can-Am series championship. The winner of the II-race series picks up an additional $50,000 from a $200,000 jackpot.

Single Ruins Coffee's No-Hitter

For the first six innings it looked like a perfect game for Larry Coffee. He faced the minimum of 18 batters. Then it was ruined when Bob Saunders hit a single in a South Hastings Baseball League contest Saturday, as Read thumped Reserve 11-0.

Coffee gave up almost flawless performance by allowing one hit and one walk in nine innings.

Jim Dunn and. Bill Baldwin split the pitching duties for Reserve allowing nine hits and nine strike outs.

Carm Milligan led the Read hitters with a double and two singles while Paul Hanley added three singles to give the win to Read.

Rovers Lose To Dutchmen

The Quinte Rovers staged a short - lived second — half comeback Saturday night at Zwick's Island, but that wasn't enough to save them from a 4-1 defeat at the hands of Kingston's Flying Dutchmen.

Saturday's loss leaves the fourth - place Rovers with a record of three wins, three losses and a tie in seven Kingston and District Soccer League games to date.

Belleville overcame a 1-0 halftime deficit on Calvin Week's goal early in the second half, but faltered enough for the Dutchmen to slip in and nail down the victory.

Longshots Pay Off At Harness Meet

Bettors who like longshots must be smiling following Saturday nights weekly harness racing meet at the Belleville Fairgrounds sponsored by the Quinte Riding and Driving Club.

No less than five of the eight winners in the eight heat racing card $10 or more to win and one winner — Dillon Gold to the third best paid $28.80 to win and $20.70 to place.

N. McFarland drove Dillon Gold to his upset victory and the pair covered the mile in 2:17. The win was Dillon Gold's first of the season.

The second largest payoff for a win in the seventh heat when J. J. Dale, piloted by Don Heath, returned $20.50 for his second consecutive win at the Belleville track. His time of 2:14.2 was nearly a second faster than his 2:15.1 clocking the previous week.

Natty's Rebel teamed with J. J. Dale for a quinella of $79.40 — the largest payoff of a night in which 944 spectators pushed $17,671.

Gerry Wade's Boy K. Abbey paid $15.20 in the second heat and teamed up with R. E. Connell driven by Cuy La Rush for a payoff of $31.20 in the daily double.

Dee Jay, driven by Bernard Hunt returned $10.90 for his first place finish in the fourth heat and Bruce Kemp brought Grampa Jack home in front of the pack in the fifth heat for the pacer's first win in two years and a payoff of $10.

Trainer - driver Hugh Wemp was in the silky in the featured eighth race when Single De Best covered the mile in 2:11 - the fastest time of the night — despite a heavy track.

Clements Triple Winner

Dave Clements, a newcomer to the Riverview Speedway in Trenton Saturday won three checkered flags in as many races during his first night before 3,000 fans.

Clements had done all his previous racing at Brighton Speedway's paved track this season in a 1962 Dodge sponsored by Forbes Dodge of Trenton.

He won his first two races easily but in the third contest he had to overtake Don Bailey to win the race.

The special attraction of the night was the run-off of the top V8 cars of the current racing season for a trophy donated by Mark Tripp of Trenton.

The winner was Danny Reid in his 1957 Chevy who clocked the fastest lap of the night at 21.4 seconds despite the wet track.

Next week the special event will be a run-off for the top eight cars with six cylinders for a similar trophy, donated by the owner of the River view Speedway, Cliff Stillman.

Plane's Beat Latta 9-1, Read Wins

Second place Plane's Concrete disposed of fourth place Latta 9-1 in Latta's own ball park, in a South Hastings Baseball League contest, Saturday night.

Bob Chappell was the winner, allowing three hits, two walks and fanning six. The loss was charged to John Hill who gave up six hits, seven walks, and struck out four.

For Plane's, Garnie Adams hammered out a double and a single while teammates, Eric Emerson and Bob Luffman each added a pair of singles.

Latta's hitters were Dave Chapman, John Hill and Dave Julian, all with singles.

Third place Read used Shannonville 3-3 Sunday in Shannonville in a South Hastings Baseball match.

Frank Farrell went the distance for the winners, giving up six hits and fanning seven. Dave Lewis, the losing pitcher struck out 11 and allowed eight hits as Shannonville made an attempt to overcome a 6-0 deficit which Read had taken in the fourth inning.

Carm Milligan clubbed two doubles and a single and Pete Enright and Paul Hanley managed two singles each for Read. Shannonville hitters included Dave Lewis with two singles and a single and Bill Barberstock with a pair of singles.

Branch 99 Wins 14-11

Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion edged Whitby 14-11 in a ROMA ball game in Whitby although the Whitby team scored six runs in the eighth inning in an attempt to steal the victory.

Brian Cousins handled the pitching duties for Branch 99 giving up six hits and striking out 14. S. Huntley went the distance for Whitby losing five walks and fanning eight.

NOHA Plan May Result In Warfare

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — The executive of the Northern Hockey Association Saturday passed a resolution that may lead to ogin warfare between the NOHA and the Ontario Hockey Association.

The NOHA executive demanded the OHA ban the movement of over-age midget players outside their hometown. The move is to restrict the drafting of NOHA players by OHA Junior A teams.

If this is not done, the resolution says, the NOHA will refuse to transfer players to the OHA until they have been waived by all Northern Ontario clubs.

The NOHA resolution will be presented to the OHA executive during the meet.

Koch Beats Mike Belkin

WASHINGTON (CP) — Ken Koch, Brazil's top player, downed Mike Belkin of Vancouver Saturday and went on to defeat Arthur Ashe in the final Sunday in the $25,000 Washington Star international tennis meet.

A tall left-hander with shoulder-length hair, Koch played a steady serve-and-volley game to defeat Ashe, top-ranked U.S. player, 7-5, 9-7, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4.

Whitey Bimstein Dies at 72

NEW YORK (AP) — Morris Bimstein, 72, known to the boxing fraternity for more than 50 years as Whitey, died last Saturday.

Bimstein, a bantamweight boxer in his youth, was internationally noted as a second, specializing in closing cuts or wounds suffered by boxers during their bouts. He was in Gene Tunney's corner in Jack Dempsey lost the heavyweight title in 1926.

In addition to Tunney, he served also as the second for heavyweight champions James J. Braddock and Rocky Marciano, and such other boxers as Rock Graziano, Hurricane Jackson and Tony Galento.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: With all the stories in the papers about heart transplants, I am surprised — as a steady reader of your column — that you have never expressed an opinion on the procedure. Does your silence mean you agree with this treatment? — Mr. N.

COMMENT: I agree that we should try to prolong any life if there is hope that the patient can go on living in relative comfort. Therefore, I am in favor of doing something "for or about" the heart that will strengthen it.

To come straight to the point: I have never been what you might call enthusiastic about the present method of heart transplantation. So far, at least, it has not been sufficiently successful to erase the picture of waiting for one human being to die, snatch the heart quickly and introduce it into another ailing patient.

I suppose I shouldn't use the term, but privately (until now) I have thought of it as being somewhat ghoulish.

Experiments are now being performed on pigs' hearts. It may turn out that they will be our future source of supply in transplant operations. But I like to believe that the real answer to the problem is perfection of mechanical hearts.

I recall asking Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, who performed one of the early transplants, and who was a guest on my medical interview television program, if the mechanical heart wasn't the ultimate answer.

I believe he agreed. That was last year; how he feels about it now I do not know.

But the most important point is often overlooked, or not stressed enough: what is the condition of the body's arteries?

I do not believe that the most perfect and efficient heart-pump (whatever its nature) will be of any use if the "pipes" are rusted. If arteries are brittle and filled with lime salts and cholesterol and fatty acids, what's the use of worrying too much about heart transplants? And not worrying enough about the prevention and cure of atherosclerosis?

Mr. N. please do not think I am downgrading the remarkable surgical techniques which have given us the modern heart transplants. I hope they continue to progress. But I assure you that although the announcement of a cure for atherosclerosis won't make the headlines, it will be more important than all the space we have already given to heart transplants.

For Mr. L. :Of course I can only guess what is causing your fingers to permanently draw up in a curled position. Often it is due to a condition we call Dupuytren's contracture.

• • •

For some reason, tendons in the hand are invaded by fibrous tissue which causes this trouble. We don't know the cause. Treatment will depend upon what the surgeon thinks is best.

• • •

For Mrs. U.: Unless your own doctor prescribes daily douching during your pregnancy for some specific reason, I believe it is best to discontinue it. Interfering with the normal protective secretions of the vaginal tract during pregnancy is unphysiological.

For Mr. H.: Switching from two packs a day to 12 cigars a day will not, I think, help your cough much. Especially, when you admit to inhaling cigar smoke. Incidentally, don't feel so self-righteous because you've given up the cigarettes while taking on the cigars.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted a fractional decline in mid-morning trading today.

Volume continued to drop off with only 375,000 shares traded by 11 a.m. compared with 428,000 at the same time Friday.

A moderate advance Friday interrupted a sharp four-day slump.

Revenue was up ½ to 5½ on 53,095 shares. Trading in the stock had been halted since last Thursday. Last week control of the company was optioned to Kaufman and Broad Inc. of Los Angeles.

Hudson's Bay Oil rose 1 to 41 and Great Plains was unchanged at 31. Hudson's Bay Oil said it has agreed to purchase a 50-per-cent share of Great Plains' Arctic islands interests which have been farmed out to Amerada Hess.

OSP was down ⅛ to 23, Noranda ⅜ to 30¾, Denison ½ to 42½ and Inco ¾ to 37½.

On index, industrials were down .13 to 174.84 and western oils 1.48 to 247.94. Golds gained .74 to 229.63 and base metals .14 to 105.84.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — All classes and grades of slaughter cattle were steady at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Veal and lamb prices were steady, hogs higher.

Slaughter cattle 779: Choice steers 34.50-35.50; good 33-34; medium 32-32.50; commons and canners 26-30; choice heifers 32-33; good 31-32; medium 28-31; commons 23-28; good cows 25-26 with sales to 27; medium 24-25; commons and cutters 18-24.50; good heavy bologna bulls 26-27; commons and mediums 23-25.50.

Replacement cattle 150: Good stockers and feeders 33-37; good stock steer calves 37-40; good stock heifer calves 33-35; common and medium stockers and feeders 26-32.

Calves 224: Choice vealers 38-43 with sales to 45; good 33-38; mediums 30-33; commons 25-29; horses 20-25.

Hogs 811: Base price 36.40-36.60 currently in Toronto 36.50; 1 sows and boars liveweight 18.25.

Sheep and lambs 451: Good lambs 33-38; lights to 40; sheep 7-17.

Changes Are Made In Driving Rules

TORONTO (CP) — New residents of Ontario have 30 days to obtain an Ontario driver's licence under a previously - announced changes in the provincial Highway Traffic Act which come into force today.

Up to now newcomers to the province have been required to take out a licence immediately on moving to Ontario and, once they were residents, have not been allowed to drive under licences from other areas.

Other more controversial amendments to the act, given approval by the legislature earlier this year, will come into force in two phases—on Sept. 1 and Jan. 1.

In a statement, the transport department said two other changes which are effective today allow farmers to operate farm machinery between farms without registration and increase the maximum length for a combination of vehicles to 65 feet from 60 feet.

Tough new penalties for speeding and careless driving will come into force Sept. 1.

The changes will put fines for speeding on a sliding-scale, with fines ranging from $2 to $5 for each mile-per-hour over the maximum, depending on the possibility of much more severe penalties for high speeding than has been handed out by courts in the past.

Minimum fines for careless driving will increase to $100 from $10 while the maximum remains at $500. Judges will be able to hand out jail terms in addition to, not instead of, fines for careless driving and the discretionary jail term for use of fence will be increased to six from three months.

Landing Made In Vietnam

SAIGON (Reuters) — A combined American and South Vietnam marine force has made an amphibious landing on the coast about seven miles south of the big Da Nang base, the U.S. command announced today.

A navy spokesman said the new operation code named Hoptic Play was launched four days ago and aimed at clearing a stretch of coast and hinterland.

He said 21 guerrillas had been killed so far.

An American light spotter helicopter was shot down by the Viet Cong and three men aboard killed.

The spokesman said U.S. 7th Fleet destroyer Meredith softened up the beach with a heavy barrage of shells before the marines landed, and 26 jets also pounded the coast.

When the troops charged ashore they met no resistance, the spokesman said. They immediately fanned out to attack guerrilla positions in the heavily bunkered inland region.

The beach and assault area was heavily mined and had been swept by the guerrillas as a firing base to pour long range rocket barrages into the huge military complex at Da Nang.

The U.S. command announced earlier today that 780 troops of the 9th Infantry Division will fly back to the U.S. Tuesday, bringing the first week of withdrawals to more than 5,000 men.

The men are part of 25,000 servicemen scheduled to be withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of August in an initial pullout operation ordered by President Nixon in June.

Another 800 men in the 9th Infantry Division and a contingent of 2,800 marines will leave by Tuesday in troop ships for Okinawa, where they are being assigned as a combat ready unit.

Ground action remained at a low level during the weekend.

Indira Gandhi Faces Test Over Presidency

NEW DELHI (AP) — India's presidential contest has turned into a test of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's strength.

Her opponents in the ruling Congress party succeeded in nominating their candidate Sanjiva Reddy, to run in the Aug. 16 election instead of Mrs. Gandhi's choice, Food Minister Jagjivan Ram.

Reddy is speaker of the lower house of Parliament and an old political opponent of Mrs. Gandhi. He also is a member of the Congress party group known as the Syndicate which apparently hopes to use Reddy's victory as a step toward ousting Mrs. Gandhi.

Reddy was nominated by a 4-to-2 vote at a meeting of the party's parliamentary board during the party's weekend convention in Bangalore.

V. V. Giri, 74, who became acting president when Zakir Hussain died May 3, then announced his own candidacy. He charged that the Congress party is receiving Reddy, had "failed to give a moral lead to the country."

Mrs. Gandhi strongly decried a suggestion that she had asked Giri to enter the contest.

Sources said she has told the minister said she will spearhead an effort to get the party's decision reversed, by taking the issue to the 500 Congress members of Parliament.

Mrs. Gandhi said she had asked all her cabinet ministers to stay in New Delhi for the next few days to help her in the fight.

The selection of the Congress party candidate is crucial because its members dominate Parliament and many of the state legislative assemblies. Members of Parliament and the assemblies elect the president.

British Trade Deficit Doubles by End of June

LONDON (AP) — Britain again bought more abroad than it sold to foreign customers last month and by the end of June the deficit—or loss—on its foreign trade books had doubled, the government board of trade announced today.

The deficit for June was given at £28,000,000 ($72,800,000). The revised figure for May was £14,000,000.

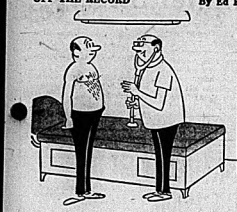
The June figures came as a disappointment after the pledge from Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, that Britain should have a foreign trade surplus—or profit—of some £300,000,000 a year by next March.

Jenkins announced June 21 that the government had been underestimating exports by two to three per cent and that the real trade figures for March were better than the gloomy ones that had been announced by at least £10,000,000 a month.

The figures announced today were the first made public since then and they had been expected to be more encouraging. Instead, for the 19th straight month since Britain devalued its pound in November, 1967, the trade books showed another loss.

The board of trade said the June figures had not been adjusted for the underestimation of earlier exports, but even if they had, the June deficit would have shown a sizable increase over May.

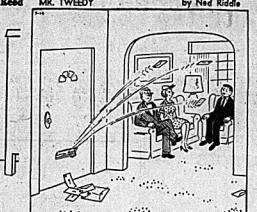
British exports in June hit another record £504,000,000, up from the earlier record of £567,000,000 in May.



But imports once again far overshadowed the export record to keep the books in the red.

June imports of £598,000,000 were up from the comparable May figure of £558,000,000 and a disappointment for the government which has been trying to hold down imports.

The difference between the export and import figures announced for June was higher than the deficit announced. The deficit, however, is lessened by so-called invisible earnings such as shipping and insurance charges.



The board of trade called the damaging June import figure "erratically high." It said sharply higher imports of food, tobacco and diamonds, which vary considerably from month to month, accounted for two-thirds of the import increase.

Toronto Carpenters Will Get $6 an Hour Plus Benefits

TORONTO (CP) — About 4,500 carpenters employed in the commercial construction field Sunday ratified a contract with the Toronto Construction Association which will give them a wage-and-fringe-benefit increase amounting to $1.97½ over two years.

Under the contract between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the association, workers will get $6 an hour Jan. 1, 1971. With fringe benefits, wages will come to $6.57½.

Under the old contract, carpenters earned $4.60 an hour in wages in fringe benefits.

The new contract provides an immediate increase to $4.75 an hour.

Painters, glazers and plasterers are still on strike in the city's construction industry, while bricklayers and boilermakers are locked out by the association.

The strikes and lockout started in May after about 2,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers went on strike.

Saturday, about 350 members of the Cement Masons Union approved a contract providing for a wage increase of $1.71 an hour over two years. Under the old contract, they had been earning $3.90 an hour.

Members of Local 2 of the Bricklayers and Stone Masons Union meanwhile rejected an offer which would have given them an increase in wages and benefits of $1.66 an hour over two years.

Under the old agreement, bricklayers earned basic wages of $4.35 an hour.

Tire Rotation Problem If Spare Is Snow Tire

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"Instructions on tire rotation do not seem to take into account the fact that a snow tires are frequently used for several winter months. Will this alter the recommended method of rotating tires? Is it necessary to align the front end each time the tires are switched? How often should front end alignment be done?" — Mrs. R. S. A., Toronto

There are several suggested rotation patterns. A mill known one is: (Left side of the car is the driver's side) — spare tire to right rear, right rear to left front, left front to left rear, left rear to right front and right front to spare. However, this method of rotating was suggested years ago but obviously today for the volume of vehicles fitted with snow tires it does not apply. Also, during the summer a number of people use a snow tire for the spare. Then, since it is not safe to use winter tires in hot weather, only the four running wheels can be rotated.

While it is recommended that the tires be switched each 5,000 miles, few people bother to do so. However, tire life is definitely prolonged if it is done at least every 10,000 miles and rotating alone is not enough. The tires should be removed from the wheels and inspected for internal damage. Most tire failures have their beginnings as a result of internal ruptures.

Rather than rotation, think in terms of safety. Once the tread pattern is less than 1/16" deep the tire should be replaced. It is vitally important that the front tires have good deep tread patterns and for this reason: a little known lethal phenomenon of wet roads is aquaplaning, which occurs as a combination of poor front tires and water soaked roads. A bald tire or one with little tread pattern will push the water ahead of itself, forming a "water wedge". As speed increases the water wedge gradually slips under the tire until all contact is lost between the pavement and the tire. At around 60 mph it is possible for the front wheels to come in a complete standstill. At this point, while the driver does not realize it until perhaps it is too late, the vehicle is out of control — no steering, no front wheel braking power, and a strong wind can cause the car to drift in any direction. This may occur with new tires at considerably higher speeds, which points up the wisdom of remaining within the speed limit or even a little slower when the roads are soaking wet.

To minimize the danger of aquaplaning, if some of the tires are worn more than others, mount the best tires on the front wheels when rotating them. If the spare is a newer tire and the four running tires are in good condition, rotate them in this manner: right front tire to left rear, left rear to right front, left front to right rear and right rear to left front.

It is not necessary to align left front to right rear and right rear to left front, tires are rotated, providing of course that it was properly aligned before the tires were switched. To avoid annoying vibrations, especially when the tires have been removed from the wheels, it is wise to check each tire for balance upon completion of the job.

How often the front end should be aligned depends a great deal on road conditions and how car is driven. Belting savagely over pot holes or crashing the bottom of the tire against the curb when turning can quickly destroy the front end alignment. Uneven wear on the front tires usually indicates trouble in the steering mechanism. When the car is in for a routine checkup it is wise to include a front end inspection.

The treads of new front tires can be ground away in just a few thousand miles if the alignment is badly out of kilter.

NOTE: A letter from readers with hard to pin-point car problems are most welcome, but please include year and model, number of cylinders, mileage, standard or automatic transmission, power equipment, brief outline of previous repairs and a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Windsor Utilities Settles

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Windsor utilities workers are ready to return to work today following ratification Sunday of a new two-year contract with the Windsor utilities commission.

The agreement, reached after two days of bargaining before a conciliation board mediator in Toronto, is expected to receive official approval of the utilities commission at a meeting this afternoon. The strike lasted 11 days.

If there are no hitches, the 363 workers who went out July 2 are expected to return to their jobs at 4 p.m.

The final vote by the workers, represented by Local 911, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, was 126 to 45 in favor of the new agreement, which provides for wage increases of nine per cent the first year and eight per cent the second year.

A new basic rate will be $4.19 an hour with retroactive pay amounting to about $400 a man.

Italian Premier Attempts Coalition

ROME (Reuters) — Premier Mariano Rumor is shouldering the task of trying to reassemble an Italian coalition government from pieces of one that broke apart eight days ago.

Against a background of labor and social unrest, Rumor Sunday described the job as "very difficult" and said he accepted the commission from President Giuseppe Saragat with reservation.

Rumor, a Christian Democrat, is acting as interim premier following the resignation of a Christian Democrat-Socialist-Republican coalition he headed for six months. That government broke up following a split in the ranks of the Socialists over their attitude toward co-operation with the Communist party.

Rumor said he hopes to put the same coalition back together again.

The president, who summoned Rumor Sunday to formally ask him to begin consultative talks with other parties, set a record for the 25-year-old Italian republic in the speed with which he chose Rumor.

The haste underlined fears that a prolonged crisis would provide fuel for already widespread social ferment and labor unrest. A general strike paralyzed much of Sicily Friday, the latest in a series of major stoppages in Italy this year.

Strictly Personal

We Must Get Beyond Selves

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Quite often I receive letters from anxious parents who tell me that their high school or college children read this column with some respect and attention, and asking me if I would write about "the drug youth."

By this they mean, would I advise their children to stay away from drugs, and would I further recommend some reading that will persuade the youths to shun so dangerous and self-defeating a habit.

No, I will not give such advice, because it would be useless. I will, however, recommend a book that both the parents and the youths should read, for two reasons — so that the parents can better understand what their children are looking for, and so that the children will understand that what they are quite rightly looking for cannot ultimately be found in drugs.

This book is "The Master Game" by Dr. Robert S. de Ropp (Delta Paperback, $1.95) and its author is a noted biochemist who also happens to be a sensitive humanist. His sympathies are totally with the young people who are looking for pathways to a higher consciousness than their parents have found—but his training and experience have convinced him that drug-taking is a dead-end and not a pathway.

It is not a medical or moralistic book, but a metaphysical one; that is, it recognizes the inadequacy of every-day experience, and it sympathizes with the view that we must somehow learn to get beyond our ordinary selves if the human race is ever going to realize its full and creative potentialities.

But while drugs can — at great risk — give some glimpse of these unrealized potentialities, Dr. de Ropp proves conclusively that, no matter how often they are taken, drugs cannot change our level of being. "Their continued use," he writes, "represents a form of spiritual bankruptcy which carries its own penalty, an irreparable depletion of the substance needed for real inner work and a total loss of the individual's capacity to develop."

It is basically, "the level of being," that these young people want to change, and that is a good desire — to go beyond the paltry games of profit and glory and fame that have so seduced and deformed our society. In this they are right, and their parents wrong and blind; but the young people are wrong in making the easy assumption that the upward path can be found by popping a pill in your mouth, without first attaining self-realization, self-knowledge, self-mastery.

Parents, as much as their children, need to read "The Master Game." It goes to the very nerve - centre of the conflict between generations.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For July 15

Your birthday today: Make careful notes, a diary, as the coming year flies by so swiftly you may not be able to keep all the essential details. Your talent for putting your best foot forward is apt to expand with surprisingly effective results. An adventurous spirit comes to the fore and smoother relationships are almost assured. Today's natives are often distinguished for their individualism and some technical specialty.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your work earns recognition now according to what you have put into it. Give others a chance to thrive as well. Make a party this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your attitude is likely to be somewhat more conservative and less cheerful than the facts justify — brighten up.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Once you can get your mind off the problems caused by somebody asking your advice, you can get some very effective work done.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Start early, work hard today. The rewards are almost immediately visible. Travel is favored, perhaps the beginning of a long journey.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Look for the short-term transaction, the quicker turn opportunity today. Let matters which are dormant stay that way; and use what you have readily available to work with.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Make the most of a fresh opportunity. Your personal plans can gather momentum from your social connections.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Friendship and social issues lead to much satisfaction. Do not, however, worry others with your business or try to mix business and pleasure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You will find it easier now to revise and improve your work and the conditions surrounding you while you are at it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This is a fortunate day for the active. If you have a chance to enter into group proceedings, do so. Co-operation abounds on all sides.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): After a good day's work, accept an invitation or give a party. There should be word of fresh opportunities, and newcomers among your friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You are able to move through your job as lightly as a breeze today, for a change. Make plans for young people this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Go along with people for valuable experience. Romantic attraction beckons today. You discover that your home can be an enjoyable place, too.

Commons Enters Third Week of Unscheduled Summer Sitting

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons enters its third week of unscheduled summer sitting today with only one apparent stumbling block between it and an overdue recess.

Ironically, the issue holding weary MPs at their desks is government-proposed rules changes designed to speed legislation through the House.

There is evidence that disposal of the proposals will be anything but speedy. The House spent most of last week considering the changes, with the three opposition parties in adamant opposition.

The three proposed rules would limit debating time. Two of them are not causing much argument. One provides for all-party agreement on debate limitation and the other would provide such limitation if three of the four parties in the Commons agree—with the provision that the government is one of the parties.

The third proposed change is the contentious one. It would allow the government to limit debate on each stage of a bill without agreement from any other party. There would be a minimum three-day debate on each stage of a bill.

Conservatives have set up a rotating speakers' schedule to condemn the change. Under Commons rules, each speaker may talk for 20 minutes. There are 108 opposition members.

Friday Grant Deachman (Liberal-Vancouver sudra) proposed a sub-amendment to a Conservative amendment to the rules motion.

It proposed that the matter be referred back to the House committee on procedure, as suggested by the Conservatives. But instead of being instructed to eliminate the provision for government allocation of debating time, the committee was asked to recommend retention to cover two situations:

Where no agreement could be reached by the four parties; and where the government and the official Opposition did not form part of a majority favoring a particular time-allocation formula.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux agreed with opposition argument that the sub-amendment went beyond the scope of the amendment and ruled it out of order.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who said Friday he was not interested in listening to a "silly filibuster," will be absent from the House this week on a tour of the West.

Trudeau Among Targets Of Quebec Professor

PARIS (CP) — An extensive attack on Prime Minister Trudeau is launched by Marcel Rioux, a Montreal professor, in a new book on Quebec just published here.

Rioux, teacher of sociology at the University of Montreal, says that even political independence for Quebec will be only a start for the province.

To be a Quebecer, he writes, is "to agree to live dangerously."

His book, called La Question du Quebec, accuses Trudeau of "covering with sarcasm" those who stand for the independence of Quebec.

Rioux also attacks the prime minister for what the book calls attempts to prevent Quebecers who favor independence from participating in the life of the world's French-speaking community, and for "ridiculing the French" in remarks about the crisis of the franc on the world monetary market.

Rioux introduces his book, published by Editions Seghers of Paris, with a remark that it sometimes contains the viewpoint of a sociologist and sometimes that of a Quebecer "who chooses the independence of his country."

He says it is curious that communications expert Marshall McLuhan, whom he terms a consultant to big corporations and to Trudeau, spoke in a recent interview of Quebecers' now going through the first stages of a "war of independence."

"Federalists" are in league with business groups in an attempt to dampen down the "sense of nationality and class in Quebec," he writes."

Federalism means "slow death" for Quebec but "if the population continues to become aware of its state of domination and inferiority, all is not lost."

In an apparent reference to English-speaking Canadians, Rioux asserts that "the British of Canada recognized Trudeau (to be) the man to master Quebec, and voted overwhelmingly for him."

The Quebecers followed suit, in their established manner, and "the anti-Quiet Revolution goes on in Ottawa."

Lloyd Remains NDP Head

SASKATOON (CP) — Woodrow Lloyd, leader of the Saskatchewan New Democratic Party since 1961, was returned by acclamation Saturday as provincial leader for 1969-70.

Mr. Lloyd urged delegates attending the provincial party's annual convention to get ready for a general election in Saskatchewan in 1971.

"We may have two years or a little bit more to prepare," said Mr. Lloyd, a former school teacher who celebrates his 56th birthday next Wednesday.

He noted the provincial Liberal government has been urging former residents to return to Saskatchewan for Homecoming '71, to celebrate the province's progress.

The election that year of an NDP government, he said, would mean "a homecoming of public conscience in Saskatchewan."

Speculation Hampers Farm Improvement

BRANTFORD (CP) — Farm development along the north shore of Lake Erie is being hampered by land speculation because of the movement of industry into the area, a university geographer said Sunday.

Dr. L. G. Reeds of McMaster University in Hamilton, in charge of a survey of the area, said "there's going to be a freezing, actually a regression," of farm improvement.

"If a farmer expects to sell his land he will let his buildings fall into disrepair.

"He won't replace equipment and he won't buy more land himself to create a larger operation which might be more successful."

He said the hardest-hit area will be Haldimand County.

British Troops Sent to Ulster

LONDONDERRY (CP) — British troops were on emergency alert in Northern Ireland today after clashes between police and rioters continued for the third successive night.

The presence of the soldiers in a camp on the outskirts of Londonderry—the second largest city in this semi-autonomous part of the United Kingdom—was announced Monday as the government of Ulster warned of tougher action against rioters.

But Roman Catholic-Protestant violence broke out Monday night in the capital of Belfast and only tough police action appeared to be holding down a tense situation elsewhere.

In Belfast, riot police in armored cars smashed their way through street barricades to break up battling Catholics and Protestants.

After two days of comparative calm in the capital the fighting broke out late Monday night between gangs of several hundred after bar room closing time.

Police had to fight their way past barricades as well as bonfires lit in the streets to block the armored cars.

Police who moved in to break up the fights were stoned with bricks and bottles as they charged the crowds in narrow, congested areas on the Crumlin Road area where the capital's two predominantly Catholic and Protestant districts converge.

A police spokesman said the fighting died down to minor skirmishes after about two hours although crowds were still in the streets.

In Londonderry, the city streets were heavy with policemen controlling what officials described as a tense situation after two nights of heavy rioting.

Scattered outbreaks of stone-throwing were reported in the city early today and a gang of youths set fire to a truck.

Chretien's Invitation Ignored

VICTORIA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien invited Canada's Indians to "come and meet me" when he began his cross-Canada tour Monday to gauge Indian reaction to the government white paper on Indian policy.

But there wasn't an Indian in sight when he arrived in Victoria to discuss the federal proposals unveiled last month.

The minister did meet, Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, chairman of the First Citizens Committee, which administers a provincial fund to promote Indian welfare, but the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation refused to talk with him.

Brave Men Sure Of Their Skills

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — The three astronauts are ready to fly to the moon. They say they are not afraid. They are confident their spaceship and training will see them through.

The rocket that will vault them is receiving the final servicing for liftoff at 9:32 a.m. EDT Wednesday. The weather outlook is good.

"The three of us have no fear of launching out on his expedition," said Neil Armstrong, set to become earth's first messenger on the moon.

As many as 1,000 ground technicians swarmed around the glistening white Saturn rocket as the countdown entered its final stages about an hour ahead of schedule.

Wernher von Braun, one of the main organizers of the U.S. space program, said he was confident the mission will be successful.

But he cautioned things do go wrong. "We do not think it will happen but it might.

"At least on our staff, all of us in this program have done our jobs. All we can do now is pray."

Armstrong appeared at a televised news conference Monday night with Edwin Aldrin, who will follow him down the steps of the moon landing craft, and Michael Collins, who will orbit overhead awaiting their return.

It was unusual conference in that the astronauts fielded questions from a panel of news media representatives seated 15 miles away. The U.S. space agency is attempting to isolate the astronauts as much as possible from the possibility of con-

Astronauts To Match Bills Proving Identity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apollo 11 crew members will match up the torn halves of $1 bills when they return from their moon-landing mission to prove they are the same men who left the earth.

A National Aeronautic Association spokesman said Monday this is the traditional way of proving that the men who take off are the same ones who return.

Wheat Prices Cut To Avert Collapse

OTTAWA (CP) — Major wheat exporters met in Washington last week to avert a collapse of wheat prices, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Monday.

Mr. Pepin said some of the five major wheat-exporting countries have agreed to "restrain their activities" to balance market prices.

"The idea if that there will be a readjustment of prices, but at a lower level obviously than the minimums under the International Grains Arrangement."

He indicated in interviews that Australia and European exporters, undercutting other members heavily in a competitive glut market, will raise their prices. Meanwhile, Canada and the U.S., which have been trying to keep to IGA minimums, would lower theirs.

The higher Europe and Australia went, the less North America would have to lower prices.

"Exactly what will happen, I do not know," Mr. Pepin said. "We shall have to wait and see."

Mr. Pepin said the IGA minimums are not realistic now but they act as guides to fair prices.

Importers should remember there are IGA maximums for the years when wheat is scarce.

Honduras and El Salvador Are Waging Undeclared War

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The undeclared war is raging in Central America today between Honduras and El Salvador, with each accusing the other of aggression. The Organization of American States has ordered a peace team from Washington.

Honduran authorities charged that Salvadorean ground forces invaded Honduras Monday at two points, and that Salvadorean planes made widespread attacks. Unconfirmed reports said seven cities were bombed.

A dispatch from Guatemala, which borders both countries, said Salvadorean officials reported about 1,000 Honduran troops had crossed the border into El Salvador. Sources in Tegucigalpa said the Honduran air force's Second World War Corsairs also crossed the frontier and run into heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The Honduran ambassador in Washington, Mildence Soto, placed the Salvadorean invading force at more than 9,000 and said his country is the victim of a "Pearl Harbor-type attack."

President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez of El Salvador held a three-hour emergency meeting with his cabinet, then announced he had ordered his army "to exercise the right of legitimate defence."

Two Honduran towns suffered a "high" number of casualties from the Salvadorean air attacks. They were Ocotepeque, a town of about 5,000 and Santa de Copan, with 9,500 residents.

Farmers Must Fight To Save Wheat Board

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Farmers must stage a determined fight to save the Canadian wheat board, says Walter Miller, president of the Ontario Farmers' Union.

The farmer has no hope of improving his situation until he controls his products, he told a weekend meeting of Saskatchewan Farmers' Union members.

"Don't fool yourselves, the best is on to get rid of the wheat board," he said at the end of his week-long tour of Saskatchewan.

Reed Boat Is Listing

OSLO, Norway (CP) — Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl told an amateur radio operator Monday the stern section of his reed boat Ra was sinking still deeper and the craft was beginning to list slightly.

The operator said the next two or three days might be decisive for the fate of the voyage on which Heyerdahl is seeking to prove that ancient Egyptians could have crossed the Atlantic in similar vessels.

New Operation Expected

Soviet Moonship Slower Than Usual

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — The Soviet moonship Luna XV is travelling at a slower speed than usual and will take longer than the usual 3½ days to reach the area of the moon, the director of the astronomy station here reported today.

"There is every indication that it may be attempting something new," said Sir Bernard Lovell. He said this could be the recovery of moon rock.

Lovell spoke with reporters after his giant radio telescope, which has been tracking Luna, had discovered the moonship was on a trajectory different from other unmanned Soviet moon flights.

"This is unique as far as Luniks are concerned," Lovell said.

"This indicates that a new form of operation is intended. It supports the theory that Luna may be attempting to recover lunar rock."

Luna had been expected to reach the vicinity of the moon Wednesday, but Lovell said after studying the latest signals picked up from the Soviet spacecraft that it would not reach the moon's vicinity until Thursday morning.

Peace Bid Said Kept From LBJ

NEW YORK (AP) — Former president Johnson said Dean Rusk, his secretary of state, did not tell him about a 1964 peace feeler from North Vietnam for two years, Norman Cousins reports this week in two magazines.

Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, told of the incident in an article published jointly in his magazine and Look.

U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, sent a letter to Ho Chi Minh, North Vietnam's president, in the fall of 1964, asking for peace talks, Cousins said. This was before the U.S. began bombing North Vietnam.

Three weeks later, North Vietnam told Thant it would enter secret talks and Thant told Adlai Stevenson, American ambassador to the United Nations, who told Rusk, the article says.

President Johnson first learned of the feeler when he and Rusk met Thant at the United Nations on Oct. 7, 1966, and Thant asked the president why he had never responded to the offer. Johnson "said this episode was a new book to him and that he was hearing about it for the first time."

British Troops Sent to Ulster

LONDONDERRY (CP) — British troops were on emergency alert in Northern Ireland today after clashes between police and rioters continued for the third successive night.

The presence of the soldiers in a camp on the outskirts of Londonderry—the second largest city in this semi-autonomous part of the United Kingdom—was announced Monday as the government of Ulster warned of tougher action against rioters.

But Roman Catholic-Protestant violence broke out Monday night in the capital of Belfast and only tough police action appeared to be holding down a tense situation elsewhere.

In Belfast, riot police in armored cars smashed their way through street barricades to break up battling Catholics and Protestants.

After two days of comparative calm in the capital the fighting broke out late Monday night between gangs of several hundred after bar room closing time.

Police had to fight their way past barricades as well as bonfires lit in the streets to block the armored cars.

Police who moved in to break up the fights were showered with bricks and bottles as they charged the crowds in narrow, congested streets on the Crumlin Road area where the capital's two predominantly Catholic and Protestant districts converge.

A police spokesman said the fighting died down to minor skirmishes after about two hours although crowds were still in the streets.

In Londonderry, the city streets were heavy with police-men controlling what officials described as a tense situation after two nights of heavy rioting.

Scattered outbreaks of stone-throwing were reported in the city early today and a gang of youths set fire to a truck.

Chretien's Invitation Ignored

VICTORIA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien invited Canada's Indians to "come and meet me" when he began his cross-Canada tour Monday to gauge Indian reaction to the government white paper on Indian policy.

But there wasn't an Indian in sight when he arrived in Victoria to discuss the federal proposals unveiled last month.

The minister did meet Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, chairman of the Provincial Citizens Committee, which administers a provincial fund to promote Indian welfare, but the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation refused to talk with him.

Brave Men Sure Of Their Skills

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — The three astronauts are ready to fly to the moon. They say they are not afraid. They are confident their spaceship and training will see them through.

The rocket that will vault them is receiving the final servicing for liftoff at 9:32 a.m. EDT Wednesday. The weather outlook is good.

"The three of us have no fear of launching out on his expedition," said Neil Armstrong, set to become earth's first messenger on the moon.

As many as 1,000 ground technicians swarmed around the glistening white Saturn rocket as the countdown entered its final stages about an hour ahead of schedule.

Wernher von Braun, one of the main organizers of the U.S. space program, said he was confident the mission will be successful.

But he cautioned things do go wrong. "We do not think it will happen but it might.

"At least on our staff, all of us in this program have done our jobs. All we can do now is pray."

Armstrong appeared at a televised news conference Monday night with Edwin Aldrin, who will follow him down the steps of the moon landing craft, and Michael Collins, who will orbit overhead awaiting their return.

It was unusual conference in that the astronauts fielded ques-

Astronauts To Match Bills Proving Identity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apollo 11 crew members will match up the torn halves of 21 bills when they return from their moon-landing mission to prove they are the same men who left the earth.

A National Aeronautic Association spokesman said Monday this is the traditional way of proving that the men who take off are the same ones who return.

Wheat Prices Cut To Avert Collapse

OTTAWA (CP) — Major wheat exporters met in Washington last week to avert a collapse of wheat prices, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Monday.

Mr. Pepin said some of the five major wheat-exporting countries have agreed to "restrain their activities" to balance market prices.

"The idea if that there will be a readjustment of prices, but at a lower level obviously than the minimums under the International Grains Arrangement."

He indicated in interviews that Australia and European exporters, undercutting other members heavily in a competitive glut market, will raise their prices. Meanwhile, Canada and the U.S., which have been trying to keep to IGA minimums, would lower theirs.

The higher Europe and Australia went, the less North America would have to lower prices.

"Exactly what will happen, I do not know," Mr. Pepin said. "We shall have to wait and see."

Mr. Pepin said the IGA minimums are not realistic now but they act as guides to fair prices.

Importers should remember there are IGA maximums for the years when wheat is scarce.

Farmers Must Fight To Save Wheat Board

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Farmers must stage a determined fight to save the Canadian wheat board, says Walter Miller, president of the Ontario Farmers' Union.

The farmer has no hope of improving his situation until he controls his products, he told a weekend meeting of Saskatchewan Farmers' Union members.

"Don't fool yourselves. the best is on to get rid of the wheat board," he said at the end of his week-long tour of Saskatchewan.

Honduras and El Salvador Are Waging Undeclared War

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A new undeclared war is raging in Central America today between Honduras and El Salvador, with each accusing the other of aggression. The Organization of American States has ordered a peace team from Washington.

Honduran authorities charged that Salvadorean ground forces invaded Honduras Monday at two points, and that Salvadorean planes made widespread attacks. Unconfirmed reports said seven cities were bombed.

A dispatch from Guatemala, which borders both countries, said Salvadorean officials reported about 1,000 Honduran troops had crossed the border into El Salvador. Sources in Tegucigalpa said the Honduran air force's Second World War Corsairs also crossed the frontier and run into heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The Honduran ambassador in Washington, Midence Soto, placed the Salvadorean invading force at more than 2,000 and said his country is the victim of a "Pearl Harbor-type attack."

President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez of El Salvador held a three-hour emergency meeting with his cabinet, then announced he had ordered his army "to exercise the right of legitimate defence."

Two Honduran towns suffered the "high" number of casualties from the Salvadorean air attacks. They were Ocotepeque, a town of about 5,000 and Santa de Copan, with 9,500 residents.

Hoffa, Clay Lose Appeals

CHICAGO (CP-AP) — Two federal judges refused Monday to set aside the convictions of Teamsters Union head James R. Hoffa and boxer Cassius Clay on grounds that information gathered by the FBI through wiretapping was used against the defendants.

In Chicago, Judge Richard B. Austin in U.S. district court resentenced Hoffa to five years in prison, a sentence originally passed in 1964 on a conspiracy charge.

In Houston, Tex., District Court Judge Joe Ingraham ordered Clay, former heavyweight champion of the world, to appear in court July 24 for re-sentencing on a charge of refusing to be inducted into the U.S. armed forces.

Hardier Breed?

More Area Campers' But Fewer Day-trippers

Campers are a tougher breed than weekend day trippers at district parks and beaches.

Or perhaps the campers came better prepared to endure the cold rainy weather that blanketed the Quinte district in June. At least that's the suggestion of one Department of Lands and Forests spokesman in explaining why camping is up this year in provincial parks, but day use is down.

"June was terrible here, especially the weekends," said a Presqu'Ile Park spokesman a.m. "As a result, our attendance for the month is down to 68,368 from the 76,418 recorded for the same month last year."

Majority of park visitors were campers, he said.

"But this past Saturday and Sunday were big days for us and the attendance figures should peak from now on," he added.

Cool, wet weather also dampened enthusiasm at the Outlet Park. Attendance for the week of June 30 to July 6 this year was 3,000 less than for the same period last year.

As the Outlet dropped in popularity, attend a n c e at North Park Beach and the Sandbanks picked up. During the first week of July attendance increased by 4,000 more than for the same period last year at the Sandbanks, and by 1,000 more at North Park beach.

Camping at the Moira River Conservation Authority's Vandewater Park near Tweed is just getting under way for the year. However, day use of the park is believed to be down from last year due to bad weather in June.

But tourism is booming, according to Belleville Chamber of Commerce officials. Since July 1 they have been averaging an average of 35 visitors a day at their Pinnacle Street office.

A large number of those seeking information and t o u r i s t brochures are Bellevillians planning holidays in other parts of Ontario and neighboring provinces and states.

Godbys Get Suprise Start

For a while, Mr. and Mrs. Shelley thought they were going to spend their vacation in Grand Nebraska Jail!

Bill Godby and daughter

En route to Salt Lake City, Utah, the Belleville family was stopped by a Nebraska highway patrolman and invited to be guests of the Nebraska town's July 4 celebration.

However, the "novel" experience that followed did not take place in the city's jail.

Each year, the town picks a car at random from a nearby interstate highway and invites them to be guests for the entire celebration.

After participating in a 97-unit parade, eating a barbecued meat at the city park, and watching an evening grandstand show, the Godby family — still taken aback — spent the night in a Seward motel. Saturday morning they were served breakfast and given a tour of the city, after which they continued on their trip to Salt Lake City.

Seward, Nebraska is a town of about 5,000 population in the southeastern part of the state.

Santa Claus Lives!

VICTORIA (CP) — In a small but flourishing shoe store in the downtown district of this provincial capital, a dapper, 50-year-old s a l e s m a n quietly takes shoes from his customers, mostly children and teen-agers purchasing one footwear for rapidly growing feet.

Many of the shoes they discard have only one failing: They are too small. But even if the condition of the old pair is excellent, the salesman takes no cash adjustment for the trade-in.

"I just say I've refitted the child, and may I put the old shoes in my box for the Indian Reserve," said the salesman in an interview.

Six years after he purchased the business, the salesman says he collects more than 150 pairs of shoes each month.

"It started two years ago when I was listening to an open-line radio show and an Indian lady telephoned and said she was having difficulty getting candy for the children's Christmas stocking.

"I usually give the children coming into the store a piece of candy during the Christmas season, but I thought to myself, 'These children already have so much.'

"I had just received a box of candy for the store, and I telephoned the Indian lady and said I'd help.

Then he told the children coming into the store that "we wouldn't be giving them candy this year. . . ."

"When the lady came in to pick up the candy I said something about needing shoes, and she said they sure did."

Now the lady and her husband pick up a large box of shoes every month.

BAYLESWORTH — In loving memory of our dear father, Ernest Bayleworth, who passed away on July 13th, 1967.
He is gone but not forgotten,
Sadly we dwell on memories sweet,
He left behind a heart broken home,
Thoughts of him are ever near,
Days of sorrow and nights of tears,
Memories linger, time cannot wound the healed.
But there's little know the heart conceals
That lies within the heart concealed.

McRAY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Norman McRay, who passed away July 15, 1963.
In tears we saw you sinking,
And watched you fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
When God called you home.
We cannot bring you back again,
So peacefully we leave you resting,
Dear Norman, in your grave.
To suffer that agonizing pain,
Which only a bereaved mother, father, brother Doug and sister-in-law, Grace, can know.

Would Raise Costs

Trimesters Proposed for PE Schools

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A proposal for the reorganization of the school year at Prince Edward Collegiate drafted by teachers there was presented to the County Board of Education last night by Mrs. Kari Euler, a Home Economics teacher at the high school.

Addressing the board Mrs. Euler referred to the large investment in plant and equipment at P.E.C.I. and to the fact that the school is open ten months or less each year.

She described P.E.C.I. as "overcrowded" indicating the need for another addition.

"In a short time we will require an addition at PECI or another school," said Mrs. Euler, "unless we do something else."

"This is the something else we, as teachers are suggesting," she said as she outlined a program of classes that would run for twelve months in a trimester system.

Programs currently followed at P.E.C.I. were termed by Mrs. Euler as "not flexible enough for the students." She suggested that teachers are following an old organizational program, making changes in a piecemeal fashion.

The trimester system, planned around the concept of non-graded continuous progress could go into its first phase of operation at P.E.C.I. on July 1, 1970.

The second phase would follow in September, 1972.

Trimesters would be approximately four months long, each one ending with a two week break for students.

At P.E.C.I. currently the actual number of teaching days is 180. The trimester system would reduce the number of teaching days to 150 each year.

Operating costs at P.E.C.I. would raise under the trimester system. Teacher salaries would go up as well as maintenance costs, paper and supply costs and transportation rates.

Air conditioning would be a necessity if the school operated during the summer. Mrs. Euler regards the immediate cost increases as long term savings.

Operating costs would rise but in the end there would be money saved since a new school wouldn't be necessary," said the teacher.

She added that the cost per student would be less because pupils would finish school in less time than before.

Minister of Education William Davis has indicated that grants will be given to schools experimenting with summer programs.

The Trimester System would permit students to study the courses of their choice, substituting those they disliked for others they enjoy. Most courses would be offered at more than one level of difficulty allowing a student to take different subjects at different levels. Promotion would be by subject unit only. The new system would necessitate the hiring of eight additional guidance councillors, at an approximate annual cost of $70,000.

Teachers' contracts would be negotiated for a two-year period with the teacher selecting the months of trimesters and those which he would like to teach. Five trimesters out of six would be a normal pattern. Salary should be calculated on a monthly basis covering 24 months.

"As an intermediate phase we suggest two regular semesters and an extra summer session in 1970," said Mrs. Euler, "We think the community will accept summer sessions at P.E.C.I.," she remarked. County Board member Mrs. Ken Carson felt that the students should be polled concerning their feelings with summer sessions, Mrs. Euler agreed with this suggestion.

Leaving the meeting, Mrs. Euler told the board, "We would like you to talk about this, approve it and put it into practice."

Board members promised to consider the brief, acknowledging both its merits and shortcomings.

Debbie Graham of the Hastings County Museum staff decided that maybe fans wouldn't be such a bad way to beat the summer heat after all. The 60-year-old fan, fashioned of pure ivory and covered with ostrich plumage is one of the Couldery art pieces, fashioned about the turn of the century.

Belleville Wage 43rd on Scale

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Average income in the city of Belleville has increased. But the boost hasn't bettered its position among other major wage-earning centers.

In fact, the Quinte city has slipped slightly in its income ratings compared to other communities.

The facts are revealed in the National Revenue Department's statistics of average Canadian incomes based on 1967 tax returns and released yesterday.

Of 89 selected cities Belleville ranks 43rd with an average income of $5,365.

This compares with the new record-holder, Oakville—in first place with $6,297—and Portage La Prairie, Man., in the last slot with $4,182.

In 1966 returns placed Belleville 42nd, with an average of $5,072.

Belleville's bigger-city neighbors in the east-central Ontario regional also show contrasting wage-income results in the 1967 returns.

Kingston is only a few notches up the statistical ladder—ranked 40th with $5,414.

Peterborough, however, is in 26th place with an average $5,589.

Inflation—the wage-earner's bogey—is among factors in Belleville's almost stand-pat rating, despite the income boost.

"Conditions have improved, but, with the rapid increase in the cost of living wages are standing still," said Ian Reilly, the Belleville MP and regional representative of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union.

The average equals about $100 a week, noted Mr. Reilly and "anybody making $100 is just able to survive."

However, he added, the statistics don't reveal the total human necessity.

"Averages are fine and dandy. But there are people with high salaries on one hand and an awful lot with low salaries."

Donald Burshaw, as district representative of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers is another Belleviliian who is a prominent'Ontario labor negotiator.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Belleville is not progressing as fast as other centres as far as wage increases are concerned," he says.

One reason is lack of heavy industry—a major factor in communities like front-running Oakville.

However, concedes Mr. Burshaw, he personally feels "Belleville is starting to move ahead".

The current new industry boomlet will result in a more competitive labor market thus higher wages for one thing, he says.

Alderman Gerald Joyce, chairman of the city's industrial commission, is optimistic that Belleville will come on strong in future income ratings.

"With the new job opportunities that are being created our average incomes will increase," he predicts. "Belleville won't continue to be in 43rd place."

Neither need the new industries seek far afield for skilled help, he indicated.

Canada Manpower officers believe many Bellevilians preferring to live in their own community, are employed at jobs below their skill-potential, says Ald. Joyce.

Hence, the need is to upgrade available workers. Willingness of new industry to organize on-the-job training and technical-student facilities at Loyalist College could be significant in changing the scene, he adds.

Mr. Reilly, however, cautions against expecting too much from new employers who are not engaged in "high-profit industry".

Such employers, he says, "can't pay what they haven't got".

But, by contrast, he believes the Piasecki Aircraft operation slated for Picton will be "one of the biggest things to hit this area".

A high-skill, high-income industry, Mr. Reilly says it will reflect on other wage brackets.

The 1967 returns chronicle the difference in the disparate incomes of Bellevilians.

They range from 1,622 persons who filed on incomes of $1,000 to 138 with incomes of $20,000 or more.

The largest group falli — 2,291 — earned $5,000 $7,000.

Total income in Hastings County, including Belleville (and with the city's contributing total in brackets), was $149,703,000 ($75,620,000) in 1967.

This compared to $142,341,000 ($70,510,000) in 1966.

Wages and salaries earned by Bellevilians in 1967 contributed $60,945,000 to an overall county total of $121,845,000.

The year before Bellevilians earned $58,091,000 of a Hastings County total of $113,353,000.

In Prince Edward County 1967 returns (with 1966 totals in brackets) showed total income of $28,907,000 ($22,728,000) with wages and salaries comprising $22,623,000 ($17,845,000.)

Board Going After Unpaid School Levies

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Board of Education will send letters to the six municipalities that have not yet paid the requisition portions of their education tax levies.

The decision was made at last night's board meeting.

The money requisitioned was to have been transferred by the municipalities by June 30.

The six municipalities in default are Wellington, North Marysburg, Athol, South Marysburg, Ameliasburg and Picton.

Wellington, North Marysburg and Athol still await word from Queen's Park concerning the possibility of an error in the figures for their education levies.

Picton town council, at its July meeting, advised clerk Andrew Jarvis to ignore the requisition from the board.

Previously, Mr. Jarvis had informed the board saying, that since Picton had not yet collected taxes, it could not transfer them.

Said deputy reeve Donald Thompson: "When we find that all other municipalities have borrowed or contributed their share, then so should we.

"We don't want to borrow $82,600 at the current interest rates in order to pay the board," added the town clerk.

The letters to be sent to the municipalities will point out that:

"We need money in operate," commented a board spokesman, "and interest will be charged on the money we borrow."

He indicated that the six municipalities who have not yet paid the levy will be responsible for this interest.

"The municipalities who have paid, should not have to pay this interest," said the spokesman.

The municipalities who have already paid the levy are Sophiasburg, Hillier, Bloomfield, and Hallowell.

Class Religion May Be Going

BLOOMFIELD — Religious instruction in Ameliasburg Township's four public schools may not continue next term.

Rev. J. M. McLeod, Carrying Place, spoke to the Prince Edward County Board of Education last night on what.he called a "contentious" undertaking on his part.

Rev. McLeod, assisted by laymen, has conducted half hour classes in religious instruction in each of Ameliasburg's schools during the past year.

One complaint concerning these classes recently came to the board's attention.

All objections to the classes are resolved at present, however he said. The school principals are "all quite happy" according to Rev. McLeod who has asked the board if the classes will continue in the coming school year. "I am not sure what the Dept. of Education wants in a religious instruction program," confessed the minister.

He explained that in Ameliasburg there is "every faith under the sun." The board agreed to discuss the advisability of continuing religious classes in the Ameliasburg schools before the next term begins.

Fan-tastic Weather!

By JUDY SCHRIEDER
Staff Reporter

In these days of humidifiers, de - humidifiers, and push - button B.T.U.'s, the fan looks like the dinosaur of the air - conditioning set.

To the modern jet set of today fans are considered to be archives salvaged from the "good old days" when little boys wore sailor suits and shoulder length ringlets and every girl in town was captivated by the "maxi" dress.

But in all fairness some distinct advantages must be conceded to the fan - that fragile instrument that cooled many a head as early as Cleopatra's days.

Hand fans are not slaves to electrical outlets - a power cut - off does not interfere with the amazingly cool currents the little gadgets produce.

Nor does the break - down of a fan cause the home - maker to run up a costly service bill. A little thread and patience would probably be all that is needed to mend the instrument back to perfect condition.

Available in all shapes, sizes, colors and designs the fashionable — and portable air - conditioners of yesteryear could experience a comeback as summer's humid days approach.

Fair Dates Barely Month Off

With the Belleville Fair — or "Quinte Exhibition" as it is now known — less than a month away, preparation for printing of the annual fair tabloid and program is again underway.

The tabloid, to be included as a supplement in the weekend edition of The Intelligencer the week before the fair, will also see blanket circulation throughout the Quinte district. The Quinte Exhibition this year is August 12-16.

Again this year, Elmer Bonter, R. R. 1, Carrying Place, is in charge of sales and publicity material for the special fair edition which this year sees its third publication.

Included in the fair issue will be the day by day program of all fair events.

The deadline for advertising copy for the fair edition insert will be August 2. Enquiries should be made to Mr. Bonter.

Fires Down

TWEED — Forest fires have been kept at a minimum this year due to the above normal precipitation in the area according to Edgar Beach, forest protection clerk with the Department of Lands and Forests in Tweed.

To date, the department has knowledge of 51 fires in the district, with a total of 152 acres burned over. Only two of these fires occurred in the months of June and July. Last year however, 21 fires struck in three days over the Easter period.

The Jay Treaty

With rumblings still being heard from Ontario's Indians over Ottawa's plan to hand over ownership of the reserves to the native bands and have the province provide Indians with the same services as other Canadians — the Indians say this would destroy their identity — other problems remain outstanding.

What became of the Jay Treaty hassle for example? The Indians claim that under this treaty of 1794 the British government of the day agreed Indians would have free access between Canada and the United States.

The Indians put the treaty to the test on the international bridge at Cornwall a few months ago only to run foul of the Canada Customs people. Indian civil rights campaigner Kahn-Tineta Horn of the Caughnawaga Reserve in Quebec went to England to try and wring some action out of Prime Minister Harold Wilson and left a copy of her petition at Buckingham Palace as well.

The Mohawk beauty attracted widespread publicity for herself and her cause, her picture appearing in newspapers and in the distinguished Illustrated London News under "Headliners," along with such notables as Judge Warren Burger, successor to U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren; Lord Pearce, the new chairman of the Press Council, and former British athlete Christopher Chataway after his by-election win for the Conservatives at Chichester.

But for all her efforts and Indian pressure here at home it would appear the government has chosen simply to ignore the Jay Treaty. They probably reason that an agreement signed as long ago as that, in a time far removed from today's administrative set-up, is no longer valid.

Ottawa however has not made its position clear. The Indians know they have this treaty, but the government, which likely did not even know it existed, is now evading the issue. But sooner or later it must make a decision. Is the treaty still valid or is it not — and if so why?

Power of Dissent

The recent International Council of Nurses meeting in Montreal was an interesting gathering which produced such findings as that of the panel on nursing journalism: nurses, like most professional groups, should question and debate more.

Publications, the panel agreed, should provide a forum for dissent and rebellion, even if they are organs of an association. Such dissent seems to be largely lacking, although here in Canada it has not been entirely absent among the nursing profession in recent years.

Even in Ireland where there is dissension enough at most levels — and always spirited, at least — nurses evidently are models of compliance who would not rock the boat for either love or a winning ticket on their very own Sweepstake.

Anyway that is how it appears from the comment by Enid Meehan, editor of Irish Nurses Journal, who said an editor often writes an article expecting "pungent comment" but instead is "shattered by the silence."

Silence then is not always golden. Progress in nursing as in any other profession may come only through argument, debate, dissent — whatever one likes to call it.

'Mods' on Way Out?

Well we knew it all the time, but it is always interesting to find further proof of the fact that the way-out clothing of the "mod" generation, the extravagant styles, long hair et al have less to do with rebellion than with inferiority complex.

Otherwise why would London designer Michael John Fish, in Toronto to open a new fashion outlet, express a sneaking admiration of the "square" world, and even let it be known he feels the return to the elegant line has started already and that the mod look will soon be gone.

Mr. Fish's words speak for themselves: "If you are doing good things, you know it and you don't need clothes. When I see a man in a dark grey suit I think 'There's a happy man.' I'm not happy."

For those with less than complete self-confidence, Mr. Fish turns out pink suits and shiny striped jackets. All of which goes to prove that it is all a rather blatant form of exhibitionism designed to both shock and at the same time offer some sustenance to flagging ego.

Parliamentary Committees Busy But Ineffective

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Think hard now — can you recall anything that any committee of the Commons actually has accomplished?

Anything at all that made any kind of lasting impact on your life as you live it?

Give up? Most people do.

For trying to remember what any committee of the Commons has done is the hard line of solid achievement — like changing the government's mind on taxing and spending — is to attempt remembering the non-existent.

Sure, committees file reports from time to time with recommendations.

But most of the time, the government already has made up its mind on any controversial questions at issue, and all the committee does, really, is simply go through the motions of appearing important to the parliamentary process.

Appearances, though, are essential to Parliament's image.

Because the Commons, in its recent stormy six years of ever-uncertain minority government, bought the idea that the committee could often perform many parliamentary tasks as well, and even better than the House itself.

Former Prime Minister Pearson was the salesman.

It was a bill of mistabelled goods he unloaded in this upgrading, this elevation to heady heights of non power of the committee.

It was, in fact a cleverly-packaged process to take the heat and public spotlight off his always hard-pressed minority government in the House by side-tracking hotly controversial issues to this committee or that for a slow cooling out.

Royal commissions serve the same purpose, except that they deep-freeze burning questions for years.

There are now 24 committees with an average MP membership of 20, with the government majority, of course, as it now is in the Commons, in firm control

Quick now, what has any one of these committees done?

Well, there was the Commons Defence Committee that toured Europe to determine whether or not Canada would be wise to "phase out," as the pat phrase goes, of NATO.

Trouble was that Prime Minister Trudeau reached a decision before the committee scarcely could make it home, much less write its report.

Then there was that special committee assigned to recommending whether the government should increase the pensions of retired federal civil servants, more than 5,000 of whom have been scratching along on less than $30 monthly.

The committee filed an urgent report that in humanity's name — not to mention the government's own reputation as a supposedly model employer — a pension increase was an emergency matter.

That was three years ago. And there are civil servants — at last count 2,156 of them — still scrimping by on less than $70 (that's right, $70) monthly.

Aw, but then you have heard that the Public Accounts Committee is different, that it gets things done.

For years, Auditor General Maxwell Henderson has been telling it about those wives of CFHI brass hats who do their shopping and send their children to school in staff cars.

Routinely the committee has taken solemn note, filed reports demanding an end to this and that extravagance — this year the AG listed 319 instances of waste of public funds — and the "Colonel's Lady" whose husband commands or sails or flies a desk at Defence Headquarters, still does her shopping in staff cars.

If there was a star on the committee stage, these last few months it has to have been the Commons Committee on Broadcasting, Films and the Arts.

It took one in full cry after the $46,000,000 cost of the National Centre for the Performing Arts.

It questioned everyone in sight at this incredible centre as to how come the cost has zoomed from an initially estimated $8,000,000 to almost six times that amount. And the only answer it got was "don't ask me."

Then it wanted to know why the Company of Young Canadians had overspent its budget by $100,000 and, was told in effect to "but out."

Curious as to why separatists and anarchists got Canada Council grants, it was lectured on political tolerance and coolly informed that anyone, Communists included, could qualify for a share of the tax loot.

Committees?

They can make you laugh or cry.

Illness and the Next of Kin

Hamilton Spectator

When Wendy Michener, the distinguished movie critic and daughter of our Governor General, died suddenly on January 1 of this year, neither her husband nor her parents were informed of the gravity of her illness. Within a few hours of her husband's bringing her to hospital, she was dead. Yet no one had told him that she was even seriously ill.

The shock of the unexpected death of anyone, particularly a young person, cannot be exaggerated. If doctors or nurses suspect that a patient is about to die, they should try to make sure that the next-of-kin are informed as soon as possible.

Governor - General Michener has taken this important matter up with Ontario's Chief Coroner and as a direct result hospitals have been requested to improve their system of communication with the families of patients.

In the case of desperately ill patients, their families, if informed in time, could, if they wished, call in specialists (this is what Miss Michener's family would have done if they had heard of the gravity of her condition in time—and, it so happens, in her case, the treatment she was being given was wrong because the, supervising doctor's diagnosis was unfortunately incorrect).

Obviously in particularly stressful states of emergency when an intern and one nurse are trying desperately to save the life of an accident victim, say, no time can be spared in order to notify families. Otherwise, however, hospitals should always give high priority to the feelings of the loved ones of the desperately ill or dying. Most of them already do, but there are tragic exceptions.

Credit Card Losses

Galt Reporter

The innocent looking little credit card which was supposed to be a convenience for all concerned, is proving to be a boon everang and costing American firms and their customers about $20 million a year. Service stations, department stores, hotels and restaurants are the chief targets of bogus credit card holders, says Pinkerton's Inc. More than 16,000 fraud cases in a single year have been reported by the major oil companies alone.

There is no mystery about the phenomenon. There are 400 million of the little plastic oblongs in circulation in the country and some $5 billion in charged purchases are made with them each year.

A stolen, found or otherwise acquired card in the wrong hands — or in the hands of a theft ring to which a card is fenced — is better than a blank cheque. A fantastic amount of purchases can be made before the loss of a card is reported by its rightful holder and the company that issued it can alert its retail outlets.

Grand Manan's Lure

Spell of the Ocean Tide

Kenneth Bagnall in the Globe and Mail

A group of us were talking the other evening of memorable summers we've spent and my mind went back to Grand Manan. It is hard to believe that it was 17 years ago and I was a teen-ager in university when I went there, to a rocky island off New Brunswick in the Bay of Fundy, and made an acquaintance with the sea that would never leave me.

Years later, I went back to Grand Manan with my wife and little boy, but it was not the same. Many of my friends had gone. But the sea was still there and we rented a cottage and throughout the day we sat there or sometimes went walking on the shore.

One evening I discovered the hold the sea had on me. I took my little boy and went to a spot you will not find unless you ask: Dark Harbor. We stood there and watched the dying sun throw a flicker of fire across the water until the whole sea was enflamed. I thought we were alone that evening until I heard a soft voice say, "I was just his age when I came here first." It was an old man back to commune where he began. And so we sat there gazing at the sea and listening to its untranslateable murmurings, in new as in old morning and as old as Genesis.

Peace Prospects Remote

Arabs and Israelis Still Sparring in Middle East

AP News Analysis

By ROY ESSOYAN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Middle East faces another summer of tension and war jitters. Peace appears remote, but so are prospects of a major showdown.

The Arabs freely concede they won't be ready for a big confrontation with Israel for at last another year. And the Israelis say they don't need any more Arab territory.

The Arab-Israeli war has never really stopped since 1967. It paused briefly after the issues won the last showdown—the six-day war in June of that year—but resumed within weeks with air, naval, artillery and commando strikes by both sides.

Israel and the Arab world are so accustomed to the hostilities they tend to turn a deaf ear to frequent warnings from UN Secretary-General U Thant about the threat of a general war.

"We consider ourselves at war," Egypt's official spokesman, Mohamed Hassan el Zayyat, said Wednesday.

Because each side knows there won't be a showdown in the immediate future, they evidence little alarm at the steady escalation in fighting in the last eight months artillery duels across the Suez canal and the Jordan River have become daily affairs.

Aerial dogfights are growing in frequency. Since the 1967 war the Israelis claim to have downed 37 Egyptian and Syrian planes, 17 of them in the last two weeks. The Egyptians say they have downed at least as many Israeli planes, but Israel has rarely conceded an aircraft loss.

The Israelis have realized they cannot blast Arab air power out of existence as easily as they did in June, 1967. The Egyptian and Syrian air forces now are scattered around secret bases throughout the Arab world.

In the six-day war the Israelis destroyed a lot of Arab planes on the ground before they could take off. Now they can only find Arab MiGs in the air, and they shoot back.

The Arabs are expected to maintain their pressure against Israel on all fronts and apparently feel they have little to lose—except arms, ammunition and the lives of their commandos. The arms and ammunition flow in from the Communist bloc on easy credit terms, and the human toll has been relatively light.

The Arabs feel they have much to gain from continued pressure on the Israelis. It helps maintain the high morale of their extremist demands for a war of liberation and places an increasing strain on Israel's economy.

Israel has retaliated, of course, but nothing approaching the showdown stage.

Informed Lebanese sources say an Israeli commando force made one attempt two months ago to blast vital Egyptian dams along the Nile, which could have caused a big flood. The attempt failed, they say, but it could have caused disastrous floods.

Gen. Haim Herzog, former chief of Israeli military intelligence, warned recently that Cairo, the Nile and all of Egypt present Israeli targets.

The Arabs have shrugged off such warnings.

Doctors and Surgeons Again Top List of Income Taxpayers

OTTAWA (CP) — Self-employed doctors and surgeons again topped the list of taxpayers with the largest average incomes reported in their 1967 income tax returns, the revenue department reported Monday.

They were followed in order by self-employed engineers and architects, self-employed lawyers and notaries, self-employed dentists, and self-employed accountants.

Doctors, engineers, lawyers and the other professionals who work as salaried employees are not included in the tabulation but are classed by the revenue department in the large general category of employees.

The department's 1969 book of taxation statistics, compiled from 1967 tax returns, showed 16,508 self-employed doctors and surgeons had average incomes of $27,367 and paid an average tax of $7,324.

Engineers and architects working for themselves had average incomes of $22,111 and paid $5,349 each in taxes. There were 2,572 in this category.

A total of 8,462 self-employed lawyers and notaries reported incomes averaging $22,014 and paid $5,623 on the average in taxes. There were 5,108 self-employed dentists with average incomes of $18,272 and average tax bills of $4,208. A total of 5,125 self-employed accountants had average incomes of $14,517 and paid $2,914 each in taxes.

In the general category of employees, there were 5,788,100 taxpayers with average incomes of $5,200 a year and tax bills amounting to $589.

Farmers were a cut above the average employee, with average incomes of $5,530 and tax bills amounting to $634 each for 148,725 taxpayers.

Pensioners were again at the bottom of the list, with 151,267 of them drawing average incomes of $2,410 and paying an average $251 in taxes.

The tax figures include federal and provincial income taxes, plus old age security taxes, for taxpayers in all provinces except Quebec. Quebec's provincial income tax is levied separately and not shown in the federal revenue department's figures.

The grand total of taxpayers in 1967 was 8,653,683. They had average incomes of $5,645 and paid an average $630 in income taxes.

Tough Inco Fight Seen

TORONTO (CP) — "It looks like a long tough battle," a union leader said when negotiations broke off for the day Monday in the dispute between the world's largest nickel producer and nearly 18,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America.

Talks between the union and International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. have been deadlocked since a work stoppage began early Thursday at the company's Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., plants and there were indications Monday the stoppage will be a long one.

The company's last stated offer was 95 cents in wages and fringe benefits over three years. Some reports have said the union wants $1.90.

"We're not prepared to capitulate," said Homer Seguin, 35, president of the Sudbury local, in an interview Monday.

He repeated the union's demands for the highest hourly rates in heavy industry in Canada."

He said basic industry appeared to be looking upon the dispute as a "hold-the-fine situation".

Some Inco directors were, he said members of boards of other companies and the dispute could resolve itself into "an economic struggle of industry against the worker".

"If Inco wants an industry fight, we'll give them one," he said. "We're determined."

Failure to settle the dispute soon could play havoc with world supplies of nickel.

Astronauts Have Faith in Ship

tamination from human germs.

Nothing was scheduled for the three space pioneers today. Because previous astronaut crews complained of overwork just before launches, training for the lunar explorers has slacked since the weekend.

Collins said he was going to lie on a bench "and read the flight plan—again."

Armstrong, the flight's civilian commander who will be the first human to set foot on the moon, said he would not like to predict what his first words would be.

"I don't know what my feelings will be until I get there," he said.

Backed in floodlights stood the 363-foot tall Saturn V rocket that will propel them on the journey.

In the lunar module, nested beneath the command and service modules, is a disc the size of a 50-cent piece inscribed with messages of congratulations and goodwill from 73 nations.

The microdisc will be implanted in the powdery moon soil.

Russia, which sent a mystery satellite to the moon—with arrival time nearly to coincide with the Apollo launch—delivered the message.

Some experts saw in Russia's unmanned vehicle an attempt to study and samples from the moon and return them before Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins can deliver theirs right days after liftoff.

Asked if he would be disappointed if the Russians first snared lunar dirt, Aldrin said: "I'm sure all of us would. We'd like to return with everything we set out to do on this flight."

Their precise flight plan calls for going into moon orbit at 1:26 p.m. EDT Saturday, undocking the lunar lander from the mother ship 24 hours later, and touching down on the moon at 4:19 p.m. Sunday.

But they'll have to wait before making their self-televised imprint on the moon. First they must check the systems to propel them back up to the orbiting mother ship with Collins aboard, then try to sleep for four hours.

Man's first step on the moon is set for 2:17 a.m. next Monday.

"I suspect I'll be surprised if I'm able to get a sound sleep on the lunar surface," said Armstrong, who has been given sleeping pills for that purpose.

Their only hope of rescue is Collins, coming overhead every two hours in the immutable laws of space travel. He has the ability, at a tremendous cost in velocity, of coming down within nine miles of the surface.

"We would be prepared to go down to the absolute limit," said Collins. "It would be a decision that would be up to mission control."

Collins would be of help only if the lunar vehicle could go that high to meet him. If not, their death would come after two days on the inhospitable, airless moon.

Asked whether, if the spacemen became stranded, there were any "pills which they could take to ease their suffer ing," George Mueller, associate administrator for manned space flight, said:

"There are no suicide capsules or anything of that sort on the vehicle, nor would they plan to take advantage of such things."

If everything goes well, they will lift off after a 22-hour stay —loaded with up to 130 pounds of moon dirt—and return to earth July 24.

Moon Dust Might Explode If Taken Into Spaceship

LONDON (AP) — A former U.S. space official said Monday night dust carried by the lunar astronauts after their walk on the surface of the moon could explode or burst into flame inside the spaceship.

Paul Haney, former director of public affairs for the U.S. National Aeronautic and Space Administration, said on British television:

"This is one danger that's never mentioned publicly by NASA officials."

He told an interviewer the possibility of such a fire is remote.

"Scientists think it possible that aeons ago the moon dust must have looked oxygen. When exposed to the supercharged oxygen atmosphere inside the moonship, the dust may begin to glow and give off heat.

"This is the moment when the two scientists will be holding their breath. For the astronauts, the first hint of trouble will be a tell-tale glow on the cabin floor. They have fire extinguishers, of course, but nobody knows just how effective they would be in these circumstances."

Haney will report the moon shot as a commentator for British television.

Ellington Has New Song

NEW YORK (AP) — Inspired by the Apollo 11 moon shot, musician Duke Ellington is about to make his singing debut with Moon Maiden, a song he composed to commemorate the event.

"At my age I don't really need an excuse to do anything," Ellington, 70, said Monday after taping the song.

"I just felt I could do it. But it's a one shot thing. This is the end of my singing career."

The song will be broadcast by the American Broadcasting Co. Sunday at 10 p.m. EDT while the astronauts will be resting on the moon's surface.

The song includes three lines: "Moon Maiden . . . I made my approach and then revolved. But, my big problem is still unsolved ..... Moon Maiden listen here my dear. Your vibrations are coming in loud and clear."

LITTLE CASH

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Burglars carried off a safe after breaking into a credit union of the Laborers International Union, Local 1076, in Pontiac, Authorities said the safe contained $60 in cash and $160,000 in non-negotiable bank certificates, savings bonds and pay cheques.

Germ Contamination From Moon Unlikely

By ANTHONY HEFFERNAN

ABOARD THE HORNET (Reuters) — The only two persons who will be exposed to the three moon explorers after they turn to earth said today the possibility of germ contamination was almost negligible. One is a Canadian doctor.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins will spend three weeks isolated in a mobile home-like enclosure as a precaution against possible moon germs that could spread to the remainder of earth's inhabitants.

With them will be Dr. William Carpentier, 33, from Lake Cowichan, B.C., and John Hirasaki, 28, of Beaumont, Tex., both with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Houston, Tex.

"The risk of bringing back something is very small," said Carpentier, the physician who will conduct tests for possible moon germs on the three astronauts.

"I consider the risk low enough," concurred Hirasaki. NASA's recovery project engineer who will look after technical aspects of the mobile quarantine facility, including cooking.

"If I calculated it a sufficiently high risk I wouldn't be here," he added.

The quarantine unit, which is 35 feet long, nine feet wide and 8½ feet high, awaits the astronauts aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Hornet which is scheduled to pick them up in mid-Pacific July 24.

It is the first time plans have been made to isolate astronauts because it is the first time anyone will have gone to another planet.

Changes in residential property tax reduction 1969

To ease the burden of local taxes on all houses and all apartments, the Province of Ontario introduced last year a system of tax reductions. In 1969 that system is continuing as a unique method of helping the individual householder.

The system makes payments to every eligible householder in the province. In the case of a homeowner, there is a reduction in his bill for municipal and school taxes. In the case of a tenant, the reduction is allowed on the benefit of his landlord, and the landlord in turn is required to pass on to the tenant the full amount to which he is entitled. Although the money comes from the Province, it is only through the co-operation of municipal governments that the system is effective.

A long-term program of major municipal improvements is now under way. In the meantime, the tax reduction system is spreading the tax load more fairly by taking more than $120,000,000 annually from Provincial tax revenue, raised from broader sources, and paying the money to individual families in houses and apartments.

Changes in 1969

The system remains basically the same as it was last year. But there have been a number of changes that will have an important effect for many persons:

If a tenant moves out during the first eleven months of 1969, the landlord or his agent must pay him within 30 days the tax reduction to which he is entitled. The amount will be one-twelfth of the reduction for each month of tenancy. (Except for those cases, the deadline for payment of the reduction is the same as last year—that is December 31.)

Amount of reduction: If your local mill rate goes up, the amount of the reduction will go up. The amount will go down only in the case of certain low-assessment dwellings such as cottages.

A maximum of 50 per cent of municipal and school taxes may be excused through tax reduction, in other words, a cottage or other low-assessment dwelling will not have all of its taxes covered; the amount of reduction shall never be more than 50 per cent of the total taxes.

Tenants in Crown properties are entitled to tax reduction in the same way as other tenants. Tenants in Ontario Housing Corporation units or National Capital Commission units are examples.

Who is eligible?

Every owner of a separately assessed residential property, is entitled to receive the tax reduction. Most houses, apartments, farm dwellings and cottages are eligible.

Roomers are not eligible because their rooms are not separately assessed dwellings.

Note to tenants and landlords

The landlord is required to check on the amount of tax reduction that is due to each rental unit and see that the correct amount is paid to each tenant by December 31. This year if a tenant moves out during the first eleven months of 1969, he is to be paid the proportionate amount of tax reduction within 30 days of his termination of tenancy.

In the very rare cases of landlords who do not act responsibly, tenants can take legal action. They are advised to check first with the Department of Municipal Affairs or their local municipal office to be sure that they appear to be eligible and that their case cannot be settled in a simpler manner.

Nearly all landlords are accepting their role in the tax reduction system and doing it efficiently. The proportion of eligible tenants who had any complications in collecting their 1968 reduction was very small, and it is expected this year to be smaller still.

If you have questions about the 1969 tax reduction system or wish to obtain the basic information in leaflet form, please enquire at your local municipal office or the Municipal Subsidies Branch, Department of Municipal Affairs, 801 Bay Street, Toronto 181. Telephone: Area Code 416, 363-7501.

Guest Speakers Highlight Meeting

"What's out there?" was the intriguing title of a most interesting talk given by Mrs. R. Settle and Mrs. G. Maybee at the annual meeting of the Women's Study Guild held at the home of Mrs. G. Wishart.

A potluck supper preceded the business meeting, which was conducted by Mrs. Jerry Cochrane.

A letter was read from the adopted child, Marylene Cohen of Marseille, thanking members for the recent gift of money.

Following the report of the nominating committee and the voting, the following members were elected for 1969-70: president, Mrs. Maisie Daley; vice - president, Mrs. Rose Kinkead; secretary, Mrs. Irene Gill and treasurer, Mrs. Jean Adams.

Mrs. Mary Asbeley provided a fitting introduction to the topic with her devotional, abased on the story of creation and taken from a book titled, "Worship Programs in the Arts".

Using a poem, Mrs. Ashley emphasized the fact that outside of truth, there is no beauty. A brief talk was also given on the meaning of the sculpture, "The Hand of God" by Rodin.

Mrs. Settle spoke of the many things one can observe by watching the heavens. Naming the various phenomena it is possible to see, she explained the differences between the aurora borealis and the aurora australis, and gave various pertinent facts about satellites which are now a common everyday occurance.

From satellites, Mrs. Settle moved on to the unexplained and sensational sightings of U.F.O.'s. She traced the sightings to before the time of Christ, and told of certain ones observed in our time.

In Canada the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization is interest in receiving reports on all sightings of U.F.O.'s.

Mrs. W. Graystone, Trenton, is the representative of the organization in this area, and was a guest of the Guild for the evening.

Also speaking, Mrs. G. Maybee confined her remarks to the space program, beginning with two pertinent questions: "why spend all that money on space research," and "what is the use of it?"

It was argued that the money spent on research into space is better spent on that than on war, and that the sharing of the discoveries of outer space with other nations will be more likely to promote peace.

Mrs. Maybee then explained the great benefits that space research has had for mankind. She mentioned the advancement of medical science through these studies, as well as the boon to both society and industry.

Concluding her talk, Mrs. Maybee stated the many possibilities of using the moon for different types of experiments.

A time table of various space flights and a short quiz on the personnel in the satellites ended a most interesting evening, and encouraged a lively discussion.

MR. AND MRS. RODNEY CANNONS

Cannons – Malcolm

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was the scene of the recent wedding when Alice Louise Malcolm, daughter of Mrs. Mae Malcolm of Kingston and Mr. Joseph Malcolm of RR1, Cloyne, Ont., was united in marriage to Rodney Philip Cannons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cannons of RR1, Arnelasburg, Ont. Performing the ceremony was Rev. G. B. Woodcock. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist William Connor, while the soloist was Miss Beth Woodcock.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of white organza highlighted by short sleeves and a full length train falling from the shoulders trimmed in hand embroidered lace. Her floor length veil, consisting of three layers of silken net and a headdress of two small roses was complemented by the bouquet of red roses which she carried.

Maid of honor, Jane Mannire, of Oshawa was attired in a floor length gown of turquoise chiffon over taffeta flowered trim on the bodice, featuring empire waist and no sleeves. Her matching veil was complemented by the large bouquet of colonial white 'mums which she carried.

Bridesmaid Mrs. Kay Cannons, cousin of the bridegroom, wore a floor length gown of pink crepe, with a matching veil and rose headdress, while Miss Chris Hannah, cousin of the bride wore a floor length gown of yellow polished linen, a matching veil and a bow headdress, carrying a colonial white 'mum bouquet.

Flower girl was Miss Sherrie Marseile, cousin of the bride, attired in a blue linen floor length dress featuring an empire waist, with white flower trim on the bodice. She carried a basket of white 'mums.

Best man for the ceremony was Peter Cannons, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Larry and Richard Malcolm, brothers of the bride.

For the wedding reception and dance, at Moose Hall, in Belleville, the mother of the bride received the guests, wearing a two - piece dress and coat ensemble in pink brocade, completed by white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations and ivy. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a dress of blue lace over silk, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to northern points in Ontario, the bride donned a mauve bonded crepe two-piece suit and white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations and green ivy. Upon their return, the couple will reside at RR7, Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS GOULD

Gould – Pollock

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, was the scene of the recent marriage of Mae Elizabeth Pollock, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Pollock, Ivanhoe, to Dennis John Gould, son of Mrs. Jack Gould, Foxboro and the late Mr. Gould. Rev. D. C. MacPherson officiated. Appropriate wedding music was rendered by Robert Dafoe, accompanied by Mrs. H. A. Morrow at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length dress of white stiffened faille and an overskirt of chiffon embroidered with lace. The bodice of lace was enhanced by a bow at the Empire waist and the sleeves came to a lily point at the wrist. The train of chiffon and nylon net fell in a full cascade from the waist.

Her veil was of illusion net in four-tiered style with pearls of iridescent rhinestones around the scalloped edges. Her headpiece was of net forming leaves finished with pearls and an iridescent drop. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Miss Susan O'Riordan as maid of honor wore a yellow peau de soie dress featuring gathered daisies, a scoop neckline and a bow at the empire waist.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Diane McInroy and Mary Ann Pollock were attired in blue dresses, the same style as that of the maid of honor. Miss Patricia Gould, sister of the groom, as junior bridesmaid wore yellow taffeta overlaid with chiffon. The bodice of lace was enhanced by a bow at the Empire waist. The attendants wore a band of yellow daisies in their hair and carried bouquets of matching flowers.

The groomsman was Arden Lewis and the ushers were John Smith, cousin of the groom, Steven Pollock, cousin of the groom, and William Pollock, brother of the bride.

At the reception held at the Ivanhoe Town Hall, the bride's mother received her guests in a dress of glazed mint crimplene and white accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother who was attired in aqua satin overlaid with chiffon and a lace coat. She had white accessories and both mothers wore corsages of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the East Coast and the Northern States, the bride chose a green crimplene dress with scalloped edges and gold buttons across the shoulder. On their return the couple will reside at 16 Rosedale Ave., Foxboro.

Half of Cancer Patients Are Cured—But Medical Check-up Best Prevention

By DORIS CLARK

Would it surprise you to learn that 52 per cent of cancer patients are now being cured? This is the result of steadfast, dogged, careful research over recent years, and I think it is wonderful.

It surprised me even more, though, to learn that the main difficulty is to get people to choose to prevent themselves from dying of cancer. Fear of the disease, of all things, keeps individuals away from the doctor—when we know that early recognition is the thing that beats this killer.

Authorities suggest there are two ways to prevent cancer. One is by identifying the agents that cause it, and removing them. A second is the discovery of pre-malignant lesions and their treatment.

Our environment is not under our personal control, but our actions are. We can choose to smoke or not to smoke. We can choose to over-expose ourselves to the sun frequently or to be reasonable in our exposure. We can visit our family doctor regularly or delay our check-ups indefinitely.

The Canadian Cancer Society, in promoting the theme of cancer prevention, has adopted the "Seven Safeguards":

For everybody: Have a regular medical check-up; do not smoke cigarettes; have your dentist check for abnormal conditions; arrange with your doctor for a bowel examination; avoid excessive exposure to sunlight.

For women: practise regular breast self-examination; have a regular Pap test.

Nuff said!

• • •

Dear Doris: I am miserable. Everything I try to do seems to turn out wrong. I am forgetful and the things that I do remember to do I mess up terribly.

Even my own mother and father are mad at me because of something that I did, I guess. I say "I guess" because I cannot think what it is.

The only thing that I am all right in is school work, which is okay, but who wants to study and work all your life?—Depressed

Dear Depressed: If you can take hold of your present depression and learn how to pick yourself up by your bootstraps, you'll have moodiness and sorrow by the tall — something many Gloomy Glumps don't manage in a lifetime.

First thing is to clear the air. Take nerve in hand and ask Mom and Pop what the dark looks are all about. Then proceed to re-do that thing: apologize, or right the wrong, or promise to do better next time.

We all forget things. My personal solution to mental lapses of forgetfulness is to keep a pencil handy and write down what I want to keep in mind.

Next thing is to cheer up. Smile. Sing a song. Thank the Lord for a good mind that makes school work easy. Do something friendly for somebody else. (This last is magic, when it comes to chasing the blues.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy Jones, if you don't some this minute, I'll come after you with a stick! I've been yelling for half an hour."

A bell or a whistle may save not only the wear and tear on a mother's voice, but on her disposition as well. Surprisingly enough, the impersonal summons is more likely to be answered quickly.

Mother: "I'll ring this bell four times when I want you to come right away. Two rings are a warning that it's almost time to stop the game."

Beat High Beef Prices-Serve Chicken

By MARY MOORE

My duty as a communicator is to tell facts as they are. I cannot ignore the high cost of beef and pretend everybody can afford roast beef every Sunday and steak every Saturday night. If I have to get along without high cost beef there are plenty of compensations. One may be expanding my meat cooking repertory.

I do not know how low bargains in chickens are in your community but I do know customers were swarming to buy fresh chickens at 22 cents per pound in my store — and I was one of them.

From it I made enough chicken salad to serve 10 people and they liked it.

CHICKEN SALAD
(For 10)

One 3-3½-lb. chicken (cooked and chopped — see below)
4 cups hot water
½ bay leaf
1 tbsp. chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
1 tsp. salt
2 dessert apples, pared and chopped
1 cup chopped pared cucumber
1 cup finely chopped inner celery
½ tsp. MSG (Accent)
½ tsp. salt (2nd amount)
¾ to 1¼ cup genuine mayonnaise (preferably made with lemon juice)

Simmer the chicken, covered in the hot water along with the bay leaf, onion and salt (1st amount) until it begins to fall from bones, turning it over once at halftime. Mine required 2 hrs. on low heat.

Transfer chicken to tray to cool enough to handle. (Strain broth and chill and skim off fat for making soup later.) Strip meat from bones and skin and discard skin and bones and cartilage. I had 2 cups chicken meat, packed.

Cut chicken into ½" to ¾" pieces, turn it into large mixing bowl and add apple, cucumber, celery, MSG, salt (half amount) and mayonnaise and stir until all ingredients are coated. Chill thoroughly, covered. Serve in well-cupped lettuce leaves, garnish with red currant jelly or pickled pears or peaches.

As you can see this is an economical main course for a cold meal for summer time guests.

Ann Landers

Reading of Book May Help Save Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've made some mistakes in my life but as I look back over the past 34 years I see many tragedies over which I had no control. Both my parents were drowned when I was 16. My brother whom I adored was burned to death in a fire. A sister I envied and disliked died in a car accident. To this day I feel as if I murdered her because I was driving.

ANN LANDERS

You may not be able to help me, Ann, but perhaps just expressing my feelings in writing will make me feel better. I am haunted by the fear that I will commit suicide. There are times when I hate living and want to die, but I know suicide is the coward's way out. More important, I have three wonderful children who need a mother. Their father is away a great deal and I'm afraid he has no real interest in his family.

I am terrified that I will jump out of a window? Whenever I'm near a large open window I panic. I am so afraid of elevators, I'd rather walk up ten flights than go into one.

Can you give me a few sentences of hope? What can I do to get over these hellish feelings? — GWENDOLYN.

DEAR GWENDOLYN: I almost never recommend books but I'm going to make an exception because I've just read a book that could help save your life. It is called "The Prison Of My Mind," by Barbara Field Benziger. The publisher is Walker. If your bookstore doesn't have it, ask them to get it.

This book is a moving personal account of a courageous woman who conquered mental illness. Her honesty and openness will give encouragement and hope to every person who fears he is cracking up.

The best answer for one who is suicidal is a therapist in whom he has confidence. The author of "Prison Of My Mind" emphasizes this point. While Mrs. Benziger credits therapy with saving her life she makes it abundantly clear that not all phychiatrists are humane, kind and competent.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I had dinner with another couple last night. Just as we were about to leave the woman said she wanted a souvenir from the restaurant. I thought she meant she wanted to buy something on the way out. To my utter astonishment she removed the tablecloth, folded it and walked out with the tablecloth tucked under her jacket.

My husband says I should have talked her out of it. I say her husband should have stepped in. In the meantime, I get sick thinking about what would have happened if we had been stopped at the door. How prevalent is this sort of thing? What should my husband and I have done — if anything? — ALSO PRESENT.

DEAR ALSO: The experts say one-fourth of us will not steal anything, under the circumstances, one-fourth of us will steal anything that isn't nailed down, and the other half of us vary — according to the strength of the temptation and the chances of getting away with it.

You and your husband should have insisted that the woman leave the tablecloth on the table or pay for it.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE WI

The July meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute, Haslingd West Branch, was held at Scott's Uniondale Hall with 19 members and one visitor.

Hostess, Mrs. George Halsall and convener, Mrs. Grenville Sine had as the topic "Family Living". Readings and contests were enjoyed. "Thank-you" notes from Trenton Hospital, Mrs. Howard Richards and Linda Malzoly were read.

July 27 to August 22 will be visiting days for Uniondale WI at Hastings Manor and August 12 - 16 will be Quinte Exhibition with Uniondale WI serving hot meals and salad plates on August 14 in Jr. Farmer Building. Area convention, October 16 - 17 will be at Club Canara.

A bus trip was enjoyed earlier in the month to Black Diamond Cheese Industry, near Belleville.

The Home Economist will be Mrs. Wolfe for county and Miss McGiffin for Prince Edward-Lennox and Addington.

An invitation from River Valley Institute was read. August meeting will be at Mrs. Joe Janks, bring historical or antique item for display.

Lunch was served by July lunch committee and a social time was enjoyed.

REAL ESTATE

ED McKINLEY
Pres. Treasurer
Realty Ltd.

DOES IT PAY TO RENT OR OWN YOUR HOME?

One of the oldest arguments in real estate is whether it's cheaper to rent or to own your own home.

Now I don't mean whether most mortgage payments are lower than most rentals (maybe same type of accommodation). Rents are almost always higher, partly because they must cover maintenance and other overhead paid by the landlord.

I'm talking about the argument of some pseudo economists, some of whom can prove on paper that owning a house is a losing proposition and that you can enjoy a much more financial advantage by renting at a reasonable rate and investing the capital that would otherwise be tied up in a house.

That may look good on paper, but I've never seen it work out in practice. People who rent never seem to have that "extra capital that would otherwise be tied up in a house." They simply never get around to saving extra money — probably because rents are usually higher than house payments. On the other hand, people who are making payments on a house are, in effect, using a sort of compulsory savings plan that builds up their investment in the house.

But aside from all this, home ownership offers hundreds of pleasures that can't be measured in dollars. Certainly, it means responsibilities, too, but they are responsibilities to you and your family — not to some landlord.

Let's clear up the confusion about "savings" interest rates.

Competition for your savings dollar is hot and heavy. (You've seen all the different advertisements lately telling you your savings earn 6½% interest, 7¾% and so on). And that's all to the good . . . for you. You're the one who benefits . . . or you can benefit if you can figure out what's involved in all the different accounts. To clear up the confusion, here are the various types of savings facilities the Bank of Montreal offers, the rates of interest, and how interest is calculated:

7¾% Term Deposit Receipts

Here your minimum deposit must be $5,000 and remain untouched for two years and a day to earn full interest. Interest is calculated and credited to your account semi-annually. For shorter terms — from 30 days to two years — your deposit earns 7% per annum.

7¼% Income Deposit Certificates

Minimum is $1,000 but you can place higher amounts in multiples of $100. Interest is paid quarterly at a basic 6¼% rate plus bonuses to give you an annual yield of 7¼% over five years.

6½% True Savings Account

This is strictly for saving. No cheques, but you can withdraw your money at any time and, on your instructions, the Bank will make transfers to your chequing account at no cost. Interest is based on your minimum monthly balance and credited to your account twice a year.

3½% Chequable Savings Account

This is a savings account on which you can write cheques. Interest is based on your minimum half-yearly balance and credited semi-annually.

0% True Chequing Account

This is the perfect partner to savings of any kind. It does not pay interest but allows you to pay bills by cheque — the most economical way possible. And your cancelled cheques, returned to you each month, are your receipts.

So choose a savings programme that will give you the most for your money . . . and now more than ever you owe it to yourself to save. Our people will be glad to help you make your selection.

Belleville First in East

Derailment Possibility Nipped in Bud

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

An operator in Belleville spotting overheated railway car wheel bearings on mainline track anywhere between Bowmanville and Montreal?

Impossible! You say.

But not with the assistance of modern day electronic equipment soon to go into operation throughout CN's Rideau Area.

It is expected the equipment will materially reduce serious hot box situations which can lead to costly derailments.

At the same time, however, the present vigilance of train crews, section gangs and station personnel will not be relaxed.

It is hoped the new system will prove more efficient and catch some of the hot boxes missed in the current visual inspection.

Jack Lomas, superintendent of transportation for the CN Rideau Area says a good job is already being done through the present visual inspection system.

"But they don't catch them all — that is why we have derailments," he said.

Actually the hot box detectors are heat sensors which register the heat of each railway car journal box as the train passes along the track.

On the Bowmanville to Montreal stretch of double main line track there are 11 installations spaced approximately 25 miles apart.

When a hot box is detected by the equipment it is automatically recorded at the Belleville headquarters office.

But the equipment does more than spot the hot boxes.

It also indicates on which side of the track the hot box is, records the specific car and even identifies the set of tracks on which the journal is running hot.

The new hot box detection system is also being installed on the Ottawa - Cote Junction line.

The heart of the installation is a recording panel at the Belleville headquarters which can record up to eight or more hot boxes simultaneously.

When a hot box is recorded, the Belleville operator informs the despatcher who in turn calls the train engineer or conductor by radio so that the train may be stopped for visual inspection.

But the new electronic hot box detector system is only one of several installations planned for Belleville with the view of increased efficiency in railway operation.

By the end of the year a system of centralized traffic control is expected to be in operation through which mainline switches throughout the area may be controlled from the Belleville office.

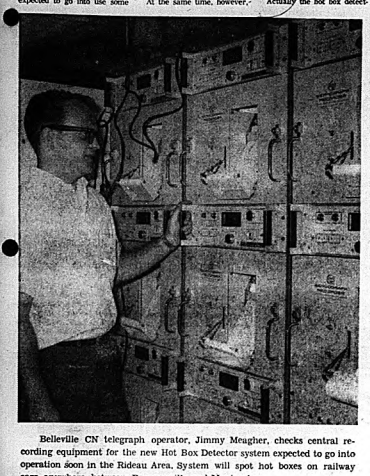
Currently under way at Belleville is the relocation of yard tracks for the accommodation of longer trains. Included in the new yard complex will be a new plant for welding of continous rail.

And some time before 1971 a nationwide automatic car identification system is expected to go into operation.

When this system begins one of the big bugbears of railroading — knowing where freight cars are at any time — is hoped to be eliminated.

Mr. Fast says that with the new system railway companies will be able to determine "where and when" cars are at all times.

Keeping track of cars has always been a problem for railway personnel.



The reason is that railways do not like to see their cars returning empty, so they are loaded for other destinations with the view of earning revenue on the home trip.

That is one of the reasons why cars of a dozen or more railways may be seen in any long freight. Sometimes it is months before a specific car is returned to its own railway.

With the automatic car identification system, "electronic equipment "reads" the cars as they pass along in a train. The information is fed through a computer with the result that cars can be identified anywhere in the system.

Mr. Fast said that for optimum efficiency all railways would have to install the system at the same time.

With the system it is hoped that "lost" cars will be eliminated.

Belleville CN telegraph operator, Jimmy Meagher, checks central recording equipment for the new Hot Box Detector system expected to go into operation soon in the Rideau Area. System will spot hot boxes on railway cars anywhere between Bowmanville and Montreal.

More Pride Needed

Stephens-Adamson executive George Stanton believes greater community pride could be engendered among young Bellevillians if more were known about the professions and companies which make up the community.

Stephens-Adamson has been in Belleville since 1927 and has grown from a work force of 21 then to 300 today and a sales volume in 1968 of $10 million.

"Because we are not dealing directly with the consumer we are not as well known as people dealing in household names," he told fellow Rotarians yesterday.

The firm manufactures conveyor and self-loading equipment in use all over Canada as well as in Africa, South America and Jamaica.

Mr. Stanton showed slides of company products in use at home and abroad, from Sept-Iles, Quebec and the Queen Charlotte Islands of British Columbia, to Brazil and Mauretania.

Stephens-Adamson conveyor and self-unloading equipment facilitate not only the movement of people (as at Montreal international airport) but a wide variety of minerals from iron ore to potash, coal and aluminum.

For Jimmy Allan, pedalling his ice-cream cart around the East Hill is probably the hottest job in town this summer. But for his customers among the younger set his merchandise offers cooling relief on a summer afternoon. Roger Colden, Richard Allan, Juliette and Jacqueline Colden swarm over the bicycle cart to sample the wares.

Bells Are Ringing For Ice Cream Set

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Bells are ringing around the city this summer as the old street peddlers return in a new guise.

And the bells are enticing customers to the bicycle carts dispensing ice cream to pedestrians along the streets.

Incidental to the operation of the Dickie Lee franchise is the employment it offers 14 to 16 year-old students who pedal the bicycle carts on four routes around the city.

"A keen salesman can average $300 for the 60-day summer season," said Douglas Jackson, owner of the franchise.

The bikes, equipped with attention-drawing bells of the type once used on carriage shafts, are wheeled out about noon seven days a week by the four lads employed by Mr. Jackson. They work their routes until about 8 p.m.

The ice-cream cups and bars they sell are kept in insulated wells cooled with frozen brine cartridges.

The boys are licensed to sell only from the sidewalks, and cannot enter some parks or any factories. But they try to hit the playgrounds and streets near factories at the time of the mid-afternoon coffee break.

Business, according to Mr. Jackson, has suffered all across the province this summer due to cold, wet weather. But this week with the advent of hot, sunny days, the bicycle peddlers are beginning to hit their stride.

Midway Chums

Nothing's more fun for a three-year-old than having a poodle to hug is what Kim Williamson might well be thinking as she enjoys the King Midway at Bain Memorial Park, Trenton.

Circus Follows Horses

TRENTON — The Quinte Western Horse Show had no sooner moved out of Bain Memorial Park Sunday when the King Midway shows took its spot. The King shows will be taking part in the Legion carnival that will be on the ground of the park for the next five days. The show starts at noon daily.

Dave House and his committee from the Trenton Legion, Branch 110, saw work get under way Monday night as "kids," young and old joined in the fun of a carnival.

To the members of the King Midway this is just another stop on the route that has the rides and booths set up over 30 times each season.

But the carnival is more than that to members of Branch 110. To them it is a chance to earn money to further the Legion's public service program in Trenton.

Trail Leads To Trenton

TRENTON — The Quinte Travel Trailer Club will be host to the provincial rally for the members of the Travel Trailer's Club Association of Ontario next summer.

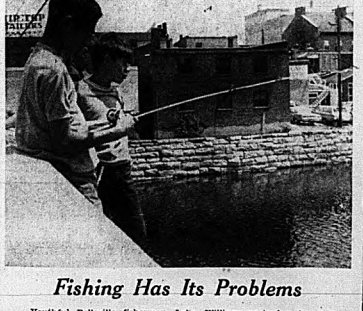
The Quinte club will work jointly with the merchants of Trenton in making the visitors welcome. It is expected that some 1,200 people and 300 trailers will visit Centennial Park at that time.

Edward Todd, third vice-chairman of the Quinte Club, will be the chairman for the event. It will be his job to arrange the program that will entertain the visitors. During the same period the local merchants will hold a sidewalk sale.

The Quinte club draws its members from Trenton, Belleville, and Picton.

Riverside Park Draws Weary

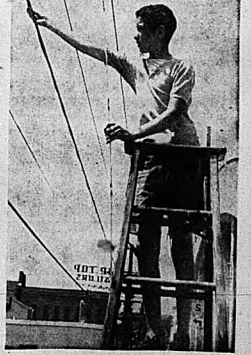
Belleville's Riverside Park along Canniffon Road is becoming a favorite picnic area and rest spot for weary 401 highway motorists.



Monday, shortly after the noon hour, a dozen cars were parked at the riverside parking area with occupants enjoying a picnic lunch or merely enjoying the park facilities.

More than half of the cars were from out of the district.

One of the cars was owned by a vacationing Waterloo family.



Asked how he had come to stop at the Belleville park the father said he had been directed here by a freeway service station attendant.

"Otherwise I would never have known there was a riverside park so close to the highway," he said.

Fishing Has Its Problems

Youthful Belleville fisherman John Williams yesterday found that casting from the Lower Bridge can have its particular difficulties—like getting his line caught in overhead wires. But this didn't phase him. He borrowed a stepladder and after rescuing his line went back to fishing.

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League will not offer contracts to referee Vern Buffey and lineman Pat Shetler for the coming season, Brian O'Neill, director of administration for the league said Monday. Buffey, who started with the league in 1959-60, and Shetler, a lineman for three years, have not indicated to the NHL they will leave the hockey school business. All NHL officials were notified last May that further employment by the league was contingent on their dissociation with hockey school interest. Buffey and Shetler, both from the Toronto area, are partners in a hockey school at Fenelon Falls, Ont., along with NHL players Allan Stanley and Tim Horton. Several other NHL officials were associated with similar ventures, but have since cut their ties. However Buffey and Shetler have not been in touch with the league on the matter. "Since we haven't heard from them, we are not offering them contracts for next season." O'Neill said.

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canadian target rifles cooled of during the weekend at the Commonwealth shoot and Monday's announced results showed no Canadian higher than fourth in a series of Matches. The fourth placement went to Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., 35-year-old teacher and for nine years one of the crack shots of the Canadian Bisley contingent of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association. It came in the Sunday aggregate challenge trophy competition based on scores in three events fired at 200, 500 and 900 yards, won by a member of the Oxford and Cambridge Rifle Association. Ouellette, an Olympic gold medallist in small-bore shooting, shot a 142 out of 150, two points behind the winner.

Combined Record of 101-51

Pitching Is NL's Strength

CINCINNATI (AP) — St. Louis Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst will have plenty of pitchers when he tries for another National League baseball victory in the annual major league all-star game July 22.

Schoendienst selected six righthanders. They, and their records going into Monday night's games, will be: Larry Dierker, Houston Astros 12-6; Bob Gibson, St. Louis, 11-7; Juan Marichal, San Francisco Gianta 11-3; Phil Niekro, Atlanta Braves 14-7; Tom Seaver, New York Mets 14-3, and Bill Singer, Los Angeles Dodgers 12-7.

The three left-handers selected are Steve Carlton, St. Louis 11-5; Grant Jackson, Philadelphia Phillies 9-8, and Jerry Koosman, New York, 7-4.

The nine hurlers have a combined won-and-lost record of 101-51.

Only Niekro, Dierker, Singer and Jackson are newcomers to an all-star squad.

The senior member is Marichal, who was picked for the eighth time. He has pitched 15 innings in seven all-star games, allowed seven hits and one earned-run for a 0.56 ERA. He was the winning pitcher in 1962.

Last year, Marichal led the league in victories with a 26-9 mark and also led in complete games with 30.

Gibson is next in all-star seniority. This was his sixth selection. In three all-star pitching performances, he has allowed only one earned run in six innings.

Seaver has been named to the squad every year since joining the Mets three seasons ago. He pitched the 15th and final inning in the 1967 game when the Nationals won 2-1.

Carlton and Koosman are two-timers on the squad and both appeared briefly in the 1968 game. Carlton pitched one inning and Koosman a third of an inning as the Nationals won at Houston 1-0.

Expos, Cubs Post Shutout Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal Expos drove Bob Veale from the mound during a two-run eighth-inning breakthrough Monday night and trimmed the fading Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 behind right-hander Bill Stoneman.

Veale has failed to finish 19 consecutive starts since April 9 when he went the distance against St. Louis Cardinals in the Pirates' second game of the season.

Meanwhile Jerry May, who caught Veale's first pitch against the Expos, caught nothing but trouble thereafter. He was forced out of the game with a severely-bruised thigh in a third inning gunbup, then shaken up again when the ambulance taking him to a Montreal hospital was involved in a collision.

Tony Bartirome, the club trainer, suffered minor lacerations in the road accident.

In Thursday's other National League action, Chicago Cubs increased their Eastern Division lead over New York to 5½ games by nipping the Mets 1-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers moved one game ahead of Atlanta Braves in the Western Division with a 4-1 victory over Houston Astros. The Braves did not play Monday night.

Veale pitelled Stoneman to a standoff until the Expos struck in the eighth. Bob Bailey's infield hit and singles by Coco Laboy and Jose Herrera produced one run and a walk to Adolfo Phillips finished Veale. Ron Brand then delivered an insurance run with a single off reliever Bob Moose.

Stoneman scattered eight hits for his fifth victory against 15 setbacks.

May, chasing Roberto Clemente's wide throw in the third, slipped on the gravel in front of the Montreal dugout and fell, bruising his left thigh. After surviving the ambulance mishap, he was held overnight in hospital for observation.

Bill Hands, given last-out relief help by Phil Regan, beat Met ace Tom Seaver in a brilliant duel at Chicago. Billy Williams driving in the game's only run with a sixth-inning single.

Wes Parker broke a 1-1 tie at Houston with a fourth-inning homer and doubled in the ninth to launch a two-run wrapup burst. He also drove in the Dodgers' first run with a sacrifice fly.

Don Sutton picked up his 12th victory against nine leaues with help from Jim Brewer, who came out of the bullpen with the bases loaded in the seventh and fanned Jim Wynn and Hector Torres to end the threat.

Teammates Act On Joe's Behalf

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Pro Football commissioner Pete Rozelle has suspended Joe Namath indefinite action the Joe Namath situation with Namath's New York Jets' team-mates, player spokesman Johnny Sample said Monday night following a team meeting.

Sample, the Jets' defensive captain, said the players have asked Rozelle to speak with them at their training camp and that the commissioner has told coach Weeb Ewbank he will come later in the week.

Sample, a veteran defensive back, spoke to reporters following a 20-minute meeting of the Jets' Super Bowl veterans at the club's training base.

Namath announced last month he is quitting football rather than sell his interest in a New York nightspot, as ordered by Rozelle.

Twins Still Rolling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Twins twice came close to having their American League baseball winning streak cut off at five games Monday, but Bob Allison and Cesar Tovar produced key hits in the Twins won 4-3 over Chicago White Sox in 13 innings.

The win for Minnesota widened their Western Division lead to five games over Oakland Athletics, who did not play Monday.

Only two other AL games were scheduled Monday. Washington Senators blanked Detroit Tigers 3-0 and California Angels posted a 2-0 shutout over Kansas City Royals.

The Twins opened up a 1-0 lead in the second inning as Allison clobbered his 20th home run. The White Sox reovered to tie the score in the fourth inning on singles by Gail Hopkins, Pete Ward and Ed Herrg and a double produced again the Chicago total he tagged a run-scoring double in the eighth to send the White Sox in front 2-1.

Allison, who also had two singles, forced extra innings with another homer in the ninth inning.

Chicago grabbed a 3-2 lead in the top half of the 12th inning but Tovar dijiivered a double with two out in the last half of the 12th to keep the Twins alive.

Consecutive 13th inning singles by Tony Oliva, Allison and Leo Cardenas finally won for Minnesota.

Both Joe Coleman of the Senators and George Brunet of the Angels turned their second consecutive shutouts.

Coleman allowed Detroit just five singles, struck out nine batters.

He also drove in two runs with a double and a bases-loaded walk.

Brunet permitted Kansas City just two hits and got all the runs he needed on Jay Johnstone's two-run homer in the sixth inning. Until Johnstone connected, the game was a scoreless pitching duel.

Paduano Impresses With TKO In Gardens

NEW YORK (CP) — Unbeaten Donato Paduano, 21-year-old Italian-born middleweight from Montreal, won his 10th straight fight Monday night by battering Billy Lonergan for six rounds and a top-sided technical knockout.

Paduano was declared the winner when Lonergan was unable to come out for the seventh round after absorbing a two-handed attack by the fast-punching Paduano. Under New York rules, it goes into the record books as a sixth-round TKO.

Paduano, 153, picked up his fifth knockout, Lonergan, 153½, of Rosedale, N.Y., fought back gamely but was the victim of Paduano's left jab in the early rounds and was staggered in the fifth and sixth rounds by good left-right combinations.

It was Paduano's third fight in Madison Square Garden and his most impressive to date.

Lonergan, a rugged club fighter who opened a slight cut over Paduano's right eye in the fourth round, now has a 17-6-1 record.

Arrows True to Mark In Canadian Archery Competition

VICTORIA (CP) — Five records fell Monday as the four-day Canadian archery championships opened with a competition based on metric distances.

The top three finishers bettered the previous mark in the men's freestyle with Rosaire Charbonneau of Lorraine, Que., capturing the event with 1,166 points, two more than the defending all-round champion, Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont.

Cliff Allan of Victoria finished third with 1,139, well ahead of the former record of 1,095.

The same pattern followed in the bare bow event with Pete Thouberger of Regina winning with 1,042 points.

Bus Vidal of Honeymoon Bay, B.C. was second with 986 followed by Lauren Carlson of Estevan, Sask., with 942. The previous mark was 911.

Dorothy Lidstone of North Vancouver and Virginia Parkhurst of West Vancouver both bettered the free style record for women of 1,009.

Mrs. Lidstone won with 1,168, beating Mrs. Parkhurst by 30 points. Francoise Barriere of St. Rose, Que., was third with 1,078.

Dien Kilgfish of Merritt, B.C., set a record in the bare bow section with 908, eclipsing the mark of 821.

Carol Ladoucer of Windsor, Ont., was the second with 808 followed by Sheila Carlson of Estevan with 707.

The other record fell in the junior freestyle competition with Louie Van Meyt of Galt, Ont., winning with 1,057. Wayne Hughes of Victoria was second with 839 followed by Michael Skinner of Calgary with 833.

Junior bare bow honors went to Rod Thouberger of Regina with 893 and Wanda Allan of Victoria at 582.

The meet continues today.

Wednesday Canadian Press was unable to furnish a report on the first round performance of Belleville's Carol Armstrong —the defending Canadian Women's archery champion.

Glue-fingered Rookie Helps Eskies Upset Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Rich O'Hara, a rookie split-end, grabbed two fourth quarter touchdown passes from quarterback Corey Colehour Monday night, propelling Edmonton Eskimos to a 15-13 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Joe Petrone was successful on five field goal attempts and added two singles.

Marge Adkins scored the lone Ottawa major on a 21-yard pass play with quarterback Russ Jackson. Don Sutherin kicked a convert. field goal and a single on a wide field-goal effort while Bill Van Burkleo completed the Rider scoring with two punt singles.

O'Hara, 24-year-old graduate of Northern Arizona University, grabbed the first Colehour touchdown pass on a play that began at the Ottawa seven-yard line at 10:31 of the fourth quarter.

Two plays later, Ottawa fumbled giving Edmonton the ball on the Rough Riders' 27-yard line.

A Colehour pass to Terry Swarn was incomplete but Ottawa was called for illegal interference and Edmonton had the ball just 10 yards out, setting up O'Hara's second TD.

Ottawa, after dominating play through most of the game and holding a 12-2 lead on Sutherin's 13-yard field goal earlier in the quarter, just missed tying the contest with three minutes remaining.

A punt return of 42 yards by speedster Vic Washington was instrumental in moving the Riders to Edmonton's 31-yard line where Sutherin's field goal attempt missed the uprights and went for a single, making the final count 15-13.

Colehour relieved starter Charley Fulton as Edmonton quarterback early in the fourth quarter and finally got the Eskimo machine rolling.

Jackson, who has indicated he plans to retire at the end of the current football season, sat out most of the second and fourth quarters in favor of newcomer Buster O'Brien.

Apollo Club Sets Record in Canadian Meet But Fails to Capture an Individual Title

STAFF — Belleville's Apollo Bar-Bell Club set a record on the weekend in the Canadian Senior Weightlifting championships in Montreal even though none of its lifters finished in the top three in their weight class.

Five members of the Apollo Club — Price Morris, Paul Barrett, Enos Evans and two of the Walt brothers, Gary and Bob — surpassed the qualifying standards in the provincial meet and represented Belleville in the Canadian Senior Weightlifting championships.

It was the first time that more than three lifters from one club had ever qualified to compete in the Canadian Senior championships.

The biggest disappointment from the local aspect was the performance of Price Morris, the defending Canadian heavyweight titleholder, who was rated by Apollo coach Ken Carr-Brairs as the only Belleville lifter with a solid chance of winning his weight class.

Three disqualifications in three attempts at pressing 308 pounds — a total far below his previous best — put the 242 pound strong man out of the running and cost him his Canadian title and a chance to represent Canada in the World Senior Weightlifting Championships in Warsaw, Poland, in September.

Morris' failure was attributed by coach Carr-Brant to his lack of competition since recovering from a severe shoulder injury, and the lingering effects of the injury itself. Carr-Brant said that Morris will now be forced to set his sights on the 1970 British Empire Games in Scotland.

Bob Walt and Enos Evans were the bright spots in the competition as far as the Apollo Club was concerned. Walt exceeded his personal best by 17 pounds when he totalled 727 pounds in his three lifts to place fourth in the 165 pound weight class.

Lightweight competitor Evans hoisted up 643 pounds in three lifts to place fourth in his weight class, but barely missed winning a silver medal. Evans successfully cleaned 281 pounds, but failed on his jerk attempt. If he had been successful second place and the silver medal would have been his.

Paul Barrett finished seventh in the 165 pound class, three places behind teammate Bob Walt, with a 706 pound total which was 30 pounds below his previous best. Meanwhile Gary Walt suffered the same fate as Morris. All three of Gary's press attempts were disqualified and he finished out of the running in the 181 pound class.

Bombers Gain Tie With Strong Comeback

WINNIPEG (CP) — Calgary Stampeders built up a three-touchdown lead but couldn't hold it as Winnipeg Blue Bombers stormed back to gain a 22-22 tie in a hotly-contested Western Football Conference exhibition game Monday night.

Howard Starks, who rejoined the Stampeders this year after a stint with the U.S. Army in Vietnam, scored two touchdowns for Calgary, running an 83-yard pass-and-run on the opening play from scrimmage.

Backup quarterback Bill Redell scored the other Calgary touchdown while Larry Robinson booted three converts and a single.

Bombers got their touchdowns from Dave Raimey, Tommy Grant and Butch Pressley. Pierre Guindon kicked two converts and two singles.

Statistically, the Stampeders held a wide edge in play, collecting 18 first downs to Winnipeg's 12. They rolled up 365 yards net offence to Winnipeg's 241 yards.

Halfback Rudy Linterman led Stampeders along the ground running for 59 yards on seven carries.

But it was Starks who sparked the Calgary offence which was led alternately by starter Gerry Keeling and Redell. Starks had 34 yards rushing on five carries and caught two passes for 84 yards including his long touchdown run.

The perennial standout for Winnipeg, Raimey led the Bombers along the ground with 82 yards on six carries. Ken Nielsen, the all-star flanker, caught four passes for 62 yards to lead the Bomber pass receivers.

Cobra Quick as A Snake

The Cobra which Jim Walker piloted at Quinte Dragway Sunday wasn't of the animal variety, but it showed snake-like quickness.

Walker drove his beast to first place in the featured Top Eliminator Class — a grouping of Super Stock, Street and Competition Eliminator classes.

Hull Brothers To Wield Hickory

The Hull brothers — Bobby and Dennis — of NHL hockey fame will have hickory in their hands in Belleville, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

It'll be softball bats not hockey sticks when the Black Hawks left wingers will wield that night and for a good reason.

Bobby and Dennis will be guest performers when the Belleville Umpires' Association stages a benefit doubleheader at Memorial ball park to aid the Shriners' Crippled Children's Fund and the Knights of Columbus work with the mentally retarded.

The Hull boys, and Chico Maki too it is hoped, will line up with the Belleville Umpires in an exhibition tilt against a team composed of players from the three local softball leagues — the Commercial Softball League, the Departmental League and Thurlow and Sidney League.

One player will be chosen to represent each team in the three leagues, thus there will be seven Commercial League players, six Departmental loop players and seven Thurlow and Sidney League players.

To top it all off the pitching and catching for both teams will be done by a pair of batteries from the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League.

The featured second game of the doubleheader will start at 7.30 p.m. and follow an exhibition contest between the Shriners and the Knights of Columbus. This game will begin at 6.30 p.m.

es — and covered the quarter mile in 12.20 seconds, a speed of 115 miles per hour for the quarter mile distance.

Jim Gray, driving a B-MP-Plymouth powered by a 426 Dodge engine, was runner-up to Walker; while Dave Been edged out Al Zedie for third spot when Zedie's T-9 '52 Chev. said "clunk" and coasted to a halt with a sprained transmission in the Top Eliminator semi-finals.

Walt Dixon piloted an H-SA Cougar was forced to give away a .29 second handicap to Bill Morrison and his '57 Chev. wagon nicknamed "Midnight Oil" in the finals of the Stock Eliminator class.

The handicap wasn't enough to prevent Dixon from getting a stupendous start en route to overcoming the Chev, wagon by one-and-a-half paw lengths and registering a time of 13.47 seconds over the quarter mile and a speed of 106 miles per hour.

Chrysler products captured the other two classes when Gord MacDonald piloted his Plymouth C-PS to victory in the Pure Stock Eliminator and Eva Bisson drove a Dodge P-SA to first place in the Lady Eliminator competition.

Top eliminator class: 1) Jim Walker; 2) Jim Gray, 3) Dave Been; 4) Al Zedie, 5) Gary Vanhouten, 6) Joel Mazer, 7) Dean Woodward, 8) Gary Mabey.

Stock eliminator class: 1) Walt Dixon, 2) Bill Morrison.

Pure stock eliminator class: 1) Gord MacDonald, 2) Andre Valley.

Lady eliminator class: 1) Eva Bisson, 2) Shirley Taylor.

Bike class: 1) R. Thompson.

Ted Waite's One-hitter Boosts Point Anne's Stock

Point Anne Cementmen have acted as spoilers in their last two Commercial Softball League outings and Monday night they had a spoiler extraordinaire in pitcher Ted Waite.

Waite allowed just one hit — a fourth inning double by Jim Sopha in hurling the Cementmen to a 2-0 win over league-leading Stinson's Construction.

Monday night's win prevented Stinson's from gaining a four-point bulge over Ellis Juniors and City Hotel who are tied for second spot. Last Thursday Point Anne nipped the Juniors 3-1 to prevent them from keep pacing with Stinson's who dumped Belvedere Hotel 8-2 to move into sole possession of first place.

Waite threw third strikes past six men and issued only two free passes while facing just 26 batters in the seven inning contest.

Stinson's sent two men to the mound in the game .The pair — starter Bob Davenport and reliever Bob Swan who came on during Point Anne's fifth inning rally — allowed four hits, fanned a pair and issued three walks.

Two of the walks came in the bottom of the fifth inning following Mike Cook's leadoff single and helped the Centmen load the bases.

Cementman left fielder Larry Fraser promptly put the game on ice following the second walk by lashing a two-run, two-out single. Waite then popped out to second to end the inning.

Catcher Eric Maher and centrefielder Jim Horwood collected the other pair of hits for the Cementmen who opened up a six point gap between themselves and fifth place Corby's Distillery. At the same time, Point Anne moved to within four points of the league lead and within two points of second place.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

(many months.

A renowned research institute has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids quickly, relieve local itching and discomfort—minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "real satisfying improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking)took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was reported in case of long standing, and 1 out 10 patients said that the relief was so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of

This substance is accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Ointment or Suppositories. Use only as directed. Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Trudeaumania Dying in North

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Trudeaumania is dying, at least in these parts.

But that's fine with Prime Minister Trudeau.

He connected Trudeaumania only with electioneering. That was a year ago.

He has never confused the business of elections and of government.

Mr. Trudeau's serious—or government side—was much in evidence in northern Manitoba Monday as he opened a week-long Prairie tour.

He attended town meetings at the port of Churchill and in this nickel mining town.

He was given a warm, if not ecstatic greeting, in both towns. If there was no wild cheering, neither was there any trace of hostility.

There was an overflow crowd of 300 in the ancient community hall at Churchill, population about 4,500. In Thompson, a city of 20,000, the crowd was about the same and there were about 100 empty seats in the shiny new school gym.

In all, Mr. Trudeau listened to 10 briefs and, in responding to questions, talked bluntly about why his government cannot do certain things the West wants to do.

For instance, he again rejected a two-price system for Canadian wheat—that is, an export price and a higher domestic price.

Canadians would have to pay more for bread, he said.

There was too much wheat being grown in the world and eventually the Prairies would have to grow less of it.

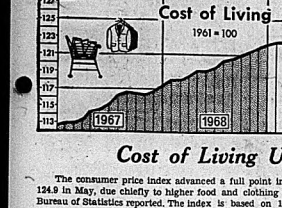
Mr. Trudeau said his government's policy is to give to those who have less and tax those who have more.

Manitoba's unemployment rate was 3.4 per cent of its labor force. But the rate in the Maritimes was at least twice that, he said.

Ottawa did not have enough money to build the Prince Edward Island causeway, to go ahead with the project, it would have had to tax Manitoba and other provinces more heavily.

The prime minister again explained the government's new Indian policy, designed to give Indians the same rights as all other Canadians.

Mr. Trudeau said the Indians will have equal rights but they should not be assimilated.



"I wouldn't want to be melted down to be just another English Canadian," he said to applause.

At another point, Mr. Trudeau mentioned the federal government's flag difficulties June 24, a Saint Jean Baptiste Day and also the day of the funeral of Lord Alexander, former Canadian governor-general.

It was full mast in Quebec and at half-mast in the rest of Canada. So they were all ordered flown full mast.

"Do you want two flag poles?" he asked with a grin.

In Churchill, Mr. Trudeau said he sees nothing wrong in the American oil tanker Manhattan seeking a route through the ice littered Northwest Passage this summer.

Cost of Living Up

The consumer price index advanced a full point in June to 125.9 from 124.9 in May, due chiefly to higher food and clothing costs, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported. The index is based on 1961 prices equalling 100. (CP Newsmap)

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market dropped sharply in mid-morning trading today as it moved into its second consecutive downward session.

A moderate advance last Friday interrupted a four-day slump.

Volume continued at a light pace with 500,000 shares traded by 11 a.m. compared with 725,000 at the same time Monday.

Losses outnumbered advances by more than three to one.

Twenty of the exchange's 21 group indexes were lower.

Real estate and western oil stocks were among the heaviest losers.

In real estate issues, Revenue lost 40 cents to $5, Peel-Elder ½ to 7¼ and Bramalea ¼ to 7¾.

Western oils, Dome Pete dropped 2 to 88, Bow Valley ¾ to 23¼, Pacific Pete ¾ to 22 and Canadian Superior ¾ to 35.

On index, industrials were down 1.30 to 172.62, western oils 3.06 to 237.65, base metals .46 to 104.41 and golds .69 to 228.08.

OSP Industries dropped 1¾ to 21. Alcan ¼ to 28½, Cominco ½ to 22, Consolidated Bathurst ¼ to 21¾ and Inco ¾ to 57.

Monday's drop took place on the second-lightest daily volume this year.

The market opened with a small loss and kept sliding.

Volume was 1,703,000 shares compared with 1,653,000 Friday, the lightest daily volume this year.

The industrial index dropped 1.26 to 173.82.

A moderate advance Friday interrupted a sharp four-day slump.

The light volume in recent weeks indicates many investors are sitting on the sidelines until the market's future is determined.

Fifteen of the exchange's 21 group index were lower led by western oils, which fell 8.71 to 240.71.

In oils, Dome Pete fell 3¼ to 90, Canadian Superior Oil 3½ to 35¾, Home A 2¼ to 62, Bow Valley 1¼ to 24, United Canso 1 to 41 and Pacific Pete 1 to 23¼.

Western oils have been among the hardest hit groups in the June-July slump. They had been inflated to record-high prices on speculation.

Losses outnumbered advances 827 to 160.

CDRH fell 2¼ to 11¾.

The United States internal revenue service says the company owes $1,000,000 in taxes for a three-year period ended in 1964, disallowing a loss of about $4,000,000 arising from an interest in expropriated Bolivian assets.

CDRH also reported annual earnings of $1.30 a share compared with $1.30 in the previous year.

Hudson's Bay Oil lost ¼ to 25¾ and Great Plains ¼ to 30¾.

Hudson's Bay Oil will purchase a 50-per-cent interest in Great Plains' 2,700,000 acres of oil rights in Arctic islands which have been farmed out to Panarctic Oils.

Great West Saddlery slipped ¼ to 9. Great West and Hyatt International Corp. said they have formed a jointly-owned company to build a chain of hotels in Canada.

Inco was down ½ to 57¼. Inco workers in Ontario walked off their jobs last week after their contract expired.

Hugh Russell A gained ½ to 17. The company expects increased earnings in 1969.

Select Leased Property gained ½ to 4. The company's shareholders will vote July 28 on the proposed amalgamation with Raytiate Development Ltd. On index, golds were down .39 to 228.56 and base metals .53 to 104.87.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Hot and humid weather narrowed the demand for slaughter cattle with all classes and grades selling under pressure at prices barely steady to lower at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Veal calf and hogs were steady, lambs lower.

Slaughter cattle 3,190: Choice steers 34-35 with a few to 36.00; good 32.50-33.50; mediums 29-32; commons 26-29; choice heifers 31.50-32.50; good 30-31; mediums 28-30; commons 25-27.50; good cows 25-26; mediums 24-25; canners and cutters 19-23.50; good heavy bologna bulls 26-27; commons and mediums 23-25.50.

Replacement cattle 190: Good stockers and feeders 33-37; good stock steer calves 37-40; good stock heifer calves 33-35; common and medium stockers and feeders 25-32.

Calves 540: Choice vealers 39-43 with sales to 45; good 33-37; mediums 30-33; commons 25-29; boners 20-25.

Hogs 781: Base price 36.40. 36.85 currently in Toronto 36.40; stags and boars liveweight 18.25.

Sheep and lambs 237: Good lambs 35-37; lights to 39.50; sheep 7-17.

PARENTS AT FAULT

REGINA (CP) — The real dropouts in today's society are the parents, not the children, Dr. Morris C. Shumiatcher, a Regina lawyer, told the Regina Council of Women. He said laws wipe out parents' obligations to the child and the close personal relationship between parent and child becomes less and less important and eventually vanishes.

How To Hold FALSE TEETH Firmer Longer

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass you by slipping, loose and dropping whenever you eat, laugh or talk? Don't be a victim of this worry any longer. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. FASTEETH holds dentures firmer longer—holds them more comfortably, too. Makes eating easier. FASTEETH is alkaline. Won't sour. No gummy, gooey taste or feel. Dentures don't fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get FASTEETH at all drug counters.

Business Briefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

REPORTS INCOME UP

Corby Distilleries Ltd. of Montreal and subsidiary companies reported net income Monday of $2,186,000, or $1.67 a share, for the nine-month period ended May 31, compared with $1,853,702, or $1.42 a share, for the corresponding 1968 period. The net income, however, included a non-recurring dividend of $554,823 from an affiliated company which boosted per-share earnings this year by 50 cents to the $1.96 amount.

FARM PRICES RISE

Farm prices of agricultural products rose significantly in May, mainly because of higher prices for livestock and potatoes offsetting lower prices for eggs, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday. The bureau's index, based on 1935 farm prices equalling 100, rose to 309.7 in May from 300.8 in April and 300.9 in May last year.

AUTO SHIPMENTS UP

Canadian automotive plants shipped 136,686 vehicles in May compared with 132,113 in May last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday. Shipments during the first five months of this year totalled 581,729 compared with 473,178 in the same period last year.

GAINS HALF INTEREST

CALGARY (CP) — Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. has acquired a 50-per-cent interest in Arctic holdings of Great Plains Development Co. of Canada Ltd., the companies announced Monday. The holdings, part of the area being explored by the Panarctic Oils Ltd. consortium, cover 3,700,000 acres of permits on Cornwallis, Bathurst, Melville, Ellesmere, Axel Heiburg and Lougheed Islands.

GOODRICH HEAD PROMOTED

KITCHENER (CP) — Earl D. Gunn, president of B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd. since 1966, has been appointed assistant to the president of the B. F. Goodrich Co. of Akron, Ohio, effective Sept. 1. He will be succeeded as president and chief executive officer of B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd. by Peter Mason, 48. Mr. Mason, now vice-president of manufacturing, is the first Canadian to become president of the company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Akron firm.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Our 19-year-old son worries us with his headache attacks. They come on every month or two. He gets terrific pain in one eye (always the right), his head throbs and he feels so bad he becomes nauseated.

Aspirin doesn't seem to help. We apply cold cloths over the eye until the pain becomes more bearable. We've had him to an eye specialist who says his eyes are all right.

Our family doctor says it's possible he is having migraine attacks. He bases this on our family history. My husband has had migraine. So has my mother, and her two sisters.

Is it likely that so young a person can suffer from migraine? If so, isn't there something to do besides trying aspirin which doesn't help? — Mrs. F.

COMMENT: Migraine can occur in the young, and is often overlooked.

I recall one boy your son's age who was labeled a neurotic. His parents thought that when he vomited and complained of head pains he was just being malicious and trying to "create a mess" to get back at them.

Not until the diagnosis was made did they realize the little fellow was not only the victim of migraine, but of their misunderstanding and lack of sympathy.

I'm assuming, Mrs. F., that your son has had a complete diagnostic workup, and that the diagnosis is really migraine. If so, ask your doctor if he feels it is all right to use the drugs adult patients are given for control of migraine attacks.

Aspirin is, as you have seen, of little use in a true migraine upset. Given early enough in an attack, the proper medication often aborts most of the pain and other discomforts.

* * *

For Mrs. Y.: Frequent attacks of "eye-sty" are not due to eyestrain so much as to actual bacterial infection of the glands on the edge of the eyelid.

Usually, they are self-limited and disappear within a week or two. But repeated sties are usually due to rubbing the eyes with dirty fingers.

Of course, it's much easier for adults to keep dirty fingers out of the eyes than it is for youngsters. If a sty is stubborn and won't go away with ordinary treatment, then it may be necessary to have it surgically opened and drained.

For Mr. H.: As a heavy smoker you should know that your lungs are not the only target of cigarette smoke. People often overlook the fact that the mouth is often the source of trouble in smokers.

You say that you have noticed a little lump alongside your tongue. It doesn't go away and bleeds a little. Better check on it right away.

Over 15,000 Americans suffer from cancer of the oral cavity every year. Smoking is not always the cause, but heavy smoker like yourself should be especially alert.

For Mrs. T.: Is is possible to be sacred to death? Actually? My personal opinion is "Yes."

Imagine what would happen if you pushed the accelerator of a Jalopy right down to the floor from a standing start. It might come apart.

Likewise, imagine what sudden, overwhelming fear would do to a weak heart. The sudden outrush of adrenalin, whipping the heart into a frenzy of beating from a "standing start," might very well be too much for it to bear.

If you will examine the medical literature, you will find numerous scientific reports which indicate that some people have actually been scared to death.

Television Cameras Will Provide Continuous Coverage of Apollo 11

NEW YORK (AP) — From countdown to splashdown, television's cameras will accompany the Apollo 11 astronauts to the surface of the moon and back.

During the critical phases of the moon landing the three U.S. networks will be on the air continuously for at least 30 hours.

Two hour-long previews of the flight will be offered tonight. NBC's special is at 7:30-8:30 p.m. and CBS's at 10-11 p.m. All times are eastern daylight.

Coverage of the liftoff, set for 9:32 a.m. Wednesday, begins in the early morning. Regular progress reports will be aired throughout the flight by the television and radio networks.

The Apollo is to send back the first of at least seven live transmissions for 15 minutes at 7:00 p.m. Thursday. All of the transmissions will be in color except for those from the lunar module on the moon.

On Sunday, as the lunar module Eagle prepares to separate from the command module Columbia, the networks will begin approximately 30 hours of continuous coverage. ABC comes on at 12 noon for 30 hours of coverage and CBS and NBC at 11 a.m. for 31 hours.

The extended coverage, which ends at 6 p.m. Monday, will take the television through the descent of the Eagle, the landing, the walk on the moon, liftoff from the lunar surface and docking with the Columbia.

The lunar module is scheduled to touch down on the moon at 4:23 p.m. Sunday, but Astronaut Neil Armstrong will not leave the craft and set foot on the moon until 2:12 a.m. the next morning.

He is to be joined by astronaut Edwin Aldrin for a two hour and 40-minute exploration of the area around the capsule. Astronaut Michael Collins will remain aboard the orbiting Columbia.

When Armstrong steps out of the module, an automatic black and white television camera in the descent stage will be activated to transmit pictures of the first footstep on the moon.

A special Trendex survey commissioned by ABC estimates that nearly 50 per cent of viewers in North America will stay up for the moon walk. In other parts of the world it will be daylight and hundreds of millions of people in Europe, Africa and Asia are expected to witness the event by satellite television.

Canadian Open Reaches Milestone

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Open, the fourth oldest golf championship in the world, will reach another milestone this year when it celebrates its 65th anniversary July 24-27 at nearby Finegrove Country Club.

And how the scene has changed since the championship's inception in 1904.

Once again this year thousands of golf addicts will line the fairways to watch the game's most proficient shotmakers from 12 different countries match strokes over the challenging 7,031-yard Finegrove layout.

Thousands of, other enthusiasts, both locally and from coast to coast, will watch the event on television.

The last time the Open was held at Finegrove the total prize money of that 1964 championship was $50,000. The winner, Kel Nagle of Australia, received $7,500. This year Nagle could make $25,000 for a repeat performance as the total prize money now has reached $125,000.

Where did it all start? To get the answer it is necessary to trace the growth of the game in Canada.

At the first Canadian Open, held in 1904 at Royal Montreal, the oldest golf club in North America, the crowd arrived at the course in horse-drawn buggies to watch J. H. Oke of the Royal Ottawa Club win. There were no complaints about the marshalling. Golf had no mass appeal then.

The sport had begun to make inroads four years earlier when famed British professionals Harry Vardon and J. H. Taylor visited Canada and the United States.

Vardon's assistant, Percy Barrett, was later given overseas to become professional at the Lambton Golf Club in Toronto. This was a significant move because Barrett was runner-up to Oke in the 1904 event.

Barrett again was runner-up the following year, this time to Toronto's George Cumming, dean of Canadian golf.

Charles Murray of Royal Montreal emerged the winner in 1906. Barrett finally earned first place the following year.

David Black of Shaughnessy Heights in Vancouver was another prominent Canadian pro in that period. Amateurs also were carving a vicious swath through the record books at the beginning of this century.

The late George S. Lyon, father of Fred Lyon, governor of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, chalked up a record of eight Canadian amateur titles between 1898 and 1914.

The next impressive amateur to come along was C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., who captured the title six times.

The Canadian Open grew with the rising interest in golf. Big crowds started in 1927 when 3,000 people attended exhibition matches in Toronto and Montreal as Britain's Ryder Cup team met a Canadian professional squad in exhibitions.

This set the pattern, and attendances grew steadily. The Canadian Open evolved as one of the leading tournaments in the world.

Then came the Depression and accelerated competition from the United States, with Canadian golfers leaving to many top U.S. professionals bypassing the Canadian event.

The RCGA, governing body of golf in Canada since 1895 and the group responsible for the Open as well as other national events, then formed an entente with a distillery firm in 1936 for financing and promotion of the championship.

The agreement included an increase of final prize money to $3,000 from $1,500, a special money prize list for Canadian pros, and the Seagram Gold Cup to be awarded annually to the winner.

Since then purses have jumped to $10,000, $15,000 then $25,000, and in the 1960s showing additional increases to $50,000, $100,000 and now $125,000.

Intell Downs Combines; Keeps Pace with Carbide

Fifth place Intell slaved off a seventh inning rally to defeat the second place Combines 7-4 Monday night in a Departmental Softball contest at Prince Charles School.

Ron Culloden went the distance for the winners, walking three and allowing seven hits, Don Conway and Larry Marshall split the pitching duties for the Combines issuing seven walks and giving up seven hits.

The Intell opened the scoring by bringing in three runs in the first two innings. At the bottom of the seventh the score was 7-1 when the Combines began a rally which brought in three runs but not enough to take the victory.

Merv Thompson hammered out three singles for the Intell while teammates Maurice Switzer, Bill Hoard, Floyd Yateman and Randy Johnson added singles.

Larry Marshall was the leading hitter for the Combines with a double and a single.

In another contest played Monday night in the Departmental League Union Carbide downed International Hardware 8-4.

Dave Strike handled the pitching for Union Carbide, giving up three hits and striking out 11 while Val Neal on the mound, Ken Osborne, allowed 13 hits and one walk.

Jack Lucas hit a homer while Lou Smrke and Brian Reynolds each managed a single and a double for the winners.

I.H.R.C. hitters were Ray Ryan with a triple, Dick Harrington with a double and Tom Cain with a single.

Player Shortage Tells Tale in Lacrosse Game

A shortage of players was a major problem as the Belleville team in the Quinte District Lacrosse League had to recruit two from bantam house league to complete the team for last night's game with Cobourg.

As a result Cobourg was held to a 7-4 score until the third period when the roof fell in. Cobourg netted ten goals in the course of the last period to crush Belleville 17-6.

Steve Casselman scored a pair for Belleville while Bill Blakely, Terry Meagher, Tom Helm and Brian Way managed singles.

Cobourg scoring leaders were M. Callocott with six and Paul Allen with five.

Hockey School Costly To Buffey, Shetler

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League will not offer contracts to referee Vern Buffey and linesman Pat Shetler for the coming season, Brian O'Neill, director to administration for the league, said Monday.

Buffey, who started with the league in 1959-60, and Shetler, a linesman for three years, have not indicated to the NHL they will leave the hockey school business.

All NHL officials were notified last May that further employment by the league was contingent on their dissociation with hockey school interests.

Buffey and Shetler, both from the Toronto area, are partners in a hockey school at Fenelon Falls, Ont., along with NHL players Allan Stanley and Tim Horton.

Several other NHL officials were associated with similar ventures, but have since cut their ties. However Buffey and Shetler have not been in touch with the league on the matter.

"Since we haven't heard from them, we are not offering them contracts for next season, O'Neill said.

Commons Debate on Rules Goes Into Its Sixth Day

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons goes into the sixth day of debate today on contentious rules that would give the government power unilaterally to allocate time for House debate.

Neither the opposition nor the government have yet shown they are ready to modify their positions sufficiently to allow the House to resolve the rules dispute and begin the summer recess originally expected to begin June 27.

The opposition parties have said they will sit all summer, if necessary, to prevent adoption of a report from the Commons procedure committee that includes a recommendation that the government's may limit debating time if there is no agreement between other parties on the scheduling of House business.

The committee proposed three new time-allocation rules in a report tabled June 20.

The first, rule 75A, would provide for all-party agreement on time allocation. The second, rule 75B, would provide for allocation of time, three of the four parties in the House agree. The third, rule 75C, would give the government power to limit debate without agreement from any other party.

The opposition has said it will accept 75A and 75B but never will agree to 75C.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield made it clear at a Monday afternoon news conference his party will fight 75C to the end.

He said the government should recognize it has made a mistake and is not going to get 75C passed because "it is not a constructive change in the rules."

In the Commons, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) proposed a three-point plan: Halving MPs' speeches, which generally are limited to 40 minutes, eliminating the reading of written speeches, and permitting speeches to be published in Hansard, the written Commons record, without being read in the House.

Mr. Hees suggested the government adopt his proposals and scrap 75C. This would allow the opposition sufficient time to comment on government legislation without the need for closure. There already is a closure rule on the books but it is considered unwieldy.

Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) agreed with the suggestions by Mr. Hees but called for the government to end the debate by invoking the present closure rule.

Two NDP MPs, Rae Harding (Kootenay West) and Les Benjamin (Regina-Lake Centre) argued that the government had presented no proof that the rule is needed.

"There is not one piece of legislation that has been held up by the opposition," Mr. Harding said.

He said the real issue is the right of every MP to have his say on any piece of legislation and that 75C, if accepted, would effectively gag the opposition.

Mr. Benjamin agreed with Mr. Harding and said there are only two bills on which it could be argued there had been opposition obstruction—the official languages bill and the omnibus bill amending the Criminal Code.

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore) said it is the bull-headed stupidity of the government in arranging its legislative programs that had created the current difficulties in the Commons.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent-Essex) said Prime Minister Trudeau had broken his word by telling the press last December the government did not really want a time-allocation rule in the Commons.

Mr. Trudeau made the statement at a news conference after an attempt to get a time-limit rule had been bitterly opposed by a united opposition. The government had been forced to withdraw its proposed rule 16A.

Robert McKeen (PC—Halifax-East Hants) said the opposition will not let the debate end until rule 75C is withdrawn.

Jack Marshall (PC—Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe) said:

"If the closure motion is not defeated, democracy will be replaced by tyranny," he said.

Exoneration of Professor Called Contempt of Court

MONTREAL (CP)—A lawyer representing some of the accused awaiting trial on charges arising from the Feb. 11 student rampage at Sir George Williams University accused the university Monday of prejudicing the students' right to a fair trial.

Barnard S. Mergler told a news conference the university may be cited for contempt of court as a result of its well-publicized exoneration of Perry Anderson, assistant biology professor accused of racism by six black students.

A five-man committee of university professors last Thursday made public its finding that Prof. Anderson "did not discriminate against students."

Students objecting to the investigating committee because it was "appointed unilaterally by the administration" refused to give evidence before it and began a sit-in Jan. 29 in the university's computer centre.

The sit-in ended in $2,000,000 worth of damage to the computer centre and other parts of the university.

Eighty-seven persons are to face trial in the fall on charges of conspiracy, arson and mischief in connection with the burning and smashing of the centre.

Mr. Mergler, who represents some of those charged, said the contempt matter "is under study by a group of lawyers."

"The publicity given to this decision cannot help but influence the public and eventually the jurors to think that the students' complaints are unjustified and therefore everything that followed was unjustified," he said.

A statement released at the news conference by the arrested students says the Sir George Williams administration has "lost the unmitigated gall not only to proceed to a hearing but to publicize it in an obvious manoeuvre about pending cases."

The accusation that Prof. Anderson consistently down-graded black students' marks and that he advocated black students in a different manner from white students were first made in the spring of 1968.

No Fraud If Victims Americans

TORONTO (CP) — William M. Chapman of Toronto Monday was committed for trial on three charges involving an already-fraudulent home saving scheme, but he will not be tried for defrauding the public.

Chapman had previously been committed on four charges by Provincial Judge J. D. Greco of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., but Mr. Justice Patrick Hartt quashed the defrauding charge after an argument by defence counsel H. L. Morphy.

Mr. Justice Hartt said the evidence shows that the alleged fraud was directed solely at United States citizens.

"The basic theoretical concept is that the criminal law has no extra-territorial effect unless otherwise provided for by the statute," he said.

The charges still standing against Chapman include using the mails with intentions to defraud; using the mails to obtain money by indicating that Jamster Industries Inc. was an honest business needing employees to do sewing at home ;possession of money knowing it had been obtained by an act that, had it occurred in Canada, would have constituted fraud.

Government Admits Studies May Lead to Sale of Water

OTTAWA (CP) — A government minister tacitly admitted Monday night that studies under way could lead to the diversion of water from northwestern Ontario into the Great Lakes and possibly also its export to the United States.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio who has special responsibility for energy resources, was replying in the Commons to a Liberal backbencher who called on the government to "lift the veil of secrecy" surrounding a proposed diversion scheme.

Keith Penner, 36-year-old freshman MP for Thunder Bay, also demanded to know whether the government intends to proceed with "plans and proposals for the exporting of our fresh water to the United States."

Mr. Lang said Mr. Penner had performed a great service in bringing the issue into the open.

Studies under way concerning the water resources of the Hudson and James bays watersheds were "exercises in the analysis of the nature of the resources and what conceivably could be done with them."

Before any question of diversion or export arises, full consultation will take place with the people of the area concerned.

Mr. Penner, speaking in a Commons adjournment debate, said there already a report issued June 25, 1964, on proposed diversion of water out of northwestern Ontario into Lake Superior and the report has been updated six times. The last progress report was dated November, 1964.

Other reports have been circulated in limited quantity to federal and Ontario provincial officials.

The total cost of the proposed diversion program would be $2,100,000,000 Mr. Penner said.

What will a water-export policy mean for Canada's sovereignty? he asked.

"Once our northern rivers are diverted southward, we will become even more securely tied to the American economy."

The effects of a massive diversion program would be "drastic." Mr. Penner said. Thousands of acres would be flooded in the creation of vast water storage basins.

Timber reserves, trap lines, wild life, fish and game would all be affected," he said. "The balance of nature would certainly be upset."

Power Makes U.S. Careful

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Many years ago, when the U.S. first acquired its nuclear capability, I pointed out "the paradox of power" — namely, that the more powerful you have, the more carefully you are forced to act. The simple-minded cannot understand this formula, and thus they become enraged and frustrated when the U.S. refuses to respond massively to foreign provocation.

But this is true not only of the U.S.; it is equally true of all the atomic powers in the world today. They are treading on eggs, and they know it. Our quiet and prudent handling of the "Pueblo" incident is no isolated case in modern international diplomacy, where the gunboat has been replaced by the tactfully-worded protest.

As the Newspaper Enterprise Association mentioned in a story not long ago, Russia finds itself in the same fix, despite its bluster and blustering. Last year, the small and nearly defenseless country of Ghana seized two Russian "fishing ships" that it contended were well inside its territorial waters without permission.

Claiming that the Russian trawlers were off the coast in order to help return a pro-Communist politician to office, Ghana roughed up the crew and jailed them for months while an investigation was held.

The Russians bellowed and sputtered and threatened, as only they can do — but it was all words and no action. This, despite the known fact that Ghana is virtually without an air force, and its naval "strength" rests on a few fast boats, hardly more than tugs to the Merrimac and the Monitor.

Yet, Russia knows, as we do, how big wars are set off by "little" incidents — the shooting of an archduke, the crossing of a boundary line, the most trivial or devious move — and it simply cannot afford to take overt action that might escalate into full-scale atomic warfare. As Teddy Roosevelt would have discovered had he lived long enough, the bigger a stick you carry, the softer you damn well have to speak.

We are the "weaker", than we were before atomic fission, not stronger. We have less sovereignty, not more. We have fewer options open to us, for some of the traditional routes have been closed off to us by to use them, both we and our enemies could be blown sky-high. This is the meaning of all that delicate jockeying in the Middle East: too much power applied, and everybody would lose.

Nuclear weapons have made nationalism obsolete, but we have not yet awakened to that fact of life. We cannot prevent them from spreading to third- and fourth-rate powers, who may feel they have less to lose than we do by unleashing the bombs. By having the most to lose, the mightiest nation becomes, in a real sense, the weakest in the world.

The coming year has confrontation, in which you are tested by stress; you just happen to be minding your own business when events occur. Today's natives are noted for self-reliance, occasionally for political skills.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your earnings have speculative growth today. Your social life takes a new direction without warning. Make the most of it, keep moving, and plan for a vivacious social evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You can get a great deal done towards your goals if you will simply enjoy today. Somebody special has a story that you'll be chuckling for days.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): New projects are not favored today, but almost everything else is. Enjoy seeing things work out as they will.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You now get the feeling that you have gotten about as far as the situation allows. Contain your restlessness while you figure out another direction. Try not to stay where you are.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Spend the day in cooperative efforts and quiet negotiations. Share your evening with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 —Sept. 22): Put forth all your charm today and let it work for you. Something cheering happens this afternoon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): It is a quiet day of no great stress, but worth a constant effort. Pick up all the loose ends, routine chores, accounts to be settled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your finances improve in a big way with steady application. You have an opportunity to do some original investing with long range potentials.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your generous spirit prevails today, and it works in both ways as people in turn offer you a share in their work and fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your partner is likely to be more in the lead today and tonight. Let him have the reins and nobody gets far ahead of you. Make careful plans as you go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today is relatively serene. Keep it that way. The evening is best for lighter but intellectual puzzles.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Normal prosperity is the hardest to describe and the easiest to accept. Do what comes to you; don't conventionally look.

Heart Device Works Harder

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley disclosed Monday that he and an associate have developed a new, harder-working, artificial heart device that should be ready for use within six weeks.

"If you have a real heart and a live body and a live central nervous system," Cooley said, "I can see no moral objection to utilizing the artificial heart."

Cooley thus rejected anew the criticism of his use of an artificial heart in Houston last April 4 on Haskel Karp, a 47-year-old man "at the point of death" from heart disease.

Karp lived for 65 hours with the artificial heart before a donor could be found to supply a human heart. But he died April 8, 38 hours after the human-heart transplant.

Cooley described the operations on Karp at a scientific session of the 118th annual convention of the American Medical Association and discussed his plans for using the new device in an interview that followed.

Cooley said he developed the new artificial heart with Dr. Domingo Liotta, who worked with him on the first device.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Robberies Double

Crime Rate Rose with Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — The robbery rate is sky-rocketing in Montreal this year.

Already bank robberies are being committed at double the 1968 rate—on the average of one every two days.

Police say an upward trend began in Centennial Year, with the influx of criminal elements for Expo 67.

There were 2,042 robberies in 1967 with losses amounting to $1,070,000. This increased to 2,051 in 1968, nearly averaging six a day, with a total loot of $2,383,000.

The police figures include 706 armed robberies in 1967 and 815 last year.

If the sharp rise in bank robberies in the first half of this year is any indication, total robberies in the city could pass the 3,500 mark.

To July 11 there have been 96 bank robberies tabulated by police, netting thieves more than $500,000. This compares with $2 for all of last year—about one every fourth day—and a total haul of about $500,000.

The robbery wave follows a pre-Expo police crackdown that had reduced total robberies to 1,610 in 1965 and 1,467 in 1966.

Police and bank security officials agree the average gang in a bank no longer than 58 seconds—about the time it takes police to arrive on the scene.

With two men inside a bank and a third in a get-away car, a fourth man outside starts a 60 second countdown.

At 58 seconds he gives a signal. Whether the two men inside have scooped up money or not, they leave.

Largest bank robbery so far this year was $101,000 from a branch of the Bank of Montreal. Police estimate that the average bank robbery gets thieves about $5,500.

Most Montreal bank robberies are staged by a lone gunman. Police say such holdups peak around Christmas time, when money is usually scarce, and when jobs are hard to get.

Such lone gunmen are the most dangerous because they are inexperienced and nervous, say two bank security officials, Joe Bedard and Marc Maurice who jointly work for the Bank of Montreal and the Royal Bank.

The lone gunman needs a quick getaway and usually "hits" a downtown bank where he can easily disappear in heavy pedestrian traffic.

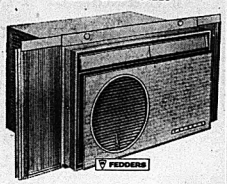
Lieut. Roger LaJoie of the police crime prevention bureau says the suburbs have their own police departments and gangs know they can gain valuable time by operating near the edge of the city's boundaries. Police time is lost in radioing for suburban help.

Sunken Treasure Goes on Auction Block

LONDON (AP) Sunken treasure and cannon, recovered after lying on the bottom of the Atlantic for 2½ centuries, were sold at auction for £12,000 ($31,000) Monday.

Sotheby's said it was the largest haul of sunken treasure ever to be auctioned. There is much more of the treasure to be sold.

Seventh century English, French, Portuguese, and Spanish gold coins—and two French bronze cannon from the reigns of Louis VIII and Louis XIV—were found in the wreckage of the English flagship Association. The Association went down in a storm with four other warships of the British Mediterranean fleet and loss of 2,000 men in 1707 near the Scilly Isles off the tip of the English coast. The ships were returning from a raid on the French fleet at Toulon.



Roland Morris, a Cornish seaman, directed the divers in recovering the prize after several years of searching.

In his hunt for the wreck Morris was guided only by an eighteenth century map which he had found in an old Cornish manor house.

Province Tightens Legal Aid Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers will be required to give more detailed reports of cases and clients will have to meet stricter application provisions under changes in Ontario's legal aid plan.

Published Monday in the Ontario Gazette, the changes are contained in a revised regulation made under the Legal Aid Act and will come into effect after a 30-day waiting period.

"We are tightening up administration and practical implementation of the plan," Deputy Attorney-General A. R. Dick explained.

The plan, which came into effect when the first regulation was published March 29, 1967, provides legal assistance to clients who pay none or all the costs over a period of time, according to need.

Administered by the Law Society of Upper Canada, it is paid for out of public funds.

Under the new regulation, approved by the Ontario cabinet in May, lawyers will be required to give more detailed reports on their legal aid cases and the specific work done.

A spokesman for the law society said no implication of misreporting by lawyers is meant by the changes.

Apollo 11

What History Books Will Tell

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Here are the facts and figures of the Apollo 11 mission:

Astronauts: Civilian Neil A. Armstrong, 38; Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., 39; Air Force Lt.-Col. Michael Collins, 38.

Purpose: After attaining lunar orbit, Armstrong and Aldrin fly a landing craft to man's first landing on the moon on Sunday. They are to walk on moon for 2½ hours Monday; setting up scientific experiments, gathering soil samples and determining ability to work in one-sixth gravity field.

Total length of time on moon: 22 hours, after which they rendezvous with Collins orbiting in command ship.

Flight duration: Eight days, 3 hours, 18 minutes.

Rocket: Three-stage Saturn V which, with Apollo spacecraft, stands 363 feet tall. It is the world's most powerful booster, with first stage thrust of 7,700,000 pounds.

Cost of mission: Saturn V, $185,000,000; Apollo 11 command ship, $35,000,000; lunar module, $41,000,000; launch operations, including recovery forces, $74,000,000. Total $355,000,000. Total cost of Apollo program to date $22,000,000,000.

Crew of Apollo 11: Michael Collins, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., Neil A. Armstrong

Apollo Is on Way To Meet the Moon

World Eager To See Feat

LONDON (AP) — Newspapers and TV stations around the world geared up today for marathon coverage of the Apollo 11 mission, and a British science fiction fan got ready to collect $26,000 on a $26 bet.

David Threlfall of Lancashire will win £10,000 Sunday if astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin land their lunar module on the moon. Five years ago, Threlfall put down £10 with a bookie who was offering 1,000-to-1 odds that man would not reach the moon before 1971.

British television stations scheduled live coverage through splashdown time next Thursday, and the British Broadcasting Corp. arranged to relay its broadcasts by cable to the Continent. The BBC plans to receive the signals via transatlantic satellite at a cost of up to £240 a minute.

Church bells will ring throughout Venezuela and Brazil Monday as Armstrong and Aldrin step down to the moon's surface. Plans were reported under way in Venezuela to declare the day a holiday.

Craft Launched From Earth Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Reaching for a dream, Apollo 11 astronauts hurtled across the vastness of space today on a voyage of the ages, an attempt to land two men on the moon.

Commander Neil A. Armstrong, 38, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins broke away from the embrace of earth's gravity at 12:16 p.m. EDT as a jarring rocket blast shot them out of orbit and sent them winging toward the moon 2½ hours after launch from Cape Kennedy.

he spacecraft had reached 193 miles in altitude at the end of the five-minute, 47-second burn.

The power to boost them outward came from the third stage of the Saturn V rocket which had lifted them with a roar heard round the world.

For 2½ hours, the astronauts had circled the globe checking the spaceship's millions of parts before committing themselves to the 250,000-mile journey to the moon.

They reported Apollo 11 was perfect and the mission control centre in Houston flashed the go-ahead to take the critical step that started them toward the moon, the alluring goal of man's boldest step into space.

The Apollo 11 was off on the lunar trail blazed twice by man in the last seven months—by the Apollo 8 and 10 astronauts who came tantalizingly close as they circled earth's only natural satellite.

"That Saturn gave us a magnificent ride," said Armstrong.

"It certainly looks like you're on your way," mission control replied.

"We have no complaints about any of the three stages on that ride," Armstrong reported.

For other stories on Apollo 11 see Page 27

The Apollo 11 crew planned to coast for three days, firing themselves into orbit 69 miles above the moon early Saturday afternoon to set the stage for the landing attempt.

During their first hours in space, the astronauts were very businesslike as they checked spaceship systems. There was very little conversation from the orbiting craft.

The Cape Kennedy launch was right on schedule.

"Houston, be advised the visual is go today," one of the astronauts said shortly after the spacecraft left the ground.

"They finally gave me a window to look out."

Armstrong's first words on achieving orbit were very businesslike.

"The booster has been confirmed for orbital flight. Both spacecraft are looking good," he said. He referred to the stiff attached third stage of the Saturn V which was to ignite later

Smallwood Wants to Stay

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood, leader of the Newfoundland government and the Liberal party since the province entered Confederation in 1949, announced Tuesday he will be a candidate at the convention called to select his successor.

Premier Smallwood, told a news conference "my work as leader and premier is not yet done." He said he would resign the day the convention opens and then re-offer for the leadership. The convention is scheduled for November. Exact dates have not been released.

Apollo Astronauts Slipped Into Cockpit Just After Dawn

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The three Apollo 11 astronauts slipped into the cockpit of their spaceship just after dawn today, ready to rocket away from their home planet on mankind's greatest exploration—an attempt to land two men on the moon.

The countdown ticked smoothly toward the appointed 8:32 a.m. EDT liftoff time. Mission commander Neil Armstrong, 38, Edwin Aldrin, 39, and Michael Collins, 38, secured themselves on couches in a cabin atop a mighty Saturn V at 7:07 a.m.

As the astronauts boarded the spaceship, technicians were tightening leaky valves at the 200-foot level of the rocket service tower. The valve is associated with a system that feeds liquid hydrogen into the Saturn V third stage.

Forty minutes later, control centre reported the problem had been corrected and the hydrogen once again was flowing into the stage. It did not interrupt the countdown.

The weather was ideal. The launch time forecast was scattered clouds at 15,000 feet, a slight northeast breeze and temperatures in the high 80s.

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins were up early for the historic launching, rising at 4:15 a.m. for a medical examination and a traditional launch-day breakfast of tenderloin steak, scrambled eggs, toast, coffee and orange juice. They were reported rested and in good spirits.

Technicians helped them into white space suits with bubble helmets and the American flag emblazoned on the sleeves. As they left their crew quarters, they smiled and waved at a group of several hundred space centre workers who cheered and shouted: "Good luck!"

They were transported by a special air conditioned van to the launch pad five miles away and rode an elevator up 220 feet to the space craft level.

Throughout the night, the launch crew was busy pumping more than 325,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen into the fuel tanks of the Saturn V.

A crowd of hundreds of thousands, the largest ever to watch a launching from this spaceport, was on hand to view the start of the great adventure.

President Nixon phoned the spacemen from the White House on the eve of their launching and told them: "You carry with you a feeling of goodwill in this greatest adventure man has ever undertaken . . . I want you to know that my hopes and my prayers—and those of all Americans—go with you."

Armstrong told the president he and his colleagues were "looking forward to the liftoff."

Cape Kennedy Host to Record Crowd

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Cape Kennedy was host today to its biggest crowd ever for the moon rocket launching.

There were arguments over whether 1,000,000 tourists were here or on the way, as the Chamber of Commerce predicted. Most estimates put the crowd at 500,000 to 750,000.

A steady parade streamed through restaurants, bars and cocktail parties Monday night, lunch blended into dinner, dinner into supper, and supper into breakfast.

A travel agency was taking reservations for future vacations to the moon in a hotel lobby.

The busiest place in town was probably the space agency's press centre, where 3,000 correspondents were accredited and it took a press badge to get inside.

Motel lobbies resembled airline terminals at holiday time.

Highway A1A traffic along the 25 miles of beachfront south of the space centre was bumper to bumper, punctuated with the sound of screeching brakes.

Quinte Exhibition Organizers Shoot for 40,000 Attendance

By ELMER BONTER

In recent years the Quinte area has grown into an important residential, commercial and industrial complex between two metropolitan giants.

The one outstanding example of the community's advancement to the new dimension is the birth of the Quinte Exhibition 1969 until this year known as the Belleville Fair.

There are more than 80 years of progress behind the big annual Class "A" show case for the district's prize produce and ambitious competitors.

Quinte Exhibition 1969 starts Tuesday, Aug. 12 and runs through five days to Saturday, Aug. 16.

Attendance to the exhibition continues to increase with each new presentation.

The objective for the five days this year is 40,000.

And for exhibition officials there is encouragement that figure will be reached. They changed the exhibition format while retaining all repeat events for this year.

The Quinte Exhibition's main selling points this year are — "It's Different," "It's Exciting."

The slogan "Something for Everyone" is again being used as an invitation for the whole family to attend.

The midway which attracts both the adults and children with the same interests is bigger and longer than ever before. It is the largest Conklin will have appearing anywhere with the exception of the Canadian National Exhibition. It has been named the "Gayway" and when in place will extend from the curling club straight through to the Bleecker auditorium. The sponsor claims to be bringing several rides never to Belleville before.

And Radio Station CJBQ is also expanding its effort at the exhibition this year.

The broadcast centre on the grounds this year will be adjacent to Bleecker auditorium. Seating is being provided for the public to watch a variety of programs including live broadcasts, interviews and general entertainment.

Animals are to be shown at night mostly instead of the daytime like in other years. Cattle shows — with the exception of the Ayrshire show set for the last day — Saturday — will be nighttime features in the coliseum.

The horse-drawing contest has been changed to night as well. It will be a grandstand feature this year in number two ring in the infield opening day — Tuesday.

Ring number two in front of the grandstand will be the setting for the light horse show at night on Thursday.

Exhibition officials aim for the cleanest and most sanitary exhibition. An adequate number of toilets and washrooms will be available and maintained by a permanent staff for the first time.

Exhibition officials have also adopted new regulations for the purpose of improving communications with the "fairgoing" public.

For example all senior citizens in the Quinte area will be allowed free admission to the grounds providing they apply for the special privilege through one of the recognized organizations working on their behalf. The handicapped and underprivileged are eligible under the same arrangement. It is the first year the courtesy has been extended on such a wide scope.

Pedestrian movement in and out of the grounds should be freer this year. Located at the main gate only will be the facilities to allow admissions and exits several times on the one ticket purchased at opening time in the morning each day.

Sidney, West Bridge and Catherine street entrances have been officially designated vehicle gates. Drivers, commercial and otherwise, need a special permit costing $10, valid throughout the exhibition.

Exhibition officials have been advised by the local police "no parking" will be strictly enforced on streets adjacent to the grounds at Exhibition time.

Patrols of the midway this year are the responsibility of the local police force.

Police chief D. R. Crosbie has pointed out to exhibition officials each concession should have an identifying name or designation. Also, prices on rides and concessions are to be prominently displayed and adhered to.

Security inside the exhibition park has been assigned to General - Investigations with headquarters at Ottawa.

A major activity — actually a fair within an exhibition — is a project sponsored by Quinte 4-H Clubs and Junior Farmers. It highlights the exhibition program on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Refreshments again providing the public address system for the entire exhibition.

Purpose of the meeting is to give the elected and appointed county officials the opportunity to discuss their problems on a personal basis with Ontario's premier.

Wanted: Wood!

Thieves last night looted a Belleville farm implement company of 23 chain saws valued about $3,000.

Scene of the break-in was the Coleman Street premises of Pringle and Cooper, where thieves smashed a rear window to gain entry.

Busier Than Ever

Entries for the Quinte Exhibition 1969 have been rolling in lately with the result the largest and most representative commercial-industrial show so far is expected. Ex-manager Ev Gowsell, modelling a new white 'Katie' hat that will identify directors and staff this year, doesn't seem to discourage busy entry clerk Jean Jones with another pile of work.

Robarts Confirmed For July 25 Talk

Local members of the provincial legislature today confirmed that Ontario Premier John Robarts will attend the July 22 meeting of area municipal councillors and provincial cabinet ministers.

Besides Mr. Robarts, Darcy McKeough, minister of municipal affairs, Charles MacNaughton of the treasury department and J. R. Simonett, minister of public works, will attend the meeting at Centennial Secondary School.

Invitations have gone out to officials in Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac counties.

Utilities Discount Waived; Higher Bills as of Aug. 1

As was announced nearly two months ago by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, city electric and water rates will be increased commencing with bills issued after Aug. 1.

Electric rates will be increased by 7.5 per cent with a minimum bill of $2.35 set for all categories.

In conjunction with the rate increase a new "general service" category is being established. This category is a combination of the previous Industrial and commercial categories and will result in many of the larger commercial users receiving so called "power" rates.

However, a category for small commercial users will remain, the balance of consumers being classed as residential or general service.

The increased water rates will result in higher minimum bills.

Also with bills issued after August 1 customers will no longer be able to take advantage of the present 10 per cent discount.

With the new bills the 10 per cent discount will be discontinued and a five per cent charge for late payment will be introduced.

Utilities Manager E. L. Burnham said the increased water rates were necessary because of the heavy costs involved in connection with the proposed new water treatment plant and also as result of the installation of new pressure mains.

The August 1 increase in electrical rates will be the first increase in hydro charges for Belleville consumers since 1965.

The increase in power costs alone will amount to approximately $100,000 this year, Mr. Burnham said.

Dave Roper, member of the Quinte Road Angels, takes a check on one of the high-powered buggies he plans to put on display Saturday when the club will exhibit close to 15 dragsters as part of its participation in the Belleville sidewalk sale.

'Hot Car' Display to Help Promote Sidewalk Campaign

Quinte Road Angels' No, they aren't the local dust raising car contingent of Hell's Angels!

Evidence of their healthy public spirit is the red and custom car club's participation in the city's sidewalk sale.

Club members will display close to 15 dragsters' Saturday at 10:00 on the Recreation Centre parking lot, Pinnacle St.

Started in 1956, the club with a limited membership of 20, stresses high performance in vehicles the members drive, as well as safety in the mechanical and driving condition of the cars.

"Each of the members owns and operates his own car," explained Paul Clare, secretary of the organization. "We are all strong drag racing enthusiasts on a sanctioned strip."

According to the rather strict rules the club upholds, any member who seems to be detracting from the image of the association can be asked to resign. Local side streets are not looked upon as "sanctioned" strips — Road Angels who use them as such should be ready to hand in their resignations.

Visitors to the sidewalk sale will have the opportunity to view the car display and have any of their questions answered concerning the mechanical operations of the high-powered vehicles.

Excessive Speed Cited in Death

CORNWALL — Excessive speed was a contributing factor in the death of a Belleville truck driver in a four-fatality traffic pileup here Jan. 20.

Floyd Deline, 51, was killed when his tractor-trailer crashed into the rear of a parked vehicle on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, a coroner's inquest was told here last night.

Among the other victims was Gerald Graham, 25, of Prescott, Ont.

The inquest jury ruled that a city-operated dump, near the accident scene, which burns industrial and domestic waste, should be closed.

The accident occurred in heavy smoke and fog and several witnesses testified they smelled smoke during the mishap.

The jury also blamed excessive speed in Deline's death. Constable Lloyd Fitzsimmons, of Long Sault provincial police detachment, testified the Deline truck left skid marks 282 feet long. This meant, said the officer, he was travelling at 55 miles an hour.

Anglican Work Group Three Weeks on Reserve

By JUDY SCHRIEDER
Staff Reporter

"M.R.I." is another example of the church taking its message to the people.

For a work group of seven young members of the Anglican Church" community, it means a three-week sojourn at the Tyendinaga Reserve.

Under the direction of Rev. J. M. G. Soutter, the Canadian and West Indian youths are part of the first two-way exchange that has evolved from the 1963 Anglican Church conference.

"Mutual responsibility and Interdependence on the body of Christ," (hence "M.R.I.") was the central theme of the meeting that saw representatives assembled from all the Anglican communities. Concluding that every country has something to offer in the way of the Christian community, "work groups" were organized to bring together young members of the Anglican community to work together to help others.

"We do whatever is required to be done," said group member Steve Nixon of New Brunswick. In Tyendinaga, this means taking a religious census.

The first tour took Canadians to Africa, but due to the extreme change in geographical and social conditions on that continent, it was decided to centre further efforts in the West Indies.

This year, 22 Anglican church members from the West Indies are engaged in seven projects throughout Canada.

Before going out on their work tours, the group assembled at Aurora for a three-day orientation program.

According to Mr. Soutter, each member of the group is to "integrate" himself into the society and "try in discover the values of that society."

Since the tours started in 1963, churches, schools, chapels and youth centres have been built in the West Indies by the members of the Anglican Church group.

They are expected to go back and involve the people in their experiences," explained Rev. Soutter.

For the West Indian youths, Ontario is their first contact with Canadian soil.

"The people here are very friendly," commented Judith Daniel, Jamaica.

Some people just don't think in terms of miles when they're after enjoyment. Mrs. Arthur Giles and children, David, 5, and Kathryn, 11, travelled a distance of over 180 miles from the Ottawa Valley to soak up the summer sun at Outlet Provincial Park.

Picton Area Man Killed

WHITBY (Special) — Clement Proctor, president of a Belleville electrical firm was electrocuted on an industrial installation here yesterday.

Mr. Proctor, 59, of RR3 Picton, was head of Proctor Associates, Cannifton Road.

He was installing power-meeering equipment at a new ready-mix concrete plant here when the fatal accident occurred.

The former Ontario Hydro employee was active in Picton area community organizations. He was a Rotarian and also a member of the Prince Edward Curling Club.

Mr. Proctor is survived by his wife, the former Jacque line Jolly, two sons — Peter of Picton, Richard, Toronto — and a daughter, Betty of Picton.

He also leaves a sister, Mrs E. (Olive) Gill, of Newmarket, and a brother, Charles, Willowdale.

Mr. Proctor is resting at the G. M. Hicks Funeral Home, Picton. Funeral service will take place Friday at Picton United Church.

Job Well Done

Al Wardhaugh, 51-year veteran of CN's yard department office, receives retirement kiss from railway secretarial worker Mary Garvin.

'Changes for Best;' He Should Know!

There have been a lot of railroading changes in the past half century, but as far as Al Wardhaugh, IBM clerk with the CN Rideau Area in Belleville is concerned, they have all been improvements.

"There have been a lot of changes," said Mr. Wardhaugh yesterday on the occasion of his retirement after 51 years, "but they have all been for the best."

Mr. Wardhaugh joined the railway at Belleville back in 1918 as a car checker.

He was only 14 years old at the time and was still attending classes at Pine Street Public School.

"I had to get permission in try my entrance examinations early so I could go to work on the railway," he recalls.

But his initial service as a carman was short-lived. When former railway workers returned from overseas service at the end of World War I they got their old jobs back and Mr. Wardhaugh saw himself a demotion to the role of call boy.

Since then he has served in many capacities but mostly in the yard office department.

Yesterday on his last day of service he was presented with a life railway pass signed by CN president N. J. MacMillan and with a purse of money from his fellow workers.

A life-long sports enthusiast, he played junior hockey and later directed senior hockey teams as well as the one time CN Diesels. He is an ardent fisherman and is a regular spectator at the weekly harness races at the Belleville fairgrounds.

At the same time he is one of the city's greatest boosters.

"I have always lived in Belleville and will stay here, Belleville is the best and is getting better," he asserts.

Too Much Hugging?

MADOC — Donald William Lavender, 34, Oshawa, and Vincent Joseph Atanasis, 28, Oshawa, were both charged by Madoc OPP with "failing to share the road" following a Tuesday afternoon collision.

Driving in opposite directions on the old Hastings Rd., five miles north of Millbridge, Lavender and Atanasis were both hugging the centre line and collided head-on, police said.

Damage to each car is estimated at $500.

Sentence Suspended

TRENTON — Making restitution for money he embezzled from an employer got a former Trenton man off with a suspended sentence in police court Tuesday.

James Spafford, now of Toronto, was given a two - year suspended sentence by Judge R. C. Jackson after the court was told the defendant had made 'almost complete restitution" for the nearly $17,000 he pleaded guilty to embezzling from Tripp's Wholesale Ltd. in the four years of his employ there.

Clowning Serious Business

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Clowning is not can be a serious business.

Particularly when you're as dedicated to perfection as Don Foster.

The ingenious Bellevillian has been in the clowning business for years, making merry mayhem along the road at every Quinte district parade.

Thursday night in Belleville will be no exception.

Don Foster and his merry-making men will debouch in full force into Front Street as downtown merchants launch their big sidewalk sale with a marchpast.

But parade antics are only the visible result of the hard-working Foster process.

Years ago Don turned his gift for craftsmanship to creating the eccentric clown equipment for special occasions.

Crazy bicycles, automobiles and mobile devices that defy easy description started churning out from the workshop behind his Emily Street home.

Despite the demand, Don is forever evolving some new intricate prop for his productions. Thursday night's parade is no different.

Right now he's putting finishing touches to mobile, smoke-blowing buggy handmade from a multitude of separate parts. The latest Foster creation goes into gear at 7 p.m — parade time.

The parade marches down Front Street from the federal building to Market Square.

Cyclist Escapes Injury

PICTON — Gilles Miramontes, 10, of Bockus Street, Picton, escaped injury Tuesday afternoon when he was knocked from his bicycle by a car driven by Mrs. Shirley Blower, RR 1, Picton.

The child was riding on the sidewalk in front of the County Buildings on Main Street when Mrs. Blower, an employee in the county offices, drove her car into the parking lot there colliding with the bicycle.

Seen Them All, Likes Outlet Best

By Margaret Haylock
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "I have travelled from Manitoba to New Brunswick without finding a beach to equal this one," said Mrs. Arthur Giles as she lazed in the sands at Outlet Provincial Park yesterday.

Mrs. Giles, vacationing in Prince Edward County with her children, finds the beach an ideal place "to swim, relax, and make friends."

A resident of Pembroke, in Renfrew County, some 180 miles distant, Mrs. Giles visits the county almost every summer. While in Prince Edward she and her family usually stay in Picton. "The town is so close to so many points of interest," she commented. The Giles family recently enjoyed a day at the North Marysburgh Museum where life is depicted as it was in Canada in the latter part of the 19th century. An antique lover, Mrs. Giles has been scouting the local shops during her vacation here.

She is looking forward to taking her children, Kathryn, 11, and David 5, to the Quinte Island Theatre at Lakeshore Lodge.

In the county for more than a week, Mrs. Giles expects to return to Pembroke later this month.

Asked what she missed most while vacationing here Mrs. Giles was prompt to reply, "I really miss the large business section that we have at home." With equal promptness the lady added, "Of course at home the personalized service that I have been getting here is missing."

The Giles' youngsters both find scenic Prince Edward attractive for the same reason. "We don't have pony rides at home," said young Kathryn as she tugged her mother's hand to remind her that it was time for another ride.

A popular attraction near Outlet Park is a riding stable where ponies stand patiently tethered awaiting riders.

Relative Values

Two Globe and Mail features on successive days last week tell a lot about the relative values of the Just Society — that time-worn cliche coined by Prime Minister Trudeau which so many Canadians realize is just that, a cliche, and remote from the realities of their own lives.

In one, the Toronto newspaper told of the "new breed of poor" in the following introductory words: The majority of poor may still be silently long-suffering, but a new breed is emerging. Articulate and activist, their frustrations give them the motivation and drive to fight a system they feel smothers and degrades them and their children. Three such women have recently been elected to the boards of welfare organizations."

The three are Suzanne Polgar who pays $100 a month for four small rooms for herself and her three children; Doris Power, once the best-dressed girl in her school class and now mother of three living on $220 a month welfare in Toronto's Cabbagetown, in a four-room house to which she does not like to invite people, and Grace Sherman who is trying to raise two sons on an income of $2,400 a year from provincial welfare — "and that," says Globe reporter Lou Lee, "means things like buying your shoes second hand for 25 cents, and making a winter coat last 12 years..."

These families are poor then, but they have pride and they manage and they are trying to do something for others in the same position, now that they belong to the Metro Toronto Social Planning Council (Mrs. Polgar), the Ontario Welfare Council (Mrs. Power), and the Canadian Welfare Council (Mrs. Sherman) respectively.

The other item which contrasts strongly with this and is indicative of the relative values mentioned earlier is pressure for a pay raise for MPPs. Latest to add its voice to this lobby is the Conservative Party organ Consensus.

The newspaper says in an editorial-page article that a review of salaries revealed that Legislature members are paid less than plumbers, electricians, carpenters and assembly line workers.

At present MPPs are paid $8,000 a year in salary. Members from outside Metro Toronto receive an additional $4,000 annually in a tax-free expense allowance and Metro members receive $3,000.

Taking into consideration this latter allowance the MPPs are likely better off than the various categories with which they have been compared, but at any rate there is this suggestion they should have more. According to a Conservative spokesman, though, the article reflects the opinion of the newspaper, but was not an expression of party policy.

Be that as it may, there are sharp variations in the earnings of Canadians. The three mothers and their children would likely be happy to have $8,000 a year. They do not, so must restrict themselves severely.

The CBC Sunday night portrayed graphically the plight of pensioners and others in straitened circumstances. It is a situation disgraceful to a country as rich as Canada. Canadians should be aware of some that the government should try to alleviate in whatever way possible.

Marital Pitfalls

Dr. Clifford Rose Adams, an American psychologist, says that since sex is No. 2 in a man's priorities for selecting a mate (after companionship), and only No. 6 in women's, the odds on any marriage being a success "are shorter than those of hitting the jackpot on a pinball machine in Las Vegas."

In a report based on 30 years of research, Dr. Adams, professor emeritus of Penn State University, estimates 75 per cent of marriages are a failure and only 25 per cent are really happy.

This is disquieting intelligence to be sure, this latest piece of professional research on the battle of the sexes. The majority of course will continue to ignore it, get married and take their chances.

Marriage is still the "done thing." It remains the only socially-acceptable way of perpetuating the race and of preserving the dignity of family life. And so we expect it will remain, unless we are to descend, as some do already, to a sub-culture level having no respect for either family pride or the dignity of the individual.

500-Acre Cultivated Area Is Target

B. C. Indians Make A Go of Farm Co-operative

By PETER KIERNAN

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — Indians of the Cowichan Lake band are doing something about their "hard-core unemployables" to the tune of $30,000 gross revenue last year and an anticipated revenue of $100,000 next year.

"This thing is exploding," is the way Hamish Mutter, an advisor to the band, described British Columbia's first Indian farm co-op association, located near this Vancouver Island municipality.

"The community is happy, the farmers are happy, the Indians are happy and the department (of Indian Affairs) couldn't be more pleased," said the 60-year-old adviser, who has managed co-operatives in the province for many years.

The co-op, entirely the band's idea, began last year with the department's financial backing and loans from two local banks.

Now, the banks are paid off, the association has a long-term contract to supply berries to a Victoria winery and area farmers can buy their hay locally instead of importing it from Washington state.

In all, the association has leased 250 acres, the property of the 12 band members working full-time in the co-op. The land is on the reserve.

Mr. Mutter described the land as "worked over and left in an awful mess by white men." But, he said the soil is rapidly being built up again.

"Our ultimate goal is to bring 500 acres, and maybe more, under cultivation and employ as many members of the band as possible."

Until the 1,500-member band's young leadership—Chief Dennis Alphonse is 36—came up with the co-op idea, its members subsisted largely on welfare and seasonal laboring jobs.

"To me, the idea that they came up with the idea themselves means more than anything," said Mr. Mutter.

The success story is not without out its continuing perils, as Chief Alphonse pointed out. There is, for example, the threat of flooding of the unstable Cowichan River.

The chief said the government will be pressed to carry out flood control work.

Fields which were in production last year are under water this year due to log jams.

But regardless of temporary setbacks, "our group will continue to be self supporting," said the chief.

"We are exploring the possibility of market gardening, which would give us greater scope. But we will always have certain hay and forage crops to satisfy the local farmers."

The association is also exploring the possibility of a handicraft co-operative.

"The whole idea was to put band members to work, and it couldn't be succeeding better," said Mr. Hamish.

— BUT I HAVE PROMISES TO KEEP, AND MILES TO GO BEFORE I SLEEP — ROBERT FROST

Letter to the Editor

The Election in Manitoba

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I was wondering what political school you went to when you class the Social Credit Parties in the West as being to the Left as you did in your recent editorial. They may be left of the John Birch Society in the USA but I can assure you that they are just as capitalistic as our good old eastern Tories. If they weren't why would Premier Bennett of British Columbia have recently stated the next BC provincial election will be a fight between socialism and capitalism?

Also in the same editorial you point out that the NDP in Manitoba gained 12 seats more than they had, they only had 12 to start with and when you subtract that from 28 — I don't get 12.

Lastly, you once again take on the CBC for giving the NDP coverage and especially the election win in Manitoba, I would think that since it was only the second time in Canadian or North American history that a socialist government has been elected it should get big coverage.

Funny you should remark the big brew and butter issue. I count only out there, I can assure you that the people here are concerned with the bread and butter issues also.

IAN E. REILLY

EDITOR'S NOTE: For party standings in the Manitoba legislature before the election were — Conservatives 28, Liberals 12, NDP 11, Social Credit 1. In the election the New Democratic Party won 28 seats, Conservatives 22 and Liberals 5. Liberal Member Larry Desjardins switched his allegiance to the NDP to give the party a majority with 29 seats in the House.

Encouraging Speed

Cutting Corners on Highway Projects

Picton Gazette

Another road is being raped in the name of "Progress" and as a sacrifice to "speed". Highway 33 from Picton — Bloomfield is long overdue for re-surfacing but the office buildings full of Department of Highways engineers have to be kept busy and so we see our money spent on cutting corners and lowering hills.

The silly part of this whole business is that after the highways are built to 80 m.p.h. standards our money will be spent in paying police officers to patrol it and keep the drivers from driving at that speed.

Look over the list of "accidents" in the county for the last three years. How many were on the rebuilt wide open roads? How many were one-car accidents? How many involved excessive speed?

If we really want to reduce the speed of the drivers on our roads why don't we build the roads to suit? Great wide shoulders reduce the feeling of speed and drivers tend to speed up on them.

On the other hand, roads can be designed that are safe and also incorporate psychological factors, such as roadside plantings of trees or bushes, curves and hills that introduce to the driver the feeling of speed. These can be designed to suit whatever speed is required. On 401, wide open roadsides and 80 m.p.h. speed. On the secondary highways plantings that beautify the roadsides and at the same time let the driver know he is going 60 m.p.h. As the road approaches towns and villages, more plantings to slow the driver down to 40 m.p.h.

Why bother the "straight line charlies" with such things as this? Because it is our money that is being wasted to blast through rock hills and tear down farms.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first atomic bomb was exploded 24 years ago today—in 1945—above the desert near the Almagordo Air Base in New Mexico. The event remained a closely-guarded $2,000,000 secret until after the announcement that the first of the atomic bombs had been dropped on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. On Aug. 6, 1945, Hiroshima suffered 60,000 dead and 60,000 injured from a bomb equal in power to 20,000 tons of TNT. Three days later Nagasaki was hit and 39,000 persons were killed.

Did Loneliness Kill Bonny?

Montreal Gazette

The team of 15 doctors who attended "Bonny," the space monkey, after he was returned to earth are completely mystified by his unexpected death, 12 hours after his space capsule was rescued from the Pacific.

Bonny was to remain aloft for 30 days, more than twice as long as any manned flight so far, to give scientists some knowledge of the effects of prolonged weightlessness on a being similar to man.

Instead, after eight days, Bonny, monkey gone reasonably sluggish, seemed "bored," gave up doing chores for which he knew he would receive extra food pellets, and did not drink his water.

On arrival, Bonny was judged in "fair condition."

Doctors are fairly certain that weightlessness over a period may result in deterioration of bone, muscle and blood, and designers have produced several methods of building artificial gravity systems into long distance spacecraft for the future. But no serious effects were expected in so short a time.

The word "boredom," which Bonny's doctors have used several times, may have a deeper meaning. The German missions had two-man crews, the Apollo missions have three. And all the manned space flights, even the lonely one-man Mercury ones, were in constant touch with their control bases.

Bonny was no such companionship, nothing to tell him when it was day and when night. If this strange closed world with no gravity. He may have been more than bored; he may have quietly lost his mind.

NWT 'Cocktail Circuit'

Don Taylor, editor of the Hay River, NWT newspaper Paper

A new twist was added to the northern "Cocktail Circuit" with the visit to Hay River of the Commissioner and members of the Northwest Territories Council.

Very simply, the idea is this: If you want to talk to those who govern us or talk to them, then you have to pay admission.

The admission ticket does not entitle you to the cocktails, however, as this is still a privilege carefully restricted to the politically favored.)

The members of the Territorial Council spend a good deal of their time (and our money) trying to convince the Ottawa bureaucrats about visiting communities in the north.

In those settlements where they have an opportunity to meet with the public they are in danger of encountering some of the problems which the public faces.

But, how much more pleasant it must be for them to come to a place like Hay River where they are wined, dined and entertained without having to come into contact with any of the major problems, and without having to rub elbows with any of the unfortunate people who have those problems from day to day.

Seaway Tolls Review

Windsor Star

John Volpe, U.S. Secretary of Transportation, used a particularly evasive form of nonsense in his remarks about tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Speaking at the close of ceremonies marking the 10th anniversary of seaway, Mr. Volpe said in effect that he would like to see tolls eliminated if it was financially possible but that unfortunately it wasn't financially possible. In simpler terms, he was giving that classic political-class's reply to a direct question: yes and no.

What he should have said, and what justice demands should be decided, is that the taxpayers of both Canada and the U.S. should not be forced to pay the costs of the seaway.

Tolls are a charge against the ships which use the seaway, and so against the shippers and the areas which benefit from the seaway. Sometime can be no fairer means of maintaining the seaway than for the users to pay.

The present toll structure has been criticized as too high at the same time as demands have been made for an increase. Despite the tolls, however, shipping lines have found the seaway profitable and there are no signs of tolls discouraging their use of the seaway.

Soccer Sparks Passions Among Fans

Winnipeg Free Press

There is room for interesting speculation by students of human behavior, in the question of why soccer, of all competitive games, seems to bring out the worst in spectators.

Hockey has its free - for - fills. Baseball has its rhubarbs. Even cricket matches are not exempt from occasional displays of temper on the part of some fans. But none of these games approaches soccer in the height of feeling generated among the crowd.

There may have been an increase in the incidence of bad behavior since internation al matches became the rage; but, as any addled knows, riotous rivalry between town and town, or between two teams in the same city, has long been part of the game. Rangers - Celtic feuding in Glasgow, with fighting in the terraces and in the streets afterwards, has been a part of the game in Scotland for years.

Soccer games in Italy have often ended in full-scale riots, with players and referees being chased off the field. A similar situation has prevailed in Latin America, where a water-filled moat was constructed around one field where the stands are sometimes separated from the field by steel wire mesh.

Many soccer demonstrations are, of course, only the outward manifestation of deeper disagreements. The Rangers-Celtic feud has a Protestant-Catholic root. Canada-Russian hockey rivalry is not untinged with the feeling that two political and economic systems are in competition. The feeling at the Russian-Czechoslovakian hockey games earlier this year reflected the political situation between the two countries. The cricket riots were sparked by Pakistani students who were anti-British. And so on.

Last week, what must be the peak of bad feeling generated by soccer rivalry came in Central America when two countries, Honduras and El Salvador, broke off diplomatic relations over soccer matches to determine who would go to the world championships in Mexico next summer.

Ceremonial Returns to the Hill

Ottawa Journal

At the stroke of 10 from the Peace Tower clock the brass band breaks into the "Standard of St. George" and the Guards wheel off Wellington Street and up the Hill.

They're back and summer is truly here.

This year student militiamen from the Cameron Highlanders and the Grenadier Guards have joined the regulars. It's possible to tell the soldiers from the students but not easy — men and "boys" are all clean shaven and, we're told, closely-shorn with their bearskin hats. But the students have inconspicuously different collar insignia, and the three regiments have added their names to the "Maple Leaf Forever" is a pleasant new note.

Obituaries

STEPHEN NILES FLAGLER

The funeral for Stephen Niles Flagler was held from the O'Brien Funeral Residence to St. Michael's Church this Wednesday morning.

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan celebrated Requiem Mass while Rev. P. Carty said the graveside prayers at St. James' cemetery.

The bearers were Wilfred and Leo Flagler, Francis and David Callaghan, Doran Dougherty and Serge Salvail.

MRS. FRANK HOWARD

The funeral for Mrs. Mary Agnes Howard was held from the Thompson Funeral Chapel on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Robert Crooks conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Jack Hughes, William Lynch, James Adlam, John Hughes, Robert O'Hara and Douglas Watson.

Belleville, Trenton Assessment HQ

"They will be the field men with the tape-measures," said W. G. Ritchie, executive director of the administration and financial division, Ontario department of municipal affairs.

He clarified the locations of the two offices in a statement this morning.

Under the new set-up the area director of assessment will be in charge of Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton, Hastings and Lennox and Addington.

"The Belleville office will house very senior men — the policy and procedure makers," he said. "About 12 people will be employed there."

The regional office for the commissioner will be established in the Quinte area "and Trenton seems to be as logical a place as any," Mr. Ritchie said. "The employees there will be directly involved in actual evaluation and assessment of properties."

The area director here will be one of seven appointed to administer assessment in Ontario when the provincial government takes over that function from municipalities next Jan. 1.

Robert Craig, 51, director of assessment for New Brunswick, will be responsible for Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton, Hastings and Prince Edward, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington.

E. R. Bailey, an official with the Ontario department of municipal affairs, said this morning the director's office would employ about 12 people.

Under him will be five commissioners, one for each area within the region. One commissioner, one for each region within the area. One commissioner will be in charge of Prince Edward County. Hastings County, Belleville and Trenton. Each commissioner's office will employ about 35 people.

Four local managers will be appointed — one each to deal with farms, residences, commercial and industry, and census.

Staffing the offices will be senior assessors, assessors, support staff and trainees. Mr. Bailey said most of the employees will be local people already holding similar jobs in their municipalities, and the department of municipal affairs does not anticipate many staff transfers.

Despite the qualification on the site issued today Mayor J. Russell Scott said this morning he was pleased "to hear the minister of municipal affairs officially announce that the director's office will be located in Belleville".

"This is another example of progress in our area, and I hope that there will not be any interference regarding this decision," the mayor said.

"It has been known for sometime, and has been on paper, that Belleville would have one of the area offices under the new provincial assessment system," Mayor Scott added.

He said the executive committee of the counties of Prince Edward and Hastings and Belleville and Trenton "were informed of this decision some time ago at a meeting".

The executive committee is composed of the wardens and clerk-treasurers of the two counties, the mayor and city manager of Belleville and the mayor and clerk-comptroller of Trenton.

Not yet decided is the method by which the area bookkeeping will be done. One suggestion is the construction of a large data processing centre in connection with the commissioner's office.

Another suggestion is that small, individual centres will be maintained, much like the present system. Mr. Bailey said a survey is now under way by his department to determine the need for and location of data processing centres.

For some time the province has been moving towards assessing all property on an equalized basis according to guidelines set down by the department of municipal affairs in Toronto.

To reach this objective, the province is removing assessment from the hands of individual municipalities and placing it under one province-wide administration.

Each director will be responsible for the management and co - ordination of property assessment in a number of 32 assessment regions being established in the province. Commissioners for each region within the area will be appointed in September.

Other commissioners' offices, each employing about 35 people, will be established in three other area municipalities.

Apollo Moon-bound, Launched from Earth Orbit

to boost Apollo 11 toward the moon.

The astronauts were to circle the globe for 2½ hours to make certain the spaceship's thousands of systems were functioning. Then, at 12:16 p.m. EDT, they were to restart the third stage of the Saturn to start toward their target, 250,801 miles away.

Barring problems, those three Columbusses of the space age are to sail outward across a 250,000-mile ocean of space for three days and fire themselves into orbit just 69 miles above the moon on Saturday.

They are to follow the trail blazed twice in the last seven months, by the pioneers of Apollo 8 and 10.

Sunday afternoon, Armstrong and Aldrin are to detach a lunar module and fly it down to a landing at the Sea of Tranquility. Early the next day they are to fulfill a centuries-old dream by walking on and exploring the lunar landscape.

If all goes well, much of the world will watch the entire lunar surface activity beamed live via television from a communication satellite 240 miles above the earth.

The astronauts are to mount 30 feet away from their landing craft.

Television provided millions with a ringside seat for the blast start of the momentous mission.

Female Magician Maintains Profession Harder for Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Bell may have developed the neatest sleight-of-hand trick in the history of magic.

She steps onto the stage and the bank employee suddenly changes into Elizabeth Warlock, Toronto's only female magician.

Miss Bell-Warlock's specialty is playing Chopin on a piano while a rose bush by her side slowly grows as the music progresses.

She doesn't use two of the more sensational acts in the magicians' handbook — sawing people in half or producing animals out of handkerchiefs.

"If I ever sawed anybody in half it would be a man," she said in an interview. "And depending on the way I feel I might not put him together again."

Why no animals? She's allergic.

Her act includes producing a sword stick out of a scarf with a flick of the fingers.

She uses only pure silk scarves and treats them like pure gold.

"I hate to see magicians use dirty scarves," she said. "Some do and it looks terrible."

Miss Bell-Warlock was hooked on magic as a child in London, England. She tried to copy one of her father's tricks — tying a knot in a scarf and unravelling it with the snap of a finger — and failed.

She made her stage debut at 15 at a magicians' club and went on to become the youngest winner of the British registerd of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. She later won the Magic Circle Jubilee grand prize in England.

Despite her success, she still says it's harder to be a good female magician than a good male magician — men have more pockets to hide things in.

she says. "It is always harder for a woman."

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD HARVEY

Harvey – Taylor

St. Gregory's Church, Picton, was the scene of the recent July wedding when Pennie Lee Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Taylor, of Picton, was united in marriage to Leonard Charles Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey, of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Father Hamilton, assisted by the Rev. Robert Jones. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was Sister Marie. Soloist was Shirley Colliver.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length mid-Victorian gown, fashioned in an A-line style. The sheath peau de soie gown featured silk organza over an empire waisted skirt. The top of the gown was of Chantilly lace with ruffles around the neckline and long lace sleeves. Her full length veil, completed by a mid-Victorian headpiece, made the train which featured appliqued with flowers matching the trim of dress. She carried a white Bible covered with trailing red roses.

Matron of honor, Ann Baker of Toronto, was attired in a French pink silk crepe full length gown of matching mid-Victorian style, completed by lace ruffle around the neck and long lace sleeves.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Bob Gayton, Toronto and Miss Diane Henderson, also of Toronto, were attired the same as the matron of honor, except in robin egg blue. The junior bridesmaid was Cecilia Harvey, sister of the bridegroom, who was also attired similarly but in orchid. All attendents carried baskets of shasta daisies dasted to match their gowns.

Best man for the ceremony was Joe Harvey of Port Hope, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Joel Trudeau, Belleville; Bernard Fobert, Toronto; John Thompson, Picton. The ring-bearer was Master Gerard Cole.

For the wedding reception held at the Prince Edward Yacht Club, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing an orange lee dress ensemble of silk shantung. The bottom of the coat was appliqued with white silk lattice. Her matching accessories were completed by an orchid corsage. Assisting her, the mother of the bride groom chose a pink flowered sheath with pink silk organza over the skirt, and white accessories. Her corsage was an orchid.

For the wedding trip to Cape Cod, the bride donned an antique white silk shantung dress ensemble with crystal beading at the neckline. Her matching sea foam green accessories were completed by an orchid corsage. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Scarborough.

Women's Institutes

SPRINGBROOK, BONARLAW

The Women's Institute held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy.

Members were given a surprise tour of the Elaine Shoe plant in Stirling. Mrs. Glendenning welcomed the members and each group had its own guide.

The president thanked the manager and staff on behalf of the members. Later, all returned to Mrs. Cassidy's home, where the regular meeting was held.

It was decided to conduct a bake sale at Marmora later in July. Happy Birthday was sung for two members, and cards sent to three shut in members.

Members decided to cater for a wedding anniversary in August and a committee was appointed.

The meeting closed in the usual manner, after which Mrs. Cassidy and Mrs. Gerald Breadworth served a dainty lunch.

Community Has Priority

EDMONTON (CP) — The International Federation of University Women has shifted the object of its emphasis from the university graduate to the community she lives in.

This was the message of its international president, Prof. Elizabeth Hulst - Steyn Parve of Utrecht, The Netherlands, when she spoke to the annual coaxial meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women Friday.

The Canadian Federation, second-largest of the 50 members of the IFUW, is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

"In the beginning the emphasis was, of course, on the furthering of interests of the university women and the basic concern was dealing with their problems. These were the days when the question of university education for women was something of a problem."

The international organization now is dedicated to supporting United Nations agencies, removing label, economic, social and psychological barriers which hinder women from playing a part in public life, and fostering a responsibility among women to put their training at the service of the community.

U.C.W. Meeting

(SALEM UCW)

The regular meeting of Salem UCW on Consecon Charge was held at the home of Mrs. Helen Keene with 12 members and two visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Ruth Broomfield read a poem. Mrs. Kay Carmrike took charge of the devotional and read an interesting story on "Praise."

Mrs. Jean Ellis gave the Bible study with a story about a "modern Christian." Mrs. Edith Korver read the minutes and thank-you notes. Mrs. Broomfield then took over the business part of the meeting.

The program consisted of an auction sale of canned goods and home baking realizing $8 with Mrs. Betty O'Hara as auctioneer. Mrs. Annie Mastin gave a donation.

Tribute Paid to Teacher

DESERONTO — The teachers of the Deseronto Public School paid tribute to Mrs. Florence Sexsmith, a retiring member of the teaching profession, and staff member.

Mrs. Sexsmith, the former Florence Park, came from Vancouver to Belleville, as an exchange teacher for one year. During this time, she met and married Ross Sexsmith, and has been living in the Belleville area ever since. The couple have four sons.

In 1960, Mrs. Sexsmith became a full-time teacher for the Deseronto Board of Education. She has been teaching Grade 7, also Grades 5 and 6 Prior to 1960 she did supply work.

Apart from her career as a teacher, she was fond of travelling, returning to Vancouver occasionally and recently visiting Europe.

Mrs. Sexsmith has been chairman of the Deseronto Library Board and an active member of the Napanee Business and Professional Women's Club for many years.

Upon retirement her pupils of Grades 5 and 6 arranged a surprise party at which they presented her with pieces of Canadian made pottery and jewellery.

Her fellow teachers were unanimous in agreeing that Mrs. Sexsmith had brought wisdom and a sense of humor to the teaching profession.

With wishes for many happy years of retirement, fellow teachers presented Mrs. Sexsmith with gifts.

Also at this time, Mrs. Donna Wagar, a Grade 1 teacher, who has moved to Perth was given a parting gift. Mrs. Margaret Jackson, acting school librarian, received a gift as a momento of her work in Deseronto Public School.

Marmora Resident Is 93 Years Old

MARMORA — A dozen friends called at the home of Mrs. Annie Moloney at 109 Hastings Street, Marmora, to extend best wishes on the occasion of her 93rd birthday.

An array of birthday cards and gifts were on display. Birthday cake and tea were served to the guests by her daughters. Misses Geraldine and Anna.

The delicate china service used was a wedding gift to Mrs. Moloney and her late husband in 1902.

Polish Cross of Merit Awarded at Actinolite

TWEED — The "Polish Golden Cross of Merit" for outstanding artistic and cultural contributions to mankind was awarded to Mary and Roman Schneider, directors of the Schneider School of Fine Arts at Actinolite, just north of Tweed on the weekend.

Presentation was made by Professor T. Romer of McGill University and former ambassador of Poland, in the name of the Polish Unity Council, London, England.

Mrs. Schneider, graduate of the Warsaw Academy of Fine Arts, is the permanent managing director of the school and resident artist for the season.

She has taught at Acadia University, as well as the Lansdale recreation department, Toronto. Her work has been exhibited in Brussels, Stockholm, London, New York, Chicago and Ottawa, with one man shows in Paris, Montreal, Florida and Toronto.

Roman Schneider, is the permanent ceramics director of the school. Dr. Schneider was Professor of Interior Architecture and Design at the Warsaw Academy of Fine Arts, after earning three degrees in related fields in Vienna, Kracow and Warsaw.

Since coming to Canada in 1950, he has instructed at Acadia University and the Ontario College of Arts.

The Schneiders have followed a long road from Poland to Actinolite, including two years spent in separate prison camps, following the outbreak of World War Two. Later, both volunteered to serve in the Polish army. Together they went to Iran, where they served in the military forces, and remained for five years.

The presentation of the Golden Cross of Merit is in recognition of their contributions to arts in many countries around the world.

Exceptional Ones

SASKATOON (CP)—Teaching of exceptional children, both those with special gifts and the mentally and emotionally handicapped, is the objective of a course in special education beginning this fall at the University of Saskatchewan. It deals with students who need help that cannot be provided in the normal class room.

Now Is Time to Enjoy Berries-

The fresh blueberry season is all too short to hesitate about getting them into your meals. Today Mary Moore gives a new blueberry pancake recipe which includes sieved cottage cheese. Her regular Blueberry Pancake recipe is included too for cottage country guest breakfasts.

Pancakes with A Difference

By MARY MOORE

If the flavor and color and short season are not enough to spur you on to serving them often, nutrition conscious cooks and mothers will be glad to know that they are high in vitamin C content and also contain calcium, iron and phosphorous.

I am giving you a new blueberry pancake recipe that calls for cottage cheese and which are a breakfast or lunch in themselves. I am adding regular blueberry pancakes for the cottagers who have hordes of visitors to feed.

BLUEBERRY COTTAGE CHEESE PANCAKES (Twelve 3")

4 large eggs
1½ cups sieved cottage cheese
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup fresh, rinsed and dried blueberries (or drained, canned or thawed frozen)
1½ tbsps. melted shortening
¾ to 1 cup washed and dried blueberries

Sift flour with salt, baking powder and sugar. Beat eggs and add milk and shortening. Add sifted dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Stir in blueberries. Drop by spoonsful on ungrease griddle. When full of the eggs and add sieved cottage cheese, salt, sugar, vanilla, and flour and beat until thoroughly blended. Fold in blueberries. Using ¼ cup measure pour on to lightly greased preheated griddle and brown one side then turn and brown other side until done. This is a rather thick batter, so be sure pancakes are cooked through. I served ours with apricot preserves and it was a wonderful combination but maple syrup or bottled pancake syrup is good too.

BLUEBERRY PANCAKES

2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups milk

WEDNESDAY (Ladies Guest Supper)

Dinner Menu

Chilled Melon Cup; Chicken Salad (see Tues.); Hot Tea Biscuits; Relish Tray: Gherkins, Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers; Applesauce Cake; Tea.

Sister Complains About Unappreciative, Messy Brother

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My older brother is a school teacher, age 31. I'm 19. He must be the most untidy person in the world. He leaves clothes all over and the cupboard messy after a lunch.

My mother washes and irons his clothes for nothing. When I ask his brother, I insist on being paid but seldom do get paid. My Mom says she had to do it for her brothers and since I only have one I should do it without complaining. Am I wrong to insist on being paid? He can well afford it.

The only money I get is occasional babysitting. I don't ask my parents for money as they don't have it. — Tired of Being Told To Do Without Payment

Dear Tired of Being Told: The original sin — and this sin is against your brother — was his not being taught how to be useful around the house. Men love to be competent — who wouldn't?

I have a nephew with, long since grown up, strides out into my kitchen after he has been our guest at a meal, rolls up his sleeves, and says "This kitchen needs me!" Then he proceeds to organize the situation. Washing up only starts when all is well stacked and sorted.

The damage has been done with your brother. I gather it isn't easy to talk him out of any money.

Could he pay you back in some other way? Are there times when you need strong muscles to manage something heavy for you? Or do you need taxi service from time to time? I'm thinking that with the right kind of light touch, and laughter, and affection, you could jolly this older brother into appreciating you and being helpful when you need him.

Remember, he's going to be your brother all your life.

* * *

Dear Doris: About Confused Romance. I feel sorry for that guy. Maybe that girl he idolized so much thinks just as much as him, inside.

But he must remember that a respectable girl doesn't give herself to a man that easy. She also wants to be sure that he's not fooling her; that he wants her for her love, not only for a pastime.

Dear Confused "Romance: Don't forget that a girl who is unapproachable is worth having, because that means she's not the kind of girl who falls for every man! — Another Confused Romance

Dear Another: Thank you. Perhaps Mr. C. R. will feel you have hit the nail squarely on the head.

* * *

Confidential to Wondering: Time was when the mourning period was nothing less than a full year. Today it is different. You can make new friends and quite properly accept dates as a widow of seven months.

Indeed you do continue to wear your wedding ring — since we assume a widow continues to cherish the memory of her wedded life. It would only come off, or shift to the right hand, when you started a new life with a new partner.

* * *

What's troubling you? Putting it on paper to Doris is the first step towards solving your problem.

Ann Landers

Daughter Heartsick Over Dad's Illness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I cried when I read that letter from the boy whose mother is smoking herself to death. I am a girl 23 and my father is doing the same thing.

ANN LANDERS

Ten years ago Dad got emphysema. He wasn't able to participate in any family activities because he couldn't catch his breath if he had to walk more than a block. He was always on the sidelines. He couldn't dance at weddings or even stand in a receiving line for more than 10 minutes. By 10:00 p.m. he was pooped. I remember Mom rushing him to the hospital at least a dozen times. He'd be blue in the face and have to be put in an oxygen tent. Through all this he still smoked two packs of cigarettes a day even though he knew it was killing him.

Six weeks ago Dad was operated on for lung cancer and now he is dying. He won't be here to walk me down the aisle when I marry in September. He won't have the joy of seeing my children grow up. He is only 50 years old, Ann — awfully young to die when you have so much to live for. It's too late for my dad, but I hope someone else's dad will see this and learn something. — HIS DAUGHTER.

* * *

DEAR DAUGHTER: I hope so, too, dear. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please rush this information. We need it right away. In what states can a girl, 15, get married? Can her parents have the marriage annulled if she lies and says she is older? What states will allow a man of 18 to get married? Do they ask at the license bureau if the man has a job? Can he be put in jail if the girl is not of legal age?

Nobody is pregnant so don't quote any laws about that jazz. And don't give us any advice. We know what we want to do. Just hurry up with the answers. — HIM AND HER.

* * *

DEAR H AND H: I am typing as fast as I can, your Lord and Ladyship, and I hope this letter gets to you in time. It gives me great pleasure to inform you that in your state, (Illinois) your girl friend is not old enough to marry without parental consent.

As for the other questions, see a lawyer. If you don't know a lawyer, get acquainted with one because from the sound of your letter you'll be needing legal advice before long.

* * *

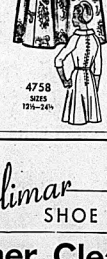
DEAR ANN: My husband is a printer at the paper that carries your column, so please don't publish my name or initials. He works from 4 p.m. to midnight and I believe he is involved with a woman who works the same shift. This woman pays my husband $2.00 a day to drive her to work and back. I told him I'd take a $10.00 weekly cut in allowance if he'd stop driving her. He says I'm foolish and that I have no self-respect. According to him a woman insults both herself and her husband when she shows so little confidence in him. What do you say? — PRINTER'S WIFE.

* * *

DEAR WIFE: I say you are fighting a losing battle and using the wrong ammunition. Turn on the heat and knock off the accusations or you will have real trouble instead of just suspicions.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Janie gets so bored in the playpen. I know she doesn't like to be cooped up, but I can't get my work done when she's underfoot. Besides it's so dangerous to have her crawling around the kitchen."

Mother: "Janie plays happily in the playpen for about half an hour or so. Then I either put the pen in a different spot or let her out for a change of scenery. After a bit, she goes back in again without fussing."

A playpen is a boon to a busy mother. Use imagination and ingenuity to keep a small childe from getting tired of it.

Languages Bill: Trudeau Tells It as It Is---in His Eyes

In a speech at Ottawa June 9 at the International Press Institute, Prime Minister Trudeau said failure of the press to communicate was among the reasons that many Canadians did not understand the principle of the Official Languages Act, then before Parliament.

The Canadian Press at that time invited the prime minister to write an article explaining the measure in terms he thought people would understand.

His article, not available until after final parliamentary approval of the act on July 9, follows.

Written for The Canadian Press

By Prime Minister Trudeau

"Why are they forcing French down our throats?"

That question has been asked by English-speaking Canadians who are concerned about the government's bilingualism policy and about the Official Languages Act which was recently enacted by Parliament.

The question is based on a widely-shared misunderstanding of what our policy on bilingualism means. In fact, everyone in Canada will not be required to speak French, any more than everyone will be required to speak English.

You can grow up in parts of Quebec and never use English a day in your life. You can live in many parts of the country and never hear a single word of French. Most of the people who deal with the government of Canada speak only one language. It is because everyone in the country is not expected to speak both languages, and never will be, that the federal government must be able to speak to Canadians in either French or English wherever there are enough French speakers or English speakers to justify it.

Nothing is more important to a person than to understand and to be understood. The most common and the most effective tool we can use for this purpose is our language. Any policy which affects such an important aspect of our lives is bound to stir up some controversy.

But we should not mislead ourselves into magnifying the problem. One of our country's great strengths is the spirit of mutual understanding and tolerance that motivates Canadians. I feel certain that the great majority of our people accept and respect the differences that exist among Canadians—differences not only of language but of religion, color and origin.

Nevertheless, some misconceptions have certainly arisen, and I am grateful to The Canadian Press and the daily newspapers of Canada for providing me with this opportunity to deal with a few of them.

For example, some people claim that the Official Languages Act will result in discrimination against those whose mother tongue is neither English nor French.

This is one of the most widespread and the most unjustified misconceptions. The act itself states categorically that the rights and privileges of any language other than English or French, whether acquired by law or by custom, will in no way be diminished as a result of the act. For instance, the right of people who do not understand English or French to be heard in court through an official interpreter will be maintained.

The recognition of two official languages in no way alters the position of people whose ethnic origin is neither British nor French. Indeed, the act has nothing to do with ethnic origins or cultural origins. As Canadians we believe that the diversity of our cultural backgrounds is a great national asset.

It is an enrichment for all of us that many of our citizens and their ancestors have come from Germany and Italy, Poland and the Ukraine, China and Japan, the Philippines and the West Indies, and so many other corners of the globe. We encourage Canadians of every background to preserve the values and traditions of the homelands in many ways, including grants for cultural events and organizations.

It would obviously be impractical for the government itself to operate in every language spoken by a group of Canadians. For practical purposes the government's working languages must be those spoken by Canada's two major language groups, which between them make up the majority of our population.

That is why the act declares that English and French will be the official languages of the government and Parliament. It imposes no restrictions on the languages or cultural activities of individual Canadians.

A second misconception is that the act will prevent Canadians who speak only one language from working for the government, the armed forces or the Crown corporations, or from being promoted to important government jobs. There is no clause in the act which states this or which will have this result. The object of the act is to provide government services in both languages where required by the population.

This does not mean that everyone who works for the government must be bilingual. In many areas of the country, including almost all of Western Canada and much of Quebec, government services will be provided only in one language and people working for the government in those areas will need only that language.

Even in bilingual districts, many of those working for the federal governments will speak only one language. Our goal in these districts is to have a sufficient number of government employees to serve an English-speaking or French-speaking Canadian in his own language.

In the past few years we have been building up our system for teaching a second language to public servants. Eventually it should be possible for anyone whose job requires a working knowledge of a second language to be taught it as a regular part of his career. In the meantime we are being careful not to handicap those who are already working for the government and who have not had an opportunity to learn a second language.

The federal government must and will continue to recruit its employees, at all levels, from all parts of Canada.

Some of those who oppose the act have claimed that the commissioner of official languages mentioned in the act will be given unlimited powers which will make him a dangerous "super-snooper."

A glance at the act would show that this is nonsense. In fact the commissioner will be a kind of ombudsman similar to those which several provinces have appointed to protect the human rights of their citizens. He is not a trial judge, much less an inquisitor.

His job is to listen to complaints about unfair language practices in federal government departments and agencies or in Crown corporations and, if he believes they are justified, to make recommendations to the departments to change their practices. If the departments ignore these recommendations, he can report the whole matter to Parliament. It is up to Parliament to decide what to do about it.

Surely this does not give the commissioner, or the government, excessive powers over individual Canadians.

The objective is, of course, exactly the reverse: to give individual Canadians greater power to check the abuses of government. The act sets out standards of performance for federal government departments and agencies and provides remedies if these standards are not met. There are no provisions which impose duties on individual Canadians or, in any way, restrict the freedoms which we enjoy as private citizens.

Some opponents of the act have argued that it violates or changes the constitution (the British North America Act) and is therefore beyond the powers of Parliament.

In this article I am not going to set out a long and technical argument about constitutional law. The fact is that the act deals only with the departments and agencies of the federal government. It does not deal with matters which, under the constitution, are within the control of the provinces. It does not alter any of the rights or privileges concerning the English or French languages which are already guaranteed by the constitution.

Those constitutional rights and privileges will remain exactly the same after the act comes into effect as they were before. The act does not amend any article of the constitution.

Even when misconceptions about the Official Languages Act are cleared up, there will be some Canadians who do not understand or accept the philosophy on which it is based.

For many Canadians, and particularly those who live in a region of the country where few people speak, French, Canada has seemed to be an English-speaking country with a number of minority groups speaking other languages. There are places where such groups as Italian Canadians or Ukrainian Canadians or Chinese Canadians outnumber French-speaking Canadians.

But if we look at Canada as a whole we find there are two major language groups in this country: English- and French-speaking. This has been the case throughout our history as a nation. No other group forms a majority in any province. No other group has its own public educational systems or radio and television networks. No other group makes up more than a small percentage of our population.

According to the most recent census figures, the three largest groups whose mother tongue is neither English nor French are German, 3.1 per cent of the population, Ukrainian 2.0 per cent and Italian 1.9 per cent.

To build and maintain a strong and united country, it is essential that both French and English-speaking Canadians should be able to feel at home in all parts of this country, and that their rights as members of our major language groups should be respected by the federal government. That is the objective of the Official Languages Act and of our policy of bilingualism.

Prime Minister Trudeau

I believe that our two major languages are a great advantage for Canada. A country in which both French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians are fully participating in every aspect of our national life will be a richer and more interesting place to live. We will be more valuable and more effective members of the world community when we have learned to handle our two official languages and our many cultural traditions at home.

As I travel around the country I find that the advantages of bilingualism are becoming more widely accepted by Canadians, particularly among the young. However urgent it may be to introduce such a policy, and I believe the very survival of our country depends on it, we should not expect to reap its full benefits overnight. That will require fundamental changes in attitudes and institutions which may take years, or even generations.

In this historic process the Official Languages Act is an important forward step.

No Economic Promises

Ottawa Can Do No More To Sell Wheat--Trudeau

WINNIPEG (CP) — In the federal election campaign last year, Prime Minister Trudeau constantly made the point that he was not making economic promises.

He still isn't.

On the second day Tuesday of his week-long Prairie tour, he rejected the idea of subsidies for farmers on dairy products and the suggestion that the government declare a moratorium on debts of western farmers to merchants.

In a nose-to-nose meeting with two farm leaders here, he said the government can do nothing more to sell Canadian wheat.

There was just too much wheat in the world. The farmer as well as the government was trapped.

"Your fight is not with me," the prime minister told Ken Singleton and John Palamarchuk, president and vice-president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union after an 80-minute meeting with the Canadian wheat board.

"I'm not trying to grind the farmer's face in the dust."

Mr. Singleton had recommended the debt moratorium and Mr. Palamarchuk that the farmers themselves take over operation of the wheat board, a Crown agency which markets wheat for farmers.

Mr. Trudeau said the board is respected all over the world.

W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the board, outlined in private to Mr. Trudeau the alternatives open to Canada in trying to sell the wheat crop. These alternatives were not made public. Federal sources said the discussion of prices was only general.

About 50 demonstrators at the wheat board offices demanded that the government do something about the Prairie farmer's cash income situation. Mr. Trudeau shook hands with some of them. But he didn't make any promises.

In a farmhouse meeting with some 15 dairy farmers earlier near Beauséjour, Mr. Trudeau said he is not in favor of their recommendation for dairy subsidies.

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba entered the debate indirectly a few hours after he was sworn in as NDP first minister.

He told reporters that unless by some miracle the marketing of farm products can be increased, governments have an almost moral obligation to provide price supports.

The farmer was bearing the main brunt of inflation because he had little bargaining power.

Mr. Schreyer made the comment after a 30-minute meeting with Mr. Trudeau at which they discussed farm cash income, the Official Languages Act, constitutional review, northern developments and the future of the port of Churchill.

The premier said there is not great alienation in the West about the official languages measure or constitutional reform. But there was a high degree of dissatisfaction about agriculture.

Mr. Trudeau invited Mr. Schreyer to Ottawa for a meeting in the fall.

The prime minister flew to Regina Tuesday evening and was met on arrival at Regina airport by Premier Ross Thatcher. Mr. Trudeau was scheduled to meet the Saskatchewan cabinet today at noon and then take a helicopter trip over some wheatlands.

Trudeau Meets Pepin At Wheat Board Office

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was hemmed in Tuesday by farmers and bystanders when he tried to enter the Canadian wheat board building to be briefed on world markets.

Placard-carrying farmers paraded on the sidewalk in a demonstration planned for Mr. Trudeau's arrival.

Ken Singleton, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union, said a "lack of farm income" sparked the demonstration.

When Mr. Trudeau arrived at the building on Main Street, the group squeezed around him and police moved to force a path through the entrance.

Once inside, Mr. Trudeau was whisked past reporters to a conference room where Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said market conditions would be discussed.

Asked to comment on a Washington report earlier in the day that the United States plans to drop its wheat prices below the International Grains Arrangement floor, Mr. Pepin said he understood the report was from a department source.

"It is not the official American position."

Rejection Still Unsolved Riddle in Cardiac Transplant Cases

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Arcadio Nouga, a pathologist at the Montreal Heart Institute, says autopsies indicate that all nine heart transplant patients at the institute last year died of organ rejection.

He reiterated the belief of surgeons and immunologists around the world that the rejection factor is the major riddle which remains unsolved in the field of cardiac transplant surgery and stressed the vital importance of tissue-matching.

Dr. Nouga said in an interview Tuesday that all nine patients showed evidence of physical changes surrounding the area of the heart and actual organ.

"Examination of the heart revealed an enlarged heart due to edema."

Edema is swelling which occurs with the presence of abnormally large amounts of fluid in the intercellular tissue spaces of the body.

Dr. Nouga also addressed about 1,000 delegates attending the Seventh International Congress of Clinical Pathology which opened Monday and ends Friday.

He attributed the longevity enjoyed by Dr. Philip Blaiberg in Cape Town, who received a replacement heart Jan. 2, 1968, to "chance" and "very well coordinated suppressive therapy."

"Mr. Blaiberg and the donor must have been extremely well-matched," said Dr. Nouga, "as no two people can have identical tissue. The closer the match, the less chance of rejection and the less is the need for extensive suppressive therapy."

"When you suppress the body's natural effort to reject foreign matter, you are also rejecting the patient's line of defences to other dangers and thus endangering the life of the patient."

He Plays Riel

Bernard Turgeon has come to identify himself completely with the Metis leader Louis Riel whom he will be portraying in a fall telecast of the opera by Canadian composer Harry Somers. "When I walk on the stage I literally forget I am Bernard Turgeon," he said.

Toronto Boom Feared Over

TORONTO (CP) — Spokesmen for the construction industry say that pay increases gained by unions here will add about $18,000 to the cost of a $100,000 building and will deter new apartment and office building construction.

Herbert Stricker, president of the Urban Development Institute which is an association of commercial and apartment building owners, said Monday both commercial and residential builders will cancel projects if possible.

"It is the end of the boom in Toronto," he said, adding "labor no warounts for about 50 per cent of the cost of a building."

When all increases in recently-negotiated contracts have been realized in two years, sheet metal workers will get $245.62 weekly, plumbers $260, electricians $232.50, carpenters $240 and cement masons $212.

REVIVE RUSTLING

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Garry Omar Jones of Pembroke was sentenced to six months in jail when he pleaded guilty to a charge of cattle rustling and three other charges. He was charged with stealing a $250 steer. Police said Jones was with another man when they killed the steer, butchered it and ate it.

Mine-Mill Union Merger Ruled Invalid by Court

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeals, in a 2-to-1 decision Tuesday, upheld a lower court ruling that the 1967 merger between the 12,000-member International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the 150,000-member United Steelworkers of America is invalid.

The court's ruling, unless it is quashed by appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, means the two unions will have to renavigate the merger process to conform to the court finding.

The court held there is nothing in Mine-Mill's constitution authorizing a merger. The merger was approved by a membership vote of 5,122 to 2,822. The subsequent legal challenge was made by Local 598 in Sudbury.

Local 598 will remain independent in forthcoming contract talks with Falconbridge Nickel Mines. The present agreement expires Aug. 21.

In Rs majority statement, the court said the main objective of Mine-Mill is that of a Canadian labor organization. The report, written by Mr. Justice G. T. Evenns said the merger "will result in the termination of the contractual relationship among the members in an organization which had as an objective a union which was solely Canadian in membership and in direction."

"The difference in the constitutions of the two unions is too fundamental to be glossed over."

Told of the decision, Elliot Posen, counsel for Mine-Mill, said it is "the first time the national aspect of thins case has actually had some judicial interpretation."

In a dissent from the majority decision, Mr. Justice Bora Laskin said the issue of national autonomy, although important, does not go to the fundamental purpose of a union. He argued that where the union constitution is silent on the issue of merger there was no reason to deny members the right to consider the issue.

After the decision was announced, Steelworkers' officials gave notice they would appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

Bank of Canada Raises Prime Rate Another Half Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The bank rate has been raised, effective today, to a record eight per cent to offset the high level of external interest rates, Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada announced late Tuesday.

It is the third increase this year in the bank rate, which sets the tone for the whole lending market. The earlier increases, to seven per cent March 3 and 7½ per cent June 11, were made to offset rising interest rates abroad and tighten credit at home.

Mr. Rasminsky said in a statement that the current increase is "consistent with the desire of the central bank to moderate the expansion of bank credit but the primary cause for the present action was the high level of external interest rates."

These had risen "in certain key areas" in recent weeks.

"In particular there had been a large build-up in Canadian investors' holdings of foreign currency 'swapped' deposits, on which abnormally high rates were available."

Mr. Rasminsky said he is asking the chartered banks to regard the present level of their foreign currency "swapped" deposits as a temporary ceiling.

"Swapped" deposits represent funds converted into a foreign currency, "usually U.S. dollars," and placed on term deposit with a bank which has undertaken through a forward contract to convert back into Canadian dollars at maturity.

Major New York banks June 9 raised their prime lending rate to 8¼ per cent from 7½ per cent.

The Bank of Canada two days later raised the bank rate to 7½ per cent, associating the increase with those abroad and with strong credit demand in Canada.

The chartered banks, which followed with a round of prime rate increases, said that consumer demand for money only intensified, and raised rates again to a record level of 8¼ per cent July 1.

SAC Tankers May Get Use of Canadian Bases

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said Tuesday there have been discussions with the United States on the possibility of U.S. Air Force Strategic Air Command aircraft being based in Canada.

A defence department spokesman said later the U.S. request involved only refuelling tankers for SAC bombers.

Cadieux told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield during the Commons question period such talks had been held but that no decision had been taken.

Mr. Stanfield asked the minister whether the United States has discussed the possibility of basing its nuclear-armed aircraft in Canada, in view of a recent U.S. government decision to disperse Strategic Air Command bases.

He cited a Canada-U.S. agreement signed June 20, 1958, which provided four bases in Canada for refuelling the tankers. These were at Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island, Fort Churchill, Man., Cold Lake, Alta., and Namao, Alta.

Wires to Racetracks Tapped

TORONTO (CP) — John J. Mooney, executive vice-president of the Jockey Club Ltd., says listening devices were found three times in the last year on telephone wires at racetracks operated by the club.

"We know who is installing the bugs," Mr. Mooney said in an interview. "We are quite sure who they are."

He dismissed the possibility that a criminal element was involved, but he would not say where his suspicions lay.

"As far as we are concerned it is an invasion of privacy," he said.

Mr. Mooney said that on one occasion track personnel became suspicious of two people who said they were telephone company employees. Track police were alerted after the men left and a check uncovered a listening device.

There are no telephones for public use at a racetrack. But in the backstretch there are pay phones available for trainers, grooms and owners.

These phone booths are bolted shut prior to the first race to prevent their use.

Asked for comment, Judge C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Police commission, said he would be surprised if police had used the devices at the tracks.

Labs Empty

OTTAWA (CP) — Research laboratories are standing empty in Toronto and London, Ont., Dr. E. D. Wigle, associate professor of the University of Toronto's medical department, said Tuesday.

Dr. Wigle said researchers to use the labs are not available because they are badly needed in their medical faculties.

Lack of funds for start-up equipment had resulted in research quarters remaining unused.

Strictly Personal

Generation Gap Not New

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the phrases I am most tired of hearing these days is the "generation gap." Not only is it an ugly and thoughtless phrase, it is an untrue one.

There has always been a "gap" between generations — and there should be — but now we openly recognize it, and deplore it.

The modern phrase implies that "gap" is something new, and that it is wider than it was before. The first implication is false, and the second is dubious.

Generations have always differed from one another, because the process of growing up is painful, arduous and complex, in any society, at any time. If there is a "gap" between young parents and their small children (and of course there is), why shouldn't are expect a gap between middle-aged parents and their adolescent children?

Actually, as I have suggested before, one of the contemporary problems is that there is not enough of a legitimate gap between these two. The children are growing up too fast, and the parents are trying to retain their youth too desperately. It is really a problem of "overlap" more than of "gap." The difference between the roles has narrowed rather than widened.

It would be much healthier if we could restore the ancient and traditional gap when parents lived in their own world and children lived in theirs, and each respecte the limits of the other.

Children become disappointed in their parents when they fail to act like parents, when they deny the aging process, when they substitute whim and prejudice and stubbornness for genuine moral authority based on a sense of values.

When this happens — as it happens too often in our object-oriented rather than our value-oriented society — the children begin to play the roles of parents, in some of the most unattractive aspects. They begin to imitate the worst parts of the parents' lives, or rebel completely — both of which are forms of disappointment and disgruntlement.

Children want limits set to their behavior, but they want these to be just and rational limits, relevant to modern conditions. If the parents are too authoritarian, imposing limits that are obsolete, or too permissive, allowing a kind of freedom that secretly frightens the child, then these extremes of parental behavior result in alienation of the child — and alienation is much more, and different, than a mere "gap."

Mere "communication" is not enough, if there has been a blurring of roles; communicating confusion drives us apart, not together.

RECOMMENDS PASTOR

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Some mental illnesses can be treated better by ministers than by psychiatrists, says Dr. Karl Menninger. "Some of the people we work with don't belong to psychiatry, they belong to a pastor," said the 76-year-old psychiatrist and co-founder of the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. "These are the ones who know they are doing wrong. When people come to a minister for help, they take the responsibility for their behavior. But when they come to a psychiatrist they often try to shove it off upon him."

Glass Fibre Greenhouse

This is Canada's first fully-automated greenhouse constructed of glass fibre. Inside the building is an environmental control panel which takes care of all plant needs including temperature, humidity, watering and feeding, thus requiring minimal supervision. The greenhouse went into operation in February with 7,500 plants, which by the end of June yielded 75,000 pounds of tomatoes.

Toronto Man Facing Charge Of Murdering His Daughter, 19

TORONTO (CP) — Kesim Taka, 44, was committed yesterday for trial on a charge of murdering his 19-year-old daughter last May 27.

The girl, Fatima, had run away from home the week before her death after plans were made for her to marry against her will, Judge S. G. Tinker was told at the preliminary hearing.

Investigating police told the hearing Fatima's body was found in the basement of the Taka home with stab wounds in the face and with the throat cut from ear to ear. Mr. Taka was found sitting on the kitchen floor with blood on his hands and shirt and a bloody paring knife nearby, police said.

Fatima's 18-year-old sister, Metzete, said the girl had fled from home May 23 while her father was in Chicago. Fatima had protested she was being sold and treated like a puppet after a family visit to Chicago last Christmas where she was introduced to a man in his early 20's, Metzete said.

Metzete told the hearing her sister returned home with her parents May 27 but a fight broke out and the girl began to call the parents liars when she learned there was no social worker on hand.

Metzete intervened in the fight but ran to her room after being bumped and seeing her father holding a knife at the basement door. When she heard someone falling down, she returned to see "Fatima and blood."

Cross-examined by defence counsel Arthur Maloney, Metzete said her parents were strict, perhaps too strict.

Toronto Firm Plans Movies

TORONTO (CP) — The first professional all-Canadian movie company, based here, has unveiled production plans for three full-length movies in the next two years.

The new company is Agincourt Productions, which is comprised of Limelight Productions, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the public relations firm of Marshall Taylor, and Glen Warren Productions.

Brantford Welfare Director Denies Streetwalking Advised

BRANTFORD (CP) — City welfare administrator Fred Nightingale denied charges Tuesday that he has advised women to go out on the streets and become prostitutes after turning down their applications for welfare assistance.

He did acknowledge that at least five or six women implied they had no alternative but to "walk the streets" but such instances, he said, were equivalent to the reply a man might make when turned down: "What do you want me to do? Rob a bank?"

Mr. Nightingale was testifying on the 12th and last day of testimony at the judicial inquiry conducted by Judge W. W. Leach into charges brought against the Brantford welfare department by Mac Makarchuk, New Democrat member of the provincial legislature. Last February, Mr. Makarchuk accused the department of denying assistance to deserving applicants, of publicly and privately insulting welfare recipients and of directing them to work in strike-bound factories.

The inquiry was adjourned until August 11 when Judge Leach will hear submissions from lawyers representing Mr. Makarchuk and the welfare department.

Horses to Pace Show

Kelly Consaul, 8, and her pony seem dwarfed by Kelly's dad, Bill, president of the Quinte Horse Association. Dressed in their best western show attire, the pair are examples of entries to be seen in the Thursday evening parade to be led by members of the local equestrian association.

It's Another Parade

For Don Foster, Thursday night brings another parade, Bellevillian, whose ingenuity for mobilising merry-making has him much in demand throughout Eastern Ontario, tests latest creation — handbuilt, smoke-spouting buggy.

Downtown Parade Thursday

Horses won't take a back seat to anybody Thursday night.

They will lead the Belleville Downtown Businessmen's Association Thursday evening parade to kick-off the three-day sidewalk sale.

Equestrians, members of the Quinte Western Horse Association, will form color parties with parade horses, suitably attired, to head the event. Western riders, dressed in their best show attire, will follow.

"There's quite an incentive for participation in this parade," commented Bill Consaul, president of the Quinte Western Horse Association.

"The "incentive" Mr. Consaul refers to is the competition involved. Trophies will be presented by Ben Corke, president of the Downtown Businessmen's Association, to the best parade horse and the best western turnout. The younger members of the equestrian group will have a chance to compete for the best western pony turnout in hopes of winning a "bolo" tie, with jewel inset, to be presented by Manley Ford of the Quinte Rock Shop.

Discrimination Secondary

Religious Emotions Inflaming Irish

LONDON (CP)—The latest outbreak of violence in Northern Ireland—still explosive and unpredictable—springs mainly from deep religious emotions rather than discrimination in civil rights.

It is, for many observers, a case of where the annual "king Billy" parade turned into a Protestant show of power enraging a faction of Roman Catholic youth.

These hardened demonstrators have been criticized by civil rights leaders and Catholic priests. To the extent that actions of these demonstrators may be associated in the public mind with the civil rights movement, public sympathy in the British Isles for the civil rights appeal may be weakene.

This kind of violent reaction, even to the point where an attempt was made to corner and burn Ulster police, may play in the hands of Protestant extremists. Some participated in the numerous clashes but generally most were on the sidelines.

Now the Ulster government worries these extremists may take the law in their own hands and plunge in with their own attack against the Catholics. The feeling in Stormont is that the next few days will be critical.

The only immediate solution, as far as the government can see, is to strengthen police vigilance using police reserves which are mainly Protestant. Military forces also are standing by.

But even if peace comes, blemishes will remain. Previous strife was associated with Protestant discrimination against the minority Catholics in voting rights, housing and employment. These issues aroused considerable sympathy on the British mainland and in other parts of the world.

The latest violence indicates, however, that equality in civil and social rights and privileges may not end the periodic ruptures that raise questions about Ulster's economic future.

Western Farmers Take to Highways in Price Protest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western Canada's farmers took to the highways Tuesday on tractors to protest declining farm income and wheat sales as their leaders asked Prime Minister Trudeau for government help.

Farm leaders met Mr. Trudeau in Winnipeg as the prime minister started a tour into the Prairie wheatlands. The meeting came on the heels of an announcement that some of the signing countries—including Canada—of the International Grains Agreement had agreed to continue ignoring minimum prices—a situation which has existed most of this year.

In Saskatchewan 5,000 tractors held up long lines of traffic and farmers in Alberta announced they plan similar demonstrations today in support of their Saskatchewan counterparts.

Near record grain surpluses now plug Prairie granaries, the result of increasing world wheat production and the realization by some former importing countries they could get along without wheat from Canada's grain belt.

The export market, vital to the Prairie wheat economy, has been declining steadily during the last few years and, with the markets perhaps gone forever. Prairie farmers are facing a dilemma of proportions not seen in nearly 40 years.

Faced with the widespread uncertainty about their future, farmers and agricultural experts are exploring dozens of possible solutions to the situation which, as one farm leader said, has resulted in a drop of 75 per cent in net farm income this year.

But while the solutions range from diversification and switching to new crops and varieties and selling wheat at any price, the government says it can't help sales more than it has been.

"There is nothing more the government can do" to sell wheat, Mr. Trudeau told Ken Singleton and John Palamarchuk, president and vice-president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union Tuesday in Winnipeg.

Mr. Trudeau had just emerged from a meeting with officials of the Canadian wheat board—the government agency responsible for selling wheat.

Mr. Singleton said the western farmer "is on his back" without income and in debt. He said unless something is done the Prairie economy will be destroyed.

Prairie farm organizations have long advocated a two-price system for wheat—a higher price for that used in Canada compared with the price for wheat exported.

Mr. Trudeau said such a pricing system would mean Canadians, particularly the poor, would have to pay more for bread.

Construction Headaches in Paris

Heavy traffic because of construction mars life virtually everywhere in Paris. To ease it, Paris is burrowing beneath its street level, for purposes of extra underground car parks and a new express subway line. In the background is the Arc de Triomphe. The number of construction sites of all varieties currently is estimated to be about 700.

Lawyers Become Mathematicians

Anti-dumping Hearing Turned Into Busy Arithmetic Class

OTTAWA (CP) — Executives and lawyers at the federal anti-dumping tribunal participated in joint arithmetic sessions Tuesday.

At one point, half of the 50 persons in the room were busy adding and subtracting to check last-minute revisions to figures on the Canadian power transformer industry presented by the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association.

F. R. Hume, representing the association, said the short time available to obtain statistics requested by the tribunal prevented the association obtaining accurate figures in some cases.

"We just have literally no time to check these things."

W. W. Buchanan, tribunal chairman, said the association had done "remarkably well" in compiling statistics on short notice.

Canadian manufacturers say dumping of power transformers by British and Japanese firms has injured the Canadian power transformer industry.

John D. Richard of Ottawa, representing two British firms, also led witnesses through an exercise in arithmetic while attempting to combine statistics and estimate the increased backlog in the transformer industry since 1965.

Mr. Richard asked why the industry had an increasing amount of unfilled orders if it was operating at low capacity because of alleged foreign dumping.

V. V. Mason of Canadian Westinghouse Co. Ltd. said many orders specified delivery several years from now and would be counted as unfilled until they are actually shipped.

The tribunal is expected to adjourn today or Thursday to allow involved parties to prepare their closing arguments.

If the British and Japanese firms are found to be injuring Canadian firms by selling power transformers in Canada at prices lower than in Britain and Japan, anti-dumping duties on the transformers, imposed May 8, will be continued.

College Grads Admitted To Western Second Year

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — University of Western Ontario senate has approved admitting graduates of community colleges to second-year courses at the university.

University President D. Carleton Williams said Tuesday the policy reflects the fact that the colleges have "come very well" since being introduced in the province three years ago.

The policy is retroactive to July 1 "for admissions in the fall," he said.

Under the new policy, graduates from a three-year community-college course with first-class standing throughout their final year will be admitted to second year at Western.

Also eligible will be students who receive first-class standing in their final two semesters or second-class throughout their program.

Moon Visit Itinerary Drafted to Last Detail

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — If Apollo 11 succeeds in its mission, Commander Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. next Sunday afternoon will detach a spidery - legged lunar landing craft and fly it to a rendezvous with history, a touchdown in the moon's Sea of Tranquility.

At 2:21 a.m. Monday, Armstrong is to step on to the surface and be the first Earth man to walk on soil that is not of his world. It will be an imprint in history.

Aldrin will follow minutes later, and two men will plant an American flag on moonland.

But they will not claim the territory for the United States. The Armstrong and Aldrin go to the moon as ambassadors for all of earth. They bear with them small flags of 136 nations, which will return with them. They will leave on the moon messages from the leaders of 73 nations including Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada.

The astronauts are well aware that theirs is the most difficult and dangerous space flight ever undertaken. They must depend on the perfect meshing of the 15,000,000 parts that comprise their rocket and two spaceships.

A slight error in their descent could send Armstrong and Aldrin crashing to the moon. If their liftoff engine doesn't fire, they will remain stranded on the moon, with only enough oxygen for about 36 hours of life, and no rescue possible.

"The three of us have no fear of launching out on this expedition," Armstrong said. "... We have high confidence. Otherwise, we would not go."

Dr. Thomas Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, cautioned against overconfidence.

"We should never forget," he said, "that these are inherently risky missions, that the demands we are making on our astronauts and equipment are very high.

"Men are going into an area where no man has ever been before. There are unavoidable risks which we've taken every possible step to minimize. But you cannot eliminate them. Many hazards are still there."

For the first four days, Apollo 11 is to follow the translunar route travelled by the Apollo 10 pilots, two of whom swooped to within 50,000 feet of the surface in a lunar lander in May.

Then comes what Armstrong considers the riskiest part, the final descent toward the lunar landscape.

When the two ships are separated, they will use appropriate radio code names. Columbia for the command ship and Eagle for the lunar lander. As a symbol of the mission, the pilots have selected a drawing of an eagle flying to the moon, an olive branch of peace clutched in its talons.

At the 50,000-foot mark, 200 miles east of the landing spot, the two astronauts fire their descent engine to start down, tracking their course by looking at familiar landmarks they've memorized by careful study of lunar photographs.

Throttling the engine and hovering like a helicopter to select a smooth parking place, Armstrong sets the four-legged vehicle on the dusty soil with a slight bump.

The first thing the astronauts do is prepare the lunar module, or LM, for liftoff in case it has sustained damage on landing. Then they eat, rest four hours and don their moon walking suits and life-giving back packs.

Ten hours after landing, Armstrong opens the LM hatch and begins to step slowly down a nine-rung ladder. He pauses on the second rung and opens a compartment which contains a black and white television camera that will flash back to viewers on earth his momentous first step on the moon surface.

He first places his right foot in the dish-like foot pad of one of the legs and then plants size 9½ left foot on the moon.

Armstrong first tests his ability to walk and manoeuvre in his bulky space suit in the moon's unfamiliar one-sixth gravity field. He also snatches about two pounds of lunar soil to make certain the astronauts don't come back empty-handed in case they have to make an early takeoff.

After 20 minutes, Aldrin joins his companion on the moon. With a mounted TV camera relaying the scene to earth, they plant the American flag on an eight-foot staff and begin their exploration.

They gather between 60 and 90 pounds of rocks and soil samples and place them in triple-sealed boxes that contain the vacuum of the moon. They deploy three experiments to measure moonquakes, trap the gases of the solar wind and to serve as a laser-beam reflector in an effort to determine the distance from earth to moon within six inches.

They expect to explore within 100 feet of the LM, but if they find work on the moon easier than expected they may wander 300 feet or more away. Doctors on earth will monitor their conditions closely.

After 2½ hours outside, they return to the LM. At 1:55 p.m. Monday, they launch the cabin section of the vehicle, leaving behind the descent section with the landing legs.

After a 3½-hour rendezvous exercise, they catch and link up with the command ship and prepare for the journey home.

Robt. Goddard Played Wrights To Space Rocket

Harry F. Guggenheim, president and editor-in-chief of Newsday of Garden City, N.Y., was for many years a close friend and supporter of Dr. Robert H. Goddard, the father of modern rocketry. Goddard's research and experiments, many of which were supported by the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, paved the way for the Apollo project. In an article distributed by The Associated Press, Guggenheim reminisces on the impact of the little-known pioneer of space flight.

By HARRY F. GUGGENHEIM

NEW YORK (AP) — Our thoughts are crowded this week with the prospect of man's greatest space adventure, the courage of the astronauts who will make it, and the skill of thousands of scientists and engineers on whose efforts Apollo 11 will ride to the moon.

For some of us old enough to remember, the earliest attempts at flight in the United States, there is a special place in our thoughts today for Robert H. Goddard. He was to the moon rocket what the Wright brothers were to the airplane. Without him we might still be seeing the moon as early romancers did, "a ghostly galleon tossed upon cloudy seas," and not as another station in man's endless pursuit of the unknown.

Goddard was a physicist and professor at Clark University in Worcester, Mass., when I first heard of him.

Goddard began to experiment with small rockets as early as 1908. Eleven years later he published a paper entitled A Method of Reaching Extreme Altitudes, which espoused the theory that rocket power could lift a large payload to great heights if the rocket were designed to use its fuel effectively. He was careful to mention the possibility of lunar landings only casually, lest he frighten away potential sponsors. But despite his almost indifferent mention of the subject, the press seized upon the paper with gross exaggeration.

The headlines were all similar: "Modern Jules Verne inverts rocket to reach moon"; "Aim to reach moon with new rocket"; and "Savant invents rocket which will hit moon".

None of this was so, of course, but the effects were to cause Goddard considerable humiliation.

Goddard was not deterred. He continued his experiments without public attention and on March 16, 1926, launched the first liquid propelled rocket. It rose 41 feet and travelled 184 feet in 2.5 seconds.

The flight was so inconspicuous, however, that no one paid any attention. Goddard himself considered it a feat equivalent to the Wrights' first airplane flight.

Three years later, on July 17, 1929—almost 40 years to the day before Apollo 11 would take off for the moon—Goddard tried again. This time he had a model 11½ feet long, 25 inches wide, and weighing 35 pounds when empty. It rose 20 feet above the 60-foot launching tower, turned right, rose another 10 feet and then crashed to earth 171 feet away.

Goddard considered the experiment a success. But as he and his associates were surveying the scene, according to his biographer, Milton Lehman, "they heard the shriek of a siren."

"They looked up to see a police patrol car, two ambulances and a convoy of automobiles stopped in Aunt Effie's farmyard. Two policemen, perhaps expecting catastrophe, inspected the rural scene, saw the steel tower, and asked questions.

Neighbors were saying that an airplane had crashed and exploded."

Again Goddard was adrift in a sea of publicity.

But, ironically, that very publicity was to give him a new lease.

At that time, Charles A. Lindbergh was a guest in my home in Port Washington, N.Y. I had met him when he came to Roosevelt Field for his historic flight to Paris (from which, I anticipated, he would never return!). He did get back, much to my surprise, and subsequently became a consultant for the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics. This was a fund created by my father to promote research and education in aeronautics and to help encourage flying as a means of transportation. I was then the fund's administrator.

On this particular day, we were discussing the work of the fund, when Mrs. Guggenheim interrupted us to read aloud from the New York Times an item about a rocket exploding near Worcester, Mass., the day before. When the finished reading the fascinating account of the scientist and his problems with his neighbors, I suggested to Lindbergh that he visit this man Goddard in behalf of the fund and discuss his work.

Lindbergh did call and Goddard, quite surprised, invited him to come to Worcester.

From this meeting, Lindbergh returned impressed by the scientist and his ideas. We agreed that support should be obtained to underwrite Goddard's experiments,

Children Advise Astronauts

Take Along Record Player and Bricks

EDMONTON (CP) — Here's some last-minute advice to the moon astronauts: Don't forget your record players, and take along a pile of heavy bricks.

The advice comes from nine-year-olds in an Edmonton Grade 4. On the last day of school, teacher Lucy Ouellet asked them why they would like to go to the moon and what they'd do if they went.

"If I go to the moon," wrote Terry, "I would surely bring my records because there is a lot of dancing on the moon because there is no gravity."

"I would like to be the first woman on the moon so I could have a planet of my own," said Carol. "I would make a house of heavy bricks so it could stay on the moon and not fly around."

John said he wanted to eat some moon cheese. "Even though I hate cheese I still would enjoy it. I would ask the man in the moon where all the deep craters were and how you could get into them."

Part of the fun would be leaving home responsibilities behind, Helen pointed out.

"I would like to be the first person to the moon because then I wouldn't have to keep care of baby.

"I would bring a flag of Canada. And make a flag of the moon. And the designs will be a moon and me sitting on it. The moon would be yellow. I would be a stick lady and the sides would be black.

"I am The Greatest," she concluded.

Manuel also believes a flag is essential.

"I'd be the first to put the Canadian flag on top of the moon. Then the moon would be called Moon Canada."

I wonder if I would fall off the edge and fly to the other halls of cheese like a bird flying in outer space," said Benny.

"I'd like to go to the moon first just in case there's treasure or anything valuable," said Angela.

"If it were crowded I would jump down and float in space," decided Attilio.

"I would like to be the first woman astronaut on the moon because then I could get away from earth," said Karman.

"Then I would meet Venus and Saturn and I could examine planets of the moon. I would take with me a pet monkey so we could examine together."

Most of the nine-year-olds looked forward to meeting the man in the moon. Kathy wanted to float in the air and talk to him. "I could ask him what it's like up there. And go to the edge and look down and laugh at my classmates."

"Maybe I'll see him dance and sing—we could play games and float around in a ring," said Renata.

The advantages of moon life were obvious to Caterina: "I could be floating in air and win first prize in high jump.

"I wouldn't forget my camera or food supplies. The moon people would probably like to taste some of our food to see how well we cook. If I ever did bump into one I could learn moon language and be so smart I wouldn't have to go to school."

Cathy Ann saw possibilities for colonization.

"I would bring things to build houses and people would be able to come to the moon during summer holidays. I would rule the moon and lots of people will come. I will make a new language and have my own Saturn world."

Nadia decided the moon needs civilization.

"I think there might be living creatures up there. They would probably be friendly. I would like to have one of them for my pet. I could bring them back to earth and let others beside myself enjoy them.

"I would also bring food up there in case they don't have much to eat, but if they did not want to go to my planet I would not take them because they would miss their family, friends and people.

"I would build little houses for they would probably be homeless. I would also build schools and stores for them so they could also have conveniences like us."

To Robert, landing first on the moon means only one thing: Power.

"I would be Mayor of the Moon. When more people came I'd have something else to rule. There would be signs like this:"

Here he drew an astronaut and crater-pocked moon planted with placards:

"No teachers aloud.
"Women not aloud.
"Pretty girls aloud.
"No school."

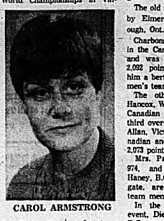
Carol Third At Halfway Mark

VICTORIA (CP-Staff) — Carol Armstrong of Belleville is currently in her third place behind record-setting Dorothy Lidstone of North Vancouver, B.C., and second place Virginia Parkhurst of West Vancouver at the halfway point in the 1969 Canadian Women's Archery championships.

Mrs. Lidstone, winner of the women's metric round Monday, added the Canadian women's freestyle title Tuesday with a brilliant 1,000 points, 56 more than the record previously held by defending champion Carol Armstrong of Belleville.



But the Belleville housewife can't be counted out — she has been Canadian champion for the past two years and holds the Canadian record in both of the remaining events — today's 30-target field event competition and Thursday's 30-target hunter round in which the first arrow counts.

In 1967 in Toronto Carol scored the Canadian record total of 554 out of a possible 600 in the 30-target hunter competition to bring home her first Canadian title.

Last year in the Canadian championships Carol set a new Canadian record by recording a score of 516 out of a possible 600 in the 30-target field event in which the targets are laid out at varying distances, much like the holes on a golf course.

Carol deserved a better fate Tuesday, she broke her own Canadian record in the free-style competition by eight points when she shot a 954, but she just placed third in the event.

Her 1,989 point total after the first two rounds leaves Carol in third place overall and ensures her of a place on the eight-member Canadian team which will compete in the World Championships in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania later this summer.

CAROL ARMSTRONG

Defending champion Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., and Dorothy Lidstone of North Vancouver, B.C. captured the over-all target event titles Tuesday in the Canadian archery championships and will head the eight-member Canadian team in the world championships at Valley Forge, Pa.

Jackson, edged by two points in Monday's metric distance event by Rosaire Charbonneau of Lorraine, Que., established a record of 996 points in winning the Canadian freestyle round Tuesday for a 2,185-point aggregate.

The old record of 958 was held by Elmer Ewart of Bamborough, Ont.

Charbonneau finished fourth in the Canadian event with 926 and was second over-all with 2,022 points, which also gave him a berth in the four-member men's team.

The other men are Elwin Hancox, Winnipeg, second in the Canadian round with 950 and third over-all at 2,086, and Cliff Allan, Victoria, third in the Canadian and fourth over-all with 2,073 points.

Mrs. Parkhurst, second with 974, and May Saunders of Haney, B.C., with a 1,984 aggregate, are the other women's team members.

In the women's bare bow event, Dien English of Merritt, B.C. won with 843, bettering the previous mark held by Priscilla Harkins of Sarnia, Ont., by 27 points.

Vrod Thauberger of Regina raised the junior bare bow total to 910 from th 853 by Alan Halton of Toronto, and Wanda Allan of Victoria lifted the junior girls bare bow mark to 806 from the 743 held by Joan Dunston of Branford, Ont.

Gaudaur Charges U.S. Leagues with Raiding

TORONTO (CP) — The commissioner of the Canadian Football League has charged that the two major United States leagues are raiding teams here.

Jake Gaudaur said in an interview Monday the number of players leaving the CFL for teams in the National and American football leagues is increasing at an alarming rate.

He said his U.S. counterpart, Pete Rozelle, also is concerned about the player raids.

"There's no doubt in the world that some of these players are being induced to play out their options," Gaudaur charged.

"In my view, it is not legally or morally right for a club to wave money in front of a player and suggest that he jump a legitimate contract. But this is exactly what is being done.

"I can tell you that Pete Rozelle agrees with me on this. And he has already brought our views before his owners."

But developing some type of formula for co-existence may not be easy, Gaudaur said.

"It's important to remember that the player has this basic right, to play a year under the option clause of his old contract so he can become a free agent. We in football brag about it so we'd better not temper with it.

"Thus the leagues aren't going to get together and make a clandestine deal to stop movement back and forth."

A player in his option year takes an automatic 10-per-cent cut in pay, and Gaudaur thinks U.S. teams are offering some of Canada's top players a cash guarantee to cover that reduction in return for moving to the U.S. the following season.

Gaudaur said seven players in Canada became free agents June 1 of last year. And the figures could be substantially higher in the future.

Such Canadiens stars as Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts, Margene Adkins and Vic Washington of Ottawa Rough Riders and Terry Evanshen of Calgary Stampeders have indicated they may play in the U.S. next season.

Gaudaur said the raiding is being done by only a few teams in the U.S.

Denver Broncos of the AFL, for example, had six players on their training camp roster who played in Canada last year—Pete Liske, Calgary Stampeders; Billy Ray Locklin, Ted Page and Bob Richardson, Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and Phil Brady and Bob Paremore, Montreal Alouettes.

Page has since been released.

Tigers Lose Despite Rare Round-the-Horn Triple Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Triple plays are rare but the one Detroit Tigers pulled on Washington Senators—the first in the American League this year—was even rarer, and it was witnessed by President Nixon.

Unfortunately for the Tigers, the Senators got more runs Tuesday night and won 7-3 for their fourth straight victory to move within a game of third place and in striking distance of second place in the American League's Eastern Division.

The victory, also was the second for the Senators in the five games attended by the president this year.

First-place Baltimore Orioles trimmed Cleveland Indians 5-1 behind right-hander Tom Phoebus and shot 14 games ahead of runner-up Boston Red Sox, who split a doubleheader at New York, winning 7-6 before bowing to the Yankees 4-1. Oakland Athletics topped Seattle Pilots 6-2 and California Angels beat Kansas City Royals 5-2 in other AL games.

The Minnesota-Chicago game was postponed because of wet grounds.

In the bottom of the fifth, the Senators had the bases loaded after scoring three runs when Detroit's Daryl Patterson came in to relieve Don McMahon.

McMahon's first pitch was hit by Ed Brinkman on the ground to third baseman Don Wert, playing in close to protect against the bunt.

Wert moved a couple of steps to third, stepped on the bag, wheeled and threw the ball to Ike Brown at second, who then relayed to first baseman Bill Freehan to end the inning.

Tim Cullen of the Senators hit his first homer of the season, a double and a single in four trips, driving in four runs and scoring twice.

The Orioles snapped a 1-1 fifth-inning tie on Andy Etchebarren's run-scoring single, then pulled out of reach on Boog Powell's two-run homer in the seventh, enabling Phoebus to coast to his ninth victory against two losses.

Reggie Smith drilled three singles and two doubles as the Red Sox took the opener from the Yanks despite homers by Joe Pepitone and Frank Fernandez. Smith singled his first time up in the nightcap for a string of six straight hits, but Stan Bahnsen stopped him thereafter on the way to a six-hitter.

23 Straight Payday Wins ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Payday in St. Loo; May-day in Cinci

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was payday in St. Louis and May-day in Cincinnati Tuesday.

Warmed by the cushion of freshly-drawn paycheques in their wallets, the Cardinals responded by battering Philadelphia pitchers for 17 hits and belting the Phils 8-2. It marked the 23rd consecutive time the Cardinals have won on a payday, a streak that extends back to August 1957.

Cincinnati's Lee May, who hits his home runs in bunches, had a bunch against Atlanta in a doubleheader, which the Reds split with the Braves.

May connected twice in each game and drove in 10 runs in the two games. The Braves won the opener 9-8 before the Reds salvaged the second game 10-4.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York Mets nipped Chicago Cubs 5-4, San Diego Padres rapped San Francisco Giants 10-3, Pittsburgh Pirates walloped Montreal Expos 9-3 and Houston Astros outlasted Los Angeles Dodgers 10-7.

Julian Javier, Curt Flood, Joe Torre and Mike Shannon each tagged three hits for St. Louis and rookie Chuck Taylor, making his first major league start, pitched the full game for the victory. Taylor also knocked in two runs.

May, who socked six homers in three consecutive games last May, tying a major league record, had two in each game against the Braves, including the first grand slam of his career.

He knocked in five runs in each game, raising his season totals to 27 homers and 73 runs batted in.

May's first-game performance was overshadowed by Atlanta's Bob Aspromonte, who pinch-hit a single in the eighth inning and then smacked a three-run homer in the ninth inning that gave the Braves their victory. Hank Aaron hit his 534th career homer for Atlanta, tying him with Jimmy Foxx for fourth place on the all-time list.

Instructional Program Revives Tennis Enthusiasm

By TOM DONOGHUE
Staff Reporter

A dormant interest in tennis has been suddenly revived in the Belleville area. How?

The city recreation department has undertaken a program of organized instruction to revive local interest in the sport and in the past few years has increased the number of facilities available to tennis buffs.

"We have 11 courts spread throughout the city at five different locations and this increase now allows city residents to play tennis on a regular basis for the first time," said the assistant recreation director, Cliff Belch.

At the moment there are four courts at the Quinte Tennis Club, two at St. Andrew's Church, two at Zwick's Island, one at Moira Secondary School and the possibility of two more at Quinte Secondary School.

The city also provides organized instruction twice a week under the supervision of Ann Thompson. At the moment there are 100 students taking the free lessons from Ann.

"We have some of the youngest players in the area at the club. Some are only seven or eight years old," says Ann, "but they are very good."

The hope of the recreation department is to build up the number of young players which will, as the years pass, provide a strong base for tennis in Belleville.

"The adults seem to be looking for recreation, Ann said, "those who are in the classes — 35-40 in all — are very conscientious and have a real desire to learn. But the problem with the adults is that it is hard for many of them to come out because of their work."

The Quinte Tennis Club has just been taken over by the city because of tax difficulties and has been included in the program the city is now co-ordinating.

Free classes run by the city are divided into two sessions. The first ends at the close of July with the second term starting at the beginning of August. This will allow those who could not be included in the first session to take the lessons in the second.

Ann started to play tennis at the age of 15 merely as a past time. After a number of games she found great satisfaction from hitting the ball over the net. "This", says Ann, "is why I believe tennis is really catching on. People come out and practise for hours and are completely satisfied when they get it over the net just a few times".

Tournaments are the best thing for a player because this offers a chance to play other people and see the many different styles, according to Miss Thompson. She feels that there are many people who play with the same opponent for years and as a result they do not improve, but stagnate."

"The results of our work will not really begin to show themselves for the next three or four years. The foundation must be built up first and then we will see the true results," Ann concluded.

Watch Closely

Ann Thompson shows the all important grip to two of her students, Lynne Woodley, 14, and Maida LeBaron, 11. They are among the 180 students in Ann's tennis classes which are held during the week under the sponsorship of the recreation department.

30 Accept Invitations

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuters) — Thirty countries, including Canada, have already accepted invitations to compete in the ninth British Commonwealth Games, which take place here next summer, Games chairman Sir Herbert Brechin told a press conference Tuesday. An estimated 1,800 competitors and officials will be in Scotland for the Games which begin on June 15, 1970, and 42 countries have been invited to take part, he said.

Gaudaur Warns of Threat Posed by Cable Television

TORONTO (CP) — Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League said Tuesday that cable television could destroy his league.

"It is our most serious problem," he said in an interview. "It would ruin us."

The commissioner said the CFL is negotiating with television networks to remove seven Ottawa Rough Rider games from stations in Peterborough and Kingston, feeders for the cable hook-ups in Ottawa.

Cable television circumvents the blackout which is considered vital to football. Home games usually are not televised in the club's own area but cable subscribers are furnished signals outside the blackout radius and attendance thus declines.

Officials of the Rough Riders have blamed cable television for the fact they lost money last season.

"We're asking for this additional blackout (in the Ottawa area) for just this one year while somebody decides what is in the public interest in this whole situation," Gaudaur said. "We're asking for only 17½ hours out of the hundreds of hours of free programming taken out of the air by cable people."

The CFL stated its case to the Canadian Radio-television Commission last winter and the response was that the league, the two television networks and the cable television officials should work out the problem themselves.

It's New... It's at Canadian Tire

Why is everyone so excited about — POLYESTER GLASS BELTED TIRES?

And why are the supposedly "penny-pinching" car manufacturers glad and willing to pay up to probably around $10.00 to $20.00 extra to get Polyester, Glass on their new 1970 automobiles? There just must be some very good reasons. And could it just be some of these very good reasons listed below...

- 1-½ to 2 times more treadwear — because treads don't squirm and grind-off the rubber
- More than 2 times stronger — than required to meet Government Safety Standards
- Smoother, easier rolling. — acting like hoops, actually save up to 1 gallon of gas in every 10

- HIGH SPEED STABILITY
- IMPROVED STEERING
- MORE EFFICIENT BRAKING
- FASTER GET-AWAY
- REDUCED AQUAPLANING and much, much more

Merchants Win 19-16 In Trenton

Only 85 spectators were on hand at the Trenton Community Gardens Tuesday night to see the Quinte Merchants record their fourth win of the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior "A" season.

Tuesday night's win moved the Merchants to within two points of fourth place Bramalea Excelsiors in the five-team OLA Senior "A" loop and left the club with a record of 4 wins and 14 losses in 18 games to date.

The Merchants defence was a trifle porous, allowing 16 goals, but the Merchants offence clicked well and counted 19 goals — the team's highest single-game goal production this season.

Thursday night the Merchants will play host to the Brantford Warriors in an 8.30 p.m. game at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Loblaws

New Look

the more you buy at Loblaws... the more you save!

Dear Hilda

People have more time to do things in the summer—more time to shop —and more time to write letters judging from the many I have received in the last couple of weeks. Here are a few excerpts:

Dear Hilda:
As a consumer, I am interested in getting the best quality at the lowest price consistent with satisfactory service. Mr. H.

Dear Mr. H.
Well said! Your words should be the slogan of every consumer. What you are "interested in getting" is exactly what we at Loblaws are interested in giving.

Dear Hilda:
Many thanks for your kind attention to my letter. It is good of you to take time to write me, and I assure you we will always be Loblaw shoppers. Appreciative Customer

Dear A.C.
I answer every letter and sometimes spend hours digging into questions to make sure I come up with the right answers. We hope our customers benefit from our answers as much as we benefit from their suggestions.

Hilda Wilson
DIRECTOR OF CONSUMER RELATIONS

If you have a shopping problem, a suggestion or a complaint, Hilda wants to hear from you. Write to her at Loblaw Groceterias Co., Limited, 290 Front St., Belleville.

Beliveau Would Play Sans Pay

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens says he wants so badly to re-establish Canada's hockey supremacy he would play Russia without pay.

And most other players in the National Hockey League feel the same way, he said in an interview while attending the 50th anniversary of a London industry this week.

But Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, who was here Tuesday as a "sports consultant" for a department-store chain, expressed surprise that Beliveau would make the suggestion, indicating he would not follow suit.

Beliveau said the last 10 years of international competition have been "pretty rough" on Canada, but not so rough that Canada should consider withdrawing from competition.

"Even if we lose under the present conditions, it is still better that we play.

"For me, and I feel for all the players in the NHL, I would be willing to play the Russians or any other European team at any time ..... and not for money either."

But he held little hope for the success of present attempts by Canada's hockey hierarchy to arrange a game or series and rejected the idea of a single-game showdown with Russia.

"Until they settle the problem of professionals with the International Ice Hockey Federation, there's not much chance of the pros playing Russia.

"But if they should settle the differences . . . I'd like very much to play and so would most of the National Hockey League players."

In a single game "anything can happen."

I don't think it would prove much.

I think the fairest test would be for the Russians to play every team in the National League one game. Let them play Toronto and see how they adjust to the defensive style of play. Then let them play Boston where the emphasis would be hitting and skating . . . then let them play Canadiens in a skating game.

"Let them play a game in Montreal then get on a plane for New York and then another one for Los Angeles, then another one for Toronto. Let them play four or five games in five or six nights in different cities with different food, hotels, and living conditions."

"I think that would be the fairest test."

Howe said in an interview that last year's final between Montreal and St. Louis was antiticimactic to the great Montreal-Boston semi-final series.

His suggested solution: the top four teams in each division should play divisional semi-finals as at present, but then the divisions should cross-cross, with the two winners in the east meeting their western counterparts.

Everything Topsy-Turvy

City Once Again Tied for Top Spot

A leadoff homer by Pug Kellar — the game's first batter—ignited a four-run first inning rally Tuesday night enabling City Hotel to down Belvedere 4-2 and move into a tie for top spot with Stinson's Construction in the first game of the Commercial Softball League doubleheader at Alemite ball park.

Meanwhile a man who's on top of the play much of the time and a man who's usually quite a distance from it combined to power Corby's Distillery to a 7-3 win over Black Diamond Cheesemen in the nightcap of Tuesday's Commercial loop doubleheader.

Kellar's circuit clout set the tone for City's four-run first inning outburst in which the Hotelmen sent eight men to the plate. Larry Fisher's two-run triple was the big blow, while Doug Murray contributed an r.b.i. single and Tom Coolen also hit safely.

Belvedere got one run back in the bottom of the first frame on Bob Smith's solo homer and added a second run in the fourth on a pair of errors and Doug Rose's run-scoring single, but could manage only six hits off City lefthander Bob Ethier.

Ethier threw third strikes past 11 batters and issued three free passes while Belvedere hurlers Larry Burley and Wayne McConnell gave up eight hits, fanned seven and walked three.

For the winners Kellar had a pair of singles in addition to his homer and Ethier and Bob Mayety also hit safely.

Smith with his homer and a single, Lyle Wannamaker with a pair of base hits and Gary Gow and Rose with singles accounted for the loser's plate production.

City is now tied, at 22 points, with Stinson's for first place, but the Builders have a game in hand over the Hotelmen. At the other end of the league Belvedere is tied with Black Diamond for the sixth and seventh spots.

CORBY'S DIST. 7
BLACK DIAMOND 2

Catcher Larry Mavety who's on top of the action most of the time and right fielder Gerry McMillan, who has to wait for the action to come to him, clubbed six hits off Cheesemen hurlers Don and Sonny Holoway.

Mavety slammed a homer and a pair of singles and added a walk in four trips to the plate while McMillan clubbed a homer, triple and single in four at-bats. Both players drove in a run and scored a pair of runs apiece.

Lefthander Grant Collet took advantage of Corby's nine-hit attack and scattered seven hits over the seven inning distance. He walked a pair and struck out one man.

Cheeseman starter Don Holoway and reliever Sonny Holoway surrendered nine hits while fanning seven and walking seven. The loss left the Cheesemen tied in a tie for sixth spot with Belvedere Hotel. Both teams have won five games and lost 12.

Ross Empey with a three-bagger and Chuck Rowbotham and Collet with run-scoring singles also hit safely for Corby's who moved to within two games of .500 and within four points of fourth place Point Anne.

Rick Denard topped the Cheesemen at the plate with three singles and a pair of r.b.i.s, while Bill Goodfellow doubled and Jack Francis, Martin Walsh and Sonny Holoway each singled.

Laver Wins Fourth Straight U. S. Pro Title

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Australia's Rod Laver, the undisputed king of World tennis, won his fourth straight United States pro championship and fifth in six years by overpowering fellow countryman Tony Newcombe, 7-5, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 Tuesday night before a standing-room crowd of 5,500.

The 30-year-old Laver, in a final tune-up before taking a brief vacation and then seeking a grand slam in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., next month, repeated his four-set victory at Wimbledon against Newcombe in winning his ninth tournament this year.

Laver needed just over two hours to earn top prize money of $8,000 on the synthetic court installed especially for the $33,000 tournament.

"It's been a great hunting ground here," said Laver, who won his first U.S. pro title in 1964 and surrendered it to Australia's Ken Rosewall for one year before hunching his current reign.

"Let's face it, he's too good," Newcombe said in praising Laver.

Easy Win Helps Turbos Widen Gap

The first place Turbos stretched their lead over the nearest rivals, the Combines, to eight points as they downed the Post Office 10-4 in a Department League Softball game Tuesday night.

Brian Plumb was the winning pitcher while George Johnson took the loss for the Posties.

The Turbos enjoyed an early 7-1 lead but had to hold off a stronf rally which threatened to cost them the game.

No game report was submitted to the Intelligencer by the home club

When woman first discovered washing clothes through water beats beating them against a rock, man tried to discover a better way to move clothes through water. But clothes didn't move. They dragged. So while others were dragging, Maytag was dillyowning. In 1922 Maytag introduced the Gyrafoam. It moved water through clothes, not clothes through water. In refined terms, it's called the Power-Fin Agitator. Where all Maytag washability begins.
All Maytag Dryers are Maytag Main-Stream Dryers. That's the name that identifies Maytag dryers only. The dryers with the gentle, tumbling circle that keeps every Maytag dryer operating with a heavy misture content. Your clothes never get so hot that you can't touch them. They never get baked or overdried. Air, not heat, is the biggest thing about drying. The flow of the air is what makes the difference between fast drying and slow drying. And direct air flow is the big thing about all Maytag dryers. The air flowing through the drum, works like a team with the circle of heat. The air flows directly through the clothes. It's this method that dries. Four circulation breeds fast drying. Maytag circulation assures even your cabinet is insulated by the cooling air. The air in cools the inside. Only warm air going through means no hot spots in delicate fabrics.

Police Divers Gear Up

Const. Robert Thomas of the Belleville Police Force gets a hand in donning his wet suit, used in winter-time dives. Other members of the new city police scuba diving team are Al Kirby, John Walker and William Stephenson, surface man. Recently purchased equipment, and trained personnel will permit the city police to extend their vigilance to the depths of the Moira and the Bay of Quinte.

City Police Adapt to Environment; Extend Scope of Activity Underwater

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville is a water-oriented city, with the Moira River flowing through it at the Bay of Quinte lying at its southern boundary.

So the city police force is extending its jurisdiction underwater.

This summer it became the smallest police department in Canada to operate a scuba-diving section.

"Police work is changing rapidly today," says city Police Chief Douglas Crosbie. "We have to be prepared to go where the trouble is, and with so much water on Belleville's doorstep, that's often underwater."

A four-man section is now ready to dive in the line of duty. Robert Thomas and John Walker are qualified police divers. Al Kirby is now in training, and William Stephenson, a former Navy diver, acts as surface man for the other three.

"Bob Thomas came to us from the Ottawa police department as a qualified police diver," the chief says. "Since police divers follow the buddy system — they must work in pairs — it seemed a shame to waste his talents when they are so badly needed here. So he trained Walker, who was qualified by the Ottawa department this year."

The Ottawa police operate a diving school for police officers, and qualify selected candidates from other police forces in the province.

The divers' equipment is kept at headquarters, in specially-designed boxes ready to be put in a cruiser and dispatched to the scene of the dive at a moment's notice.

The men on the team receive no special compensation for their services — they offer their special skills over and above the regular line of duty.

Police divers find their services utilized mainly for two purposes, Const. Thomas says.

They search for evidence of crimes and they recover the bodies of drowning victims.

The city's team has been used twice so far this summer — once in a search of the government dock for guns believed jettisoned by the Coronation bank robbers, and the drowning of a Toronto boy at the seasonal dam near Riverside park.

"The old method of dragging for bodies has pretty well been abandoned," Const. Thomas says. "When personnel is available, diving is more efficient. By following police search patterns we almost always recover the object of our search, even though it may seem to the public that we take a long time doing it."

Murky waters hamper diving operations, but Const. Thomas finds local waters much clearer than those he was used to in the Rideau at Ottawa.

Underwater lights are mounted on the lowing bar to which the two divers cling with one hand as they carry out their underwater sweeps.

Each divers' equipment weighs about 90 pounds and his tank holds enough air to allow him to stay underwater for an hour. The men can go down 133 feet, but locally expect most dives will be in about 15 feet of water.

"We are fortunate here to have the services of the Quinte Aqua Divers club to call on for chasing tanks and similar assistance," says Chief Crosbie.

The Ontario Provincial Police detachment here also have divers, and the city force can use the rescue boat operated by La Salle Ambulance, the fire department's boat and the crash boat owned by Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Suddenly, This Family Has 13 Dogs!

Duchess, year-old German shepherd had more than one surprise yesterday for the St. John Brown household at RR 5, Belleville. She had 11 of 'em — all in the same litter. Here she proudly places maternal paw over litter while owner Hilary Brown, 14, holds one of the new offspring up for inspection. Being nonchalant about the whole business was litter's sire, Duke, who didn't even bother to pose for family portrait, despite major role in event. New arrivals leave Brown family with 13 canines, although Hilary says she plans eventually to sell the pups.

Heraldry Important to Board

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Medieval knights had their coats-of-arms, regiments their color, and now the Hastings county board of education has its own logogram.

The logo, a modern device to ensure instant recognition of an organization, is an identifying symbol in direct line of descent from the ritual trappings of earlier ages.

Now even school boards are adopting distinctive symbols for use on advertisements, letterheads and literature.

The starkly modern "H" logo chosen by the Hastings board shows the two vertical arms of the letter in neutral circles, joined by a straight horizontal bar. It has appeared recently in board newspaper advertisement and is now being printed on board letterheads.

"One of the important problems facing the new board was identity," chairman James Clarke said. "The logogram is part of this, an identifiable symbol to demonstrate we are one unified organization now."

Mr. Clarke and director of education Eric Runacres were responsible for the H symbol.

"We wanted a simple, easily recognized design," he said "so we began with the H for Hastings and modified the letter along modern lines."

The H, the chairman said, features series of pairs, deconstructed Hastings County's approach to education in a contemporary society.

"The two vertical arms joined by a horizontal bar, symbolize the bringing together of the elementary and secondary schools under one system." The horizontal bar also symbolizes the compunication line between teachers and parents, and between the schools and the public.

You Said It!

Today's forum for public opinion deals with population explosion. The feature is designed to provide a forum for Quinte area residents to express their views. Opinions expressed by the contributors to You Said It are not necessarily those of the publisher.

By ERNST KNEISEL

The central theme of the recent Stratford Seminar on Civic Design was New Towns for Old. The major speeches have been reported at some length by Kenneth Smith of the Globe and Mail; it is not my intention to repeat his article, but rather to discuss the basic fact which leads to the controversy about new towns: the fantastic growth in world population.

World population has been growing at a dramatic rate since the mid-nineteenth century, and this has been regarded as a matter for self-congratulation. Like figures on national wealth and national income, figures on population have been expected to grow every year; a let-up in growth has been taken as a sign of backwardness or stagnation.

Now, however, there are alarming signs that the number of human beings on the earth is approaching the limit of its capacity to sustain life. Water and air pollution on a global scale are already familiar problems, rapidly increasing in gravity. And what might be called land pollution now threatens the vast metropolitan areas around New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, London, and even Toronto.

The obvious causes of this tremendous population growth are: birth rates have increased; infant mortality has decreased; and life spans are longer. These trends can be explained by scientific and technological advances in the fields of medicine and agriculture.

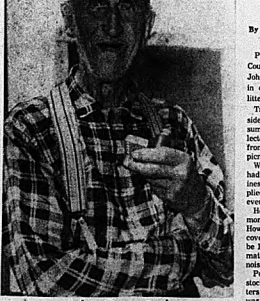
They are trends so strong that not even the higher incidence of traffic deaths and the attrition of many continuing wars have any significant effect on the overall growth rate of population.

The pattern of demographic growth gives some idea of the enormous pressures the world is now experiencing. From 6,000 B.C. to 1961 A.D. the population grew from 250 million people to three billion. In the 27 years to 2,000 A.D. the world population will double to six billion.

ERNST KNEISEL

The impact of this rapid rise in population is most severe on the world's large cities, for along with the overall global increase in population there is also a very substantial shift of rural population to the urban areas.

It is hard to overestimate the social costs of the crowding and burgeoning of older urban centres. They can be reckoned in terms of insanity, riots, crime and general misery, as well as tax levels, which are approaching the point of destroying the incentive to work or to own property.



What can we do about this in Canada? The Provincial Government has already attempted to curb the growth of our large cities by encouraging the dispersion of industry — away from the Toronto area and toward such smaller centres as Belleville. At the national level, it would seem reasonable to take steps toward slowing the overall rise in Canada's population to a rate of growth we can cope with.

The examples of other countries are before us: Japan has very successfully cut its birth rate by an educational program. Mexico, and now Switzerland, have reached some conclusions about the maximum population they can support, and have proceeded to place limits on immigration.

Thomas Malthus was far ahead of his time when, in the last century, he forecast that the world's population would one day outpace its resources. That forecast must now be taken seriously — and for reasons even more pressing than the shortage of food which he predicted.

Any nation can take steps to avoid the disasters that have already stricken many of the over-populated portions of the globe. We in Canada still have time.

Bottles Make John 'King of the Road'

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward County's "King of the Road," John Baverstock is sponsored in daily walkathons by local litterbugs.

Tramping the highways and sideroads of the county all summer, the 76 year old "collector" gathers bottles tossed from cars or left behind by picnickers.

When asked how long he had been in the bottle business Mr. Baverstock replied, "I have been doing it ever since I can remember."

He sets out in the early morning and walks all day. How much ground does he cover? "I figure I travel maybe 15 or 20 miles a day," estimated the elderly glass connoisseur.

Periodically Mr. Baverstock relocates the headquarters of his operations. Picton was his home for a number of years. He spent the past winter in Cressy, welcomed staying at a home in Black Creek, and currently lives in a scrap metal factory in Bloomfield.

Mr. Baverstock rents two rooms in the factory. Outside his door, among piles of scrap is his bottle wagon.

Commented the bottle collector, "I don't use the wagon anymore. It's easier to carry two boxes for the empties and I can get a ride a lot faster without the cart."

How lucrative is the bottle trade? John Baverstock proudly recalled making over $100 in a week once.

But there are slack periods too. After a recent holiday weekend Mr. Baverstock admitted that he had trudged from Bloomfield to Salmon Point, a distance of about 15 miles, collecting only eight bottles en route.

"The bottles ain't throwed out like they used to be," lamented the elderly gentleman.

"It's no good to look for them on the highways. Cross roads is where they are," said Mr. Baverstock knowingly.

In his opinion anti-littering campaigns combined with increased police vigilance have reduced the number of empties thrown on the roads.

When soft drink bottlers switched from bottles to cans Mr. Baverstock's business suffered.

"I don't bother with pop bottles now because their ain't no money in them," he reported.

Mr. Baverstock declared that empty beer bottles constitute the backbone of his business. The returns on these empties provide the old gentleman with an income to supplement his pension.

Each winter John Baverstock vacations. At the first sign of spring he becomes the happy wanderer, walking the roads of Prince Edward, his eyes always to the ditches where the bottles lie.

Debate Rages On

Opposition Shows No Signs of Giving In Over Bill 75C

OTTAWA (CP) — The House of Commons remained locked Tuesday in a gruelling rules debate that shows no signs of coming to an early end.

An aroused opposition, evidently dug in for a prolonged battle against a government move to assume power to fix time limits on House debates, threw a succession of speakers into the fray.

It promised there would be many more to come.

The parade was led by Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), who in a speech that had members of all three opposition parties pounding their desks in gleeful applause, denounced the government for "the ultimate in demagoguery."

The administration's philosophy was power for power's sake, at any price, "even if they have to cut the throat of the opposition."

The government's reply to the opposition onslaught took the form of a proposal by Liberal backbencher Hyfard Chappell (Peel) that the government and official Opposition together be empowered to allocate debating time.

As the debate raged on, members from both the government and opposition benches spoke openly inside and outside the House of cancelled vacation plans. Conservative speakers referred repeatedly—to the applause of their colleagues—to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield's statement Monday that the opposition is prepared to fight the government rules motion indefinitely.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley) told the House he resented "being kept here to prove a point for the government House leader"—Privy Council President Donald Macdonald.

"But I'm prepared to stay here all summer to debate this rule."

The rules debate was in its sixth day Tuesday. The Commons has already sat 2½ weeks beyond its scheduled summer-adjournment date of June 27.

The House is considering a three-part government package. Rule 75A would provide for all-party agreement on debate-time limits, 75B for three-party agreement, and 75C for unilateral government allocation of time.

The opposition generally endorses the first two parts of the package. It stoutly rejects the third part.

Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Abitibi) said 75C would abolish the opposition. The Liberals were not elected to form a dictatorship, he said.

Mr. Alexander said the government forces in the House were "lining up" on the idea that they have a mandate to govern.

The opposition too had received a mandate, he maintained. It was to criticize constantly, probe government actions, be responsible and defend the rights of the people—a mandate that implies a future role as the government of Canada.

"And don't sell that last one short."

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre) charged that the proposed rule 75C was an effort by the Trudeau administration to emasculate Parliament.

BC Industrialist at Home

Industrialist Ben Ginter relaxes with his wife on steps of their palatial home in Prince George, B.C. The $300,000 mansion features laminated Japanese butterflies in the ceiling, an indoor waterfall and a front yard full of bulldozers, dump trucks and other equipment. The 46-year-old former catskinner is one of the most controversial rags-to-riches characters in Canada.

Lower Wheat Prices in Offing; Policy Announced Shortly: Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Government policy on wheat will be announced "very shortly," Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Tuesday in response to mounting pressure from the opposition.

Mr. Sharp indicated that lower export prices for the 1968-69 crop year, which ends in two weeks, can be expected.

"When our competitors lower their prices, we must meet the competition," he said.

A motion by Opposition Leader Robert L. Stanfield to have the situation referred to the Commons standing committee on agriculture was rejected, as was a move by Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) to hold an emergency debate on it.

Prime Minister Trudeau was in Winnipeg, conferring with the Canadian wheat board, as the matter dominated the question period for the second day. Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin also was in Winnipeg.

Mr. Pepin has told the Commons that a meeting of five major wheat exporters in Washington last week may have averted a disastrous price collapse.

He said International Grains Arrangement prices have been suspended. As a result, Canadian and U.S. wheat prices probably would decrease while European and Australian prices might increase.

In Washington, an agriculture department official said U.S. export prices will be lowered "enough to meet competition."

The official said the U.S. price adjustment is expected this week.

In the Commons, Mr. Stanfield referred to reports that quality Canadian wheat may drop by 20 to 25 cents a bushel. The IGA floor price has been $1.98½ a bushel.

Mr. Stanfield said there is an unprecedented surplus, a critical cash shortage among western farmers, a fall-off in Prairie retail sales, and a resulting "serious threat to the Prairie economy."

Mr. Gleave said the entire western economy is in "unprecedented danger." He said that unless the taxpayer comes to the aid of the farmer, the farmer will go bankrupt.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Mr. Sharp were pressed by Conservatives and New Democrats about whether special measures are planned. NDP Leader T. C. Douglas asked whether farmers will be paid on the basis of the IGA floor price.

"So far as I know, it is not the intention to fix the initial price at the moment under the IGA," Mr. Sharp replied. "That international agreement unfortunately is not working as we would like it to."

Mr. Douglas noted U.S. plans to "meet the wheat price war" by subsidizing farmers. Would Canada do the same?

Mr. Sharp said Canada has often protested the heavy U.S. subsidies because they are "inimical to the interests of our western farmers."

Buffalo Youths Forfeit Riot Bail

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont. (AP) — Warrants for the arrest of seven Buffalo, N.Y., youths were sworn out Tuesday when they failed to appear in court on charges of taking part in a riot.

The youths, ranging in age from 16 to 21, were among 47 arrested Saturday after a brawl in this Lake Erie resort town between two rival gangs of youths.

The seven forfeited bail of $250 each.

The other 40 appeared in court here and nearby Ridgeway on charges which included carrying concealed weapons, causing a disturbance and taking part in a riot. All but one were remanded to appear again July 31 and on seven dates in August.

Victor Walls of Crystal Beach pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and was fined $175 or 45 days in jail.

Ralph Rochon, 18, of Chippawa, Ont., also pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and was fined $150. He still faces a second charge of causing a disturbance as well as a charge of taking part in a riot.

Of the accused, 15 were still in jail Tuesday night after they were unable to raise bail ranging from $200 to $750.

Police said that of those arrested, 14 were from Canada and the others from Buffalo.

The seven for whom warrants have been issued are Ralph Vanmeer, Anthony Gugino, Jack Kilkoyne, Donald Kelly, Richard Brennan Jr., Margaret M. Tersegno and Judy M. Tomasula.

Intolerance Criticized

Spanish, Italian Text Books Under Fire

ROME (AP) — Spanish and Italian public school books used in teaching the Roman Catholic religion have come under heavy fire for being hostile toward Judaism, Protestantism and other non-Catholic faiths.

An analysis of the book printed in a 325-page study under the auspices of the Sperry Centre for Inter-Group Co-operation, was made by four well-known scholars.

They are Otto Klineberg, A German-born professor of social psychology at the Sorbonne University in Paris; Tullio Tentori, professor of anthropology at Rome University and two professors at Rome's Pro Deo Free International University of Social Studies—Franco Crespi and Vincenzo Felippone-Taudiero, both Italians.

Entitled Religion and Prejudice, the analysis found that Italian textbooks considered the Catholic religion as "the sole one having theoretical and practical requisites to be a true religion and the only faith depository of divine revelation."

The books, the analysis said, "present Judaism in the darkest light . . . (and) use vindictive language displaying particular resentment against Jews as Christ's murderers. They contain racial prejudices."

Italian books interpret the destruction of Jerusalem as "an act of divine vengeance (against Jews) for Christ's crucifixion."

"Christ threatens and almost seems to be happy for the misfortunes of the Jewish people," the analysis said.

The authors found 167 "negative remarks" about Judaism and only 36 "positive evaluations" regarding the Jews.

On the positive side, they said, were some books which indicate that not Jews but mankind as a whole was responsible for Christ's death. These books also said the Jews acted out of ignorance and they underlined the pardon given by Christ to his killers.

Of the 81 "negative evaluations" against Protestantism contained in the text books, the analysis said, "there were some of particular violence, especially against Luther and Calvin —evaluation lacking historical faithfulness."

The analysis also said there is a trend in the textbook to compare Catholicism with what they call "inferior religions."

The analysis said Spanish textbooks contained 136 "negative evaluations" and 90 "positive remarks" on Judaism while there were 34 "negative remarks" and 11 "positive" regarding Protestantism.

On the negative side about Jews, the analysis said, Spanish textbooks contained numerous references to the expulsion of Jews from Spain in the 15th century.

The Jews were accused of having helped the Arabs to invade the Iberian Peninsula.

The scholars say:

"The expulsion is justified in the Spanish textbooks by the need for saving the unity of the nation and its Catholic integrity. To this theme, the textbooks added the need to establish the Inquisition to control cases of apostasy of converted Jews who did so to prevent expulsion from the country."

The study added:

"It would be highly interesting to extend the confrontation to Roman Catholic textbooks in England, Germany, Holland and other nations to obtain a more complete picture either by national or individual differences in the interpretation of Catholicism."

Bet Shop Still Operates

OSHAWA (CP) — Unless ordered to do so by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck of Ontario County will not prosecute the operator of an if-track betting shop in Oshawa.

Mr. Affleck said Tuesday it would be too difficult to accumulate evidence that the shop is requiring its customers to pay 50 cents for a racing form every time they place a bet to be carried to the track. He said the device—which attempts to get around a new amendment to the Criminal Code designed to outlaw the shops—is technically legal if purchase of the racing form is optional. The amendment makes it illegal for an off track betting service to be remunerated for its services.

Antibiotic Patent Said Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government charged two leading drug companies Tuesday with obtaining a patent for the antibiotic tetracycline by fraud, and asked them for $25,000,000 in damages.

A three-count civil complaint, filed in U.S. District Court here, accused Chas. Pfizer and Co., Inc., and American Cyanamid Co. of making false statements to the U.S. patent office.

Five other drug companies were named as defendants.

Tetracycline is the largest selling broad-spectrum antibiotic in the U.S. Its sales exceed $100,000,000 a year in dosage form at the manufacturer's level.

The government charged: Pfizer got the tetracycline patent on Jan. 11, 1955, by making false statements.

The five other drug companies named as defendants were Bristol-Myers Co., Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., Squibb Beech-Nut Inc., E. R. Squibb and Sons Inc., and the Upjohn Co.

BY THE ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE

Driving in Europe is not really difficult. Driving in big cities, especially London, Paris and Rome, is quite hazardous but once you are on the highway it's no different than here.

Border crossing usually doesn't take more than 10 min. Many major roads are every bit as good as highway 401, and there are fewer cars to contend with.

Every major border crossing has a currency exchange office where you can exchange the money you have from the country you have visited into the currency of the land you are entering. Britain's motorways (Marked M1, etc. on maps) are also as good as our expressways or throughways, though secondary roads in Britain and Wales are generally narrower and inferior to those in the rest of Western Europe. Count on doing an average of 15 miles an hour less on them than you would on a double-laned highway in Ontario.

If you are driving through many different countries in Europe you should get an International Driving License League. These cost $9 and need an up-to-date driver's license and two passport photos. These are not compulsory, however, in the British Isles. You should also buy a European road guide and maps.

The price of gasoline varies quite a bit. Britain's prices are shocking, as much as $1 US cent a gallon in some remote regions. In Yugoslavia on the other hand, it is much cheaper than North America, as little as 30 cents a gallon.

Here are a few tips: Rent a small car for driving in Britain. This will use less gasoline and it will be easier to get used to driving on the wrong side of the road. Be sure you get a marked city map with an exact direction regarding exits from London and Paris. You will need a co-pilot to watch for turn-off points as it will keep you busy fending off the drivers, especially in Paris. Since horn-honking has been banned in Paris the French driver gets his greatest pleasure from slamming on his brakes.

You can rent a car in one city and drop it off in another but make sure you know the costs involved before doing this. Often there's no charge if you leave a rental car in a major city in the same country as that in which you leased it, but if you leave it in a drop-off point in another country, there is usually a charge of around $25 and there are some European (Eastern) countries where you can't drop off a rental car. Plan your trips so you can reach your destination early in the evening, before the accommodation is all gone.

Astronauts Are Fine Geologists

HOUSTON (AP) — Two of the moon-bound astronauts have won high marks as geologists.

A prime scientific mission for astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin on Apollo 11 is to bring home as much as 120 pounds of moon rocks.

What they pick could be a priceless treasure telling much about the origin and history of the moon and perhaps the earth.

In preparation, they've become "much better than just amateur geologists," Dr. John Dietrich, a geologist at the Manned Spacecraft Centre who helped train the pair, said in an interview.

"They won't be like someone picking up interesting or pretty rocks or shells at the seashore," he said: "They'll know what they're doing. To a geologist, one kind of moon material can have 10 different colors. The significance in color is what else the rock is combined with. We want back a variety of different types of rocks, if they are available."

Armstrong and Aldrin have spent the equivalent of 150 hours of classroom instruction in geology, said Dietrich.

This week's "penny-pincher" is a real value.

It's no secret that the price of some fresh meats are higher this year... in particular beef and pork. So poultry represents your most economical meat buy and it's great eating too! This week the meatmen are offering plump, succulent turkey at a real, penny-pinching price. Try this very versatile meal-maker ...oven roasted, cut up in a casserole, fried or fricasseed or, for a real taste treat, barbecued in your backyard.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"A table near an electric outlet, please."

MR. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

"I wonder how dogs like that sec."

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For July 17

Your birthday today: This year is going to engender a little too much in many respects. It is up to you to determine the direction and the extent of excess, and even more important, the conversion of chaotic pressures into positive results. Today's natives are usually patient, interested in occult experience and possess theatrical talent.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today nobody seems willing to hear from you; make allowances. You will be happy if you force no issue, and if you do.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Co-operation is upset today by emotional strain. Learn to accept the annoyances until you work things out.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Squabbles can spread into full-scale quarrels if you pursue them. Use great care with sharp tools or anything which is hot.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Unsettled conditions may include some effort to exploit you. Your wariness will protect you, but some of your most careful plans may suffer.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Pride and impatience can get you into a losing transaction today: back out or stay away from it. Tensions with associates turn out to be reflections of your own insecurity and are better not projected into spoken demands.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Temperamental behavior gets you nowhere today. A fair request yields a fair answer. Much better results are obtained if you focus your mind on positive thoughts rather than letting matters drift.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Close relatives or people who share the roads with you are all apt to be difficult. Diplomacy has its rewards, just as careful driving does.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be sure you know all the conditions before you enter a new situation now. Sitting unseen forces at work today add a qualifying factor to all dealings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You tend to get into everybody's way today and to resent being told. Maintain a calm surface and express your tensions privately.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Friends carry you along in their misadventures today. Unwanted journeys turn out even less productive than proposed. Seek serenity and solitude, in symbol if not reality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Advice of friends could lead to complicated situations which would take you a long time to unravel. Group money should be left untouched. The conservative approach is the only feasible path.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It is easy to irritate people today. Seek a mild or neutral approach until some body gets troublesome, then simply confront him with his own aggressions.

Dreamboat Goes Up in Flames, Bringing Aid to Doused Owner

By HARRY MULHALL

For weeks Barry Stuart had been overhauling a recently-purchased life ambition — his own cabin cruiser.

Planning on a holiday soon along the Trent Canal system, he finally launched his 22-foot dreamboat Saturday.

Last night he took another run up the Bay of Quinte.

Just off Jones' Creek, west of Belleville, the motor became erratic and began cutting out.

As he tried to coax it to normal the engine blew and flames began to well through the craft.

The 35-year-old construction worker, a resident of Prince of Wales Drive, dived for his life.

In moments the cruiser was enveloped in flames — a distress beacon that brought instant response.

The fire was spotted from Zwick's Island where one man dashed to a canteen phone and called an ambulance company operating a rescue boat.

Provincial police and Sidney township fire department rushed to the scene.

Nearby cottagers launched their boats — one of them arriving to haul Mr. Stuart from the water.

Apollo Men Start Day With Report on Luna

Leading Mankind Into the Future

Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. give thumbs up as they walk to van which took them to the moon spacecraft, the first leg of their journey which, if successful, will set the stage for man's future voyages away from his home Earth. (AP Photo)

Russian Craft Circling Moon

HOUSTON (CP) — Three Americans speeding to a Sunday date with the moon and with history awakened on their first morning in space today and plunged into checks of the spacecraft systems on which their adventure depends.

Spacecraft commander Neil Armstrong and Michael Collins reported having slept seven hours. Edwin E. Aldrin said he slept 5½ hours.

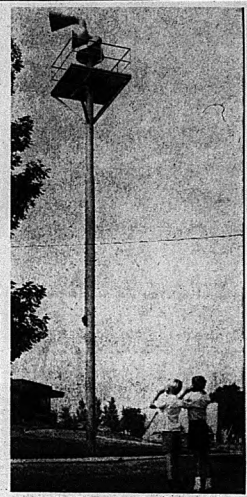
After reviewing the flight plan for the day, astronaut Bruce McCandless at mission control gave the crew a news report that ranged from Russia's Luna XV spacecraft to Mexico's repairing hippies to have haircuts before entering that country.

"On that No. 2 item, we all got haircuts before we left," Collins commented.

There was no immediate reaction to the Russian announcement that Luna XV had become another lunar satellite.

The Moscow announcement gave no hint whether the unmanned spacecraft would try to land and then return moon soil to the earth, as some reports have speculated.

If the craft remains in orbit there is a possibility—although space officials said it was remote—the astronauts would spot it when they go into lunar orbit themselves Saturday. Space officials here also believed the possibility of a collision between the two craft was "infinitesimal."



At the start of the second day in space, the Apollo 11 command ship and lunar module, linked nose-to-nose, were 113,270 miles from earth and heading for the moon at a speed of 3,289 miles an hour.

The astronauts settled in for a long nap a few hours earlier than planned Wednesday night, having spent most of the day getting used to their cramped quarters, a bell-shaped cabin only 11 feet high.

As the spacemen slept, their craft rotated slowly like a roast on a spit to keep the intense heat of the sun's rays from injuring any of its sides too much.

President Nixon declared Monday, the day Armstrong and Aldrin are scheduled to step on the moon, a "national ay of the moon, a "national day of proclamation" losing federal government agencies and urged that states, cities, schools and private businesses take similar action.

The moon-bound crew who were blasted aloft from Cape Kennedy, Fla., precisely on schedule Wednesday, will spend most of the day-sighting stars in a series of navigational exercises.

Luna Plans No Landing

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia announced today that its unmanned Luna XV spacecraft was in orbit around the moon.

Luna XV was "an artificial satellite of the moon," said the announcement, read over Moscow radio.

The wording strongly implied that no attempt would be made to land either the craft or a module from it on the moon's surface, as has been widely forecast here and abroad.

The speculation that it would try to land a module and bring back a sample of moon soil to earth was caused by consistent forecasts from unofficial Soviet and other Communist sources in recent months.

The sources have been forecasting such a bid as a last-minute Soviet attempt to take some of the gloss off the American Apollo 11 flight, but Western experts in Moscow consistently

Agnew Wants Try for Mars But Senate Chiefs Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate's new leading Democrats say any U.S. effort to put a man on Mars by the end of the century would take a back seat to a national sentiment aimed at mooting the earthly needs of the world.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and his assistant, Edward M. Kennedy, reacted vigorously Wednesday following the suggestion by Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew that the next major U.S. space goal be Mars.

"The needs of the people on earth, and especially in this country, should have priority," Mansfield said.

"We have important and demanding needs here on earth that demand early attention," said Kennedy, who suggested that after reaching the moon the space program "ought to be fitted into our other national priorities in an orderly manner."

Agnew said at Cape Kennedy, where he watched Apollo 11 launched toward the moon, that "somebody is going to" land on Mars—and it ought to be the U.S.

As head of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, Agnew said he prefers Mars over Venus because "it seems a more compatible climate."

Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Centre which oversaw development of the Saturn V rocket, told reporters he supports the Mars idea.

Siren Wails, Phones Ring, EMO Tied Up

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Belleville's attack warning siren blew up a storm of concern yesterday evening as it wailed steadily for 10 minutes.

A malfunction in the Bell Telephone lines, over which the signal is carried, is believed by Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator Angus Duffy to be responsible for the false alarm.

The alarm also sounded in Windsor, Cobourg, Trenton and Kingston.

This morning Col. Duffy asked the public in future incidents of this nature to turn on the radio immediately and not make telephone calls.

"In a real emergency the same attack warning signal will be coming over the radio too," he said.

The flood of telephone calls to firemen and EMO headquarters plugged up lines last night and prevented Col. Duffy getting a message through to the radio station regarding the false alarm. He was forced to go personally to the station with the message.

"Had the Belleville public stayed off the telephone I could have let the radio station know immediately that the signal was a false alarm," he said.

The attack warning system is hooked up to headquarters at Camp Borden. Officials there are responsible for pushing the alarm in case of genuine attack.

Jobless Decline Is Small

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada dipped only slightly in June to 383,000 or 4.6 per cent of the labor force as a time of year when the number of jobless usually declines more sharply.

The number without jobs at the time of the monthly survey June 21 had moved marginally from 386,000 or 4.7 per cent of the labor force a month earlier.

Adjusted to take account of seasonal variations in employment, the unemployment rate in June was up to 5.1 per cent from 4.9 per cent in May, Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Fewer teen-agers were looking for jobs this June than a year earlier.

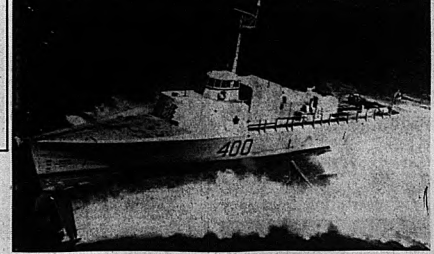
Ra's Crew Rescued



OSLO (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl and his six-man international crew have been rescued by a papyrus boat Ra because bad weather today caused a dangerous situation, a Norwegian amateur radio operator said.

But Heyerdahl, now aboard the fishing vessel Shenandoah which has been escorting Ra since Wednesday, said in his radio report that he will wait for better weather and see if he can repair the heavily damaged reed boat.

The Shenandoah took aboard film and other equipment from the damaged, partially waterlogged little boat.

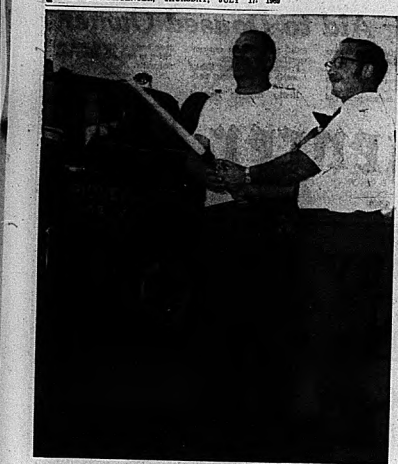
Bras d'Or Off Halifax Harbor

Canada Has World's Fastest Warship



HALIFAX (CP) — The Bras d'Or, Canada's hydrofoil submarine chaser, is the world's fastest warship, the navy says.

With reporters aboard the FHE 400 proved it Wednesday by flying to 91 knots in a full-home spurt across waters at the mouth of Halifax harbor.

The 151-foot prototype, commissioned a year ago, reached 62 knots—72.3 miles an hour—in trials earlier this month, the navy announced prior to the vessel's demonstration Wednesday.

"She's undoubtedly the fastest warship in the world," Capt. Thomas S. Allan, the navy's hydrofoil project director, told a news conference. "She's the fastest hydrofoil of operational size. She can easily . . . overtake . . . any submerged atomic sub."

With her skipper, Cmdr. Constantine (Tino) Colazas of Vancouver and Halifax, at the controls, the Bras d'Or sailed out of the harbor under sunny skies to display the controversial piece of naval hardware that has cost $53,000,000 over six years of construction and tests.

Test Run

Sidney Fire Department Chief John Aquino, and reeve Jack M. Bush try out new $23,000 fire pumper — one of two owned by the township. New pumper is seen in the background.

New Pumper

Sidney Gets Experience In Fire-fighting Field

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Improved fire protection for all township areas will be the end result from the new volunteer fire department set up in Sidney township.

This is the feeling of township officials who recently accepted delivery of a new fire pumper to augment equipment already in service in the west end of the township.

The new $23,000 pumper was purchased by the township after decision not to renew its fire-fighting agreement with the city of Belleville. Increased fire-fighting fees asked by the city was the reason for non-renewal of the agreement.

Actually the Sidney township volunteer fire department has been in existence for the past six years when the township purchased its first pumper for service in the west end of the township.

Now the Sidney department has two pumpers, an emergency truck and a tanker truck with a capacity of 1500 gallons. Both pumper trucks and the emergency truck carry 500 gallons of water.

John Aquino, former chief of the Batawa fire department, heads up the 40-man municipal department made up of 40 volunteers.

All fire calls from the township are Tel. 398-6331 — ring in to the guard office at the Bata Shoe Company which in turn is hooked up with senior department officials. Which truck answers the alarm depends on the location of the blaze.

The new fire truck is stationed at the Lafferty Transport depot just north of 401 highway near the township's eastern limits. The older truck is located at Batawa.

Township Reeve Jack M. Bush says that stationing of the two pumper trucks in the east and west limits of the township will give the municipality the best possible fire protection.

Tests have shown that the fire trucks can be on the scene of a fire midway between Belleville and Trenton within 12 minutes.

Since the new fire truck was purchased a month ago it has had two calls.

One of them was a practice fire in mid-township when an isolated barn was burned to give the volunteer department members fire-fighting experience. The other run for the new truck was a grass blaze.

Dead Cat Checked

Quinte Animal control officials are today investigating the case of a dying cat found on a Pine St. front lawn last evening.

The animal's head will be sent to the health of animals' division laboratory in Hull for a rabies check.

However, government veterinarians here, Dr. J. F. Bell, corpudale, doubts if there is any cause for alarm. The cat's condition could have been due to many causes, and no cases of rabies have been reported in south Hastings since Mar. 25.

Mrs. Harold Arthurs of 92 Pine St., called Quinte animal control when she noticed the cat, apparently dying, on a neighbor's front lawn.

Animal control in turn called city police when they saw the cat's condition. The police shot the animal and the body was removed to the humane society's shelter.

Wellington Wins Battle For Lower Rate

PICTON — Wellington village has won out in its request to the Ontario Department of Education for higher provincial grants to cover this year's educational costs.

Reeve Robert Boyce and a delegation of village councillors met with department officials in Toronto yesterday and on his return reported that they had been successful in gaining a 4 per cent half mill reduction in the local levy for education costs.

Mr. Boyce said the mill-rate reduction would result in a saving of $8,300 to village ratepayers.

"It has taken a lot of work and time but the results are worth it and I am happy," said Reeve Boyce.

Prorenaresque, the mill-rate reduction amounts to 27.2 per cent leaving the current figure at 51.7 percent.

Yesterday's trip to Toronto to confer with education department officials was the latest of several for Mr. Boyce and his council delegates.

Included in earlier meetings were representatives from North Marysburg, Athol and South Marysburg, all of whom were seeking relief from this year's high education costs.

North Marysburg representatives have been told that there was no hope for further grant assistance from the department of education.

It was not yet known how the requests by North Marysburg and Athol have been received.

Pending the possibility of increased education grants, Wellington has not yet struck its 1969 mill rate.

Reeve Boyce said a special meeting of council would be held Monday evening to set the rate.

Board Member Supports Holdup

PICTON — Mrs. Ken Carson, second woman appointed to the Prince Edward County Board of Education feels the township of North Marysburg is justified in withholding payment of its education tax levy.

Appointed in June by North Marysburg township council to replace resigning board member William Smith, Mrs. Carson expressed concern for the township's position.

"The reason we haven't made our first payment is because we have no settlement yet," said the new board member.

North Marysburg reeve, Harold Harrison, was one of a four - man delegation travelling to Queen's Park last month to protest the 77 percent tax increase faced by the township.

The possibility of an error in this figure has been admitted by Department of Education officials, but not yet confirmed.

Mrs. Carson explained that North Marysburg lost a $12,-000 government grant for education this year because its mill rate dropped.

It was agreed at Monday's board meeting to send letters reminding municipalities that have not paid their requisition tax levies that the county board of education will, if necessary, borrow money to operate. Interest on such a loan will be charged to the six municipalities now in default.

Playground to Hospital

WELLINGTON — A tumble from a slide on Wellington Park playground sent a two-year-old Calgary girl to Kingston General Hospital last night.

Elizabth Kostashak, daughter Kostashak, sustained neck injuries when she tumbled backwards off the slide.

The Kostashaks of Alberta are visiting friends in Picton.

Montreal-Toronto Run?

Train Would Make Turbo Slow

The federal government today was reported considering installation of a French-designed high-speed train linking Toronto and Montreal in less than two hours' travelling time.

But railroaders may look askance at any plans to realize such a scheme — if a Belleville source is any indication.

"The cost of a thing like that would be prohibitive for this country," said Jack Lomas, transportation superintendent of Canadian National's Bridge area.

Such an investment would never show a return on passenger services which are now financially just about breaking even, he said.

A Canadian Press story quotes Pierre Columbani, president of Bertin Research and Development of Montreal, as saying the train link had originally been proposed for Montreal to St. Scholastique — site of a new international airport. But the federal government also has shown an interest in a Montreal-Toronto link as well.

The system consists of a single-unit 80-passenger train running on a cushion of air over a concrete track. The car is propelled by a fan-jet engine capable of producing speeds up to 180 miles an hour.

Installation of such a track would be a major cost-factor, Mr. Lomas indicates.

"You'd have to have a whole new road bed," he said.

The terrain between Montreal and Toronto also would compound installation costs, he believed.

The two-hour estimated travelling time compares with the CN's crack Turbo train which — before its withdrawal with technical problems after a brief run late last year — linked Toronto and Montreal in three hours, 59 minutes. It's return to service still is awaited.

Meantime in Ottawa, a government source said federal representatives will leave for Paris next week to examine a production prototype being tested over an 11.2-mile stretch outside the French capital.

Two Area Constables Get Busman's Holiday

Two young Ontario Provincial Police constables from the Belleville area are to get an expense paid visit to Expo '70 at Osaka next year.

Their visit to Japan will be all in the line of duty as security for the Ontario pavilion at the world's fair.

Constable Gerald Zwart of the Belleville OPP Detachment and Constable H. Wayne Pickett from the Napanee Detachment are two of 16 provincial police officers selected for security detail at the Ontario Pavilion.

Both are 22 years of age and joined the OPP a year ago as cadets. Constable Zwart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dirk Zwart, RR3, Carryingt

CONST. H. W. PICKETT

Mobile Harvesting Rage for Pea Crop

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The heavy rainfall of last spring put a serious crimp in the early pea crop throughout the Quinte district and will also affect the yield of the mid - season crop.

Mr. J. B. Harder, fieldman for Stokely - Van Camp canners of Trenton said today the early season rains had so drowned the early pea crop that it is averaging about 70 per cent of the norm.

The mid-season crop will also be affected to the same extent but in contrast prospects for the late pea crop have seldom appeared better.

"The late peas look good," Mr. Harder said, "but rain will be needed."

The Trenton plant has been processing peas for the past two weeks with about 15 per cent of the early crop still to be harvested.

Harvesting of the mid - season pea crop will get underway on Friday or Saturday of this week with the late pea crop to commence anywhere from August 5 to 10.

In former years harvesting of the pea crop has been handled by stationary viners but this season has seen a swing to mobile viners by the Trenton firm.

All 12 of the company's stationary viners north of the Bay of Quinte have been closed this year with pea harvesting now being handled by three mobile units.

Along with a single pea cutter, and a shelled pea truck, the three mobile units work as a group and have harvested as much as 68 acres in a 16-hour working day.

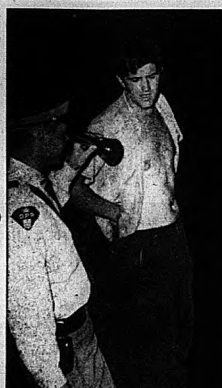
A work crew of six men including an over-all supervisor, handles the entire harvesting operation previously requiring 48 workers at Stokely's 12 stationary viners north of the Bay.

Next year plans are to close the company's viners in Prince Edward county where another three mobile units will be put into operation.

Mobile pea viners are not new in the Quinte district. Town Line Farms north of Wellington has used one for several years.

According to Mr. Harder the mobile units do a splendid job and at a considerable saving in labor costs.

Closer To Degrees



Results of recent chartered accountant examinations have placed four Belleville residents closer to their accountant degrees.

J. G. A. Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey, RR8, Belleville, passed his intermediate examination. He is employed by George A. Welch and Co.

Gregory Chambers, until recently employed by the Peterborough office of McColl, Turner and Co, was also successful in the intermediate examinations. Mr. Chambers — son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Chambers, 35 Mikel Ave., Belleville — is now with the Hamilton accounting firm of Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christenson.

Donald Boyce, 11 Cherry Gardens, passed the primary examination, the first stage towards attainment of a CA degree. He is employed by George A. Welch and Co.

Another successful candidate for the primary examination was Jack Shorey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shorey, Canniton. Mr. Shorey is employed by the Belleville office of McColl, Turner and Co.

Bruce Stuart recounts his experience to provincial police constable last night after cabin cruiser caught fire in Bay of Quinte west of Belleville. Bellevillian escaped injury when he leapt into bay as motor blew up off Jones' Creek.

Loses Keenness For Pleasure Craft

The fiery hulk drifted downstream where a boat took it in tow off the Belleville cemetery.

Sidney fire chief John Aquino believed two men in the boat were attempting to claim the still-burning craft as salvage.

They were towing it westward along the Bay when he shouted at them to come inshore.

"They didn't seem to want to bring it in," claimed the chief. "I shouted out that I was the fire chief and they'd better bring it in."

However, he added, if the Stuart craft had been left in the middle of the Bay it would have sunk.

Once inshore, the hulk was secured by firemen until the owner arrived with provincial police.

Mr. Stuart counted himself lucky. As he put it: "It was very fortunate. It could have ruched me very easily."

However, the loss was a bitter blow, and he wasn't sure he would show as much keenness for water craft again.

"I doubt it," he said, "not after this experience."

Watch Those Wires!

A news picture this week in The Intelligencer showing a young boy retrieving his fishing line from overhead wires at the city's Lower Bridge, has brought a reaction from local hydro officials.

Don't do it," is the advice of hydro safety officials. "It could be dangerous."

"Our notice to say fisherman getting his line caught in such wires is to leave it there," stated Norman F. Manning, Hydro public relations officer.

If the line happened to be damp or if it got caught across two wires, attempting to retrieve it could prove fatal."

If the line happened to be valuable, the hydro official suggested the public utilities commission could be asked to retrieve it.

City Water Use Soars in 90-degree Heat

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte district continues to soak up the sun — making the best of a sweltering weather wave that has pushed temperatures into the 90s.

Official high yesterday in the Belleville area was 91 degrees, dipping to a hot 73 during the night.

In other parts of the district it's even hotter.

At Tweed lands and forests weather officers recorded a high of 90 yesterday, 92 degrees the day before.

The heat has created potential fire threat conditions in tinder-dry district forests.

In Belleville, the biggest urban centre, demand on municipal water services is mounting, although no restrictions have yet been contemplated, say public utilities officials.

Yesterday, more than 6,900,000 gallons of water was used by city dwellers.

This compares with a maximum 7,699,000 gallons for one day in 1968. Average daily use last year was 4,322,000.

However, while no restrictions have yet been enforced, PUC manager E. L. Burnham today requested householders to stagger peak usage.

He suggested lawn should be watered during the day where possible. This reduces demand pressure during peak evening hours.

Heavy rains earlier in the season have helped ease the water supply situation for the moment, he noted.

Inexplicably, city water so far is showing little evidence of the heat wave.

In other years taste and odor quality has deteriorated - rising with the mercury — as warm temperatures increase the growth of algae in the Bay of Quinte.

As yet, water quality "is really remarkable" considering weather conditions, said Mr. Burnham.

In the district's northern townships a lands and forests warning has been posted against negligence that threaten fire hazards.

To date, 52 fires have destroyed 152 acres of bushland in the Tweed forestry district.

Now—the Moon

Astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins are on their way in yet another feat of cool American space exploration. This time of course the target is the moon itself and the whole world is watching with the keenest interest their progress in Apollo XI. On Sunday afternoon they are due to land on the lunar surface and early Monday morning Armstrong will become the first man in history to step on the big planet more than 200,000 miles from earth.

We hear the usual reservations expressed about the cost of the space program — nine more Apollo flights are scheduled — but this is as nothing compared with man's natural interest in the unknown; his desire, like Christopher Columbus and countless others who went before, to probe the secrets of the universe.

The American public gets back in terms of wonderment at the marvels of the world beyond our own planet what it loses financially. It even gets back some of that material or financial loss through the tremendous business boost provided by the thousands who flocked to the Cape Kennedy area to watch the launching. Even the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and his followers, who were there to demonstrate the inequality of spending on this space program compared with that for the poor, must have spent some money and generated some business in the course of their journey. And even Mr. Abernathy, as a clergyman, must be impressed by the skill and daring of his fellow man as he moves still farther from the bonds of earth. Consider too the jobs provided by the space program and the increase in scientific knowledge gained.

Since there may be unseen dangers and problems of which neither the astronauts nor ground control are as yet aware we hope they will not prove insurmountable. Except for the tragic accident that took the lives of Virgil Grissom and two other astronauts while still on the launching pad of a previous space mission, and one other launch that was safely aborted for technical reasons by astronaut Walter Schirra, it has been "Go" on every mission so far. May it continue thus.

Wheat Crisis

With 426 million bushels of unsold wheat stockpiled in grain elevators throughout Canada, Western farmers are facing an understandably grave situation.

"Bankruptcy" is a word Prime Minister Trudeau is hearing from farm spokesmen during his tour out West. There is the unsold grain and the costly equipment, some fantasy food preparation could be created from wheat to alleviate hunger.

What about Biafra toward which Canada has been evidencing such concern? Could the University of Saskatchewan researchers who have just developed "meatless chicken," entirely from vegetable sources, not find some use for wheat which like the meatballs might find a market not only at home but in the developing nations where protein is in short supply?

Is the government prepared to finance and otherwise encourage such research?

Something must be done — and soon — though if the Western farmer is not to be cast into limbo. It is no good asking him to cut down on his wheat acreage. What he wants is a market for the unsold grain. It seems only yesterday that Ottawa was unloading thousands of bushels in Russia and China where harvests had been poor. Those were good times for the wheat farmer; now the picture is very different.

OTTAWA — The bleakest blokes of this or any recently previous Parliament have to be the Liberal backbenchers.

English and French alike.

From Ontario, British Columbia, Quebec, the Prairies — they have all had to sit and suffer.

Sit in silent support — and suffer the self-recrimination of having to vote for some things that they not only did not believe in, but to which they were personally opposed.

Worse, in voting against their own beliefs, they knew they were flying in the face of what they suspected could be massive public opinion back home in their constituencies, and so would have to face the music of taxpayer criticism.

They are bearing the playback now.

The Western Liberals are getting the unpleasant business for having supported the controversial bilingualism bill, the NATO phase-out, the Armed Forces cutback, among other provocative issues.

The Quebec Liberals are getting their unconditional lumps for having gone along meekly with those Criminal Code amendments legalizing abortion, and homosexuality, widening grounds for easy divorce and generally strangeling thousands of reluctant French-Canadians into the new Permissive Society.

Even the Liberal frontbench has had its hangups.

Immigration minister MacEachen, Nova Scotia's one Liberal MP, has been scorned by ruggedly independent - minded fellow Cape Bretoners for making Canada a haven for American deserters and draft-dodgers flocking in now to compete with Canadians, particularly students, for seldom-so-scarce summer jobs.

Even the usually tolerant Toronto - Metro and Southwestern Ontario Liberals — the "small T gang," as they are known — have been unhappy about rumbles from their taxpayers that in its preoccupation with Quebec and bilingualism, the government has been uncaring of their housing and other woes.

One of the largest mouthfuls of personal pride had to be swallowed by West Coast Liberals, especially those from Vancouver Island who had to go along with the NATO bug-out and the continuing cutback of the Armed Forces.

Victoria's David Groos, an ex-RCN type, felt — or was — compelled to move up from his third row seat and sit beside Defence Minister Cadieux, signalling his support as his parliamentary secretary, of this sacrifice of the Services.

He supported the policy, he conceded when asked later.

Like a lot of other Liberals, he had a choice.

He could go quietly along in silent support of the many things Prime Minister Trudeau has been doing that have been lining the government around all across the restive land — or else.

Under this kind of political pressure, then, an MP does not always or even often vote his own personal convictions.

And why not?

Because the ultimate alternative has to be the one former Transport Minister and Deputy Prime Minister Paul Hellyer took — quit.

Short of that, any Liberal MP seriously questioning or challenging the wisdom of government policy-thinking in public — like speaking his own heart and mind in the Commons — can kiss tomorrow goodbye. For he will not be going anywhere, except down to defeat in the next election, disowned and dispossessed of the riding nomination by his own party. Just ask former Liberal MP Ralph Cowan.

Meanwhile, a Liberal MP who does his own thinking, with guts enough to speak his mind, will find himself isolated by the cabinet and ostracized by intimidated backbenchers.

For "Trendy," as more and more people are calling Trudy, runs a tightly closed political shop with a fist of iron. Any prime minister can do it — but Trendy does it best of all — because he is the denial-god from whom all political blessings or cursings flow.

Why can't Conservative Leader Stanfield command this brand of blind obedience?

He has no clout — no meaningful favors or forms of punishment to mete out — and worse, not all his MPs take him seriously, much less fear him, as leader.

"It'll cost you a mere $10 billion to play, folks!"

Information Sought About Hastings Chronicle Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was wondering if you and your readers could help me in locating information about Abraham Diamond (1838-1880) and his descendants. Abraham Diamond was of Loyalist descent, and was the son of John Diamond. He had a law practice with his brother, Wellington, but besides being a lawyer, was a teacher, editor of the Hastings Chronicle, and a police magistrate in Belleville. I believe Mr. Jeffers Diamond was one of his eight children. I am particularly interested in locating documentary material and family traditions in connection with a biographical sketch of Abraham Diamond that I am preparing for the Dictionary of Canadian Biography, and for my doctoral thesis at Queen's University on the Great Reform Convention of 1859.

Dublin May Curb Land Speculators from Overseas

Watertown Times

Americans considering purchase of a piece of real estate in Ireland would be well advised to clear it directly with the Irish.

Differences of opinion have arisen over an Illinois company's promotional campaign to sell plots of "the only desirable land available in Europe" to Americans. The Irish government's land commission in Dublin says no rights to property have been given to the Illinois concern. The company says it has "tentative approval" to buy the land.

The state of Illinois is unhappy with the situation because the firm failed to file the proper applications requiring proof of land title. So it has ordered the firm to cease and desist.

The company had been claiming it had 200 options on 2,000 plots, each with a price tag up to $750, depending upon the financing arrangement. One of the line would cut the figure to $500.

To proceed, the company will have to get clear title. That may be another matter altogether.

Individuals and groups in Ireland are reportedly unhappy about foreigners buying up considerable pieces of property have been acquired by German industrialists. They feel the government is felt to be enough that thoughts of preempting the lands are being entertained. Presumably the German purchasers would be given their money back with an accompanying polite "we're sorry" and "thank you."

Land speculators are unmatched either in daring or imagination. Often they are carried away by their own promotion and drive. That may well have happened to the Illinois company. Certainly in this case, with one government cracking down and another plainly reluctant to give up its land, promoters have hit a dead end.

Monarchy Endures

The Guardian

There is always a danger that long before the British people get tired of the Monarchy, the monarch themselves may find it more than they can stand (as indeed has happened in Scandinavia). There must be moments when only a very strong sense of duty could keep the Queen going . . . The Duke of Edinburgh, of course, has carved out a niche for himself, and there is every reason to suppose that Prince Charles and his middle sister Anne will be able to do the same. But while the Prince displays commendable interest and dedication at the age of twenty-one, will the enthusiasm survive until he is fifty? Probably it will. While on the Royal Family performs as adequately as it does republicanism is not likely to make much headway.

Ellen Church Started It All in 1930

First Air Stewardess Was Nurse and General Factotum

Holiday Magazine

Competition for business between the airlines is keen, and rival airlines try to attract customers with something unique: steaks broiled in flight, champagne cocktails, various entertainments, brightly - colored planes. One airline, Pacific Southwest, offers what is perhaps the most compelling attraction of all: the prettiest and most miniskirted stewardesses in travel.

Gentlemen beam as the girls bustle up and down the aisle, and on every flight there is a marked increase in requests for pillows. The industry affectionately calls Pacific Southwest flights "skin flights," and does not begrudge them their popularity.

We have come a long way since Ellen Church persuaded United Airlines to give her a crack at becoming the first flight stewardess back in 1930. Miss Church was an instructor of nurses at French hospital in San Francisco. She was interested in flying, had taken lessons, and wondered if she could not combine nursing and piloting in air ambulance flights.

She called on S. A. Stimpson, United Airlines traffic agent to inquire. The conversation got around to the trouble United was having with their passenger services, and it flashed through Miss Church's mind that taking care of passengers might be an ideal job for a flying nurse. She proposed it to Mr. Stimpson, who liked the idea and succeeded in putting it through over strong opposition from the pilots.

"They were seasoned mail pilots," said Mr. Stimpson, "they were big fur coats and two-gun holsters and goggles and they did not want modern meddling with their planes."

Seven more girls were hired, all registered nurses, and put on United's San Francisco to Chicago flight which were most emphatically not non-stop. Tri-engined Boeing 80A planes were in service, flying at 120 mph, carrying 11 passengers and making 13 stops on the way.

The stewardess duties make you realize what a heroic thing it was for passengers and crews to make commercial flights back in 1930. The girls helped all passenger baggage and loaded and unloaded it. They dusted the cabin, cleaned the windows and made sure all seats were firmly bolted to the floor. They checked food and comfortery. They punched the passengers' tickets at every one of the 13 stops and carried refreshment tables so passengers could make connections in case they were grounded by bad weather. One of their more curious duties was to prevent passengers from tossing cigar butts and other refuse out the windows. Their most frightening responsibility was to keep a sharp eye on passengers headed for the washroom to make sure they didn't open the exit door by mistake and fall out.

The new career Ellen Church invented caught on quickly. Travellers loved the idea of having young women taking care of them. When she died, United had to hire 20 additional nurses, and within two years the rival airlines began hiring girls as hostesses.

Note the title. None of the companies liked the word "stewardess." United wanted to call the girls "couriers." In their very first manual they included this rather grudging paragraph: "Name of Service — The name of the service still remains stewardess service, and the girls, stewardesses, we want to be more appropriate title. Some day can we come up and suggestions are invited."

For Karen Russell, Belleville, it was good to be home, but Colombe Imbernault of Riviere Pert aux Perdrix (centre) just beginning her two-week sojourn in Ontario. Mrs. Paul Russell was at the station to welcome her daughter and her Quebec partner. Nine students from the Quinte area participated in the student-exchange program.

Quebec Students Test Belleville Hospitality

Quebec tourism promoters advertise their province with highway signs saying, "hospitalite" spoken here.

Wednesday, nine students from Ontario's sister province arrived in Belleville to sample the wares of this city's welcome mat.

The French students — participants in the 15th annual student exchange program and their Belleville partners were greeted at the train station yesterday by Alderman Gerald Joyce and Peter M. Clinkard, president of the Belleville Jaycees.

Sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, nine students from this area returned from a two-week sojourn in "la belle province," where they were entertained in French-speaking homes, taken on tours and generally introduced to the life of French-Canadian families.

Bonnie Ash, Sandra Cheesman, Donna Henry, Marjorie Fields, Janet McCaby, Kevin Parry, Karen Russell and Margaret Vanderwater, all of Belleville and Elizabeth Ann Evans, Trenton, arrived in the city on the special exchange train, accompanied by their French partners.

In an effort to better relations between the two provinces, 2,500 high school students from across Canada participated in the program; half of that number from the province of Quebec and the balance from English-speaking homes in the other nine provinces.

The French students will be in Belleville for a two-week period and will be taken on tours of the city under the sponsorship of the Jaycees.

McFarland Gets Highway Contract

The H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton has been awarded a contract by the Ontario department of highways for resurfacing of close to six miles of the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway east of Belleville.

The contract, for $305,285.30 is for asphalt resurfacing from a point just west of the Shannonville gravel interchange easterly to connect up with the present completed pavement.

A small amount of grading and drainage at the intersections is included in the contract, due to get under way later this year.

Also in Hastings county, the highways department has awarded a contract to the Glen Lawrence Construction Company of Kingston for hot mix paving on 8.59 miles of No. 62 highway from Maple Leaf to Purdy and for one mile on highway 127, north from 62.

The amount of the contract is for $162,378.

A provincial grant of $51,200 has been approved for the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority for the reconstruction of Allan's Mills dam on the Crowe River south of Marmora. The grant was provided under the Provincial Water Supply Program.

Luna Plans

doubted whether the Russians were capable of such a feat yet.

The moon-orbit " manoeuvre was earlier detected by the British Jodrell Bank tracking station near Manchester, England.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the tracking station, said Luna XV was moving right in front of the moon and that Soviet scientists appeared to be checking its orbit.

He said it was reasonable to assume the Russians would try to land Luna XV, and that if he had to hazard a guess it would be that Luna XV might remain in orbit until Friday and then descend to the moon.

Labor Leader Visualizes Canadian Welfare State

Labor would like to see Canada become "the complete welfare state".

The opinion was expressed at the last meeting of Belleville Kiwanis Club by William Dodge, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress.

He told the club he would like to see Canada become a country "in which workers and their families, the farmers, the Indians and the Eskimos and the vast army of the poor can live in security and contentment and share in the wealth and prosperity they see in abundance around them."

Labor is prepared to let the new prices and incomes commission name the culprit in the present inflationary spiral, he said.

"All we insist upon is that they investigate all aspects of the factors influencing market prices — executive salaries, stock bonuses, expense allowances, capital gains, undistributed profits, land speculation, rents, taxation inequities, price fixing by combines and the system of administered pricing in many industries."

Mr. Dodge said wages cannot rise at an average annual rate greater than productivity without exerting upward pressures on the levels of prices. This would cause prices to rise faster than wage rates and cause a decline in real earnings.

"But, prices have not been rising faster than wages during the last 15 years," he claimed. "Real wages have not been declining during the past 15 years, which means productivity must have increased at a faster rate than wages."

He quoted the White Paper of the task force on labor relations that there is no conclusive evidence that collective bargaining is the villain in the piece.

It is virtually impossible to sort out the relative influences of the many forces which affect the price level, yet the average citizen unhesitatingly blames the unions, he said.

Booth Radio and Television Limited is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Clinton Moore to the sales staff.

Mr. Moore comes with extensive experience in the furniture and appliance business having served for some time as the Belleville manager of Yolles Furniture Limited and also in connection with the Bad Boy operation.

Clinton will be pleased to have his many friends and customers drop in and see him at Booth Radio and Television Limited.

Harold Long Appointed Trenton Rink Manager

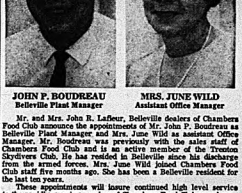
TRENTON — Jack Bonn was succeeded Tuesday night as manager of the Trenton Community Gardens by Harold Long.

Mr. Long was selected from 11 applicants for the position. Since the departure of Mr. Bonn in June Mr. Long has served as interim manager.

Active in Trenton sports for several years, Mr. Long has been chairman of the Trenton recreation committee and Community Gardens Board.

He resigned from this post a few weeks ago over a disagreement with other board members. Mr. Long has been given until the end of this year to cut the ties with his painting business so he can serve as full-time manager.

Vernon Nutley was named as the new chairman to take over the post vacated by Mr. Long.



Accidents Cost $1200

TWEED — Property damage amounting to a total of $1,200 resulted yesterday in two separate accidents in the Tweed area with the driver in both instances escaping without injury.

Bernice Winnifred Tyan, 56, of Toronto was driving on the 11th concession of Hungerford west of Tweed when she lost control of her late model car and crashed into a fence. Damage to her car amounted to $700.

Also Wednesday afternoon, Hazel Violet Burns, 47, of Cooksville, escaped injury on the 12th concession of Rawdon when her car left the road and rolled several times before striking a fence.

Couple Is Arrested for Questioning on Montreal Kidnapping

TEKARRANA, Ark. (CP-AP) — A man and woman wanted for questioning in the kidnapping of a Canadian millionaire in Montreal were taken into custody here Wednesday night, police said.

Police said Jacques Mesrine, 32, and his wife Jeanne Schneider, 29, both of Paris, France, were taken into custody after a search which spread over much of the southern United States.

The two are wanted in Montreal in connection with the kidnapping of George Deslauriers, 55, a crippled millionaire wholesale vegetable dealer.

The two had been employed as servants in Deslauriers's home.

Deslauriers was kidnapped June 23 and held in his apartment for $200,000 ransom. However, he escaped and notified police.

Michael DuPont, 24, was arrested in Montreal earlier in connection with the incident and ordered held for trial on charges of kidnapping, robbery with violence and car theft.

The search for Mesrine and the Schneider woman had been centred around Memphis, Tenn., after they sent a telegram from there. Officers said the two wired a car rental agency in Detroit, asking that their automobile agency lease be extended.

The rental agency notified Detroit police, Canadian authorities and state police in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi but the pair never returned to the Memphis telegraph office for an answer to the wire.

Quebec Provincial Police offered a $3,000 reward for information leading to the apprehension of the two servants of Deslauriers.

Police Kill Man, Second in Century

GLASGO W(AP) — Officials said Wednesday a gunman who wounded 15 persons was shot and killed by a police sharpshooter—one of possibly only two men killed by British police bullets in this century.

James Griffiths, 34-year-old ex-convict who ran wild in Glasgow Tuesday, fired more than 100 shots from a rifle and a shotgun before the marksman felled him in a tenement apartment.

Police fired only two shots in the chase, authorities announced.

The name of the police sharpshooter was not revealed.

British police normally never carry guns, but in extreme cases such as Griffiths' Glasgow rampage, a few specially-trained men are issued with weapons.

An initial check of police records gave only one confirmed report of anyone shot dead by police in Britain since 1900-but officials conceded the records might contain more.

An inquest in Kent in 1951 confirmed that a 20-year-old reform school boy—wh oshot a policeman and defied soldiers, sailors and police—was killed by a police marksman.

WILL BRING QUALITY

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan's new co-ordinated system of libraries we'll bring quality and comprehensive service to the next decade, Provincial Librarian H. E. Newson told the Saskatchewan Urban Municipalities Association. One provision of a new Public Libraries Act, described as one of the finest pieces of library legislation in Canada, is that all libraries can be used by any Saskatchewan resident.

Sharp Tells Hees About China Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday current negotiations between Canada and Communist China on diplomatic recognition are "tough, and look as though they will continue for some time."

He told George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) there were further discussions between the two countries last week on outstanding issues. The negotiations are being held in Stockholm.

Toronto Policemen Get 15 Per Cent Pay Boost

TORONTO (CP) — A three-man arbitration board Wednesday awarded Metropolitan Toronto's 3,200 policemen a 15-per-cent wage increase, making them the highest paid of their profession in Canada.

The increase, retroactive to the start of 1969, brings the salary of a first-class constable to $9,112 a year, up from $7,924. Inspectors under the new scale will receive $14,122 a year, up from $12,281.

The old contract expired Dec. 31, 1968.

The board also awarded time-and-a-half pay for overtime work, previously paid for in straight time in cash or hours, and extra pay for court appearances.

It also increased the clothing allowance of plainclothesmen by $50, to $300 a year.

It rejected a request for danger pay to motorcycle officers, noting that all policemen face possible injury on the job.

Sarnia Pound Will Stay Open

SARNIA (CP) — The Ontario Humane Society is wrong in asking its affiliates to cancel pound contracts with municipalities and the Sarnia society doesn't intend to obey the directive, President Harold Merchant said Wednesday.

The OHS policy is like an ostrich "burying its head in the sand," he said. Withdrawing pound contracts doesn't mean animals normally sheltered in pounds will escape being used for scientific research.

The Ontario society's directive is aimed at fighting legislation now before the Ontario legislature which would require unclaimed pound animals to be surrendered for research. It threatened non-complying affiliates with expulsion.

Frost Says Crash Made Him 'Mess'

TORONTO (CP) — "The accident reduced me from a Beau Brummel to a bleeding mess," said former Ontario premier Leslie Frost Wednesday. So he says he is just doing what doctors at Wellesley Hospital tell him to.

Mr. Frost, 74, is in traction for treatment of a fractured right leg and knee suffered in an auto accident July 4.

His wife, Gertrude, 73, and chauffeur Garfield Barjerow, 46, were treated for minor injuries.

Mr. Wintermeyer was leader of the Ontario Liberal party for several years during Mr. Frost's term as premier from 1949 to his retirement in 1961.

Benson Repeats Assurances to House That Interest Rates Remain Stable

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said three times Wednesday there should not be another general round of interest-rate increases because the Bank of Canada has moved to stem a flow of short-term loan funds out of Canada.

His repeated statements to the Commons were in sharp contrast to the position he took a little more than a month ago when he conceded that higher interest rates were inevitable because of the pressure on Canadian banks for loans.

The Bank of Canada raised the rate it charges the chartered banks for short-term advances of cash to eight per cent, effective Wednesday, from 7½ per cent.

The rate the chartered banks charge on loans to their most credit-worthy customers, the so-called prime rate, normally runs about one percentage point higher than the bank rate. It lately has been 8¼.

But Mr. Benson said in the Commons, in reply to opposition questions and criticism, he hopes another increase will not be made.

"I sincerely hope this does not mean that there will be an increase in the commercial prime rate, which presently is at 8¼ per cent," he said.

And later: "I do not see an occasion for an increase in the prime rate in these particular circumstances."

And again: "I would hope that the chartered banks would not increase their prime rates."

The triple emphasis of the point made it obvious he was applying pressure on the banks to adhere to his wish—not merely expressing a pious hope.

The Bank of Canada Tuesday announced it was raising the bank rate to eight per cent from 7½ and coupled this with a request to the chartered banks that they not increase their holdings of foreign currency swapped deposits.

These are deposits made by provincial and municipal governments, and by big corporations, which the depositors and bankers agree should be exchanged for foreign money—usually American dollars. This swapped currency can then be loaned abroad at higher interest rates than are prevailing in Canada, and the Canadian banks are relieved of the necessity of holding cash reserves to back up the deposit liability.

While such swapped deposits run, in individual cases, from $500,000 to perhaps several millions and so have no more than academic interest for the average person, the behavior of chartered bank prime rates affect all bank borrowers and lenders.

All other interest rates, on mortgages, automobile loans, consumer credit and bond investments tend to range higher than the prevailing prime rate.

Some chartered bank executives said Wednesday before Mr. Benson's comments in the Commons that they would have to consider seriously whether interest rates should be raised again.

Mr. Benson did not object when the chartered banks raised their rates last month, in the wake of a decision by major New York banks to boost their prime rates an unusually-sharp full percentage point to 8½ from 7½. He said then that it was inevitable that the pressure on Canadian banks for loans would have to be dealt with by an increase in their lending rates too.

Lately, the commercial banks of both Canada and the United States have been charging a prime rate of 8¼ per cent. But because of peculiarities in the banking systems of the two countries, it was cheaper for American borrowers to get money from Canadian banks.

This led to an upsurge in the swapped deposit arrangements. Such deposits totalled $1,607,000,000 last week, up from $1,494,000,000 a week earlier and more than $2,000,000,000 higher than a year ago.

Fresh figures on this week's foreign currency swapped deposits in the Canadian banks will be released by the Bank of Canada late today.

Mr. Benson said this represented an unusual outflow of money from Canada. While Canadian exchange reserves were not seriously depleted, such an outflow could not be allowed to continue. So the bank rate was raised and a ceiling clamped on the chartered banks' foreign currency deposit activities.

Raising the bank rate, he emphasized, was in response to external interest rate movements.

Actually, there have been only infrequent and small drawings by the chartered banks on the Bank of Canada this year—$5,00,000 in January, $600,000 in April and $2,000,000 in May.

Inco Talks Bogged Down Leaving 18,000 Off Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — After earlier signs of progress in the Steelworkers' contract dispute with the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., talks bogged down again Wednesday night and both sides appeared set for a lengthy work stoppage.

Homer Seguin, president of Sudbury Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America, said "the stalemate could go either way."

The work stoppage, involving 18,000 men at Inco operations at Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., went into its second week today. The union pulled the men out last Thursday when their three-year contract expired.

Mr. Seguin said the company had "retreated somewhat" by offering a concession that kept the talks going. But he said both sides are still being "real tough."

The company has publicly offered a 35-cent package over three years. The union is believed pressing for more than $1.50. Average Inco wage is $3.06 an hour.

Mr. Seguin said there's still a lot of progress to be made in the four major bargaining areas: insurance and welfare, pensions and contract language.

Talks continue today.

Eye on Construction Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford told the Commons Wednesday the construction industry will "no doubt" be one of the key sectors to be studied by the federal prices and incomes commission.

He was commenting on a question from K. R. Hymmen (L—Kitchener), who asked whether the commission would be studying the recent wage settlement obtained by carpenters and joiners in Toronto who, he said have received wage increases of 43 per cent over less than two years.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD GREGORY

Gregory – Carlisle

Holloway St. United Church was the setting for the July wedding when Edith Doreen Carlisle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Carlisle, of Belleville, became the bride of Donald Samuel Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Girdwood Gregory, of RR 5, Trenton. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. J. W. Lamb. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist, Mrs. A. V. Barkley, and the soloist was Miss Susan Rutledge.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length A-line gown, featuring a high empire waist, scalloped neckline of Rachel lace over taffeta and fitted wrist-length lace sleeves. Her chapel length train was of the same material as the gown, and attached at the back waist. Her headpiece was a large organza rose with rolled edges of petals attached to elbow-length four-tier scalloped illusion veil. She carried a round bouquet of yellow roses with white stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Carolyn Wannamaker, of Newcastle, Ont., sister of the bride, was attired in a floor-length A-line sleeveless gown of printed nylon sheer over yellow taffeta. Her veil was a cluster of flowers with matching seed pearl stamens in golden rod yellow with peau de soie leaves attached to a matching nylon illusion veil. She carried a round bouquet of yellow and white mums.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Marianne Flindal, of Scarborough; the Misses Lillian Reid, Belleville; and Shirley Gregory, Trenton, sister of the bridegroom were dressed the same as the matron of honor. All attendants carried round bouquets of green and white mums.

Best man for the ceremony was Ronald Post, of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Barry Flindall, Scarborough; Lyle Reid, Belleville and John Insley, Belleville.

For the wedding reception held at Holloway St. United Church parlor, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a coat and dress ensemble of crinqua puffed nylon, in pale yellow with white accessories and a pale green orchid corsage. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a dark blue lace dress with three-quarter lace sleeves and white accessories, completed by a white orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride donned a coat and dress ensemble of mauve crimplene, completed by white accessories and a corsage of white mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside in RR 5, Trenton.

Deseronto Resident Celebrates Birthday

DESERONTO — Mrs. A. Cole will be celebrating her 97th birthday this weekend, and expects to spend this birthday just as she has so many others, in her own home, serving her birthday cake to her many friends who will call.

Until recently, Mrs. Cole cared for herself summer and winter, but lately has been persuaded to spend the winter months elsewhere. Late last fall, she went home with her granddaughter who lives in Deep River.

Mrs. Cole was born in Sidney Township, but moved with her parents soon afterwards to Oak Hills, near Stirling. She came to Deseronto at the age of 15, which she has made her home ever since.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH WI

The July meeting of the Sidney South Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. Nobes with 13 members and one visitor present.

President, Mrs. J. Tomalty opened the meeting in the usual manner and presided over the various items of business.

Leaders for the 4-H Girls' Clubs were Mrs. J. Caddick, Mrs. J. Tomalty, Mrs. H. De Boer, Mrs. G. Grills, Mrs. J. Best, and Mrs. D. McComb.

The 4-H exhibit for the Belleville Fair in August will be looked after by Mrs. J. Best and Mrs. T. Aikins, with the theme St. Patrick's Day chosen for the topic.

Djscussion on the upcoming bus trip followed and the decision made to go on the Thousand Islands Tour on August 10.

The subject of the old cemetery was discussed and it was agreed to carry this over until the September meeting. The consumers' report was given by Mrs. W. Shortt and Mrs. G. Grills.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. R. Nobes with the topic being historical research and current events. The Tweedsmuir History was passed around and found to be very interesting. A contest on the Dominion of Canada followed and was much enjoyed by all participants.

The meeting closed with the singing of O Canada and the Institute grace and lunch was served by the hostess and lunch committee.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD McDONALD

McDonald – Walsh

Holy Name Church, Kirkland Lake, Ont. was the scene of the July wedding, when Alanna Mae Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Walsh of Kirkland Lake, exchanged wedding vows with Edward Lea McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. McDonald, of Brantford. The couple were united in marriage by Rev. Murray. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Mrs. Cummings, of Kirkland Lake. Soloists were Robert Walsh, brother of the bride and Frank Scally.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length sheer gown, ending with a full train. The empire fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline and short sleeves. Her Spanish lace mantilla matched the fitted lace bodice and wide brim, enhancing the hemline of the gown. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses surrounded by white stephanotis and a white orchid.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Raymond Sweetz, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Secrur of Port Colborne and Miss Colleen French of Toronto. All were dressed alike in dresses of georgette chiffon over taffeta in an unusual shade of cerise pink. The skimmer featured a low, scoop neckline, fitted bodice and full gathered skirt. Headdresses were of tiny cerise hair bows.

Carrying the floral arrangements were flower girls the Misses Alanna Mae and Laura Ann Sweetz, nieces of the bride. Both wore identical floor length gowns of white chiffon over taffeta. Their dresses featured high round necklines, with short puff sleeves. The full skirt was gathered to the empire waist, which was complemented by a wide cerise chiffon band.

Best man for the ceremony was Robert Gauvon, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were R. A. McDonald and D. I. McDonald, brothers of the bridegroom.

For the wedding reception in the Belvedere Hall, in Kirkland Lake, the mother of the bride received the guests, wearing an A-line dress of silk worsted shantung in sky blue, featuring a rounded neckline and fitted bodice, with long sleeves. The bodice of the dress was highlighted with a lace insert and edged with accessories were of a matching color, completed by a gardenia corsage.

Assisting the mother of the bride, the mother of the bridegroom chose an A-line dress and jacket of pink silk worsted with matching accessories.

For the wedding trip to points West, the bride donned an ensemble of soft yellow chiffon over sparkle crepe, featuring a drop waist and long sleeves. French lace in matching yellow was fashioned over the bodice of the dress. White accessories and a white orchid corsage completed her outfit. Upon their return, the couple will reside at RR2, Consecon.

Major John A. Cann and Mrs. Cann are pictured at their recent wedding, which took place in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville. Mrs. Cann, the former Mary Eleanor Bennett, is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett of Belleville, and the late Sgt.-Maj. Bennett. Major Cann, of RMC Kingston, is the son of Mrs. J. Cann of Exeter, Ont., and the late Mr. J. Cann. The couple will be residing in Kingston.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL ITEMS

Previous to the recent marriage of Mrs. Donald Gregory (nee Judith Carlisle), two surprise showers were held at the bride's home with Mrs. Carolyn Wannamaker, hostess for one and the staff of Parkdale School entertained at the second one. Another shower was given by the choir of Holloway St. United Church at the home of Mrs. Peggy Brown. Miss Lillian Reid was also hostess for a shower, held at her home. The parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party after the rehearsal.

• • •

Mrs. Madeline Spencer, of Shannonville and Mrs. J. W. Stewart, Millbrook, spent a day visiting the Kingston Prison for Women. Later in the week, Mrs. Olive Steffens, an officer at the Prison for Women and Mrs. A. Rooney, Kingston, were guests of Mrs. Spencer in Shannonville.

• • •

Mrs. Vera Reynolds, of 60 Donlad Street, Belleville underwent surgery at the Kingston General Hospital, room Douglas 231.

• • •

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Edward McDonald (nee Alanna Walsh) was honored at several showers. Mrs. Clarence McDonald, Mrs. William Derbyshire and Mrs. Em McDonald entertained guests with a kitchen tea at the home of Mrs. C. McDonald in Brantford. Mrs. Jack Ryan and Miss Claudia Jenisse were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Jack Ryan in Belleville. She was also showered with gifts at a personal shower held by Miss Judy Fader of Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Edward McDonald were honored at the Picton Yacht Club by members of the staff from the Ontario School for the Deaf and also at a barbeque held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Gannon in Toronto.

Kenneth Henry of Bracebridge, a four year veteran of the Vietnam war with service as a male nurse in the United States Navy medical corps, has been a visitor in Belleville this week. During his stay in the city the Vietnam war veteran visited with Mrs. Rose Taylor, 67 Grier Street and with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mawdsley, 2 Alfred Drive.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Glover, of Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Gwendolyn Anne, to Mr. Garry J. Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Charles of Melita, Manitoba. The wedding will take place at Eastminster United Church, August 2, at 3:30 p.m.

Home Co-operation Equals Harmony

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: The work my husband does is narrow work so in the winter I go out working. So many of the working women complain that they have to work till one or two a.m. to be able to catch up. The men, besides drawing unemployment, what do they do?

My husband bakes cooking and housework, but when I come home, most of the work is done because he wants us to spend the time together. He is not a good cook but those steaks sure taste good when you're tired and hungry and you don't have to fix them yourself.

When summer comes I always do the same thing and we spend the time together. There's no guilty feeling, no resentment and no grouchiness.

We have two teen-agers, a boy and a girl, and they help in whatever way they can, but with homework and other activities they haven't too much time.

So, come on, men, wash up the dishes, do the floors and little chores; don't wait for the wife to do them. Makes for a Happy Home! I know, and a happy wife is a healthy wife. — Happy

Dear Happy: You just can't do better than that, when it comes to co-operation. I'm betting that many happy homes would report similar fair exchanges. They are the ones who don't need to write to me. Thank you for your thoughts.

* * *

Dear Doris: There are a couple of us kids "flipping out" on LSD, weed, hash, etc. I really dig it but now I think I am going insane. Do they have a test of some sort to determine if you really are "spaced"?

There are a few thousand who will be reading your answer. — Many Heads

Dear Many Heads: People who are "flipping out" on drugs don't need an insanity test — they need HELP! The courts are now following spells big trouble.

The help is there for you, but you have to go after it. There are drug addiction resources in every province. A consultation with your doctor, or a phone call or letter will guide you. Get in touch with The Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Bloor St. West, Toronto 4, Ont.

Confidential to Still Frightened: No one can lengthen the life of another — without being guilty of a crime. The threat is itself a criminal act. Report your husband's tantrums and threats to the police by all means, and let him know you have their backing.

He may pooh-pooh your lame back, but he can't make your aches and pains disappear that way. Simply stop doing the heavy work; and if this means giving up the farm, tell him to go ahead.

But you need counselling. Not by way of the mails; but a personal appointment made with a social worker by long distance telephone, for a date when you can travel the hundred miles to get where the service is. I am sending you details.

Ann Landers

Advice from Ann Brings Changed Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You changed my life. That letter from the woman who said she felt like a prostitute — putting up with her husband's sexual desires in exchange for financial security — sounded like the story of my life for the past 18 years. I almost dropped my glasses in the coffee cup when I read it.

I wrote to you several months ago and you advised me to talk to my doctor but I couldn't bring myself to it. When I read that woman's letter I changed my mind and made an appointment. It was the smartest thing I ever did. I was amazed at the doctor's compassion and insight. He said he had a dozen patients with the same problem and he was helping most of them. He advised me to talk to my husband frankly, and let him know how I feel. The doctor further suggested that I bring my husband to the office so he could talk to him. I said I'd try but it was too much to hope for.

Last night I waited till the children were in bed and then I unloaded on my husband like I never thought I could. To my complete astonishment he said he had known for a long time that we had a sex problem but he didn't know what to do about it. We talked our heads off for three solid hours. It was marvelous! Suddenly it occurred to me that it was the first honest conversation we had in years. He told me things he had been holding back for a decade — and I told him plenty too.

Tomorrow my husband is going to see the doctor. For the first time I am looking forward to our life together when the children leave home. I'll never be able to repay you for what you've done. Thank you, Ann. — G.M.B.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR G.M.B.: A letter such as yours is the best reward of all. Thanks for writing it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When parents who are far from rich give a married son and daughter-in-law $3,000 to help them through a financial crisis, are they entitled to get it back? Or are the parents supposed to forget about it because they have more money than the kids?

Two years have passed since we gave them the money and not a word has been said about paying it back. Last night my husband brought up the subject when our son and his wife drove up in a new car. They called us mercenary, moneyhungry, and worse. There must be others with the same problem. Will you comment, please? — THE MONEY BUSH.

DEAR MONEY: What was the understanding when you handed over the $3,000? Did you say, "This is a loan, not a gift?" If you didn't, you should have. A sure-fire combination for Big Trouble is relatives, money, and nothing on paper. Welcome to the club.

Recipe for Cheese and Onion Pie

By MARY MOORE

My holiday in Holland was such a wonderful experience I am clinging to the memory by using Holland Edam cheese in a wonderful savory pie.

It will remind you a little of Quiche Lorraine — the ham and cheese custard pie recipe I have given you two or three times.

This pie has a Dutch French heritage and is economical.

CHEESE and ONION PIE

(Will freeze)

PASTRY:

1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1/3 cup shortening
1 tbsp. butter
½ tsp. salt
1½ tbsps. cold water

FILLING:

½ med. Spanish onion sliced wafer thin (see below)
4 slices bacon cut in ¼" pieces
2 tbsps. flour
1 cup milk
2 cups shredded Edam cheese (slightly packed)
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
3 large eggs

To make Pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of small peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with a fork, until flour is dampened. Press into ball between palms, roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9" pie plate. Line pie plate. Trim and flute edges. Chill while you make filling.

To make Filling cut thin onion slices in half crosswise. Pour boiling water over them to generously cover. Stand on very low heat, covered, for 5 min. Be sure to do this blanching. Drain.

In large frying pan fry bacon pieces until crisp. Do not discard the fat. Blend in flour, then stir in milk until thick. Add drained onions, shredded Edam cheese, salt and pepper and mix well. Stir in eggs.

Pour into chilled unbaked pie shell, sprinkle with paprika and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 min., then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for 20-25 min. longer or until set and tinged with gold.

NOTES: 1) Raw pie shell and filling may be made in advance and stored separately in refrigerator until baking time. 2) I subjected one of my baked Cheese and Onion Pies to a tough test. I freezerwrapped and froze it and reheated it at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 min. for a second meal and it was fine.

PM Shouted Down

Wheat Farmers Give Trudeau Back of Their Gnarled Hands

REGINA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Regina just don't hit it off.

About a year ago, university students jostled the prime minister and drowned out his words when he came here for some statue unveiling.

On Wednesday, it was the turn of the wheat farmer—self described "flour power"—to give Mr. Trudeau the back of their gnarled, sinewy hands.

The prime minister gave it right back and said farmers were not going to get any better break from the government than fisherman or Indians or any other Canadian in need.

He was booed, shouted down and heckled by a crowd of about 700, mostly farmers protesting low cash income because of slow wheat sales. There was a heavy sprinkling of students and NDP left-wingers in the crowd.

A 40-man RCMP riot squad was secretly moved into the lobby of Mr. Trudeau's hotel while he was speaking—or trying to speak—to the crowd from the back of a truck near the hotel entrance.

However, there was no disturbance and the riot squad quietly dispersed through a rear door. Earlier, some members of the crowd rocked the prime minister's car with the driver at the wheel. Mr. Trudeau was still in the hotel at that point.

None in the crowd realized the riot squad had been moved into the lobby where it stood in two ranks just inside the front door.

Mr. Trudeau reached his car without difficulty to drive to Regina airport for a helicopter flight to two wheat farms some 40 miles south of here. The prime minister stayed for supper and then flew off for Saskatoon, where he begins the fourth day of his Prairie visit today.

Epithets such as "stupid", "stonehead" and "Communist" were hurled at the prime minister by the crowd, many of whom were obviously angry.

Three hours earlier, about 100 tractors roared into the city and parked beside Mr. Trudeau's downtown hotel, the Regina Inn, blocking one street. Some drivers had come from as far as 200 miles away and had been on the road for three days.

Tractor driving along Prairie roads has become a method of protest.

Mr. Trudeau kept his poise during most of his interjection-fragmented speech of 30 minutes. But he was netled a couple of times.

He accused one heckler of being vulgar and afraid to repeat his vulgarity into the microphone.

At another point, he snapped: "I've got the mike and I'm prepared to keep you standing for a long while yet."

That brought more boos.

There was some anger but at no time did the boos of the crowd turn ugly. Some of the farmers watched silently from their tractor seats.

The tractor cavalcade included a manure spreader with a sign "more action, less bull."

Other placards said: "Riel was a swinger—look what it got him;" "hustle grain, not women;" "Trudeau is a bum steer;" and "this country is run by a bunch of Basfords."

Ron Basford is federal minister for consumer affairs.

Mr. Trudeau held separate meetings with officials of the Saskatchewan wheat pool, representing thousands of farmers, and Premier Ross Thatcher, while the farmers waited outside, mainly good-naturedly.

Mr. Thatcher told reporters that the farm-cash income situation is "desperate and critical."

The wheat pool asked for an immediate "cash injection" into the Prairie economy through acreage payments up to $2,000 a farmer, higher wheat prices at home and a floor price for wheat exports.

Mr. Trudeau told the crowd that "the government can't pick up the tab for everyone."

"There will be a farmers' revolt," one man shouted.

"To the Bastille," yelled another.

"Kiss me," said another.

"Good Lord, you're completely nuts," a woman said.

Mr. Trudeau was drowned out by booing when he said his government had already taken "quite a few" measures to help the western farmer.

Mr. Trudeau said the proposals of Roy Atkinson, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers Union, which organized the demonstration, would cost Ottawa $200,000,000. Such money would have to be taken from somebody.

"The millionaires," some yelled.

"The politicians," others shouted.

The prime minister said his government is trying to help everybody who needs help.

"What about the car manufacturers' and their $80,000,000!" one farmer shouted.

"What about Expo?" shouted another.

Perhaps the loudest booing occurred when Mr. Trudeau suggested some farmers might have to switch from wheat to other products.

"Go home," several shouted.

A woman interjected that the prime minister was getting in deeper and deeper the more he talked.

Mr. Trudeau said the farmer will get a fair deal.

"Now you're talking," another woman yelled.

There was even some applause when Mr. Trudeau said credit facilities had been extended to countries which want to buy Canadian wheat.

The prime minister said Canadians would vote on his administration at the end of its present term of office.

"We won't please all Canadians all the time," he said.

"Just the rich," a man interjected.

Tobacco Industry Protests Attacks

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — The leader of Ontario's tobacco growers says the industry is under attack "even to the point of annihilation" through statistics and unfounded assertions put forth by Health Minister John Munro.

George A. Demeyers, chairman of the Ontario Flue Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board, told a board meeting at this southwestern Ontario community Wednesday:

"It is apparent that he (Munro) and his department have made up their minds to stop at nothing in their efforts to restrain the use of tobacco — regardless of any recommendations made by the parliamentary committee on health, welfare and social affairs or anyone else."

even to the point of annihilation

He was supported by Harold Sanford, Liberal MP for Elgin, in an hour-long speech to the board criticizing the type of statistics Mr. Munro presented to Parliament's health committee earlier this year.

"They have made allegations which are based on suspicion, speculation and conjecture and the minister is voicing these allegations both in the House and throughout the nation as if they were true."

Prairie Farmers Use Trudeau Trip As Chance to Air Price Grievances

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan are taking advantage of Prime Minister Trudeau's tour of the West to air their grievances.

After the prime minister described as "stupid," "stone-head" and Communist" by demonstrators in Regina Wednesday, he left for Saskatoon.

There was no demonstration there. Only 150 people drove in the rain to Saskatoon airport to make Mr. Trudeau welcome. He arrived at his hotel and, after signing a few autographs in the lobby, retired for the night.

But had he arrived in the predominantly French-Canadian community of St. Paul, Alta., instead of Saskatoon, Mr. Trudeau would have received a less cordial welcome.

About 100 angry farmers and their families drove a four-mile train of tractors and cars from Ashmont to St. Paul, about 95 miles northeast of Saskatoon. At the head of the slowly-moving parade was a truck bearing a scaffold complete with noose and a sign that asked "where is Trudeau?"

The demonstration was organized by District 4 of the Farmers' Union of Alberta and was to protest sagging wheat prices and what was described as Ottawa's apathy toward western farmers.

"We are protesting not, only the government's apparent, inability to help us, but also Trudeau's trip out West as well," said Bob Cheshire, a local FUA district director who helped organize the protest.

"We have sent several briefs to the federal department of agriculture over the last six months asking for something to be done for the low wheat prices we are faced with and for poor farm incomes in general.

Mr. Cheshire said Ottawa had not acknowledged receipt of the briefs.

"The least we deserve is an answer. Even if they say 'no'."

Signs carried by farmers in the St. Paul protest were typical of the welcome the prime minister had been getting.

"Look after the grain as well as the girls," was one. "The world is starving and we can't sell," was another.

Mr. Cheshire said the demonstrations would continue today to back up demands for a government subsidy to small farmers.

"It could be a direct grant or an acreage payment as a temporary measure, or a payment to keep fields in grass all year."

In its latest brief to Ottawa, the FUA suggested that the federal government buy 100,000,000 bushels of wheat and give it to needy nations such as Biafra.

"We are hoping Premier Harry Strom will detail our proposal to the prime minister when they meet this week. If he doesn't then we will be forced to flood the St. Paul welfare office with applications. This seems all we have left."

In Edmonton, Alberta Opposition Leader Peter Lougheed said Wednesday the provincial government should also implement programs to aid farmers.

The Conservative leader said in a letter to Mr. Strom that the farm crisis is "most definitely" a provincial as well as federal matter.

In Regina, where Prime Minister Trudeau faced the farmers and their epithets, much anger was evident but Mr. Trudeau kept his poise during most of his 30-minute speech.

York County Judge Expels Legal Aid Counsel

TORONTO (CP) — York County legal aid officials are considering the possibility of action against Provincial Judge F. J. Bolsby who ordered a policeman Wednesday to remove a legal aid duty counsel from his courtroom.

The lawyer, Sidney Linden, had insisted on interviewing a Portuguese immigrant housewife charged with shoplifting goods worth $12.02 from a bargain centre. The woman, Lidvina Rosa, later pleaded guilty to the charge, which she said she understood "a little bit," and was fined $50 or 10 days. It was her first appearance in court, and she told the judge she spoke "just a little big" of English.

W. R. Dinkin, deputy director of legal aid in York County, said he did not know what action might be taken against the judge but the matter was under consideration.

Mr. Linden, assigned to represent accused persons on their first appearance in court under the terms of Ontario's Legal Aid Act, attempted to interview the housewife when Judge Bolsby ordered the charge to be read against her.

The judge ordered him to sit down and when Mr. Linden intervened again after Mrs. Rosa's guilty plea, ordered him removed. Outside, Mr. Linden said he thought he had an obligation and duty to interview Mrs. Rosa to see if she understood the implications of her plea. He also wondered if she understood what was happening in the court.

Moonday to Be Holiday in U.S.

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — Town officials here have one upped President Nixon's Monday holiday declaration in honor of man's first anticipated steps on the moon. In addition to closing all municipal offices and giving employees a paid holiday, town officials decided that July 21, 1969, will be called Moonday.

HOUSTON (AP) — Amateur astronomers might be able to see the Apollo 11 spacecraft tonight if their telescopes are strong enough to pick out the tiny craft against the black background of deep space, Manned Spacecraft Centre officials offered the following celestial co-ordinates — declination and right ascension—where the spacecraft is expected to be located (All times are eastern daylight): 10:32 p.m., declination 4.50N, ascension 170.88E; 11:30 p.m., 4.38N-171.06%; 12:32 a.m., 4.26N-171.24E; 1:32 a.m., 4.18N-171.41E; 2:32 a.m., 4.06N-171.58%; 3:32 a.m., 3.96N-171.74E; 4:32 a.m., 3.88N-171.89E; 5:32 a.m., 3.80N-172.04E.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When astronaut Neil Armstrong takes man's first step on the moon Monday, two of the early morning viewers tuned in by television will be President and Mrs. Nixon. "I wouldn't miss this for anything in the world," Mrs. Nixon said Wednesday in disclosing that she and the president would be staying up for the 2:21 a.m. lunar show.

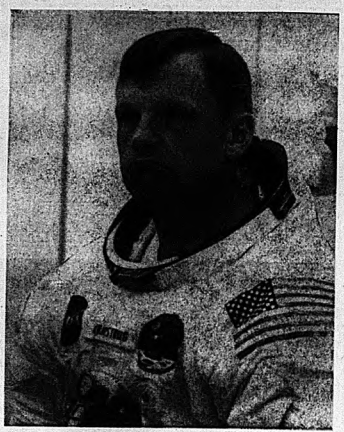
TORONTO (CP) — A 30-by-40-foot television screen will be set up in Nathan Phillips Square in front of city hall so the public can view the moon landing. Board of control approved the plan Wednesday at the request of Ald. Anthony O'Donohue.

Apollo Captures Europe

LONDON (AP) — Europe is moonstruck by the Apollo 11 mission.

Newspapers through the continent filled their pages with pictures of the Saturn V rocket blasting off to forge earth's first link with its natural satellite, and headline writers taxed their imaginations for words to hail the feat.

"The greatest adventure in the history of humanity has started," said the French newspaper Le Figaro, which devoted four pages to reports from Cape Kennedy and diagrams of the mission.



The tabloid Paris-Jour proclaimed, "The whole world tells them 'Bravo.'"

Britain's 5,000,000 circulation Daily Mirror used two-inch high type to herald the launch. "Real cool out there in space—the three quiet Americans out the small talk as they set out on their greatest moon adventure," it declared.

"Bang on course, bang on time—'skirts up' and off to the moon," said the Daily Mail. "Beautiful," said The Guardian and The Times.

There was some seeing.

The Daily Mail cartoonist portrayed two starving children in Biafra gazing at the moon and saying: "Maybe they'll discover it is made of cheese and bring some back for us to eat."

Deep in Thought

Astronaut Neil A. Armstrong, who will be the first man to walk on the moon's surface if the Apollo 11 flight goes as planned, stares silently into space during a brief break in the suiting activity at Cape Kennedy Wednesday. (AP Photo)

Nixon Urges Holiday

Several U.S. governors and mayors have already honored President Nixon's request that they declare a holiday Monday to celebrate man's first landing on the moon.

Nixon signed a proclamation declaring Monday a national day of participation after he watched the television broadcast of the Apollo 11 liftoff Wednesday.

His action gave the day off to all federal employees except those in national security and public service areas.

The president urged governors, mayors, school officials and private employers to take similar action "so that as many of our citizens as possible will be able to share in the significant events of that day."

He also called upon "all of our people on that historic day to join in prayer for the successful conclusion of Apollo 11's mission and the safe return of its crew."

The governors of the two most populous states—Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California—were among the first to heed the president's holiday request.

Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia also granted state employees the day off.

Most private employers said they had not decided on giving a holiday. Some, including the Boeing Co., that built a booster rocket for the Apollo, shut, said, it would be business as usual Monday.

Commercial League Dates 'way Back to '43

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

So much and yet so little has changed in the history of the Commercial Softball League.

It was in 1943 that the Belleville Commercial League was formed from the ashes of the City Softball League which folded in 1942.

That year the Commercial League was composed of seven teams and played its games at the Stewart Warner Field—which even in those days was known as the Alemite field.

Don Lee of Belleville, who later served as an executive member for the Ontario Amateur Softball Association for eight years and was president of that organization for two years, was the initial president of the Belleville Commercial League.

Lee served as the league's president until 1947 when the league lapsed primarily because of the formation of the Belleville and District Softball League. During that span nine teams—Quinte Dry Beverages, the Army and Navy, Houston's Lumber, Tweed Milling Company, Stewart-Warner, Stephens-Adamson, Crawford Metals, the Bakelite and the Energetic Club of Holloway Street Church—played in the league.

The Commercial League has been the most durable of a series of men's softball leagues which date back more than forty years. But even the Commercial League had its ups and downs — the league suspended operations for a few years when the Belleville and District League was formed in 1947. A lack of players and a waning interest in softball were cited by Don Lee as the reasons for the league's suspension of operations.

"There has usually been a better calibre league and a shop league," Don Lee said, "the Commercial League started as a house or shop league and progressed to the point where the players and organizers sought outside competition and wished to participate in the OASA playoffs. Thus the Belleville and District League was formed."

"Today with the Belleville and District League and the Trent Valley League ceasing to operate the Commercial has attained status as the local softball league," Lee added.

Although it still remains to a reasonable degree a league for teams sponsored by plants or firms, the Commercial League's setup has changed somewhat.

A great number of teams—close to 30 in all—have competed in the Commercial League since its revival around 1950 and most of them were composed almost entirely of players employed at the plant or firm of the sponsor.

As the calibre picked up and times changed many of the plants and firms could no longer field a complete team and thus several teams: e.g. Corbin Lock and the Bakelite, amalgamated. Thus the league decreased in size from its largest entry of 12 teams in 1958.

"Today the players are almost exclusively local—thus no travelling is required—and the league is more highly organized," commented Bill Vallance, the league president for the past two years who also served terms as Commercial League president in 1959 and 1960.

"There was usually a void from midget ball upward to senior ball and the league served as a stepping stone from the minors to the Belleville and District League or a stop on the way to retirement for aging ball players," Vallance added.

"The calibre of the league has improved until we appear to have the best balance we have ever had this year," Vallance continued. "Right now there are only ten points separating the top team from the bottom team in the seven team league. I feel that on any given night any team can beat any other team."

A sign of the improvement in calibre of play is the fact that a pair of Commercial League teams—Richard Ellis Juniors in the Junior "A" classification and Stinson's Construction in the Intermediate "AA" classification—have entered the OASA playdowns this season.

Another factor cited by Lee which influenced the Commercial League's upswing is the improvement in playing facilities since the city revamped and restyled the Alemite ball park in 1966.

The league has become such a fixture that it has spanned two generations of players in some cases. An example are Harold Reid and his 17-year-old son Scott. Harold played in the league in the mid-forties and now coaches the Richard Ellis Juniors. A mound mainstay on the 1968 Juniors is Scott Reid, who has toured the league's only no-hitter so far this season.

Newcomer Helps Eskimos Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Newcomer Mike Dalin caught two first-quarter touchdown passes from quarterback Corey Colebour and halfback Thurman Butler ran for another in the third to earn Edmonton Eskimos a 20-13 decision over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Wednesday night.

Dave Cutler was good on one of the two converts he tried and Joe Petrone added the other to round out Edmonton scoring.

Quarterback Carroll Williams plunged over from two yards out in the third quarter for one Montreal touchdown and defensive end John Baker recovered an Edmonton fumble in the dying minutes of the fourth quarter for the other.

Gino Berretta added two converts and a field goal and Sonny Wade kicked a fourth-quarter single for Montreal.

For the Western Conference Eskies, it brought their exhibition record to two wins and one loss. They lost by one point to Hamilton Tiger-Cats and won by two over Ottawa Rough Riders Monday night.

It marked the fourth consecutive pre-season loss for the Als, who finished in last place in the Eastern Conference last season. The Eskimos led 14-3 after 15 minutes and the score remained the same at the half.

Edmonton took a 20-10 lead by the end of the third quarter, but were hanging on at the final gun.

The game attracted 6,500 fans in 80-degree weather.

The Als wound up with 19 first downs to 15 for the winners, although the Eskimo offence was 350 yards to 291 for the Als.

Edmonton gained 212 yards through the air and 138 on the ground while Montreal rushed for 158 yards and passed for 153 yards.

Colebour completed five of 18 pass attempts for 157 yards. He had two touchdown passes and two interceptions. Fulton was six for 15 and 55 yards.

Oslin caught three passes for two touchdowns and 111 yards, while fullback Pinky Clements gained 69 yards on 12 carries.

Williams completed seven of 16 passes for 97 yards. Sonny Wade was good on only three of 14 for 56 yards and had one intercepted.

But All's Well with Men's Champ

Carol's Crown Threatened

VICTORIA (CP-Staff) — The two defending Canadian archery champions — men's titlist Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., and women's champion Carol Armstrong of Belleville — have achieved markedly contrasting degrees of success in the 1969 Canadian Archery Championships here.

Jackson set a record in winning the freestyle field round Wednesday and practically clinched his fourth straight Canadian men's archery championship.

With only today's hunter round to go in the aggregate championship, Jackson has 2,706 points. In Wednesday's field round he scored 340 points, six better than his old Canadian mark.

Meanwhile Carol is having problems. Wednesday she failed to place among the leaders in the women's freestyle round for which she holds the Canadian record of 318 out of a possible 600. She compiled that score last year when she won her second consecutive Canadian women's title in the national championships at Regina.

Carol stood at the halfway point in the championships after Tuesday's competition but no report was given by Canadian Press on her score yesterday and current standing.

However one thing is certain — Carol has clinched a place on the eight-member Canadian team which will compete in the World Archery Championships at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania in August.

Her third place standing at the halfway mark insured her selection as one of the four women on the Canadian team which will compete in Valley Forge. Only the first two rounds counted towards the selection of the Canadian team, but the aggregate total of all four rounds will decide the Canadian championships and final national standings.

Although her exact score or the leader's score weren't reported by Canadian Press, Carol appears to have little chance of winning her third straight Canadian women's archery crown.

A reasonable expectation would be for Carol to take slightly higher up in the standings, possibly into second or third spot.

Mrs. Armstrong's 354 score out of a possible 600 in the 30-target hunter round in Toronto at the 1967 Canadian championships is the Canadian record in the hunter round which will be held today and wind up the 1969 championships.

Carol Armstrong

Francoise Barrier of St. Rose, Quebec won the women's freestyle round Wednesday with 481 points, far below Carol's record score last year.

Larry Courchesne of Haney, B.C., edged Elmer Ewart of Bamberg, Ont., on the strength of more bulls eyes when the pair tied for the runner-up spot in the competition with 538 points apiece.

Carol Ladouceur of Windsor, Ont., set a record in the women's bare bow section of the field round, scoring 330 points, 47 more than the previous mark held by Connie Vanchise of Hamilton.

Louie Van Meyl of Galt won the junior men's freestyle with 475.

Smith, Robinson, Killebrew Top List of 12 AL Reserves

BOSTON (AP) — Rampaging Reggie Smith and perennial choices Brooks Robinson and Harmon Killebrew were among 12 reserves named Wednesday to complete the American League all-star team for its July 22 clash with the National League at Washington.

Smith, switch-hitting Boston Red Sox centre fielder who has a hit well over .400 in July to move into contention for the batting title, was picked for the outfield along with team-mate Carl Yastrzemski, Paul Blair of Baltimore Orioles, Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins, Carlos May of Chicago White Sox and Mike Hegan of Seattle Pilots.

Robinson, who lost the starting third base spot on which he has held a virtual monopoly for the last few years, was picked as an infield reserve. The Baltimore standout will be playing in his 11th consecutive all-star game—tops among this year's AL team members.
